It is pretty generally conceded that the present crop of tobacco is a large one and notwithstanding this the outlook, as far as prices are concerned, will probably be about the same as last year. With a large crop in view they should be less, but as the farmers are asking good figures and up to now buyers seem to be paying them, the outlook for low figures later on may not be realized. It is quite probable that the farmers will, a little later on, sell at lower prices as the buyers are going slowly, which they must do in a year like this, if they want to be able to offer their merchandise in the market at prices where buyers from the States can secure what they need within a limit of making afterwards a profit on what they acquire.

Only a few sample lots have been packed in the Remedios section, just to see how the tobacco would cure in the bales, mostly of light tobacco, which has, in some instances, been sold for export to Europe. The tobacco seems to heat up well in the bales and if any opinion can be formed from the few lots which have arrived in Havana, the yield of first and second capaduras should be a great deal better than last year; not of overgrown size, but just the proper length and of good body. The tobacco also seems to be of fairly sound leaf, not much torn.

In Partido, several packings are under way at Artemisa, San Antonio de los Baños, Guira de Melena, Bejucal, Alquizar and possibly one or two other towns. However, if the weather changes, quite a number of packings of importance will be opened up the first week in May. It might be well for the buyers of wrappers not to look for the "burn on the leaf," as this is not so easily found this year; the tobacco burns good and freely, when wrapped around a cigar, but the very easy combustion of the past crop is not general in this one. There are leaves which will burn when a match is touched to them, but the majority won't. This opinion is formed from quite some lots of new tobacco, mostly seen in bundles right out in the country. It is possible that after the tobacco has fermented in the bales, and not so much sap is to be found among the leaves, that the combustion may be freer. There is no need to worry about the burn; it is good when wrapped around the cigar, but not of the same freeness of burn "on the leaf" as was to be found in the past crop.

In Vuelta Abajo, the weather is partially the cause of the delaying of more packings being started, but the price is also delaying some of the buyers from purchasing. The Vuelta crop is an A No. 1 crop, good style, sound leaf, and of aroma, but the farmers are too high at the moment to tempt buyers to close contracts. This state of affairs, however, will not, at least is not likely to, last long, it naturally being the start, and each grower asks whatever price comes into his head, naturally wanting to try and get the most possible.

That there will be no change in the tariff in the United States, as far as duty on Cuban leaf is concerned, has been a great relief to all interested in that business here. The one exception of the reduction on "scraps" will not materially benefit us, for the reason that up to now the quantity exported has been but a small item; this, however, may now be changed.

Lack of buyers from the States, together with small arrivals of new tobacco, and upon which every one is centering attention, has kept the market rather quiet. This does not mean complete inactivity, as always some transactions of more or less importance are daily carried on. Several lots of new Vueltas and Remedios have been bought for export to Europe, local factories have acquired a few lots and for the United States market several sales of old Vueltas have been put through. While our market is pretty well cleaned out, there are always a few suitable lots here and there to be picked up.

Manuel Lopez, owner of the "Punch" factory, has purchased all of the shares of the "Belinda" factory (it was a stock company) and same will now be run under his direct management; it will, however, retain its identity as an independent factory and have no connection whatsoever with the "Punch" factory, with the one exception that it is owned by the same party. To increase its holdings of last year's crop a lowland vega of Vuelta Abajo, from the San Luis section, was secured this past week for "Belinda."

August Kuttnauer, of Rothschild Sons & Company, of Chicago, arrived last week to look over market conditions and also see something of the new crop, with which he was very well pleased. He secured some of the last crop and took some options on new packings. In connection with his regular business he has accepted the western representation of the "Punch" and "Belinda" cigars, and will also be the general agent for Canada for the above well-known brands. An Eastern representative will also be appointed shortly to represent these two brands.

Ernest Ellinger & Company have received the first shipment from their Artemisa packing, consisting of some 150 bales, and which is entering very nicely in the fermented state.

Aixala & Company have received some 250 bales from their Artemisa packing and next week open up at San Antonio de los Baños.

Sobrinos de Antero Gonzalez are packing Partido tobacco in the town of Bejucal, where they are accustomed to make every year their fancy and high-grade factory packing. In Vuelta Abajo their buyers are active securing choice vegas, as is their custom. Antero Prieto, who recently returned from Spain, expects that this year they will have a very fine selection to offer their many friends and customers.

Jorge & P. Castañeda are busy at their large packing house in San Antonio de los Baños, where they have already packed quite a number of bales. This firm packs almost exclusively tobaccos grown or controlled under their direct supervision.

Leslie Pantin left on the nineteenth for a short trip to New York, accompanied by Mrs. Pantin. However, his stay will be but a short one, as he is expected back here the end of next week.

Mr. Rafael Marquez, president of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union, has presented a petition to Señor Manuel Sanguily, Secretary of State, asking that the Cuban government do all possible to celebrate a commercial treaty with the nations, so that the word "HAVANA" be reserved as an exclusive right for the use of Cuban made cigars and cigarettes, by manufacturers of Cuba.

Receipts From the Country of Leaf Tobacco:

Last Week		Since January 1.
Bales.		Bales.
2118	Vuelta Abajo	9609
212	Semi-Vuelta	1101
329	Partido	756
2	Matanzas	70
288	Remedios	1153
160	Santiago de Cuba	751
3109		13,440

From Partido over 1000 bales additional have been received, as a good deal arrives by wagon loads, and the above quantities are those brought in by railroad.

Business in general continues fairly active with our large cigar manufacturers.

Tampa Factories May Make Cigars in Bond

Plan of M. Sanchez, of Berriman Bros., Receives Favorable Reception

AT a meeting of the Tampa Clear Havana Cigar Manufacturers' Association, held several weeks ago, a proposition was put before the members for the manufacturing of cigars in bond. This is the plan of M. Sanchez, manager of the factory of Berriman Brothers. Mr. Sanchez says that his plan apparently is being taken up with favor by the manufacturers and that it is well thought of. Under this scheme, the cigars would be manufactured under the supervision of the government, who would place upon every box a certificate stating the kind of leaf tobacco used. This might to a certain extent do away with the exploiting of so-called Havana cigars, which are in many cases a mixture of Havana and domestic tobaccos.

E. P. Berriman, of Berriman Brothers, is taking up the matter in Washington, where he will explain the plan to the Florida representatives, looking towards the passing of legislation which will allow the Tampa manufacturers to follow out this idea.

At a recent meeting of the Tampa Association, A. L. Cuesta was re-elected president of the body; J. Lopez, vice-president; M. Sanchez, treasurer, and M. Bustillo, M. Alvarez, Robert Morgan and L. Torres as directors. The only change in the list of officers is that the position of secretary in the future will be filled by George R. MacFarlane.

Simon L. Goldberg, Veteran Leaf Dealer

Simon L. Goldberg, who died in New York several weeks ago, was at one time one of the best-known figures in the leaf tobacco trade. Mr. Goldberg came to this country from Germany when a youth and until several years ago had been in the cigar business or either selling leaf tobacco. He was at one time interested in the Esberg-Bachman Leaf Tobacco Company, being manager of the New York branch, and in 1898 went into business with his two sons at 126 Maiden Lane, as S. L. Goldberg & Sons, leaf tobacco importers. Mr. Goldberg had the reputation of being an authority on tobacco and of being square in his business dealings, and the firm prospered.

Mr. Goldberg retired in 1907. He is survived by a widow, two sons and a daughter. One son, Sydney, is president of Simon Batt & Company. David L., another son, is also with the same concern.

Richard B. Arrington, secretary to B. N. Duke, the tobacco man, died recently at his home, 36 Ridgeview Avenue, White Plains, New York. He was thirty-nine years of age and was at one time connected with the American Tobacco Company, at Durham, North Carolina. He is survived by a widow, two sons and two daughters.

John Foerster, a cigar manufacturer of Columbus, Ohio, who was removed from his sick bed during the recent flood in that section, died at the home of relatives in that city as a result of the shock and weakness due to his illness. Mr. Foerster was sixty years of age.

James McBride, a retired tobacco merchant of Louisville, Kentucky, died at his residence in that city recently. Mr. McBride had been connected with the firm of Bockee, Garth & Schroeder, in Louisville, for twenty years, later going into business for himself. He is survived by a widow, two sons, John S. and Henry B. McBride, and three daughters.

William Franks, for many years identified with the cigar manufacturing business of Boston, Massachusetts, died in that city on April 21 after a prolonged illness. Mr. Frank was born in Baltimore and went to Boston about thirty years ago to enter the employ of his brother's concern, Daniel Frank & Company. He was connected with this firm until he was obliged to retire several years ago. Mr. Frank was an enthusiastic baseball fan and was a member of several charitable organizations and clubs of Boston.

John Dehmer, a well-known wholesale and retail cigar dealer of Tiffin, Ohio, died at his home in that city recently. He had been in business in that city for the past twenty-five years. Mr. Dehmer was born in Germany and came to this country while quite young. He was fifty-nine years of age, and is survived by one son, Louis Dehmer.

James J. Woods, of the firm of Weeks & Woods, cigar and tobacco dealers, died recently, at his home in Hartford, Connecticut, following a long illness due to a complication of diseases. He is survived by a widow.

Cigarmakers Protest Against Clause in Tariff Bill

Delegation Visits Washington and Contends That Change Relating to Philippine Imports Will Injure Domestic Manufacturers

WASHINGTON, April 21.

A DELEGATION of cigarmakers representing the International Cigarmakers' Union came here today to protest against the provision of the Underwood tariff bill that removes the limitation upon the free importation of tobacco and cigars from the Philippines. The delegation was headed by George W. Perkins, from Chicago, president of the union; Thomas F. Tracy, of Boston, vice-president, and Adolph Strasser, of Buffalo, New York. "If the provision of the Underwood bill is not amended so as to maintain the present limit of free imports," said Mr. Perkins, "this market will be flooded with Manila tobacco products to the detriment of our home industry. The largest cigar manufacturing interests will establish huge factories in the Philippines and turn out enormous quantities of cigars with the help of Oriental labor, to whom forty-two cents per day is a fair wage, and capture the home market and the American cigar manufacturers."

This clause of the new tariff bill has been the subject of much discussion in leaf tobacco and cigar manufacturing circles of the country and will be subjected to a heavy attack.

In the case of the American Tobacco Company and others, plaintiffs in error, versus the Peoples Tobacco Company, of New Orleans, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in that city affirmed a decision of a lower court awarding the Peoples Tobacco Company $24,184.18 damages and $5000 attorneys' fees in its suit against the American Tobacco Company. The suit was brought under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

READING, April 28.

THERE has been slight change in cigar manufacturing circles the past two weeks. The flood in the Middle West has affected some of the factories to a certain extent, some of them curtailing orders, but others have been rushing shipments the past week or so and say that cigars will be needed badly out there. There is no question that almost all the stocks of some dealers are gone in some sections and that this will mean more business for the cigar factories. Some of the manufacturing firms will probably help out some of the dealers, for they were hit hard financially.

Walter Steppacher, proprietor of the M. Steppacher Cigar Company, died at his residence, 243 Clymer Street, last week. He is said to have been melancholy since the death of his wife last June, and is survived by two children. Mr. Steppacher inherited the M. Steppacher business from his father, who died abroad several years ago. It is located at 645 Cherry Street.

J. B. Staber, a cigar manufacturer of Warren, Pennsylvania, is making arrangements to move his factory from that point to Reading by June 15. An entire story is being added to the Riegal Building at Front and Washington Streets. Other alterations are also being made so as to have an up-to-date plant. The factory when completed will accommodate 250 hands. Mr. Staber has been manufacturing cigars at Warren for a number of years. Since hands are scarce in this city, many are wondering whether he expects to bring some of his old employees along to work for him there.

E. M. Hartman, who has been manager for the past four years of the United Cigar Store at 612 Penn Street, has resigned and will take charge of the cigar department of Brownmiller's Cafe at 611-615 Penn Street. A full line of cigars, cigarettes and other smokers' supplies will be carried in stock. A display window will be put in and Mr. Hartman assures his friends it will be worked right. He is a great believer in modern business methods and is well versed in the cigar trade, having manufactured cigars for a number of years in this city.

The American House is still undergoing renovations. The cigar stand is not being forgotten in the improvements. A large plate glass window and the new humidor, which will be placed, will make this stand one of the best in the city.

The different cigar factories are working to a fair file of orders and look forward to a good year's business.

Detroit

Some Detroit Factories Dull; Retailers Busy—New Stores Opening and Many Changes Throughout the State of Michigan—Hemmeter Cigar Co., Sues John McNee Cigar Co.

DETROIT, April 25.

IT seems to be the general opinion that cigar manufacturers throughout the country are experiencing a slump in business at the present time, and this applies somewhat to Detroit as well. The tobacco salesmen who have been calling on the local manufacturers are surprised at the many reports of business being dull here. This does not apply to all, however. John P. Hemmeter says he has not noticed any falling off in trade and is just as busy as he ever was. Herbert Weil, secretary of the San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Company, makes a similar report, and as a matter of fact is behind in orders. "Sandy" Stuart, of the Superia Cigar Company, says he has no complaint to make, as he does not look for an enormous business, but is keeping the entire factory busy and showing an increase every month. Jacob Mazer, of the Mazer Cigar Company, is well pleased with business conditions as applied to his factory.

The Lillies Cigar Company have been closed for ten days and expect to reopen April 28. "We are not surprised at the slump in business," said Isaac Goldberg, a member of the firm. "We have been enjoying a phenomenal business during January, February and March, and even April, up to the time we closed, is equally as good as April of last year, so really we have no fault to find. Of course, in comparison with the three preceding months the showing looks bad, but on the whole is very satisfactory. The falling off at present is undoubtedly due to the Ohio floods, the various hurricanes in the past six weeks and the tariff agitation. We believe that it will all come back inside of the next sixty days. I should say that 'over-production' is the reason for the present slack period."

On the other hand, retailers are not complaining, but say that trade for spring has opened up splendidly and increasing every day. The weather has been ideal and the opening of the baseball season has had a lot to do in making business good.

The cigar manufacturers are very much interested in what the outcome will be with regard to the suit started last week in the Wayne County Circuit Court by the Hemmeter Cigar Company against the John McNee Cigar Company, of Windsor, Ontario. The Hemmeter Company alleges that the McNee Company has been using underhanded methods in inducing their (Hemmeter Company) cigar workers to leave them and take positions with them (McNee Company). The McNee Company has been offering the girls on an average of four and five dollars a week more, and a number of them have been accepting. The suit involves $50,000. Mr. McNee states that his company did not try to injure the Hemmeter Company by taking away their help. The interesting point in this case is whether an American company has any redress against a Canadian company using such methods, granting even that they did do as is alleged.

Joseph T. Snyder, who operates a chain of stores in Buffalo and through New York State, and who recently opened one in Toledo, has taken a lease on the front of the Churchill saloon at 158 Woodward Avenue, and has already started to remodel same. He expects to occupy it May 1 with an up-to-date cigar store. About the same time he hopes to open up his other Detroit store, which will be at 115 Woodward Avenue.

Abe Hirsch, representing Joseph Hirsch & Sons, tobacco importers, has taken temporary quarters with his family at the Hotel Ponchartrain, pending his decision as to whether or not he will return to Dayton, his former home, which was completely destroyed in the Ohio floods.

The George White cigar store at North Jefferson Street, Battle Creek, has been redecorated and remodeled. Mr. White reports a very good trade.

Charles Fields, the most popular fellow in Sault Ste. Marie, city comptroller, and proprietor of the leading cigar store and billiard room, has just opened up another cigar store and billiard room and bowling alley.

J. F. Hoonan, cigar and tobacco dealer in Hastings, Michigan, has purchased the leading restaurant of the town and will continue the business.

One of the largest electrical signs in the state is being erected in front of the Old Mission billiard parlor on North Jefferson Avenue, Battle Creek. It is nine feet long and stands four feet high. The arrangement of lighting depicts a billiard table with two players in action. Alexander & Whalen, proprietors, say their cigar department is doing the best business in its history.

The work of remodeling and redecorating the cigar store and billiard parlors owned by James McLarty on East Avenue, Kalamazoo, has just been completed.

The Amboss cigar store at the corner of Shelby and Lafayette Streets will vacate the first of July. A new building will be erected there. Mr. Amboss is asking a bonus for his lease to vacate sooner and if amicable adjustments can be made he will leave at once. He has not decided on any future location as yet.

The anti-cigarette bill which has been pending in the Senate was voted down. The legislature closes about the first of May, which means that there can be no anti-cigarette legislation for at least two years more. When a leading dealer was asked whether he was alarmed over the bill, he replied "The legislature brings the anti-cigarette bill to life every time it wants a little money or want something to do. It's reached the stage where we don't even pay attention to it any more."

One of the leading cigar emporiums in Monroe, Michigan, is that of William Gessell, 49 East Front Street, where a complete line of popular brands is carried.

V. V. Brady has purchased the cigar store in the lobby of the McGraw Building, formerly owned by Mrs. Frank M. Smith.

Oscar Rosenberger, of the San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Company, has been confined to his home for the past four weeks by sickness.

The Beuhler Tobacco Company on Jefferson Avenue, who recently purchased the leaf tobacco business of Rothschild Brothers, is doing very nicely according to the report of Mr. Beuhler.

R. N. Loomis, manager in this district for the cigarette department of Butler & Butler, has left after working the city with a large crew.

Albert Worch, of the Wayne Cigar Company, has left for a trip South. Charles J. Spietz, his partner, was one of the pallbearers at the funeral of Father Mueller, prominent Polish priest, who during his life time had done many things to help adjust difficulties between the Polish cigar workers and the factory owners. All of the cigar factories in the city were practically closed down on the day of his funeral, which was attended by nearly 60,000 people.

The Harry W. Watson Cigar Company, of Detroit and Flint, is being managed by Eugene Watson, son of the late Harry W. Watson. There has been a report that several cigar jobbers have been making offers to purchase the business.

John T. Walsh, who conducts a cigar store on West Main Street, Owosso, has leased a store building on South Washington Street, which he will occupy with a stock of tobacco and cigars and conduct a wholesale and retail establishment in connection with his branch store.

The Cass Cigar Company, of Charlotte, has been incorporated with an authorized capitalization of $6000, of which $3000 has been subscribed and $1500 paid in in property.

An up-to-date cigar department is one of the features of the new drug store of Gongwear & Stealy on Genesee Avenue, which recently opened for business in Saginaw.

Edward Lichtig, of the Philip Morris Company, has returned from a trip to the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

A new five-cent cigar has been put on the market by the Grossen & Hicks drug store in the Marjorie block, Battle Creek. It is called "The Enquirer" and the box contains a replica of the front page of the Battle Creek "Enquirer."

It is expected that negotiations will be closed within the next few days between the G. J. Johnson Cigar Company and the Pantlind Hotel Company, both of Grand Rapids, Michigan, whereby the former will accept a bonus and give up its lease on its store in order that the proposed new twelve-story Pantland Hotel can be built without interruption. Mr. Johnson's lease runs for some months yet, and he has demanded a bonus that if paid would prove very lucrative for him.

There have been many leaf tobacco salesmen in town lately: Howard Kinney, of H. Duys & Company; Fred Singer and Marco Fleischman, of F. Rossin & Sons; Henry Levey, of Teodoro Perez & Company; Harry Nathan, of Spingarn & Company; Robert Jaskulek, of Marcus Jaskulek, of Dayton; Joseph Hirschberg, of Benjamin Labe & Sons, of Philadelphia. Other visitors: Albert Hautzenroeder, of the Hautzenroeder Cigar Company, of Mansfield, Ohio; Julius Marqusee, Jesse Powell with the "First Consul" cigar and Val Keough boosting "Baron de Kalb."

MICHIGAN.

In order to provide for the growing demands of their business, Gans Brothers, the well known cigar manufacturers of New Brunswick, New Jersey, have just completed negotiations for the erection of a cigar factory in that city, to be located on Bethany Street. Present plans call for a factory 100 by 40 feet in size on a lot 66 by 125 feet. The new structure, into which it is expected Gans Brothers will move next summer, will consist of two stories and basement of brick construction.

Swisher Brothers, cigar manufacturers, have started work on the erection of a reinforced concrete cigar factory at Newark, Ohio. The building will be 50 by 200 feet.

The tobacco business of Polk Brothers, Taylorsville, Kentucky, which came into existence about twenty-five years ago for the purpose of manufacturing different brands of smoking tobacco, has been purchased by Charles P. Polk & Brother, in addition to a number of other business men of Springfield, Kentucky, among whom may be mentioned James H. Marcus, Morry T. Wakefield and M. F. Rothchild. The old name will be retained by the new owners, who plan to incorporate for $10,000. It is possible that the plant, which is to be enlarged and have salesmen out on the road, may be removed to Springfield, where the greater portion of the stock is held.

Los Angeles

Klauber-Wangenheim Co. Takes on for Distribution "Luxello" Cigar, Made by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Phila.,—A. B. Greenwald Cigar Co. to Distribute "Barrister" Cigar

Los Angeles, April 20.

THE business situation among the retail cigar stores has presented little change in the past two or three weeks. The jobbers have been busy constantly, filling orders for the city and the country, these orders being unusually large. Collections have been keeping up, and no complaints are noticeable from the jobbers.

Morris Burke after an absence of seven weeks from this city, has spent most of his time since reaching home, telling his many friends the news garnered from his trip East. Since his return he has succeeded in selling to the Klauber-Wangenheim Company, of this city, one million and a half cigars. He has placed with them the "Luxello" cigar, manufactured by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, and also the "Picadura Import," manufactured by L. Newburger & Brothers, of Cincinnati. Mr. Burke has engaged the services of two well-known and reliable salesmen to introduce these brands with him in this territory, and by the time the campaign ends (it will start May 1), Mr. Burke, and all, will no doubt have the satisfaction of seeing these brands with the biggest sellers in this territory.

J. B. Bonhaus, of Klauber-Wangenheim Company, Los Angeles, has just returned from a trip to Chino with some nice orders for that firm. He has made a record for one day's business, having sold 27,000 cigars. It shows pretty good work on Joe's part.

George L. Storm, of the Surbrug Company, was in the city recently and called on his distributors, the Klingenstein Company. It is interesting to learn that the Klingenstein Company again has control of the "Surbrug" line, and the results shown by them in the past two years has exceeded all expectations.

Mr. C. McCormick, representing Pendas & Alvarez, is calling on the trade in the interest of the "Webster" cigars, which are distributed by the Klingenstein Company.

George Yocum is also in the city, boosting the "Y-B" cigars.

As regards the leading brands of the Klingenstein Company, much can be said of the way in which their "Cincos," E. Regensburg & Sons' "American" cigars, and "La Preferencia" cigars, are selling. Increases are very noticeable in these lines daily.

Mr. Harry Rinaldo, of San Francisco, is expected in Los Angeles this week to commence to push and boost the "Mi Rey" cigar through the A. B. Greenwald Cigar Company's interests. This well-known brand is from the factory of Rey Straus & Company, Tampa, and this brand is doing fine.

"The Barrister" cigars, manufactured by Celestine, Costello & Company, have been placed on this market by the A. B. Greenwald Cigar Company, assisted by the well-known cigar broker, Gus Hoefer. Results already shown of this brand depict how "Gus" has been on the job. No loafing for this bird.

J. J. Gans, after fourteen years' deliberation has finally decided to leave today for a four weeks' vacation trip. Business has kept him from attempting such a thing, and his failing health demanded it. Robert Gans, a member of the firm, will take charge of the business end of the firm.

Seattle

Washington Cigar Dealers Report Good Trade For Past Two Weeks—Burley Tobacco Co. Introducing "City Club"—"Fatima" the Biggest Selling Cigarette

Seattle, Wash., April 22.

BUSINESS is much better than it had been for the past three months, the cigar and cigarette trade especially being very active.

Mr. H. Lee, who has for several years been connected with the National Grocery Company in the pipe department, has resigned his position. Mr. Gus Gillis succeeds Mr. H. Lee. Mr. Gillis is a thoroughly experienced pipe salesman, being formerly connected with the S. G. Russell Company. The National Grocery Company has the largest pipe trade on the Coast. Mr. Gillis expects to show a big increase over the present business.

I. I. Hess, the "Optimo" man, has been in the city for a week, making the "Optimo" more popular than ever.

I. M. Cohn, manager of the cigar department of the National Grocery Company reports the "Optimo" showing a big increase. He also reports a big increase on their other brands, which are the "Chancellor," "San Felice," "El Wadora," "Pippin" and "Alejandria."

E. C. Hemphill, of the Burley Tobacco Company, is doing some very effective work on their new brand, "City Club," which is repeating in fine shape.

Mrs. Helen Bullis, formerly in the hotel business in Bellingham, has purchased the Diller Hotel cigar stand.

J. P. Clark, the popular Pine Street dealer, says he will have to establish an information bureau in his store. Every stranger that comes to Seattle, seems to drop in on J. P. for information.

Henry Prince, the leading Tacoma cigar dealer, spent a day here recently coming over in his auto. On his arrival in Seattle he displayed a pocket full of spikes that were picked up by his tires, which was the cause of Mr. Prince arriving in Seattle somewhat late.

Fred Riese, "the cigarette man," is busy with his big crew increasing the sale on his various brands. Fred says he is going to fatten the sale on "Fatima" some more. The "Fatima" is one of the most popular cigarettes on the Coast.

J. H. Nightingale, of Tobacco Company of California, was a recent visitor here among jobbers.

Joe Dizard, the busy Yeslerway dealer, is selling cigars in big quantities again. Most of the fans stop at Joe's and load up for the ball game. The fans claim they get quick service at Joe's, he knows just how many and what brands they want, so there is no time lost in catching a car.

Ben Grimes says his customers have all fallen in love with "Sweet Loma" fine cut. Ben sells more "Sweet Loma" than all other tobaccos combined.

Bun.

Cigar merchants of Chattanooga, Tennessee, are much interested in negotiations now under way between a number of concerns for securing the corner of Eighth and Market Streets, in that city. The United Cigar Store agents have announced that they have an option on the lease. Other interests claim that this option is not binding.

Country's February Imports Unusually Heavy

THE month of February was a very active one for the importers of leaf tobacco and its manufactured products. Natural leaf, both wrapper and filler grades, was brought into the United States in much larger quantities than compared with the corresponding period last year. The importations of cigars, cigarettes and cheroots free of duty from the Philippine Islands, was also greatly increased. The figures for the month are almost double those of February, 1912.

Cigars, cigarettes and cheroots, entering free of duty from the Philippine Islands, included 191,767 pounds by weight and 14,990,000 by number, an increase of 118,858 pounds or 163 per cent., and 10,031,000 or 20 per cent., respectively. The figures for the month are as follows:

FEBRUARY IMPORTS.

The report of the United States Department of Commerce and Labor for the month of February indicates a normal business in the exportation of leaf tobacco and its manufactured products. In comparison with the same month last year a slight improvement is noted in the volume of leaf tobacco and of stems shipped to foreign countries. Cigarettes and smoking tobacco both show increases, but large cigars and plug tobacco show decreases.

Philadelphia Box Makers Charter Schooner to Transport Cedar Logs

THE smoker who picks up his luxurious cigar probably rarely thinks that in order to make that cigar, ships have hurried all over the world to find and bring the very best to please the fastidious taste. Caviare has nothing on tobacco in that respect. From Havana, of course, comes a large part of the raw material, but that is a short voyage. Sumatra wrappers are sent to Amsterdam and then brought to America. Gum tragacanth is found in Arabia. Many bands and labels come from Leipzig. And Spanish cedar grows only in Cuba and Mexico.

It is the delicate aroma of Spanish cedar that makes it the only wood that will preserve the flavor of a good cigar. All sorts of substitutes have been tried in an effort to get a cheaper packing, but all have been rejected. The Havana manufacturer would not think of packing his cigars in anything but solid cedar. Tampa knows nothing but solid cedar. The veneered box, which you can discover by cutting into it, is much used on the cheaper grade of cigars in this country, but the glue usually kills the faint odor from the thin slice of cedar.

Spanish cedar is getting scarce in Cuba and that island can supply only thin, scrubby trees and a poor grade of wood as its forests are cut low. But Mexico is rich in the finest cedar the world has ever known. There are hundreds of thousands of acres of primeval forests in the interior where a saw has never been heard. This has been due almost entirely to the lack of stability in the Mexican government, but there are bright prospects for the future, as capital is made more welcome. It is into this country that the Henry H. Sheip Manufacturing Company, of Philadelphia, have recently entered, almost as pioneers. The cedar they are cutting is in a province never before lumbered, and the trees growing about one to an acre are a hundred years or more old and sometimes as much as six feet in diameter. One can imagine what that means, judging from the size of the trunk of an American oak. It was unsatisfactory and sometimes almost impossible to transport these huge cedar logs to Philadelphia on the regular lines of steamers. This company has therefore chartered its own schooner, which has just delivered its first cargo of logs at the Port Richmond Piers, in Philadelphia. A picture of the schooner is shown herewith.

Smokers Take to "City Club"

The Burley Tobacco Company, of Louisville, Kentucky, are rapidly introducing their new tobacco, "City Club," which they claim gives the smoker a great deal of value for the money, in that the leaf for the tobacco is grown by the manufacturers themselves.

This concern owns the land on which the tobacco is grown, selects the leaf and manufactures it, so that every process from beginning to end is under the company's direct supervision. This is the first time that tobacco has been produced in smoking form in exactly this manner. The cream of tobacco from thousands of farms is available and it is said that the quality of "City Club" is therefore of a very high order.

The success with which this brand has met indicates that the plan is rich in results. "City Club" is prepared for the pipe and cigarette and is sold in the usual two-ounce, ten-cent tin. The advertising campaign now being carried out on "City Club" should shortly make the brand one of the big national sellers.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Dealers to Protest Philippine Clause in Tariff Bill at Atlantic City Convention—Growers in all Parts of Country Have Plant Beds Well Under Way—Frost Kills Plants in Connecticut

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY, April 23.

ALL types of cigar leaf are enjoying a fair demand at present, although the market has been quiet. Wrapper leaf is selling better than it had been and the new Sumatra is being sold heavily. This is more than coming up to expectations, and though prices are high, very little complaint is heard on that score. A large proportion of the new importations of Sumatra is already in the hands of the manufacturers.

The Florida and Georgia leaf are also selling well. This leaf is selling on a greater scale than ever before. It is the opinion of many that it is improving in quality each year and many manufacturers are beginning to purchase this tobacco who never would use it before. Last year's crops are said to be the best in the history of tobacco growing in those sections.

Leaf dealers seem to be taking a waiting attitude regarding Havana. The old crop is pretty well cleaned up and it will be several weeks before the bulk of the new Havana is in our market. Although none but favorable reports have been heard on this tobacco, dealers are not quite satisfied as to its quality until they can test it thoroughly. The dry season has delayed packing in the Remedios sections of the Island and quite a bit of this tobacco is still lying in the sheds.

Dealers are wondering just what will come up in the National Cigar Tobacco Leaf Convention this year. Owing to the unsettled condition of trade generally in Dayton and vicinity the convention will be held in Atlantic City. It is probable that the new tariff bill, pertaining to the amount of Manila leaf tobacco allowed in this country free of duty will come up for discussion. Some tobacco interests seem to think that this is a bad thing.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.

THE leaf tobacco market is beginning to show a slight improvement over the past two weeks. With the settling of conditions in the Middle West it is thought that it will have a favorable effect on this market. Connecticut is selling well, as is Wisconsin. The binder situation is somewhat relieved, but the demand is still strong for this kind of leaf.

The local Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade had a meeting recently, at which time delegates were appointed for the Cigar Leaf Convention to be held in Atlantic City. This meeting will take up nothing of vital importance as in other years. The tariff bill suits almost everyone concerned, except the section relating to the amount of Manila tobacco allowed in this country duty free. Some dealers seem to take exception to this, but as the limit of importations from the Philippines, both as regarding raw leaf and cigars, has never been reached, it is not likely there is any danger now of increased importations. The Sumatra question is a closed issue and nothing is contemplated on this score.

LANCASTER.

Dealers who are interested in the raising of Havana seed tobacco in Lancaster County, in place of the Pennsylvania broadleaf, for which there is little demand, though the warehouses of Lancaster are filled with it, are authority for the statement that sufficient Havana seed was distributed by them for a thousand acres, and it was only given to growers who contracted to plant it, using on the land only the best commercial fertilizer or fertilizer from the barnyard. Tobacco beds of all varieties of seeds are now showing green, and the plants will be ready at the usual time, late May or early June, as the weather allows.

It is estimated that all but about ten per cent. of the 1912 crop has now been sold, and during the past week prices have stiffened a little, recent sales being reported at seven and eight cents a pound. The 1912 goods in the warehouses are going through the sweat satisfactorily so far, heating up nicely. Local packers report trade as very dull the past week in old goods.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, April 18.

WITH the indications that spring has finally arrived, growers have commenced the work of laying plant beds for another crop. The chances are that sprouted seed can safely be sown, for warm days are now due.

A straggling business is yet being done in taking over the very last remnants of the unsold tobacco, but the country districts are swept as bare as ever was known. A few belated crops have been received during the week, but practically this work is over for the season.

Spring fever is getting quite a strong hold on the warehouse help and packers are pleased to see the end of a long season in view. A few concerns, however, have stock in sight for a week or so yet, as the scattering of the help prolongs the work.

A few carloads of Pennsylvania have been brought in by local packers who were attracted to that state by the low prices at which the Pennsylvania is selling.

Nothing of importance has developed in the market for old leaf.

Carl W. Wobbe, New York leaf dealer, was in town for a short stay during the week, coming here direct from Dayton, Ohio, where his firm suffered quite extensively in the recent flood, having about 1500 cases of old goods stored there. A portion of the tobacco, however, belonged to their customers to be delivered as needed. Mr. Wobbe is of the opinion that most of the tobacco in the flooded districts at Dayton will prove an almost total loss, as there is no way in which it can be handled immediately. Transportation facilities have not yet been restored, neither could help be secured to handle the wet tobacco, for the city is under martial law and every available man is put to work helping clean up the city. If the tobacco could have been rescued a few days after the flood and conveniences secured for rehandling and drying it, a good deal of salvage might have been obtained. Now with warm weather at hand the tobacco is very liable to rot before anything can be done with it. As every case represents a cost of about $50 or $60, the loss to himself and other Miami Valley packers can easily be figured to exceed more than a million dollars. The conditions at Dayton, however, were the worst of any of the packing points in Ohio. Mr. Wobbe returned to Dayton Saturday evening.—Edgerton Reporter.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, April 22.

THE heavy frosts of last week gave the tobacco farmers a slight setback. During the recent spell of springlike weather many tobacco beds were sown several weeks earlier than usual. When the cold weather arrived the plants were nipped by the frost and many of them killed. It will not mean serious loss or any lengthy delays.

The warehouse season is closed in this section. Recent festivities at a number of points marked the closing of the season.

It is estimated that there will be an increase in acreage in the Connecticut Valley this year of about two hundred acres. There seems to be a tendency to get away from raising primed Havana this year. Farmers say that the extra trouble that primed tobacco takes does not pay them for the difference in price. This is the case with the smaller grower more so than the large one. The small fellow seems to have more difficulty in securing help when the harvesting season with its priming is at hand.

Growers do not look kindly on the new tariff bill, especially the clause relating to the importations of Manila tobacco in this country. Some of them seem to think that it will have an effect on the tobacco grower in this section. Others laugh at these croakers and point to the fact that the importations in other years have never come near to the limit allowed.

KENTUCKY.

HOPKINSVILLE, April 18.

THE dominant feature of last week's trading on this tobacco market was the strength of prices generally. It was to be expected that the enormous deliveries of loose tobacco that have been made here during the past weeks culminating in last week's record breaking receipts of approximately 900,000 pounds, would glut the market and cause lower quotations on this class at least. But last week's activity seems to be a denial of this, for while the season's high water mark was not exceeded it was reached and all grades showed a steadiness and firmness that was remarkable.

Deliveries of loose tobacco slacked up considerably as compared with the great rushes of other weeks, but even then the various houses had about all they could conveniently do in caring for it. Loose floor sales alone were approximately a half million pounds and prizing house receipts direct from the farmers were equally as much and probably more. This tobacco continues to come from eight or ten counties contiguous to this market. This season's record price of $12.25 per hundred was reached. The schedule of prices prevailing on the loose floor was as follows: Trash, $3 to $4; lugs, $4 to 7; leaf, $6.50 to $12.25.

PRINCETON.

Tobacco plant beds of a number of Caldwell County tobacco growers were sown with grass seed at night and ruined. In each instance the canvas covering of the bed was removed and the soil raked over as a preliminary to sowing the seed. Among the beds sowed by the vandals were those of Senator J. H. McConnell, H. C. McConnell, T. G. Smiley, George Smiley and C. A. Smiley.

There is no clew to the person or persons guilty of the vandalism. There has been some feeling, however, over the fact that growers who are not members of any association have sold their crops for the most part, while but little of the tobacco grown by the organization planters has been disposed of. Most of those whose beds were sowed live in the southern part of Caldwell County.

Newsy Paragraphs From Leading Leaf Tobacco Centres

It has been estimated by the Dayton Citizens' Committee that the flood damage in that section to the tobacco interests will amount to $1,350,000. This does not take in consideration the losses in points outside of that immediate section of Ohio.

The leaf tobacco packing and importing firm of Juskowitz & Bogner, of 413-415 Houston Street, New York City, has moved to 402 East Houston.

In a recent address to the Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association, Dr. J. Harry Pickel, a physician and tobacco planter as well, stated that the situation in that county could be attributed to the methods used by the buying interests. He also rapped the growers for not taking a greater interest in the association. It has been estimated that there are eight thousand tobacco growers in the county and of this number but two hundred belong to the association. "To tell the truth," said Mr. Pickel, "we are licked to a frazzle. We are dead and done for and either do not know or do not care." He counselled organization. A selling plan as used by York County growers was suggested, but no action was taken on the matter.

The Kentucky division of the Farmers' Union has called a meeting of all tobacco organizations in that state, to be held in Louisville May 7. It is intended to get all the farmers' organizations together and effect a national selling system. It is urged that the tobacco growing interests can secure better prices by combining under one selling system. There are now a number of pools and equity societies in Kentucky, composed of tobacco planters, and it is hoped to amalgamate all these bodies.

The German tobacco importing firm of H. N. Oettinger & Company, of Hamburg, in a recent report have the following to say about tobacco stocks in that market:

Havana—Stocks in this market are gradually going at full prices. According to reports on the new crop received here, the Vuelta Abajo crop has turned especially large, while the Partido crop is of the same size as last year. Both crops are reported to be of good quality.

Brazil—Consequent on the high prices ruling at the source of supply an increased interest was shown in local stocks of old crop. Seventeen thousand bales were sold at the increased prices asked by sellers. Interest in the remaining 8700 bales of the 1911 crop remains keen. The so much looked forward to first arrivals of the new crop came in at the end of March in the shape of 60,000 bales, and it is undeniable that the quality of the new crop must be characterized as most satisfactory. The new crop, which does not total more than 300,000 bales, is said to be already wholly disposed of to the exporters in Brazil.

Sumatra—Prices were extremely high, but this was compensated by the splendid quality and light colors of the superior parcels.

Java—The Vorstenlanden crop, while being satisfactory in the color and texture of the leaf, burns badly. The Bezoeki after-crop, which is estimated at 40,000 bales more than last year, has the same fault.

Turkish—Owing to the increased consumption and to the scarcity of importation in consequence of the war, prices continue their upward movement. In Smyrna tobacco there are practically no stocks and hardly any arrivals are to be expected as the whole crop has already been sold.

The Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee tobacco growers will be given a chance to present their case before the Congressional Commission to investigate purchases of American tobacco by foreign countries on April 29, 30 and May 1. The foreign governments purchase largely of the grade of leaf grown in these sections, and the investigation is being done on their account. Growers claim that there is an understanding on prices by foreign interests and that they are not getting the prices they should for their crops.

The tobacco situation which faces the Lancaster County growers at the present time has been likened to that which the planters in the Big Flats District in New York State had to face several years ago. The growers had been increasing their acreages in that section each year, but paid too little attention to quality. They had been growing for quantity and had lost sight of the quality. Several years ago prices had dropped to four and five cents. Prices as low as this were received on the 1911 crop. Many farmers cut their acreages of tobacco in 1912 and more attention was paid to improving the quality of the tobacco. A comparatively small crop was raised in 1912, about fifteen thousand cases, but the quality was so good that in many cases twelve and fifteen cents were paid for it—a high quotation for tobacco in that section. This leaf is said to be of good burn and suitable for wrappers. In many respects it is like Connecticut tobacco. The history of tobacco growing in that section dates back to the time when the soldiers were returning from the Civil War. The Big Flats tobacco is used by cigar manufacturers in every section of the country and is often used as a substitute for Connecticut.

Flood Bill Provides for Bureau of Tobacco Industry

A bill has been re-introduced into the House by Representative H. G. Flood, of Virginia, which provides for the establishment in this country of a "Bureau of Tobacco Industry," from which agents of foreign tobacco monopolies may secure their tobacco. Mr. Flood states that the present method is a poor one and leads to disorder and general dissatisfaction among the domestic growers. He further states that it is "desirable that the business in American tobacco done by Austria, Italy, France, Spain and Japan for their tobacco monopolies could be so conducted so as to promote the general interests of all parties concerned." The Secretary of State is requested in this measure to get in touch with the above-named governments and see if some satisfactory plan for the establishment of such a bureau cannot be provided for.

Examinations For Assistants in Bureau of Plant Industry

An examination by the United States Civil Service Commission will be held on May 7 to secure assistants in tobacco investigations under the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture. One position, which pays $1200 a year, will require a thorough knowledge of the methods used in the dark fire-cured tobacco section of Kentucky and Tennessee. This assistant will go on duty at Clarksville, Tennessee. The second position, which pays $900 a year, requires that the applicant be familiar with practical methods of tobacco growing as applied in North and South Carolina and Virginia.

A cigar factory has been started at 988 East Locust Street, North Side, Springfield, Missouri, by C. O. Brandt, who was formerly employed in a local cigar factory.

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 102 South Twelfth Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

☞ Positively no responsibility assumed for errors, duplications or any controversies which might arise. We will not under any circumstances act in a legal capacity in cases concerning disputed titles. We maintain a bureau of records only.

TRADE NOTICE.

The brand "Roped Havanas" has been registered by us. The feature of banding each individual cigar with a cord or rope band, is our original idea, for which a patent is pending in the United States Patent Office.

Imitators or infringers will be promptly prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Finances of "United" in Good Condition

At Annual Meeting, Held in Jersey City, Dividend of 1¼% is Declared—Assets Amount to $29,995,341

THE annual meeting of the United Cigar Stores Company of America was held in Jersey City on Tuesday, April 15, and the report for the year ended December 31, 1912, was read. The company was organized July 24, 1912, in New Jersey, to acquire the securities of the Corporation of the United Cigar Stores, which latter company was dissolved December 31, 1912.

A dividend of one and one-quarter per cent. was declared on the common stock as compared with a disbursement of one and one-quarter per cent., and an extra dividend of one-half of one per cent. three months ago. This is in line with a statement made by George J. Whelan in which he declared that the present policy of the company called for an extensive expansion programme.

In the reorganization of the old Corporation of the United Cigar Stores, the former holding concern, three shares of the United Cigar Stores Company of America stock were distributed to the holder of a single share of the old corporation. The old company's stock was on an eight per cent. per annum basis.

The assets of the United Cigar Stores Company of America, as shown on the general balance sheet, consists of stocks and bonds in other companies amounting to $29,995,341; cash amounting to $219,980; demand loans amounting to $850,000; bills receivable amounting to $1,718,000; and accounts receivable amounting to $19,507, making a total of $32,802,834.

There is outstanding against this, preferred stock amounting to $4,527,000; common stock amounting to $27,162, and accounts payable amounting to $26,282, making a surplus of $1,087,552.

Cincinnati Tobacco Machinery Co. Wins Suit

In a suit recently brought in Cincinnati by the Cincinnati Tobacco Machinery Company, against Walter J. Friedlander, a former scrap tobacco man, the first-named concern secured a verdict for $24,500. The machinery company claimed that this money was due them on two hundred and forty-five shares of stock purchased by Friedlander in the company in 1911.

Friedlander claimed that the tobacco machines were not as represented and he refused to finance the concerns as first agreed upon. As the result the suit was brought. The machines were brought to court and actual demonstrations of their practicability given for the jury. The inventor of the machine claims that it will revolutionize methods now in use for the stripping of tobacco.

To Supervise Manila Cigar Manufacturing More Closely

Plans looking toward the raising of the standard in quality of Manila cigars are being taken by the Philippine government. This cigar has been the subject of numerous attacks by dealers in this country and in many cases they have been justifiable, as the quality of the cigar is often much inferior to that of the domestic product. The Philippine government will hereafter supervise the manufacture of cigars from the growing tobacco in the field to the finished cigar as it is packed in boxes. This will entitle it to bear in the form of a seal a government stamp guaranteeing the contents of each package, this seal to be broken only by the retailer in the United States.

Whether this plan will ultimately increase the importations of these cigars to the United States is problematical. Even now, after three years of free trade, only 75,000 Manila cigars have been shipped to the United States in the fiscal year 1912. The low grade Philippine tobacco is made into cigarettes of which many millions are consumed in the Islands, while comparatively few cigarettes find their way into the markets of the world.

In order to supply the ever increasing demand for GOOD NICKEL TOBACCO, we have purchased large quantities of SECOND SIZES ranging in price from $1.25 to $1.70, and we offer to the trade

Late Trade Jottings

Fred Deckard, a practical cigarmaker, has purchased the interest of H. K. Hobbs in the cigar factory of Hobbs & Fagan, Watseka, Illinois.

The Henry County tobacco factory, Martinsville, Virginia, used for the manufacturing of plug and smoking tobacco, was totally destroyed by fire a short time ago, the loss, which is estimated at about $30,000, being practically covered by insurance.

A regular two per cent. quarterly dividend, together with an extra dividend of eight per cent., was lately declared by the directors of the Scotten-Dillon Company, Detroit, Michigan. It is stated that the stockholders will receive about $100,000.

The cigar stand formerly controlled by Anderson & Lindquist, 421 East State Street, Rockford, Illinois, has been purchased by Jack Drager, who intends to remodel the store and make it up-to-date in every respect.

The Trenton Cigar Manufacturing Company, located on North Main Street, one of the recent acquisitions of Wichita, Kansas, plan to manufacture staple brands of five-cent and ten-cent cigars. The facilities of the new company should make for success.

E. Schurman, a cigar manufacturer of Holyrood, Kansas, is now located at McPherson, Kansas.

"Moose Special" is being featured as a leader by Reinheimer & Ziegler, cigar manufacturers, who recently opened for business at 117 Jefferson Street, Sandusky, Ohio.

Joe Roemer, a well known cigar man of Visalia, California, is remodeling his cigar store at that place. A new front is to be installed, as are also new counters, etc.

Arrangements are being perfected by G. F. Smith, a cigarmaker in the employ of Henry Heyn, Marshall, Texas, for the opening of his own cigar factory in that place.

Tobacco Market of Belfast, Ireland

IN 1912 the Belfast tobacco factories were fully employed, and the total amount of duty paid on tobacco leaf cleared from bond shows an increase over the figures for the previous twelve months. It is claimed that a duty of 3s. 8d. ($0.89) per pound has to be paid on some classes of leaf, the market value of which is under 5d. (10 cents) per pound. In addition to this the trade has to contend with the abnormally high cost of the raw material, consequent upon a succession of short and poor crops, the result being that some classes of tobacco leaf advance as much as 5d. (10 cents) per pound during the year.

Notwithstanding a liberal grant made by the government, the growing of tobacco in Ireland has not advanced much beyond the experimental stage.

To Cigar Manufacturers and Leaf Dealers:

The Sale of the 1912 Crop

Florida and Georgia

thus far has proven that those who know recognize the merit of this wrapper.

IF YOU ARE a leaf dealer, have your trade try it, both as to its merit as a wrapper in comparison with imported Sumatra, and in the interest of economy.

The 20th Century Wonder in Smoking Tobacco

It's Better

Expert judges of smoking tobacco have said that CITY CLUB is worth 20 cents a can compared to imitations.

Why?

The Answer: We own the land. We grow the tobacco. CITY CLUB is the "cream" of 200,000 acres of the finest Burley tobacco grown in the famous Bluegrass section of Kentucky. The first pipe-full will convince you.

CITY CLUB is only one hundred days old, yet it is duplicating and selling from coast to coast. Ask your jobber. Quality is doing the trick. Dealers are authorized to refund money to any customer not satisfied that CITY CLUB is better.

We Prepay Express on Trial Orders

MR. DEALER: Our national advertising campaign on CITY CLUB will start in a very short time, and you will have calls for CITY CLUB because it's better. Write or wire us, at our expense, and we will ship you a trial order of two dozen 10c. cans and one magnificent Crystaloid window display show card, express prepaid, for $1.92. Give name of your jobber and we will supply him.

Leaf Convention Plans Credit Bureau and New Trade Customs

Committee Appointed by Atlantic City Meeting to Improve Conditions—Movement to Educate Growers as to Proper Fertilizers—Officers Re-elected for Ensuing Year

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 13.

PLANS for the establishment of a Trade Credit Bureau; the appointment of a committee to draft plans to settle claims between buyers and sellers of leaf tobacco; the adoption of measures to maintain the quality of domestic leaf tobacco, by educating the growers to use the right kind of fertilizers; a decided stand against the present dock-weight law governing the importations of tobacco; an attack on the unrestricted importation of cigars from the Philippines were the mountain peaks of interest in the business transacted by the Fifteenth Annual Convention of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association, which came to a close tonight. The convention was one of the most enthusiastic ever held by the association and the delegates were so pleased with Atlantic City that they voted to hold all conventions here in the future, unless especially invited to other cities. All the officers were re-elected for the ensuing year.

Stricken Dayton was unable to open its doors to the delegates and visitors to the Fifteenth Annual Convention of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association, which they invited last year, so the executive committee decided to call the convention in Atlantic City, New Jersey, and their choice met with universal approval. The Hotel Shelburne was selected as headquarters and Mein Host Jacob Weikel made splendid arrangements to take care of his guests.

The convention was called together on Monday morning, May 12, at 10.45 with the president, Aaron B. Hess, presiding. Some eighty or more delegates and visitors were present.

The usual address of welcome was omitted for obvious reasons, and President Hess's annual report was offered and read.

The report of the credentials committee showed the following accredited delegates and alternates as among those present:

Directors—Charles Fox, S. M. Newburgh, William Faussig, I. M. Strusser, W. J. Lukaswitz, A. W. Kaffenburgh, Benno Neuberger, M. L. Floyd, A. W. Geiske, George M. Berger, J. Goldberg, J. Vetterlein.

Delegates.

New York, N. Y.—J. F. Cullman, Jr., Milton Samuels, Henry Fisher, Moritz Neuberger, Carl Wobbe, F. M. Dolbeer, A. Schmidt, Sig. Spingarn, J. Mendelsohn, Benno Rosenwald, John H. Duys.

Lancaster, Pa.—I. H. Weaver, S. Siesel, B. F. Good, M. Rosenthal, J. H. Hoober.

Philadelphia, Pa.—John R. Young, Sr., S. Weinberg, H. W. Bremer.

Baltimore, Md.—John Dellevie, Henry Kraus.

Cincinnati, O.—H. Meyer, F. W. Miller.

Boston, Mass.—J. Joel Coleman.

Elmira, N. Y.—J. Herbert Brand.

Warehouse Point, Conn.—Leonard L. Grotto.

Dayton, O.—S. Jaskulek, W. J. Lukaswitz.

Hamilton, O.—L. Newburgh, I. M. Newburgh.

Cleveland, O.—P. Semon.

The treasurer, Ferdinand Cranz, reported receipts of approximately one thousand dollars during the past fiscal year, and expenses amounting to about the same sum, leaving a tidy balance of over four thousand dollars on hand.

The president then announced the appointment of a Resolutions Committee, headed by the veteran J. R. Young, as chairman, and including also Messrs. Fisher, Lichtenstein, M. Neuberger, Jos. Mendelsohn, I. Weaver and W. Haas, and then called for the reports of standing committees.

The chairmen of the various standing committees, including the Conference, Arbitration and Legislation, had little of interest to report.

Monday Afternoon, May 12.

The convention went into session promptly at 2.30 in the afternoon and the first business before them was the consideration of the reports of special committees.

John R. Young, chairman on behalf of the Resolutions Committee, showed at once that his committee had not been idle, and upon being called upon by the chair, reported that his committee had drafted seven resolutions of vital importance for the consideration of the delegates assembled.

American Tobacco Co. Buyer Killed; Director Walker Hurt in Auto Smash

Car Bearing Well Known Tobacco Men, Overturns at Richmond, Va., With Serious Results—Andrew B. Willingham Dead

RICHMOND, May 13.

A SERIOUS automobile accident, resulting in the death of one prominent American Tobacco Company official and the serious, if not fatal, injury of several others, occurred here tonight.

Andrew B. Willingham, chief tobacco buyer of the American Tobacco Company, received injuries of which he died; Thomas J. Walker, a director of the American Tobacco Company and in charge of that company's tobacco warehouses, was perhaps fatally hurt.

With a party of friends these men were in a touring car owned by Mr. Walker when it overturned as it was leaving the Country Club of Virginia.

Mr. Willingham died a few minutes after reaching St. Luke's Hospital.

The chauffeur took the inside turn on a steep down grade at a sharp turn on the turtleback driveway from the clubhouse instead of going to the outside. Mr. Willingham was caught under the car.

J. E. Lipscomb, of the leaf department of the tobacco company, was injured about the knees, and Frank P. Smith, district manager of the Federal Cigar Company, was slightly injured. The only man unhurt was Oscar C. Gregory, Mr. Walker's assistant.

The first resolution offered provided that in future all the annual conventions of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association should be held in Atlantic City, and that the expenses for the convention should be borne by the treasury of the association. When I. Weaver, of Lancaster, brought to the attention of the convention that he had an invitation for them to convene next year as guests in another city, Jos. F. Cullman, Jr., of New York, offered an amendment to the resolution to the effect that if the association did not receive any invitation to convene at any other point, Atlantic City should be the convention place, and the resolution as amended was quickly adopted.

The next resolution offered provided for the appointment immediately of a committee of five to formulate, if possible, a plan to create a credit board, and to present the place at this convention for further consideration. This resolution met with instant approval, and in accordance with the resolution the chair named Messrs. Jos. Cullman, Jr., Moritz Neuberger, Jos. Mendelsohn, Julius Lichtenstein and I. H. Weaver as the committee to carry out the purport of the resolution.

The next resolution proposed the nomination of a committee of five to formulate a plan to regulate all differences between buyers and sellers of leaf tobacco. This plan to be binding upon all members of the association, and to be urged for adoption by all interested, whether members or not. Julius Lichtenstein spoke strongly in favor of this resolution, stating that interest in the association seemed to his mind to be flagging owing to a lack of progress shown in definite directions.

John R. Young forcibly replied to Mr. Lichtenstein, calling attention to the valuable and marked work which the association had accomplished in years past, but favoring the resolution nevertheless. Jos. F. Cullman, Jr., spoke against the resolution as a needless one, and stated that the Arbitration Committee was a moribund one owing to the fact that its decisions could not be binding.

The resolution went through, however, and the following gentlemen were named for the committee with instructions to report Tuesday morning as a special order of business: Messrs. Lichtenstein, Vetterlein, Gieske, Brill and Olds.

The next resolution called attention to the desirability of increasing the membership of the association, and provided for this by instructing the secretary to send a copy of the by-laws and constitution of the association to every leaf dealer in the United States with an invitation to join, this to apply specially to localities where there was no local association. This was adopted without discussion.

The next resolution called attention to section 4, paragraph C, of the Underwood tariff bill, in so far as it concerned Philippine cigars and their importation into the United States, and protested strongly against the adoption of the proposed bill by Congress.

This resolution aroused considerable comment, the discussion being participated in by Messrs. Young, Cullman, Mendelsohn, Ranck, Vetterlein and others, but was finally amended and adopted.

The resolution concerning the proposed dock weight law was considered eminently just, proposing as it did that all honorable means should be used to defeat the measure, and this was quickly passed.

The next business before the convention was a resolution of the deepest sympathy to the afflicted members of the association and the trade at large who suffered by the recent floods in Dayton and vicinity. This resolution was adopted by a rising vote and the secretary was instructed to wire the resolution to the association in Dayton.

The resignation of W. L. Crounse, who has represented the association for years in Washington, but who is now ill in a sanitarium, was received and accepted with regrets and thanks for the able work he has done in the years past.

Credits and Differences Between Buyers and Sellers Discussed

Second Day's Session.

In accord with the resolution of the day preceding, that the reports of the two committees appointed on Monday to report to the convention on the subjects of establishing a credit bureau and also to establish a plan to regulate differences between buyers and sellers which were made the special order of business, Joseph Cullman, Jr., as chairman of his committee, stated that they had held a meeting the day previous and that after careful consideration desired to present to the convention the following resolution for adoption:

Resolved, That whereas we believe it would be of great benefit to the tobacco trade to have more accurate and definite information regarding credits,

We recommend that a committee of five be appointed to formulate plans for a Trade Credit Bureau and be allowed an expenditure not to exceed $250 for preliminary work.

Said committee to submit their plan to the tobacco trade generally to ascertain whether such a bureau is of sufficient interest to the trade to warrant its establishment.

This resolution brought forth some wide difference of opinion. J. Mendelsohn was a hearty advocate of the measure and called attention to the excellent work which has been done by the Western Leaf Tobacco Association along the lines suggested. This association, which has its headquarters in Milwaukee, provides for an interchange between members of all vital data affecting buyers between members, and such data is conscientiously and seriously provided.

George M. Berger, as a Western representative, voiced the opinion that his constituents would not be interested in such a board, as their needs were fully covered by local organizations, and this view was also concurred in by Delegate F. W. Miller, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

After a prolonged discussion, during which Chairman Cullman defended his resolution with logic and effect, President Hess spoke strongly in its favor, urging unity and national work along these lines in its broadest sense as against sectional work or the work of local boards, and the resolution was adopted with but slight objection.

Following this came the report from Julius Lichtenstein, as chairman of the Committee on Trade Customs, which report was read by J. R. Young:

Your committee appointed to formulate plans by which claims and controversies between buyers and sellers of leaf tobacco can be regulated and adjusted beg to present the following: That the chair be requested to appoint a committee of seven to carefully investigate the entire subject, ascertain the rules binding in other associations and formulate such rules and trade customs for this association as may, in their opinion, be wise, and the report of said committee to be printed and mailed to everey local board for their action, said action to be reported on or before October 1 to the secretary of this association, and if by such referendum vote the rules shall be adopted, the same shall have the sanction and indorsement of this association and published in the trade papers as its official action. The legitimate expenses of the committee to be paid by this association.

A. W. Geiske spoke of their local methods in Baltimore in support of this resolution and George W. Berger spoke favorably for the Western members.

It was then adopted with enthusiasm.

John R. Young next called the convention's attention to a carefully prepared printed article on the subject of the abuse of the present system of storing tobacco for purchasers, and invited the convention to take this matter under consideration. It was finally referred to the new Committee on Trade Customs and thus had the honor of being the first subject for that committee to consider.

Mr. Joel, of Boston, then urged the convention to place itself more squarely on record concerning the pending legislation on the dock weight question and called attention to the absolute injustice of the United States Government in collecting duties on moisture in tobacco, as is the case under the present unfair system.

Ferdinand Cranz, the reliable watch dog of the treasury, agreed with Mr. Joel in his views up to the point of expending any large sums of money in this work, which he believed to be futile, and J. R. Young closed the discussion by recalling the fact that the matter was now in the hands of the legislative committee, and that they were watching it most carefully.

On motion the convention adjourned at 12.10 till 2.30 in the afternoon.

The convention met promptly at 2.30 on Tuesday afternoon for its last session of this year and the first business was the announcement by President Hess of the personnel of the Committee on the Establishment of a Credit Bureau and the Committee on Trade Customs in accordance with resolutions previously adopted.

The chair named the following gentlemen as the Committee on the Establishment of a Credit Bureau: Jos. Cullman, Jr., chairman; J. Mendelsohn, Moritz Neuberger, G. M. Berger and H. W. Bremer.

The following were named as members of the Committee on Trade Customs: Julius Lichtenstein, chairman; M. Haas, A. W. Geiske, Julius Vetterlein, G. Brill, I. H. Weaver and J. R. Young.

Carl W. Wobbe at this time offered a resolution endorsing the proposed legislation now before Congress to tax coupons given away with purchases of tobacco, cigars, cigarettes and kindred merchandise. This met with universal approval and was adopted with unanimity.

John R. Young then presented the next resolution, which was a most important one for many branches of the industry. It read as follows:

WHEREAS, It is of the utmost importance to the seed leaf industry that special attention should be given by the growers to the quality and burn of their tobacco and that more care should be exercised by them in the selection of such fertilizers as will produce the desired result, it being a well-known scientific fact that the wrong fertilizers will not only affect the quality, but prove harmful to the ground; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the secretary be instructed to prepare a circular drafted by experienced growers and packers, expressing therein the views of this association, which shall be mailed to every growers' association; also,

Resolved, That the secretary be instructed to send a copy of said circular to all of the farm and agricultural journals, as well as to the newspapers published in the growing sections, and to continue this as long as it may seem to be necessary.

According to the prescribed routine the election of officers for the ensuing year next engaged attention.

Ferdinand Cranz, in a eulogistic speech, named Aaron B. Hess to succeed himself as president. Jos. Mendelsohn seconded this, and the nominations were then closed on motion, and Mr. Hess' election was made unanimous.

The president accepted the office again in a ringing speech, asking for co-operation to the utmost in the work which the association was doing.

J. R. Young named F. B. Griffin for re-election as vice-president. This nomination and election was also made unanimous, as were those of Charles Emory Long for secretary and Ferdinand Cranz for treasurer.

PROBLEMS of the RETAILER

An Advertising Fable

A BAKER was moved with the advertising spirit.

He had a swinging sign in the shape of a loaf of bread painted with his legend: "Fresh Bread for Sale Here."

His wife looked at it and said: "That's a fool sign, everyone knows you sell bread HERE. I'd have that word painted out."

He did so.

An advising friend (we all have a few) came along and said: "That's a dippy sign. No sane person thinks you give your bread away. Better have the words 'FOR SALE' painted out."

They were.

A drummer chanced along later, looked at the sign and said: "That sign's a joke, ain't it? People will get to think you are stuck on yourself—that you think you're the only baker that made that kind of bread before. I'd paint out that word 'FRESH.'"

It was painted out.

A customer came in and said: "What's the idea of that sign? Any one can see it's a loaf of bread. Why don't you cut out the word 'BREAD'?"

And he actually did.

The next day the policeman on the beat said: "Gee, that's a bum sign. A drunk I was taking in last night saw that tin shingle and swore this was a cigar store."

So the baker took down the sign and patched up some rat holes in the cellar with it.

Moral: If you have an idea and you think it's good, stick to it.

Consider the weathervane and be wise. No matter how the wind blows it points into the middle of the rush.

Ideas are the yeast of success, but a good idea must be thoroughly worked in to raise the dough.

Some criticism is like a fly in the frosting—it makes a lot of buzz, but the sooner it is cut out, the better the cake will look.—Retail Equipment.

Pertinent Pointers for the Clerk

Try to put yourself in the position of the man on the other side of the counter when you are waiting upon him. Anticipate his needs, as far as possible. That's real salesmanship. Any one can get cigars and pass them to the man asking for them, but the fellow that can make suggestions, and knows the difference between the many brands is the salesman worth having.

When a man comes in the store to buy a cigar, don't ask him whether he "likes them light or dark." You know, or ought to know, that the wrapper has nothing to do with the strength of the cigar, and by asking that question you open a train of thought which often gives the smoker that idea. After a while you will find out that you won't be able to get rid of a certain color of cigars because your smokers have that prejudice.

Does Your Store Have a Sheriff's Deputy?

IN nine stores out of ten the sheriff has a "deputy." He is the lack of knowledge which would allow the retailer to know which things to do first—the lack of knowledge which keeps him so busy doing the wrong things that he never has time to do the profitable things—to work out plans that mean more business and less expense.

He is the dead stock which lies on the shelves, eating the profits the live lines earn—the idle dollars which earn no profits and cause the failure to grow.

He is the hidden leaks that do not come to the manager's eye but exist just the same—the dangerous leaks that could not exist in the face of accurate, search light accounting any more than darkness could exist under a glaring, high power street lamp.

He is the confusion caused by mixing methods of figuring profits, which more than half the 2,000,000 retailers in business today are doing—the dangerous mixing of methods which is the reason for the large number of failures among retailers every year.

And it all sums up to this: it costs more not to keep and analyze accurate records than it does to keep them. Leaks and neglected opportunities are more expensive than bookkeeping. Every leak points an accusing finger at the accounting system in use—it must be wrong or the leak could not exist.

Success depends not half so much upon ability, as upon analytical reports which will enable the manager to do the right thing at the right time. The successful retailer is the one whose eye can always see the things it ought to see—whose accounting system gives him facts on which to base his management—who isn't "making friends" with the sheriff.—By F. M. Paull, of the Burroughs Adding Machine Company.

Not to be outdone by her sister states, who recently enacted anti-cigarette legislation, the Pennsylvania Legislature has just passed the Thompson bill. The Pennsylvania bill seems to put the matter up very strongly to the retail dealer and passes over the alleged offenses of the smoker lightly.

Pennsylvania's Cigarette Law Up to the Dealer

The bill prohibits the sale or gift of cigarettes or cigarette paper to any one less than twenty-one years of age. Any one convicted of making said sales is to be subjected to a fine of from $100 to $300. A minor found in the possession of cigarettes is required to tell where they were obtained and upon refusal to do so, may be punished for a misdemeanor.

This clause of the law puts an unfair burden on the dealer. Where the person found with cigarettes or papers refuses to divulge the name of the dealer, and such person is over sixteen years of age, he is subject to a fine of $5 or imprisonment. Purchasers under sixteen years of age are to be committed to the Juvenile Court, who will deal with them in a special way.

It will be noticed that the new law, unlike Minnesota's latest statute, does not prohibit the smoking of cigarettes by minors, but simply prohibits the sale of cigarettes or cigarette papers to minors, thereby leaving a loophole which is likely to result in nullifying the measure to a great extent.

A step forward, keeping pace with the rapidly changing methods of doing big business, has been made by the American Tobacco Company, in their announcement that hereafter special concessions, rebates and confidential prices to jobbers will be abolished, and that every jobber, big and little, may buy on equal terms.

Special Rebates A Thing of the Past

This change of policy, which is, indeed, revolutionary, may work temporary hardships upon the firms which heretofore have enjoyed special discounts, but in the long run it will be beneficial both to the American Tobacco Company and its customers, by raising their business methods and opening their markets to freer and fairer competition.

President Hill, in promulgating the order, says he believes that it is in harmony with the "current intelligent thought in business propriety," and that while the American Tobacco Company has no right to control the prices at which they will sell to retailers, they do know that the discounts allowed jobbers represent legitimate jobbers' profits.

The wiping out of special favors will disarm many of the most hostile critics of the American Tobacco Company, and cannot fail to strengthen the position of this company before the trade.

There are several features in the Underwood tariff bill, just passed by the House and now before the Senate, which have aroused loud protests from the domestic cigar and tobacco interests. The chief point of attack in the House was on the free trade clause admitting Philippine cigars and tobacco without restriction.

Why They Object to Underwood Bill

The fight on this point was made strenuously by a number of Congressmen representing tobacco growing and cigar manufacturing states. On behalf of the Pennsylvania interests, Representatives Moore and Griest made particularly emphatic protests, but without avail.

When it is considered that under the Payne-Aldrich law 150,000,000 cigars were permitted to be imported yearly, duty free, from the Philippines, and that in no year since have the importations been much more than half of this limit, we can see no reason why this limit has been changed, unless the Democrats, just out of pure cussedness, want to assert their free trade opinions in this direction.

The cigarmakers' unions throughout the country view with considerable apprehension the letting down of the bars to the unrestricted importation of cigars made by the underpaid Filipinos, but Mr. Underwood's merry band of revenue smashers have been as deaf to their protests as they have been to the protests of the leaf and cigar interests.

Another phase of the Underwood bill which is causing some apprehension is the administrative feature of the measure which permits of wide latitude of interpretation in computing the duties on imported wrapper and filler tobacco. Under the new provisions tobacco interests, either in Havana or this country, must submit their books to examination by government inspectors whenever there is any dispute as to the ratio of wrapper and filler tobacco in any importation.

If the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association accomplishes just one-half what they endorsed and planned for at the convention in Atlantic City, they will have remedied some of the worst evils in the leaf tobacco trade. A credit bureau and the plan for settling differences between buyers and sellers of tobacco is especially needed at this time, as well as an educational campaign for domestic tobacco growers.

Predictions Made That Stores Will be Used as Competitors for "United" Chain and American Tobacco Co.

THE announcement that James B. Duke, president of the British-American Tobacco Company, and formerly president of the American Tobacco Company, has bought a large interest in the Liggett Drug Company has just been made. While newspaper reports have stated that Mr. Duke has made this move to get inside control of the five thousand five hundred drug stores affiliated with the United Drug Company, and to use them as an entering wedge for competition with the American Tobacco Company and the United Cigar Stores Company, it is not believed that such is his motive.

The Liggett Company is controlled by the United Drug Company, which not only operates the retail end but also is a big factor in the manufacture of drugs, and it is more than likely that Mr. Duke has seen the profit making possibilities of the chain drug stores and has invested his money primarily because of the prospects of a good financial return. However, acquiring close affiliation with five thousand five hundred drug stores places in Mr. Duke's hands a much larger chain of stores than is today operated by the United Cigar Stores, and has put him into position to build up a strong competing outlet for cigars and tobacco should circumstances in the future warrant such a move. It is known that Mr. Duke still has large holdings in the former various subsidiaries of the American Tobacco Company, despite the fact that he is no longer president of the parent concern.

Fifth Amsterdam Inscription

At the fifth Sumatra inscription, held in Amsterdam on May 9, about 3000 bales were purchased by American importing and cigar manufacturing concerns. Prices ruled steady and the quality of the tobacco remained good. Among the American firms which took tobacco were the following: A. Cohn & Company, 150 bales; H. Duys & Company, 380 bales; Deisel-Wemmer Company, 400 bales; American Cigar Company, 400 bales; Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, 300 bales; E. Rosenwald & Brothers, 100 bales; F. and E. Cranz, 214 bales; M. Rosenberg & Company, 150 bales, and L. Schmid & Company, 117 bales.

Sugarman-Crandall Co., New Cigarette Firm

The Sugarman-Crandall Company, Incorporated, is the title of a new cigarette firm organized in this city the past two weeks. They will have their headquarters, both office and factory, at 17 East Forty-fifth Street, and will manufacture the "Ess-en-Cee" cigarette. They also expect to handle imported brands of cigars, which will be carried in connection with the cigarettes. Mr. Sugarman, one of the members of the firm, is an experienced cigarette man, and states that their goods will be of a good quality and will satisfy the most exacting trade.

Figures for Cigars and Cigarettes for Month Show That Industries as a Whole Are in Prosperous Condition

EVERY line of the tobacco industry in the First, Second and Third districts of Greater New York showed an increase for the month of April over the same period last year with the exception of snuff. Cigars almost reached the 73,000,000 mark and testified to the prosperity of that branch of the trade at present. The surprising feature of the figures is the increase in small cigars. This is more than twice the output of April, 1912.

The figures, as compiled from the Internal Revenue receipts, are as follows:

	1913.	April, 1912.	Increase.
Cigars,	72,899,700	65,660,851	7,238,849
Little cigars,	6,332,400	2,822,453	3,509,947
Cigarettes,	598,125,240	587,792,256	10,332,984
Cigarettes at $3.60,	1,295,650	1,174,450	121,200
Snuff, lbs.,	8,416	22,270	*13,854
M'f'g'd tobacco, lbs.,	664,967	557,960	107,007

*Decrease.

The output for the first four months of the year, as compared with the same period last year, is as follows:

	1913.	1912.	Increase.
Cigars,	269,120,770	243,746,679	25,374,091
Little cigars,	17,853,586	29,822,813	*11,969,227
Cigarettes.	2,185,049,824	2,182,098,742	2,951,082
Cigarettes at $3.60,	4,820,977	5,032,750	*211,773
Snuff, lbs.,	27,664	46,599	*18,935

R. M. Haan, who has stands in the St. Regis, 507 Fifth Avenue, and the Park Row Building, is retiring from the retail business on May 15.

On Saturday, May 3, the cigar stand was opened in the new Woolworth Building, with one exception, the tallest building in the world. The stand is in the Rathskellar and is of mission oak. The whole thing is gotten up in a most artistic manner. W. K. Redmond, formerly located at the Hotel McAlpin, is manager of the Woolworth stand.

According to the will of the late Louis Ash, cigar manufacturer, one-half of the residue of his estate, valued at more than $100,000, is left to his two daughters, Mrs. May and Mrs. Chase. Samuel M. Chase, son of Mrs. Chase, receives all of his grandfather's interest in Louis Ash & Company, in addition to $35,000. By a provision in a codicil to the will, Mrs. May also receives $35,000 additional.

An appeal has been filed by the Borgfeldt Stripping Machine Company from the ruling recently decided against it in its case with the Universal Tobacco Stripping Machine Company. Until this matter has been settled, the Borgfeld concern has been restrained by injunction from selling any of their product. However, they are allowed to lease them.

S. Loewenthal & Sons, Add to Sales Force

ANOTHER factor in the selling organization of S. Loewenthal & Sons has been added in the person of B. C. Keit, who was formerly connected with the old Baltimore leaf house of M. Kemper & Sons. The Baltimore concern has gone out of business since the death of a member of the firm a short time ago, and Mr. Keit will now travel exclusively for Loewenthal's, covering part of Ohio, Indiana, Nebraska, Iowa and part of Illinois. He has had a varied experience in selling leaf tobacco and is expected to add materially to the increased sales and efficiency of the selling organization.

The other representatives of the firm report conditions favorable in their respective territories. Bert Loewenthal is now in Florida; Henry Freund, covering New York State; Joseph Haas, Ohio; I. Newman, New Jersey; Henry Gossman, Maine; E. B. Hauenstein, Pennsylvania, and E. Hemple, West Virginia.

S. Loewenthal & Sons are much gratified with the headway they are making in introducing their Clover Farms shadegrown to the trade throughout the country. Sales have steadily been rising in quantity and the idea of marketing a distinctive, high-grade product, backed up by the packers, has borne good fruit.

Schatz Importing Co. to Open Other Stands

The progress of the Schatz Importing Company, which was recently incorporated under the laws of Indiana, will be watched with interest by the many friends of the organizers of this concern, all of whom are well known in New York City. They are Max Schatz, representative for Behrens & Company, and F. Rodriguez; Herman Stearn, Theodore Sewell and M. J. Ross. Mr. Stearn, who is president of the concern, is well known as the proprietor of the cigar store at 35 Wall Street.

It is intended to open up stores wherever suitable locations can be procured. The first of them will be in the Hotel Severin in Indianapolis, one of the finest hostelries in the Middle West. This new venture will not interfere with Mr. Schatz's connection with the Havana factories which he represents. He recently moved into his new offices at 80 Maiden Lane. These will also be the offices of the Schatz Importing Company.

Late Purchases of H. Duys & Co.

H. Duys & Company announce that Henry M. Duys purchased for them eight hundred bales of tobacco at the May 3 Rotterdam inscription. These are all light tobaccos, of good yield and this firm assures prospective purchasers that the prices will be right. They expect to have them ready for the market by the end of the month. This concern has been one of the heaviest buyers at Amsterdam and Rotterdam this year. They have already disposed of two thousand bales of Sumatra and assure customers of the house that they will be able to satisfy all tastes.

Newark Tobacconists Elect Officers

At a meeting of the Newark Retail Tobacconists' Association a short time ago the following officers were elected: Harry M. Konwiser, president; Harry Lewis, vice-president; Jacob H. Fine, treasurer, and George A. Lacey, secretary. Plans were taken up for increasing the membership of the organization.

At the regular meeting of the Brooklyn branch of the Independent Retailers' Association, held on Thursday, May 8, a protest against the unlimited importation of Manila cigars, was voted upon and passed. A committee was appointed to present the matter to Congress.

Havana Selectors on Strike

Warehouses in Havana and Nearby Points Crippled in Work on 1913 Crop

HAVANA, CUBA, May 13.
(Special Cable to The Tobacco World.)

TOBACCO packing interests were surprised today by a strike of one thousand five hundred selectors and warehousemen, who demanded higher wages. The walk-out was so complete as to tie up the tobacco selecting business both in this city and in surrounding towns where the selecting of the 1913 crop was just beginning. It is predicted that the strike will not last more than four or five days, as a committee of tobacco dealers has been appointed to confer with the strikers in an effort to compromise their differences.

Milwaukee Men in Pure Gold Tobacco Co.

Tennessee Firm Reorganized With Clifford R. Daily, President, and Harry Lewis, Vice-President

THE organization meeting of the Pure Gold Tobacco Company, recently chartered for $300,000 capital, was held in Greeneville, Tennessee, last Saturday and the following officers were elected: Clifford R. Daily, president; Harry W. Lewis, of Milwaukee, vice-president; Roy Armitage, of Greeneville, treasurer and secretary, and Edgar C. Hoe, of Milwaukee, assistant secretary.

C. R. Daily, who founded the business and developed it with such marked success, has been appointed general manager.

Mr. Lewis is also the vice-president and active head of Fay Lewis & Brothers Company, of Milwaukee, and Mr. Hoe is the secretary and treasurer of the same concern. William H. Armitage is the president of the Greene County Bank, of Greeneville, and Mr. Nolan is the New York attorney of the French steamship line, the Compagnie Transatlantique, of Paris.

For the time being the company has no public announcements to make, but expects to shortly publicly define its policies and other matters of general interest.

New York City Items

The Strauss Cigar Company has taken over the Edwin Cigar Company, at 64 East Fourteenth Street. Max Singer, of the Broadway Central Hotel, will manage the place.

Alexander Herbert, of Philip Morris & Company, is expected back in the city on May 17, after a short vacation in Europe.

Carlos Fernandez & Company are now occupying their new quarters at 21-23 East Twenty-fourth Street. The new location is more convenient and allows them better facilities for storing their goods.

On June 14, the Philip Morris Mutual Aid Association will hold its annual festival at Midland Park, Grant City, S. I.

William C. Wagner, who conducted a cigar stand in the Hotel Kingsborough, Gloversville, New York, last week opened his new cigar stand at the corner of Main and Fulton Streets.

Drastic New Cigarette Law in Pennsylvania

Dealers Selling Cigarettes or Cigarette Papers to Minors, Subject to Heavy Fine

HARRISBURG, PA., May 12.

THE Thompson Bill prohibiting the sale or gift of cigarettes or cigarette papers to persons less than twenty-one years of age, has been signed by Governor Tener and is now a law.

The provisions of the law are particularly drastic, affecting any dealer convicted of making an illegal sale and punishing by a fine from $100 to $300.

The new law also provides that any minor found in the possession of cigarettes, must tell where he obtained them, and upon failure to do so, is subject to trial for misdemeanor. If the offender is over sixteen years of age, the penalty is a fine of $5 or imprisonment for five days. If under sixteen years, the offender is referred to the Juvenile Court.

AN ACT

Prohibiting the furnishing by gift, sale or otherwise of cigarettes or cigarette paper to minors, requiring minors to divulge where and from whom cigarettes or cigarette paper have been obtained and providing penalties for violation of this act.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That any person who shall furnish to any minor by gift, sale or otherwise any cigarette or cigarette paper shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be sentenced to pay a fine of not less than one hundred dollars ($100), nor more than three hundred dollars ($300).

Section 2. Any minor being in possession of a cigarette or of cigarette paper and being by any police officer, constable, juvenile court officer, truent officer or teacher in any school asked where and from whom such cigarette or cigarette paper was obtained, who shall refuse to furnish such information, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof before any alderman, magistrate or justice of the peace, such minor being of the age of sixteen years or upwards, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding five dollars or to undergo an imprisonment in the jail of the proper county not exceeding five days or both. If such minor shall be under the age of sixteen years he or she shall be certified by such alderman, magistrate or justice to the juvenile court of the county for such action as to said court shall seem proper.

Section 3 of the act repeals all other acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of the present law.

Albert R. Clayton, who formerly represented the Cuba Cigar Company in Philadelphia, is now doing missionary work for E. M. Schwarz & Company on their "Mozart" and "Charter" cigars on behalf of the Siller-Narten & Barnes Company, of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Quaker City Trade Outlook

ALTHOUGH there was evidence several weeks ago of a let up in cigar manufacturing circles, the lately received revenue figures for the month of April would appear to show that this lull was but temporary. Local manufacturers need have no fear of this year being a poor one, for every indication points to it being a record breaker. The output of large cigars for the first four months is almost 25,000,000 ahead of the same period last year. How much the flood in the Middle West had to do with the activity in April cannot be ascertained to a certainty, but it undoubtedly had an appreciable effect. The majority of the factories are now running to full capacity and expect to do a good trade in May.

The retailers report an improvement, due probably to the fine spring weather we have been enjoying. There has been a fair demand for all lines of goods. Manila cigars have been featured by some of the dealers, but few of them care to push them heavily as the majority are too heavy for the Philadelphia smoker, who is used to a mild cigar. The better grade of Manilas find a fair sale.

The leaf market has shown no particular activity, yet all the local firms state that they have no complaint to make. Pennsylvania has been selling slightly better than formerly. Connecticut and Wisconsin are also having calls.

Labor and Minimum Wage Bills Interest Manufacturers

The Philadelphia cigar manufacturers are much interested in three bills now before the Legislature of Pennsylvania. They are the Women's Employment bill, the Child Labor bill and the Minimum Wage bill. A public hearing was held in the Capitol building, Harrisburg, on Wednesday, May 14, at which time many local manufacturers availed themselves of the opportunity of presenting their side of the case. While the bills are said to have many good features, both for the employer and employee, it is claimed by the manufacturers that several amendments would be of decided advantage to both. If these bills were passed, it would mean an adjustment in hours and wages in many cigar factories throughout the state. These measures were before the Minor Judiciary Committee of the Senate on Wednesday.

The "Coiner" cigar, made by the Baum-Jaffe Company, is being made one of the leaders by many of the dealers throughout town. The campaign on this brand must surely have brought fine results, for it can be seen in almost every worthwhile store about town. The brand has been well-placed in the northeastern part of the city.

Jack Fowler, the energetic local representative of the United States Tobacco Company, is now introducing the well-known cut plug tobacco, "Central Union" in a new packing, which he claims will revolutionize the sale of such tobacco in this country.

The new package is made of tough paper, and is lined with tin foil and waxed paper. The original idea embodied in this new wrinkle is the arrangement for holding the bottom and top of the package in place. A strip is run around the box and fastened so securely that the smoker need never fear that the bottom of the package will fall out and drop the tobacco in the pocket. In addition to this the tobacco is cut finer than the original "Central Union," which will be sold the same as heretofore. The finer cutting allows the tobacco to be used either for pipes or cigarettes.

The introduction of "Central Union" in the "pocket-proof" package will be done through a deal whereby the dealer taking it on will receive two ten-cent packages of "Epicure" tobacco with each four dozen packages of the new "Central Union."

Placing "City Club" in Quaker City Stores

A crew of expert salesmen under the direction of C. S. Buck, division sales manager, has just started a campaign throughout Eastern Pennsylvania on the "City Club" brand of smoking tobacco. "City Club" was first introduced to the trade in Louisville, Kentucky, the home of the Burley factory, from whence its fame has spread into nearly every state of the Union. The Burley Tobacco Company is making an aggressive campaign of salesmanship and publicity on this brand, and having an article of exceptional quality, they are destined to make a big success of it. S. A. Mickey, general sales manager, is expected in Philadelphia this week to look over the situation and give whatever assistance is needed in putting the "City Club" into the hands of every live dealer in Pennsylvania and adjacent territory.

First District Manufacturers Hang Up April Record

Production for Last Month 66,797,600, More Than 7,000,000 Increase Over Any April in Local Cigar Annals

ACCORDING to the statistics compiled from the Internal Revenue tax receipts in the First Pennsylvania District for the month of April, large cigars again show a heavy increase. Since the first of the year the production has gradually been gaining over 1912, and with the April figures taken into consideration, this has now mounted up to an increase of 24,830,320 cigars over the first four months of 1912. The number of large cigars manufactured in April was far ahead of any April output heretofore, the closest to this having been last year when 59,742,900 were turned out.

Other lines also appear to be in a most flourishing condition, every one of them having an increase over April, 1912. Cigarettes and manufactured tobacco make the best showing.

The complete figures for the month, compared with the same period last year, are as follows:

	April, 1913.	1912.	Increase.
Little cigars	20,239,520	14,540,000	5,699,520
Cigarettes	8,804,000	8,623,600	180,400
Cigarettes at $3.60	25,000	20,700	4,300
Manufactured tobacco, lbs.,	98,970	87,223	11,747

The production of cigars for the first four months of the year, as compared with the same period in 1912, is as follows:

January	62,643,440	51,712,480	10,930,960
February	61,735,340	57,352,080	4,383,260
March	63,279,900	59,818,500	2,461,400
April	66,797,600	59,742,900	7,054,700
Total increase over same period last year			24,830,320

New Co-operative Cigar Scheme

A new scheme of co-operative cigar manufacturing and selling is being launched by the Co-operative Cigar Company, a corporation organized under the laws of South Dakota and having its main offices at 1208 Arch Street, this city. Joseph Brown is the president. The prospectus states that it is their purpose to sell stock at one dollar per share and in blocks of not less than ten to retail dealers, who will be granted a special price in purchasing cigars made by the company. Rosy promises are held out to the prospective investors by pointing out the profits which have been made in the cigar business in the last ten years.

John T. Dee, of the Theobald & Oppenheimer Company, has left for a trip of three weeks to points in the Middle West. The usual activity around the Theobald & Oppenheimer plant continues. This factory has been running behind their orders for a number of months and are running to full capacity.

The "El Vendura" cigar, manufactured by the Emze Cigar Company, is making good headway about town. The O'Keefe stores on Fourth and Fifth Streets, below Market, have been featuring them with excellent results. They have been added to the lines of a number of the central section dealers the past two weeks.

The "Cortez" cigar, one of the big sellers at the Bingham House, has been pushed by means of window displays the past week.

The Cuban Market

HAVANA, May 9.

CONDITIONS in this market are little changed. Dullness reigns on account of the absence of American buyers, and the few who have arrived here have come principally to look over the new crop. It is hard to say what the future course of our market is going to be, as the opinions differ considerably among the interested parties.

By rights a large crop all over our island ought to assure us correspondingly lower prices for the raw material. However, when the majority of experienced buyers of Remedios tobacco last year expected to see a lower range of figures, later on in the summer, just the opposite took place, notwithstanding that the crop was the largest ever produced in Cuba. Vuelta Abajo, of course, was a small quantity only, and as the light quality pleased the clear Havana cigar manufacturers, the demand was very keen and prices ruled high.

As this year the prevailing opinion is that the growth will give us even a finer quality, some parties are expecting to see a big demand likewise this coming summer. This argument would be plausible if the American manufacturers should share this opinion, and stock up for a two years' supply, after the tariff revision should have been finally settled, and after business in general in the United States should have become normal again.

Although prices for Vuelta Abajo may perhaps show only a moderate lowering this year, as compared with last year, we cannot understand why Remedios leaf with a large yield of first and second capaduras, and the same large quantity in the number of bales of all classes, should not be purchased by our packers at considerably lower figures.

If there were only 40,000 bales of first and second capaduras in the 1912 crop, and this year the yield should turn out to be as large as 120,000 bales, then in order to increase the consumption, prices ought to rule very much lower, or otherwise there would remain a large surplus in our dealers' hands to carry over during the year 1914.

If the crop is of a heavier quality the American manufacturers could get along with a smaller amount of Remedios, as they could use a larger quantity of domestic leaf for mixing purposes. This argument appears a common sense one, which doubtless our leaf dealers and packers will bear in mind when making their country purchases. If the vegueros should refuse to accept the offers that they could obtain, it would be preferable to let them do the packing again, as many of them did last year. However, if through the rise in prices in 1912 they did well enough, they might taste a different fare this coming fall.

Good, clean and well burning wrappers of Partido will undoubtedly fetch full prices, as the demand might exceed the supply, and there are no longer any surplus stocks to fall back upon. Partido fillers, on the other hand, ought to rule low in order to attract buyers.

From reports gathered we estimate the sales for the past fortnight to have been about 1500 bales, principally of new Vueltas, and perhaps half of which were exported to Europe and South America.

Owing to the continued dry weather in the country the escogidas have not started up generally in the Vuelta Abajo, or in the Partidos. Remedios may not be packed upon a larger scale until June at the earliest, or perhaps even as late as July.

Exports of leaf tobacco from Havana during the two weeks ending May 3 were: To all ports of the United States, 7709; to South America, 606; to Europe, 558; to Mexico, 50, and to Oran, Africa, 6 bales; making a total of 8929 bales.

Big Increase in Cigar Exports.

As it might be interesting to the readers of THE TOBACCO WORLD, we submit herewith the figures of the exports of cigars from the port of Havana for the month of April, 1913, in detail and as per our official customhouse returns, as well as a comparison of the total with the month of April, 1912, and the grand total of the first four months of this and last year. It will be seen that we have gained in April over five and one-half million cigars, while the exports for the four months show an increase of over seven and one-half million. This would be a very pleasing record for our manufacturers if they had not been handicapped by the extremely high prices for their raw material last year. England overtops all other countries in the importations of our cigars, and therefore remains our best customer. We are looking, however, for a further material increase in our exports to the United States, as soon as the tariff question should be finally have passed the United States Senate and be signed by the President. The ruthless war waged by the United Cigar Stores and the Riker-Hegeman Company in cutting prices on Perfectos and Puritanos is undoubtedly a serious matter, for the other independent small retail stores, although our manufacturers are less influenced by this move, as they will simply replace these sizes by other shapes that will be retailed at twenty-five and fifteen cents each, and thus take the place of the discredited Perfectos and Puritanos.

Exports of cigars from the port of Havana during the month of April, 1913, and comparison with the same month of 1912, as per our official customhouse returns:

Increase in the month of April, 1913,	5,637,592	"
Total from January 1 to April 30, 1913,	59,356,592	"
Total from January 1 to April 30, 1912,	51,708,874	"
Increase in the four months of 1913,	7,647,718	"
Increase by Countries in April, 1913.
Great Britain and Ireland,	3,336,619	cigars
The United States,	1,038,031	"
Canada,	745,348	"
Australia,	586,555	"
Spanish Africa,	95,400	"
Total increase,	5,801,953	"
Decrease by Countries in April, 1913.
Germany,	103,347	cigars
Spain,	87,909	"
Total decrease,	191,256	"

As our manufacturers have been selling their Perfectos and Puritanos upon a very slim margin of profit, it is impossible for them to come down to a lower figure still, and as a natural consequence the present Perfectos and Puritanos may retain their former shape, but the workmanship and the quality must of necessity be inferior.

It is said that business at present in most of the factories is quieter, but as we are now in the dullest three months of the year this is but natural, and no complaints are heard on this score. Romeo y Julieta, H. Upmann, Partagas, Sol, Castañeda, Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Limited, and Flor de P. A. Estanillo are working, however, as usual.

H. Upmann & Company have bought during the past two weeks five hundred bales of new leaf—one-half for their celebrated factory and one-half for export.

The American Cigar Company has been buying through their agent, Maximilian Stern, two vegas of San Juan y Martinez, to be packed by the farmers at fixed prices per classes, and others in bundles at Las Ovas, Rio Hondo, etc., which it will pack itself. Some purchases were also made for their account in the Partidos.

Felix Eckerson did not let any grass grow under his feet, as he bought a small lot of fifty bales of first capaduras of 1912 the same day he arrived at a reasonable figure, and is looking for more goods, although his principal idea in coming here was to get an idea of the new crop.

Ernst Ellinger also came principally to get posted on the new crop by personal observation, besides starting more escogidas in the Vuelta Abajo and Partidos. Their Artemisa packing has been acknowledged as being one of the finest this year.

H. H. Strater has purchased about two-thirds of this year's Manicaragua crop, which is of the legitimate kind, but having to pay high prices for it, as from a good source we have learned that the genuine Manicaragua will not yield over about six thousand bales in all. Owing to its peculiar fine aroma there are some manufacturers who exclusively only work this kind of leaf in preference to all others.

The principal twelve shippers from the port of Havana of leaf tobacco during the past two weeks were: Maximilian Stern, 3079; Rodriguez, Menendez & Company, 518; Ernest Ellinger & Company, 399; Mark A. Pollack, 332; Manuel Suarez, 342; Allones, Limited, 277; Garcia & Company, 264; M. A. Gunst & Company, 240; Leslie Pantin, 170; Diego Montero, 167; H. Upmann & Company, 133, and José Suarez & Company, 111 bales.

Dice Shaking for Cigars No Longer Allowed; Punch Boards Also Under Ban—Cigar Makers Protesting Against Philippine Clause in Tariff Bill

CHICAGO, May 10.

PROSPECTS for the cigar and tobacco business are of the brightest at the present time. The season of the open-door is at hand. Week-end fishing trips and other excursions in which the smoker delights in keeping company with his favorite brand is on, and sales ought to increase from now on. The retail dealers around the loop and in this district report business already showing an improvement.

A fire which broke out in the cigar box factory of A. O. Fisher & Company, at 818 to 820 North Franklin Street, did damage to the extent of $1000.

Chiliens Brothers opened a new store May 1 on Ninety-second Street, South Chicago.

Julius Hershman played in hard luck. He planned to open a tobacco store at Fifty-eighth and Prairie Avenue May 1. His stock arrived all right, but his fixtures failed to arrive in time. In the meanwhile he stored his stock in the basement and over night burglars looted the basement and got away with $250 worth of goods, which were a total loss, as he had no insurance.

W. A. Burns, of the American Cigar Company, has been pushing the "Permit" cigar. He has been having considerable success with the Londres shapes, which is in some cases outselling the Perfecto kind.

Harry Shapiro, formerly with Schinasi Brothers, has allied himself with the Charles Donovan Cigar Company. He says he finds it much easier to sell cigars than cigarettes.

First Deputy of Police Schuettler caused considerable worry to the Chicago tobacco trade when he issued an order on Saturday, May 10, that hereafter shaking dice for the cigars would have to be stopped, contending it was a most pernicious form of gambling, which bred the desire of young men to take chances in other ways. One of the most sinister features of this gambling it was claimed was that these games in which trade is gambled for and occasionally won are located promiscuously in shops and cigar stores whose patronage consists largely of young men and boys. Because of this the young men and boys are given an excellent opportunity to cultivate the gambling habit.

However, just as dealers were devising plans to protect themselves Mayor Harrison gave out the opinion that he did not believe shaking dice for cigars was as bad as was painted, and as far as he was concerned he would take no steps to stop these games. However, he seemed to think it a good plan to stop the punch board games, which has become so popular of late.

In one respect one cannot blame the police for stopping the punch board game. The chances are so big against the customer getting value received for his money that a good many of the customers believed that it was not on the square, so to speak, and it is believed that the prohibiting of these boards will be a benefit to the trade in general.

The one thousand five hundred cigarmakers of Chicago who sent a protest to Congress against the free admission of cigars from the Philippines won their first victory when dispatches from Washington informed them that Representative Britton had prepared an amendment to the tariff bill limiting the number of cigars to 75,000,000 a year to be imported free from the Philippines.

The Cigarmakers' International Union of America issued the protest from its headquarters in the Monon Building against unlimited free trade with the Philippine Islands. This followed the action of the September convention, when four hundred delegates protested against the importation of cigars, duty free, from the islands. A resolution was adopted instructing their president to protest to the proper authorities and to Congress. On a referendum vote the resolution carried by a vote of 48,457 to 186.

A crusade against the minor cigarette smoker is being waged in the village of Oak Park. Graham Stewart, secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., said that the police are going to be roused to action and be compelled to enforce the ordinance of the village making cigarette smoking by boys under eighteen punishable by arrest.

W. G. McCullough, with the Lorillard Cigarette Department, has been trimming windows with artistic effect, featuring "Egyptian Luxuries."

The opening of White City as well as Riverview Park have helped the sales of cigars as well as cigarettes. Both these parks have been redecorated as well as exhibiting many new features.

Jacob A. Lisch, the well-known cigar dealer of Springfield, Ohio, with a store at 30 South Fountain Avenue, died at his home in that city on May 3. He is survived by a widow and two sons.

Torn Up Condition of Down Town Streets Affects Trade, Many Dealers Say—New Cigar Stand to Be Opened at 265 Third Street—Otto Krahn Doing Nicely at New Store

MILWAUKEE, May 12.

BUSINESS with downtown retailers has been affected somewhat by the torn-up condition of downtown streets. Grand Avenue, the main street of the city, is being entirely repaved and as a consequence all street cars have been rerouted to other streets, thereby removing a great amount of traffic.

Steve Surman, of the Cuba Rica store, is enjoying his usual business, being located on Wisconsin Street beyond the district undergoing repairs. The "Roy Lopez" continues to be the feature in his show window.

The Wright Drug Company make no complaint as to business, the wholesale department continuing active. The "Jose Vila" is being featured with a window display.

Arthur Meister is doing his usual business at East Water and Mason Streets. East Water Street has lately taken on a new lease of life as a business street, which is helping his business. The "Cinco" and "Equity" still continue prime favorites at his store.

Fay, Lewis & Brothers Company, while making no complaint as to business, are feeling the effect of the street repairing at their Pabst Building store. Being located at the east approach of the Grand Avenue bridge, which is closed for repairs, much of the traffic is taken away. They are featuring nickel goods and their own "Harvester" cigar. Their Fifth Street store is doing the usual good business—also displaying the "Harvester." The wholesale department continues to enjoy a good business.

Allansons feel the effect of the repaving to some extent, but being located in the Plankinton they continue to enjoy a good business from the traveling public. It is reported that the present building will be wrecked by the end of July, at which time, unless plans are again changed, they will be compelled to seek new quarters.

Dadds' drug store are doing their usual business with all the popular lines carried by them. Dadds will also be compelled to seek new quarters if building operations on the hotel building are started when planned.

Leo Abraham is doing a good business at his retail stores, although the paving operations have had some effect at Third and the Avenue. This store, which was formerly on a level with the sidewalk, is now over a foot lower, the grade having been raised. However, their trade do not object to stepping down to secure the "Jose Lovera," "Rosa de Mayo," "La Verdad," "Charter" or any other of the many popular brands which are found there. Joe Feiger, Ed McKercher and Joe Leiser make a great trio at the store, and have many friends.

A new cigar store and billiard parlor will be opened at 265 Third Street by H. D. Fisher. The location is considered a good one, and as all popular brands will be handled he should do a very good cigar business.

Otto Krahn, who resigned as pipe repair man at the Abraham store about a month ago to go to Duluth, Minnesota, has returned to Milwaukee, having been unable to secure a suitable location in the Northern city. He has opened a store here on Third Street, near Walnut, and is doing nicely. He has a nice location and should get plenty of repair work. A line of popular cigars will also be handled by him.

W. Kunz has opened a cigar store at Hartford, Wisconsin.

A. H. Jasper & Company, of Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin, have begun the manufacture of a new cigar, the "Commercial Club," which will be made in three sizes, Panatelo, Londres and After Dinner.

The tobacco shed of E. M. Calkins, at Janesville, Wisconsin, was destroyed by fire recently, believed to be of incendiary origin.

Tampa Cigarmakers Lose Heavily by Failure

As a result of the failure of the Ybor Building and Loan Association, of Tampa, a short time ago, hundreds of the residents of that city, including many cigarmakers, lost heavily. Silas L. Biglow, secretary of the association, died suddenly and upon investigation it was found that the finances of the company were in bad shape. There had been no meeting of the directors or stockholders for a number of years. It is said that not more than thirty cents will be paid on the dollar.

Cigar Leaf Tobacco Convention

The chair announced the appointment of the following Board of Directors, the first six holding over automatically and the latter six to serve for two years:

One year—Benno Neuberger, M. L. Floyd, A. W. Gieske, Geo. M. Berger, J. Goldberg, J. Vetterlein.

Two years—Carl W. Wobbe, Fred Miller, L. A. Wheeler, S. Jassulak, J. Joel Coleman, I. H. Weaver.

In closing for the year the convention passed a resolution of deep thanks to the officers for the splendid work accomplished during the past year.

At 3.30 P. M. the session adjourned to meet in Atlantic City, New Jersey, one year hence.

Banquet.

The members, delegates and guests gathered around the annual banquet board in the main dining room of the Shelburne on Tuesday evening at 7.30.

The menu was delightful in every respect, service excellent and for several hours merriment was in full swing.

Annual Report of President A. B. Hess

The cycle of time has measured off another yearly epoch, and we are assembled here in Atlantic City in our fifteenth Annual Convention.

The National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association is entitled to observe its Crystal Wedding Anniversary. Wedding is appropriate for the reason, that during this period of fifteen years, the numerous members of our highly esteemed organization, whose homes and places of business are scattered from Boston to St. Louis have become wedded together by bonds of esteem and chains of friendship, until today we are one National Family, no member of which has reason to be glad or sad, that is not shared by the rest of us. At every recurring Annual Convention, when our members mingle in social intercourse, stripped for the time of the responsibility of a busy life; when they clasp glad hands, these chains of friendship are strengthened until our interests and our sympathies have become blended into a force, that will accomplish but one end and that end is, the upbuilding and advancement of the gigantic industry we represent. The performance of each new duty as they meet us by the way enlarges our experience and our ability to more wisely determine the issues, that will confront us in the future.

As our Association grows older, its influence should grow stronger. Its ideal should be loftier; its organization more thorough, until helpful influence should reach the humblest member in the most distant outlying district of the industry we have the honor to represent.

Our assembling here in Atlantic City is not by virtue of the usual course of procedure. At our Annual Convention in New York a year ago, we accepted the kind invitation of our friends from Dayton, Ohio, to hold our convention there, but because of a calamity, which visited that fair city, the news of which brought sadness and concern to all of us and excited many expressions of sympathy and many acts of beneficence, we are meeting here in Atlantic City.

The past year has been a comparatively peaceful one, so far as struggling with large issues was concerned. Yet it was not without its labor, and I am sure, not without its value.

Early in the year members of our Association in different sections of the country took up the issue of a reduction of the import duty on wrapper leaf tobacco. They waged a manly fight. Our admiration for the whole-souled manner in which they entered into the fray was universal. Your officers decided, however, that in view of the fact, that at each of our conventions the vote on this question was almost equally divided, the only position that was fair to our entire membership, for the National Association to take, was one of neutrality.

In my report of a year ago, I dwelt at considerable length upon the contending forces, that were struggling for mastery in the Industrial field. I dwelt at some length upon the influence, that the work done by our Association, had had upon these issues. You will recall the prophecy made then: that if the struggle continued longer it would mean, that the popular discontent would take some concrete shape, that would lead to the abolition of old party lines, and that the people would demand a change, whether for the better or for the worse, and irrespective of the cost. And they did. As a result of this diversity of opinion the political party, that had been in power for sixteen years, was dethroned, and the reins of government were handed over to our friends, who while we can agree on a great many, in fact on most issues, have different opinions concerning tariff, which issue has furnished fuel for a great many interesting and exhaustive discussions at many of our preceding conventions.

It would be improper for me to attempt to enter into a discussion of this important subject in connection with this report, but to properly set before you the issues of the period it is necessary to make this reference.

The President of that party was inaugurated on March 4, 1913, called an extraordinary session of Congress, which convened on April 7, and is now in session struggling with the tremendous question that confronts it.

On April 7, 1913, the Underwood bill was introduced to the House, and on April 21 it was committed to the Committee of the Whole House, and has within the last few days passed the House and has been referred to the Senate for its concurrence.

This bill provides for no reduction of the import duty on leaf tobacco, but in it we find a section, which provides, "That all articles, the growth or product of or manufactured in the Philippine Islands from materials the growth or product of the Philippine Islands or of the United States, or of both, or which do not contain foreign materials to the value of more than 50 per centum of their total value, or 20 per centum in case of manufacturers of tobacco, upon which no drawback of customs duties has been allowed therein, coming into the United States from the Philippine Islands shall hereafter be admitted free of duty."

You will note that this provision authorizes absolute free trade in cigars and tobacco imported into the United States from the Philippine Islands, and that these cigars may be made wholly of Philippine tobacco or may contain in part any tobacco grown in the United States or may contain in part tobacco grown anywhere outside of the United States.

I trust that this convention will thoroughly discuss the advisability of such a provision in our tariff law and will take such a position and such action, as they in their wisdom shall deem best.

While reflecting upon the influence that a change in the tariff laws or a threatened change has on all industry and upon our industry in particular, it has occurred to your officers that our present method of regulating the tariff is not the best and that one of the most vital questions of the day from an industrial standpoint is to determine upon a better method of arriving at conclusions in matters of tariff. Our present system of swinging like a pendulum from rates that are high and possibly in some instances excessive to rates that are low and possibly in some instances too low, can have only one result, and that is a disturbance of confidence, which is sure to paralyze business, while the country is passing through this period of adjustment, and whether the final results of the change are an improvement or not.

Is there no other way in which those changes can be made that would avoid the paralysis to business, that always accompanies them under our present system? We believe there is and we believe that the men who secure its adoption and enactment into law, will have performed a service to the industrial interests of our great country, that will perpetuate their memory and result in great and lasting benefit.

We all know, that in a representative democracy, where public opinion is continually shifting and yielding to the influence of individuals, men are frequently elected to our National congress, who have no experience, no training and are not well qualified to pass upon a question of such tremendous importance. These men come from the ranks of all parties. Sometimes when public opinion is particularly agitated a large proportion of the members of our National Congress may be of this class. Need we wonder, that the industrial world is paralyzed until they know what a body of men so constituted will do in reference to an issue, that is so vital to prosperity. Would any men in private business permit the votes of his new employee, who knows least about his business, to decide matters of gravest concern to him? Would any corporation elect into its board of management enough new members to give to them the deciding vote, when such new members have had no experience and no training upon the issues, that are most vital to the interest of the corporation? In my estimation this is a decidedly weak spot in our governmental procedure and could be readily improved, if a non-partisan commission were appointed, whose duty it would be to make a scientific investigation of tariff needs on all commodities, whose only concern would be to do that which would best protect the American people as a whole, taking care of the dealer or manufacturer on the one hand, and of the consumer on the other, and who would not be influenced by the political effect of any position their best judgment would dictate.

The recommendations of such a commission should be submitted to Congress schedule by schedule, so that only one industry at a time would be dealt with, and in dealing with it, sufficient time should be given before a new schedule should be made effective to enable the market to absorb accumulated surpluses and to gradually adjust itself to the new condition. I believe the day is not far distant, when a method along the lines herein suggested will be adopted, and I firmly believe, that great and lasting benefit will be the result.

In conclusion, I wish to thank you for your kind advice and encouragement given so freely during my incumbency in office. I assure you, that same was very much appreciated. Various questions have arisen and various things have occurred, that have made a permanent impression upon my life and will always be looked back to with pleasure. May the same spirit of hearty co-operation and the same unanimity of purpose ever characterize the future of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association.

Independent Retailers Gain New Recruits

ONE of the largest attendances at any meeting of the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association, was that which turned out at the smoker held at Terrace Garden, New York, last week. Not only did the enthusiasm run high, but thirty new members were enrolled. One of the principal speeches of the evening was that delivered by Nicholas Ehrlich, of Brooklyn, who set forth startling facts showing the necessity for independent organization and appealing for additional support in fighting the United Stores' premium methods.

Robert E. Lane spoke on behalf of the Havana industry and Ike Ochs, president of the association, made some interesting remarks as to the future work of the association.

An encouraging report on the progress of the Independent Salesmen's Association was made by Oscar Veit.

Larger Factory for "Bernadotte" Cigars

To provide facilities for their rapidly growing business, A. Kern & Company, Incorporated, now at 109 West Forty-second Street, New York, are about to move into larger quarters. President Harry Suskind has obtained an option on a loft with eight thousand square feet, on West Fortieth Street near Eighth Avenue, and it is likely that the Kern factory will be moved there about June 1st.

The "Bernadotte" brand which is being featured by this factory has had a remarkable sale, not only in the metropolis, but everywhere it has been introduced. It is a clear Havana which just seems to suit the taste of high class smokers, and it will be found in nearly all of the leading hotels and restaurants along Broadway. Two new brands of clear Havana cigars have just been launched by the Kern factory, the "El Stato" and "Art. Farita," each in ten sizes.

March Imports and Exports of the Country

THE report of the United States Department of Commerce and Labor for the month of March reveals a larger volume of import trade in leaf tobacco and most of its manufactured products as compared with the corresponding month last year. Leaf tobacco suitable for wrappers increased more than thirty-seven per cent. over March, 1912, while filler grades of tobacco showed an increase of three per cent. Taking all the imports, though, the total volume is three per cent. less than during March, 1912.

The figures for the month of March, and as compared with last year, are as follows:

	March, 1913.	1912.
All others, lbs.	5,184,643	5,019,692
Cigars, &c., from Philippines duty free, lbs.	185,380	123,845
Cigars, &c., from Philippines duty free, number	12,720,000	8,746,000
All other cigars and cheroots, lbs.	46,625	45,226
Cigarettes, duty paid, lbs.	1,478	1,570

March Exports.

The foreign trade in leaf tobacco and its manufactured products for the month of March is about on a par with the same period last year. Leaf tobacco and manufactured plug tobacco showed an increase, but the other products are ahead of March, 1912. The figures for the month, as compared with last year, are as follows:

	March, 1913.	1912.
Unmanufactured leaf, lbs.	24,971,979	25,806,380
Stems and trimmings, lbs.	343,118	98,440
Cigars, number	402,000	101,000
Cigarettes, number	184,093,000	102,850,000
Plug, lbs.	569,858	594,070
Smoking, lbs.	138,811	66,570

Tampa Interests Working on "Made in Bond" Plan

In order to assist the Clear Havana Cigar Manufacturers' Association, of Tampa, in their plan to have their goods made in bond hereafter, the Tampa Board of Trade named a committee of members to solicit funds to carry on the work. It is said that considerable expense will be necessary to have this change made in the Underwood tariff bill, and that in order to do it right a sum of money should be subscribed to carry on the work. A committee, composed of E. W. Monrose, M. W. Caruth, R. M. Prince and J. C. McKay, was appointed to carry on the work and secure the funds.

Mr. Sanchez told the great need of this plan of making cigars in bond, saying it would make the output of Tampa cigars at least 500,000,000 a year. The plan contemplates the placing of a stamp on cigars made in bond, showing that they are manufactured of certain tobacco. It would prove a stamp of genuineness as to the origin of "Havana" cigars, many of which never saw Havana except in the name on the lid of their box.

Another piece of freak legislation was introduced in the House of Representatives of Florida several weeks ago in the form of a bill which would compel every manufacturer of cigars to put a band around each cigar stating the kind of tobacco used in its construction. The measure stated that every band should be placed on the cigar with glue. A fine not exceeding $250, and imprisonment of not more than sixty days was the penalty for violation of the measure. The bill was said not to have the slightest chance of passing.

Makes Cigar That Belies It's Name

C. H. Plitt, of York. Pa.

OCCASIONALLY there comes to one's attention a cigar manufacturer who literally eats, sleeps and thinks his brands day and night. He is a rabid enthusiast and is ready and willing at all times to back them against any of their class. If one takes the time to investigate he invariably finds that that enthusiasm has borne fruit in that the cigars turned out are the product of a painstaking and conscientious authority on leaf tobacco and cigar construction.

This can truly be said of C. H. Plitt, of the C. H. Plitt Cigar Company, of York, Pennsylvania, manufacturers of the "Liar" and "Twentieth Century" cigars. These brands were launched after innumerable combinations were tried in an endeavor to get the utmost possible for the price asked and still leave a fair profit for the business. The "Liar" cigar was put on the market about a year ago. At that time Mr. Plitt was asked whether this name was not most unusual for a cigar. He admitted the fact, but challenged any one to prove that the cigar was anything but unusual. He pointed out that the smoker was getting a large Sumatra-wrapped, hand-made, long filler cigar, for a nickel, with a guarantee that it contained at least one-quarter Havana tobacco. As a matter of fact, each of these cigars has on an average one-third Havana, and tobacco of the best quality, stock which has been seasoning in the Plitt warehouse in York for several years.

The "Twentieth Century" is a small cigar guaranteed to contain a strictly all-Havana filler of the best quality. This cigar has been smoked for several years by a number of the best-known bankers of Philadelphia, who buy the brand directly from the factory in one-thousand lots. This business was secured simply through one man who was given a "Twentieth Century." He immediately bought some and gave them to a number of his friends in banking circles who got in touch with the manufacturer.

These brands are now being pushed vigorously by C. H. Plitt & Company, who are desirous of getting in touch with live jobbers and dealers in all parts of the country

JOBBERS & DISTRIBUTORS DEPARTMENT

President LeBus Calling on Jobbers

CLARENCE LEBUS, president of the Burley Tobacco Company, and S. A. Mickey, general sales manager of the Strater Brothers Tobacco Company, branch of the Burley Company, have been touring the East during the past ten days calling on the leading jobbers in the interests of the Strater Brothers brands of smoking tobaccos, "City Club" and "Satisfaction." This is Mr. LeBus' first round among the tobacco jobbers and he is being greeted cordially everywhere. He was in Richmond and Philadelphia during the past week, and after a few days in Atlantic City expects to go to New York.

Mr. LeBus has taken to the manufacturing and selling game quite as enthusiastically as he has to the raising of Burley tobacco, and is delighted with the success with which the Burley Society is meeting in its new venture in the manufacturing field.

Jeffreys & Co. New Newark Jobbers

A NEW cigar jobbing house has been opened in Newark, New Jersey, by William Jeffreys and Frank Keiling, who will do business under the name of Jeffreys & Company, at 405 Seventh Avenue. Mr. Keiling has conducted a successful retail business and has extensive interests in Newark, New Jersey. Mr. Jeffreys is a veteran in the cigar business. They have just taken on the "Reynaldo" and "Luxello" brands, made by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, Philadelphia, which they will feature in their distributing business. Already they have placed the "Reynaldo" with some of the leading stands in Newark.

C. F. Reynolds, of Reynolds & Dyer, prominent tobacco dealers and distributors of Chico, California, who have taken over the large packing, wholesale and distributing business of Scheunert Brothers Company, Sacramento, California, has been appointed to take charge of the new branch and will move shortly to Sacramento to assume control.

The Garcia & Vega line of cigars, of Tampa and Havana, heretofore distributed in Minneapolis by the W. S. Conrad Company, will hereafter be jobbed in that section direct to the trade. Ira Farr, the local factory representative, will attend to this business.

The Parker-Gordon Cigar Company, of St. Louis, are opening up a strenuous campaign on their new cigar, "1913." They used a unique scheme, placing them in the majority of the stands throughout the city, after which the cigars will be released for sale on a fixed date.

The Baer-Wolf Company, of Cleveland, a retail and wholesale house, will distribute the "Roig" and "Girard" cigars in that territory for Roig & Langsdorf, of Philadelphia, the manufacturers. The factory representative in that section who carried through this deal is Sam Gottlob.

A Cigar That's Been Making Good For 22 Years

S. H. DURSTEIN, the Wilmington, Delaware, cigar manufacturer, is offering to the jobbing trade of the country his "Sen Auben" cigar, a high-grade nickel brand manufactured by him for more than twenty-two years. This brand has made good throughout the South, where it has been pushed since its introduction.

Special pains have been taken to have this brand a particularly fine cigar. It is a Sumatra wrapped, hand-made, nicely blended piece of goods, made in three main sizes—londres, conchas and blunts. It has also been made in other shapes, but these are the most popular ones. Mr. Durstein has made preparations to increase his output the next twelve months and to that end has secured ample manufacturing facilities in his factory at Walnut and Second Streets, Wilmington. He has been putting extra efforts on his "Flor de Durstein," a seed and Havana ten-cent cigar, and states that he is now in a better position to take care of his trade than ever.

Jobbers who are in a position to take on a quick-selling, repeating cigar, that has been making good for twenty-two years, are invited to get in touch with the Wilmington factory and secure details for pushing it in their section.

Reorganize R. W. Jenkinson Co.

The R. W. Jenkinson Company, of Pittsburgh, which concern asked for an extension of time recently, is reported to be undergoing a reorganization. They did a retail, wholesale and manufacturing business and were known as one of the largest houses in Western Pennsylvania. The retail stores in Pittsburgh are to be taken over and managed by Alexander M. Jenkinson, while the wholesale and manufacturing business will be carried on by Charles Bock and Hugh M. Stauffer, who are well known as having been connected with the Pittsburgh house for years. The reorganization of the firm does not change their liabilities in any way toward their creditors.

Landfield & Steele, cigar manufacturers, of Chicago, recently removed to their new factory in that city, 227-31 West Lake Street. The new plant gives them excellent facilities for manufacturing their "El Parcial" and other brands of cigars.

E. H. Briody, the Middle Western representative of the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, with headquarters in Indianapolis, has been assisting the Mooney-Mueller Drug Company, of that city, in specialty work on the "Flor de Moss." Mr. Briody has announced his marriage, to take place on June 3.

R. Berdan & Company, Toledo, Ohio, wholesalers, are making splendid progress on their two new five-cent cigars, "Berdan's Opinion," made by Mendelsohn & Company, Cleveland, and the "Pathfinder," made by W. K. Gresh & Sons, of Norristown, Pennsylvania. They have forty-five men working on these brands and have placed them in more than a thousand retail stores. The "El Dallo" cigar, of Wertheimer Brothers, Baltimore, is also going strong. Their best ten-cent brand is "Old Tavern," made by the Lilies factory, Detroit, Michigan.

Jobbing Trade Notes

The R. A. Bartley Company, Toledo, Ohio, wholesale grocers, are erecting a fine eight-story concrete building, one hundred by one hundred and forty feet. They are distributors in that locality of the "Bankable" five-cent cigar of the N. N. Smith Company, Frankfort, Indiana.

The Toledo branch of the J. B. Moos Company, Cleveland wholesalers, have started a local campaign on the "Permit" five-cent cigar in which five men will be used. They will install splendid window displays and distribute attractive signs and advertising matter.

A. D. Goodman, Cleveland jobber, has just taken on the "Havana Ribbon," Bayuk Brothers, which will be pushed in that locality.

P. Mahany, jobber, Erie, Pennsylvania, who lately took on the "Bold," Bobrow Brothers, is already doing splendidly on that brand. The "Bold" seems to have hit the taste of Erie smokers.

The "Miss Detroit" cigar, manufactured by the Mazer Cigar Manufacturing Company, of Detroit, has been taken on for distribution by Baker, Wignall & Company, of Streeter, Illinois. They will shortly open up an active campaign on this brand.

Dan Wolf, distributor of the "El Wadora" cigar of Sig C. Mayer & Company in Cincinnati, has been featuring this brand in that city by means of window displays. Mr. Wolf offers $1000 to any person who can prove that the "El Wadora" is not composed of all Havana tobacco.

S. G. Russell Company, of Seattle, Washington, have taken on for distribution in that city the "Cuesta Rey" cigars, formerly jobbed by the J. R. Smith Cigar Company.

The James L. Cowan Cigar Company, of Pueblo, Colorado, distributor of the "Tom Keene" cigar, have taken on the "Havana Ribbon" cigar, of Bayuk Brothers Company, Philadelphia.

The "El Mossico" cigars of the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, formerly distributed by the Milwaukee Drug Company, of Milwaukee, have been taken over by the Wright Drug Company of that city, who will shortly open an aggressive campaign on the brand.

The H. D. Lee Mercantile Company, of Salina, Kansas, which recently opened a cigar department with Walter Clark as manager, have taken on the "Charter" cigar, made by E. M. Schwarz & Company, New York.

The Oppenheimer Cigar Company, of Saginaw, Michigan, are actively pushing the "La Saranita" cigar of Shields-Wertheim Company, with Bert Smith, the factory representative, doing the missionary work.

Two new Toledo stores are to be added to the chain of Joseph Snyder, the Buffalo retailer, on or about June 1. They will be located at Cherry and Summitt Streets and Erie and Madison Streets, and will handle the usual Snyder lines. The managers and men for these stores have not yet been selected.

One Price To All Jobbers New Policy of American Tobacco Company

Makes Revolutionary Change in Method of Marketing Its Products—Boston Drug Firm Cut Off List for Price Cutting

A NEW policy has just been announced by the American Tobacco Company in the marketing of their products to the trade. It establishes a uniformity of price and discount to all jobbers alike, throughout the country, and hereafter the big jobber and the little jobber may buy on equal terms without fear of discrimination.

In making the announcement, President Percival S. Hill states that the change has been made at the request of a number of customers. It supersedes the method previously in vogue of granting special terms to special jobbers featuring the American Tobacco products. Speaking of the change, President Hill says in his announcement to the trade:

"It has been a custom in the tobacco trade to give special consideration to some jobbing customers, as compared with others. We are not condemning that practice, and realize that there is to be said in favor of its justice that some jobbers are much more active and effective distributors than others. We desire to assure our customers that so far as this company is concerned, none of its customers now enjoy any confidential or other advantage over any other customer.

"The policy of the law of several states, including the state of New Jersey, which has recently enacted such legislation, is distinctly against all special concessions, rebates and confidential prices, and we believe that the trend of legal and legislative public opinion throughout the country is against it. In taking this course we are, therefore, as we believe, in entire harmony with the current intelligent thought in the matter of propriety in business.

"We have no right to control, and shall not seek to control, the prices at which our customers shall sell to retailers. We do have a right to say, though, that the list prices are fair prices for our products and that the discounts we allow to our customers from this list represent only a legitimate jobbers' profit."

Boston Firm Cut Off.

Following the above announcement, it also became known that the American Tobacco Company had cut off the Riker & Hegeman Company, a big chain store drug company with headquarters in Boston, from its jobbing list because the latter firm was selling American Tobacco products in Boston at figures said to be below cost. An officer of the American Tobacco Company stated that when the selling of their products under cost jeopardizes the value of trade-mark and brand, it is their privilege to cut the cost-cutting customer off their jobbing list and that hereafter such a policy would be pursued.

E. Covel, who at one time conducted a cigar store at Fourth and John Streets, Cincinnati, has purchased another at 1043 MacMillan Street.

The Associated Drug Stores, of Baltimore, have taken over the cigar stand at Lexington Street and Park Avenue, that city, and will shortly open a store at that location.

John Hart, one of the first cigar manufacturers in St. Paul, Minnesota, and president of Hart & Murphy, died recently in that city, aged seventy-seven years. A widow and three daughters survive.

Conditions Among Cigar Manufacturers Improve—Two New Plants in City—Receiving Bids for New Moreda Branch of M. A. Gunst & Co.

KEY WEST, May 10.

TRADE conditions among the local cigar manufacturers for the past fifteen days have been rather good; in fact, a great deal better than the previous fifteen days, and it is believed by the manufacturers in general that a still better business will be done in Key West in the very near future. This is not merely a prediction, but the incoming orders for the past fifteen days and the conversations with various experienced tobacco and cigar men indicate that this fall we will have the best business in our line than we have had since 1906. In an interview with Mr. B. Loewenthal, of Loewenthal & Sons, New York leaf dealers, he stated, "I find business throughout the country to be a great deal better and I am positive that the cigar and tobacco business in the coming fall is going to be phenomenal." Mr. Loewenthal knows the business from A to Z and in all probabilities his words will come true. He stated that he had done a tremendous business in Tampa, just before coming to Key West, and that he was going back there to wind up his affairs and proceed to Mobile, Alabama.

Mr. Salvador Rodriguez, manufacturer of "Charles the Great" cigar, of Tampa, was a visitor in the city while en route to Havana, and he also feels that business will begin to improve in a short time there.

Among the visitors in this city were W. P. Wilkerson, the Florida representative of Austin Nichols Company, and Francisco Bolano, of Francisco Bolano & Company, of Tampa.

Mr. Juan Esperdy, prominent leaf tobacco dealer of this city, went to Cuba on a business visit.

C. L. Poston and George H. Upchurch, representing the American Tobacco Company, are in the city calling upon the trade, placing the "Sovereign" cigarette, and are extensively advertising through the local paper.

Proposals will be received until May 24 for the erection of a concrete factory building in the city of Key West for Moreda & Company, branch of M. A. Gunst, of Tampa, Florida.

The E. H. Gato Cigar Company received one of the largest consignments of tobacco in Key West by an individual firm in many months, which was 425 bales. Business with the E. H. Gato Cigar Company continues to increase; in addition to their cigarmakers they employed this week two hundred strippers in the stripping department (all females), and are furnished with a reader, who reads all the latest news to them.

Dr. William Browder, some years ago the appraiser at the Key West Custom House, was a visitor in the city.

Business with Ruy Lopez Ca. is also a little better than the last fifteen days; orders are coming in steady from all sections. Mr. John Wardlow, president of this firm, accompanied by Mrs. Wardlow, was in Cuba on a short business visit.

Edward A. Sawyer made application for a cigar manufacturer's license, factory number to be assigned.

Francisco Simon & Company, who recently made application for a cigar manufacturers' license, were assigned factory No. 55.

Cigar shipments from Key West show a gain of over eighteen per cent. over the shipments for the previous fifteen days, and this is evidence that business in the cigar line has been good.

Still two hundred and fifty cigarmakers are employed at the Cortez Cigar Company's floors, but this does not indicate that their volume of business has not increased in the past fifteen days over the previous fifteen days. The entire force is stepping lively, and their shipments are going out at a good pace.

The M. Perez Company are also showing a wonderful increase in business, especially on their brand "Pinzon," which are being shipped in all directions.

Key West Cigar Factories Lose by Fire

Disastrous Conflagration Damages Four Plants, Entailing Loss of $150,000

KEY WEST, May 7.

A disastrous fire visited our city at 12.10 A. M. today, collecting a toll of approximately $150,000. Four cigar factories and several other buildings were burned down completely. The cigar factories were: Principe de Golfo Cigar Company, The Key West Cigar Factory, The Key West Cigar Manufacturing Company and S. Wolf's Sons.

The fire started in the Key West Cigar Factory, controlled by Northern capital as well as Key West capital, from there spreading toward the Key West Cigar Manufacturing Company and S. Wolf's Sons buildings. From there it spread to the Greek-American Sponge Company and from there to the Principe de Golfo Cigar Company, owned by Mr. A. Aurelio Torres.

Practically nothing was saved in three of the cigar factories, except that of the Principe de Golfo Cigar Company, owned by Mr. A. Aurelio Torres, which building was the last one the fire reached. In this building about one-third of the stock was saved. The Principe de Golfo Cigar Company carried insurance for the amount of $4000, the Key West Cigar Manufacturing Company carried insurance for $1500, the Key West Cigar Factory also carried insurance to the amount of $8000, S. Wolf's Sons were partly insured, but the exact amount could not be ascertained since the president of this company was out of the city.

Shipments from Key West to New York per Steamers "Alamo," "Lampasas," "Comal" and "San Marcos," Which Left Key West April 25, 29, May 2 and 7, Respectively, and All Other Shipments From Key West for the 15 Days Ending May 9, 1913.

New Warehouse for United Cigar Manufacturers in Ephrata—Booth Tobacco Co., of Columbia, to Wholesale Exclusively—Many New Factories Open in Ninth District

LANCASTER, May 9.

THE Ninth District cigar manufacturers have not been idle by any means, judging by the number of cigars that were manufactured during the month of April. The total output was 72,003,640 cigars. This was millions ahead of any previous April, the nearest to it being the same month in 1907, when 69,224,275 cigars were turned out. The figures so far for this year are far ahead of the first four months last year and give the manufacturers every reason to think that 1913 is going to be a record breaker.

There has been a slight let-up in manufacturing activities the past two weeks or so, but at that the majority of the factories are running along at a fair rate. If the leaf market were only showing the activity and strength that the cigar industry does there would be no complaint.

There has been little change in the leaf tobacco situation. The packers have been slowly buying up the remainder of the 1912 crop, but quite a bit of it still remains in the hands of the growers. This has been selling at from five to eight cents, according to quality. Farmers are beginning to prepare the ground and will possibly soon put out their plants. The snails were a nuisance in some quarters, destroying the young plants in the beds and making reseeding necessary.

Morris Levy, the representative in this section for the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, has purchased a plot of ground in Ephrata, 75 by 500 feet, and will erect a warehouse at that point. Ephrata is a large buying point for the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, and this warehouse was needed badly for leaf tobacco.

The retail end of the Booth Tobacco Company in Columbia has been purchased by T. F. Shortlidge. He purchased the stock and fixtures. This concern, which did a retail and jobbing trade, will wholesale exclusively in the future. They sustained a loss by fire a short time ago, but it was not serious.

The Havana Cigar Company is a new concern to file a bond of $500 with the Internal Revenue Collector in Reading, and will do a manufacturing business at 41 North Seventh Street.

A. P. Graver, formerly superintendent of the Eisenlohr cigar factory in Boyertown, has taken a position with the firm of George S. Miller & Company, of Pottstown, Pennsylvania, and will travel for this concern.

York County contribution to the total revenue receipts of the Ninth district for the month of April amounted to $99,964.55, an increase of $13,122.19 over the same period last year. This is most encouraging to the manufacturers of that section of the state and portends a good year. York has been in a prosperous condition as far as the cigar manufacturing industry goes and there is no reason why 1913 should not be the best year by far in the history of the trade at that point.

Eleven new factories were started in the county during the month of April, giving employment to slightly less than 200 hands. Among the larger ones were I. Lewis Cigar Manufacturing Company, of Newark, with a factory in Red Lion, 40 hands; Herman & Neff, of Red Lion, is another, with a force of 40 hands; the Dover Cigar Company, of Dover, has a force of 20 hands, while the firm of Amos Swartz & Company, of the same place, started with 40 employees.

Deaths in the Trade

In the death of Wilbur F. Thropp, Cincinnati loses one of her best known figures in the tobacco trade. He died several weeks ago at Bakersfield, California, and at one time was one of the largest Burley tobacco dealers in Cincinnati. He is survived by a son, two sisters and a brother.

Paul Arthur Sorg, a son of one of the pioneers of the tobacco industry, died on Sunday, May 4, in New York City, of heart disease. Mr. Sorg was born in Middletown, Ohio, thirty-four years ago, the son of Paul J. Sorg, who had a tobacco factory at that point. The plant was taken over at the formation of the American Tobacco Company, which continued to operate it. Upon his father's death Mr. Sorg inherited the greater part of the estate. He was a member of many clubs and was not actively engaged in business. Mr. Sorg is survived by a widow and sister.

Cleveland

Base Ball Helping the Retail Trade—London Whiff Cigar Co. Moves Into New Building—Cleveland Man Goes Into Business in Nashville, Tennessee

CLEVELAND, May 14.

IT is generally admitted that business is improving steadily. Some attribute this to the fact that Cleveland has a ball club that is a pennant contender, for in every cigar store visited by the writer were congregated a crowd of men and boys discussing baseball. All the dealers are pulling for a winning team here, as they see great possibilities for a thriving business.

The London Whiff Cigar Company have just moved into their new headquarters in the Bauer block on Woodland Avenue. This is a brand new building and equipped with every modern convenience, providing one of the finest stogie and cigar plants in the city. With their increased facilities for turning out goods this company should become a larger factor than ever in the local market.

Harvey Drucker, city salesman of the H. C. Christy Company, is enjoying much success in placing their many brands. The Christy Company have recently added the "Havarita" cigar, made by the Havarita Cigar Company, and from the way it has been placed in the local market it should enjoy a big success. Mr. Drucker reports "La Sinceridad" and "Clitus" cigars as doing exceptionally good all over his territory.

Nate Wiesenberg, formerly of this city and now in Nashville, Tennessee, was in town the past week preparing to move his family and household goods to Nashville, where he is going into business with William Schwartz, manager of the Nashville ball club. William Schwartz, or "Bill" as he is better known, is extremely popular in this Southern city, and along with Mr. Wiesenberg's jovial personality the writer cannot see anything but success before them. While here Mr. Wiesenberg placed his opening orders for "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives," in twenty-five sizes, made by the Shields-Wertheim Company, and also a complete line of "La Lita" cigars, manufactured by the Corral y Wodiska Ca. They will feature the aforementioned brands. Among other local brands Mr. Wiesenberg purchased were "El Batons," of the J. C. Newman Company; "London Whiffs," of the London Whiff Cigar Company, and a line of stogies manufactured by the Halper Stogie Company. This new concern will be run under the firm style of the Volunteer Cigar Company and will be located in The Arcade.

Mr. Lansten, of the Euclid Arcade cigar store, reports business extremely good. Mr. Lansten is going into the jobbing business on his "Natusco" brand of cigars, which he is having made in thirty different sizes, and his "Natusco" stogie. Mr. Lansten is showing Cleveland a new phase of the cigar business. He is the head of the Natus Company, which means the National United Sales Company, and is comprised of twenty-five hundred members on a co-operative plan. They are pledged to the "Natusco" standard, and any article with that trademark is made a popular commodity at once. This new mode of running a cigar business has so far proven very successful.

George Bassett has just purchased the cigar store of Milt Wood in the Flatiron Building, at the corner of Huron Road and Prospect. Mr. Bassett is very well known in this locality, as he was in business in the Osborn Building for the past five years and was forced to vacate on account of the bank taking in his entire space for their own use. Mr. Bassett will feature "La Saramitas," "Osmundas," "Van Dykes" and "La Litas."

The Richland Cigar Company's two new stores, located on the Public Square and 523 Euclid Avenue, got away to a flying start, and if the first few days' business is any criterion they should enjoy an immense success and growth.

The Fred Golmar Company, who are operating three stores here, two in the Old Arcade and the other in the Rathskeller, are enjoying the best run of business since they have been in the retail game here. All these stands are showing a steady increase over the corresponding month last year. The Rathskeller stand, which is managed by Verne Owen, is keeping pace with the other stands, even with the midnight closing rule in effect. This is a big feather in this young man's cap, as he is the junior member of the concern. Much of the success of the above-mentioned concern is due to the smiling countenances and ready humor of Messrs. Fred Golmar and George Owen, the heads of this establishment.

The many friends of Mr. Nahum Hexter will learn with regret of his death, which occurred in New York on Sunday, May 4. Mr. Hexter, who was sixty-three years old, was born in Sandusky, Ohio, and had resided in Cleveland for over forty years. A few years ago he moved to New York. For many years Mr. Hexter conducted a news and cigar stand in prominent business sections of the city. He was well and favorably known in cigar centers here and his death is greatly deplored by his many relatives and friends. The deceased is survived by his wife, three daughters and four sons.

Those in town the past week were Mr. Hiram Hammer, of the Corral y Wodiska Ca, and M. E. Loeb, of the M. E. Loeb Company, Canton, Ohio.

JERRY.

Boston Cigarmakers Present Petition to Congress

WASHINGTON, May 6.

Among the latest of the cigarmakers' unions to voice a protest against the unlimited importation of Manila cigars is the Cigarmakers' International Union No. 37, of Boston, which presented a petition to Senator Lodge. The paper is signed by Edward Broders, president, and Henry Abrahams, secretary; also by one thousand seven hundred other persons connected with the cigar industry in Boston. The petition in part is as follows:

* * *

The undersigned citizens of this Commonwealth respectfully protest against the clause in tariff bill admitting, free of duty, all cigars made in the Philippines for the following reasons:

1. The industry is a hand industry.
2. We cannot compete with Orientals, whose wage, according to government reports, are thirty cents a day.
3. The employees are composed of native Filipinos, half-breeds and Chinese.
4. It means the crushing out of one of the largest of New England industries.

For these reasons we respectfully ask that the clause permitting all cigars made in the Philippines and the use of twenty per cent. of foreign tobacco in manufacture of cigars be eliminated from the bill.

File Petition for Dissolution

The Southbridge Cigar Manufacturing Company, of Southbridge, Massachusetts, who formerly did business on Elm Street in that city, has filed a petition for dissolution. The court issued an order directing the managers of the concern to show cause for such action. The petitioners claim that they have no assets and no liabilities and therefore wish to close their business. Alexander L. Desaulniers has been manager and closed down the place in October, 1911.

Garcia, Diaz & Co., New Tampa Firm

A new cigar manufacturing concern has been organized in Tampa which will do business under the name of Garcia, Diaz & Company. They intend making a high-grade five-cent cigar, the "Duc de Tampa." All the members of the firm are connected with F. Lozano, Son & Company, and will make use of the high-grade scraps of that factory. Jose Garcia, foreman of the Lozano factory, is president; Bernabe Diaz, vice-president, and H. S. Foley, secretary and treasurer. The factory will be located at Twenty-first Street and Fourth Avenue.

Tobacco Association of U. S. to Meet June 5

The annual meeting of the Tobacco Association of the United States will be held in Richmond June 5 to June 7. While in Richmond the delegates will be the guests of the Richmond Tobacco Association. T. M. Carrington, of Richmond, is president of the association. This body is composed for the most part of tobacco dealers in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Kentucky, West Virginia, Ohio and Missouri.

Postpone Hearings on Foreign Tobacco Purchasing

The hearings on the allegations of restriction of the price of certain domestic grown tobacco by purchasing agents of foreign governments by a special committee of the House and Senate were, on May 6, postponed until Wednesday, May 14. It is understood that the committee is finding it a difficult matter to obtain evidence substantiating the charges made by domestic tobacco growers. The foreign countries are the only markets that can be found for the particular grade of tobacco being investigated.

Late Trade Bulletins

Mekelburg & Company, of Boston, have moved their factory from 280 State Street, that city, to 222-228 Cherry Street, Chelsea, Massachusetts. They employ about twenty hands.

A dividend of five per cent. on the capital stock has been declared by the Porto-Rican-American Tobacco Company, same to be paid in scrip or note of the company bearing six per cent. interest per annum, payable June 5 to stock of record May 15. A five per cent. scrip dividend was paid by this company on March 7 of this year and a twenty per cent. dividend on November 22, 1912.

A new revenue bill, recently introduced in the Florida House of Representatives, provides for a license tax on cigar factories of twenty-five cents for every cigarmaker employed. This applies only to those factories employing ten or more cigarmakers. By this most "wonderful" piece of legislation the state government would realize the vast sum of $5000.

The petition in bankruptcy filed against Martin Vincent April 11, dealer in cigars and tobacco, Hudson, New York, was dismissed recently.

It is reported that the three-story warehouse, located 124 East Pearl Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, has been purchased for $6000 by George David Worth, of the Independent Cigar Manufacturing Company.

The cigar store at 29 Michigan Avenue, Detroit, Michigan, is now the property of Paul Sikora, he having recently purchased the same.

Stark & Hawkins, retailers, Toledo, Ohio, who have three stands in the Ohio, Nicholas and Spitzer Buildings, have recently installed a fine, new cigar vault in the Nicholas stand. They are exclusive distributors of the Hernan Cortez lines and "Webster," of Y. Pendas & Alvarez. They also handle in five-cent goods "El Seno," Gans Brothers; "Bella Mundo," Newman & Mayer, and "El Baton," of J. C. Newman, Cleveland.

Arthur Ohlweiler has purchased a one-half interest in the Five Label Cigar Company, of Davenport, Iowa, from Thomas Martin, and will hereafter run the business with Walter Flanigan.

The stock and business of the Granite City Cigar Company, of St. Cloud, Minnesota, has been purchased by Charles J. Lorenzer and William J. Steinbauer. August Orth, who owned the plant, will probably retire from business.

New Deisel-Wemmer Factory Opened at Toledo

Starts With 75 Hands — W. P. Deisel Manager of Eighth Plant of This Firm

ON May 5 the Deisel-Wemmer Company, Lima, Ohio, manufacturers of the "San Felice" and "El Verso" cigars, opened their new factory at 442-446 Huron Street, Toledo, Ohio, which will employ five hundred people.

The new building is a four-story structure and is up-to-date and modern in every respect. It was formerly occupied by the Woolson Spice Company, but has been entirely remodeled, and is without doubt one of the most sanitary cigarmaking plants in the Middle West. Two days after the opening seventy-five employees had registered, and the manager, W. P. Deisel, in a statement to THE WORLD'S correspondent, said that he expected to have the plant working at full capacity in six months' time. He also stated that it is to be a branch factory, and not the main one, as has been reported.

The basement has ample quarters for the storing of leaf tobacco. On the first floor are splendidly equipped offices and the stripping rooms. The second and third floors, which are entirely devoted to cigarmaking, are very well lighted and demonstrate very clearly why there has been little trouble in obtaining help. It would profit any manufacturer who expects to equip a new factory to inspect this plant, as it might give him new ideas on the solution of the labor problem. The fourth floor is given over to the packing and drying of leaf.

This is the eighth plant now owned and operated by the Deisel-Wemmer Company, the seventh, a modern concrete structure employing one thousand hands, having been opened some time ago at Findlay, Ohio. In addition they have two plants at Lima, one at Wapaukoneta, one at Sidney, one at Delphos, and a stemming plant at Van Wert.

Mr. W. P. Deisel, who is manager of the Toledo plant, is the son of Henry Deisel, president of the firm.

Pyle & Allen Take on New Sanchez & Haya Sizes

B. W. Sanborn, manager of the retail branch of Pyle & Allen, Cleveland, Ohio, reports a big increase in box trade since the elimination of the dice game in that city. They are experiencing trouble in obtaining enough "New Bachelors" (Victor Thorsch & Company) to supply the increasing demand. They have recently stocked two new sizes of Sanchez & Haya—the "New Bishop" and "Club House." A new size of "La Flor de Bachia," of R. Bachia y Ca., made under Mr. Allen's personal direction, is also a recent addition. They have been featuring "Rey-Oma," Sig C. Mayer. The concession obtained by Pyle & Allen for the sale of American League baseball tickets has greatly stimulated their retail business.

W. K. Jenness Opens Fine Wilmington Store

W. K. Jenness, formerly connected with the Johnnie Jones cigar stores of Wilmington, Delaware, has opened a first-class cigar store in that city on Seventh Street, west of Market. The stand has been finished in a most up-to-date manner and Mr. Jenness opened it up recently under most favorable circumstances. Among the brands noted in the cases were the "Reynaldo," Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, Philadelphia; "Buffalo" and "Rose-a-Cuba," Fleck Cigar Company, Reading, and "Taking," Enterprise Cigar Company, of Trenton, New Jersey.

The United Cigar Manufacturers' Company has declared a quarterly dividend of one and three-quarters per cent. on the preferred stock, payable May 31, to stockholders of record May 23.

Says Every Dealer Should Carry the "World"

QUAKER CITY, OHIO, April 28.

THE TOBACCO WORLD, Philadelphia, Pa.

Dear Sirs:

Please find enclosed our check in amount one dollar for which please send us the WORLD for another year.

The name TOBACCO WORLD is surely a good one and every tobacco or cigar and stogie dealer should have the WORLD. We always look forward to the receiving of the paper. With best wishes, we are,

Yours very truly,

H. J. MAX & Co.

Putting Up Triangular Cigars

MILWAUKEE, April 28.

Editor THE TOBACCO WORLD:

Dear Sir—Kindly advise us concerning one or various methods used to put up triangular cigars. Thanking you, we are,

A. C. BRENCKLE Co.

To our knowledge there is but one method in common use, namely: The cigars when they come from the cigarmaker are usually placed in triangular moulds, being left there for forty-eight hours. During that time each cigar is turned in the mould three times. They are then tied in bundles, put into boxes and placed in the press like any other cigars. The necessary moulds may be obtained from Messrs. Miller-DuBrul & Peters, 507 East Pearl St., Cincinnati, O., or the American Cigar Mould Co., 1931 Western Ave., Cincinnati, O.

Who Wants Job Lot of Cigars?

BEDFORD CITY, VA., May 1.

Editor THE TOBACCO WORLD:

Can you give us the names and addresses of parties in your city, New York, Baltimore or other places who make a specialty of selling job lots of cigars? We have on hand 15,000 or 20,000 which we would like to dispose of at a low price for cash.

Yours very truly,

GISH & SMITH.

Answered by letter.

Cigarette Paper Printing Machines and Lead Foil Wanted

PHILADELPHIA, April 30.

Editor THE TOBACCO WORLD:

As per our conversation in your office recently, I am writing to you to refer me to dealers or manufacturers of tin foil for wrapping cigarettes. I would also appreciate it if you would give me the names of parties making or handling cigarette paper printing machines. I refer to the presses which are adapted for printing initials, monograms, etc., on papers in which the tobacco is rolled. Thanking you for courtesy, I remain,

Yours very truly,

WM. C. HAMMER,
Harrison Building.

L. Kehlmann, 202 Centre Street, New York City, and S. Abrahamson, 121 Pearl Street, New York, both print papers. The Ludington Cigarette Machine Company, of Waterbury, Connecticut, can probably supply the machine. Manufacturers of lead foil are asked to communicate with the above inquirer.

Who Makes Anti-Nicotine Tobacco?

NEW YORK, May 8.

Editor THE TOBACCO WORLD:

Dear Sir—Will you please inform me whom it was that several years ago put on the market a brand of tobacco with the nicotine eliminated or counteracted by some chemical process? I am anxious to get in touch with some person who was at some time connected with this venture, and really do not know to whom I could turn for this item with more assurance of success than in applying to you. The slightest clue will be thankfully received.

Yours very truly,

WILLIAM E. SCOTT.

Joseph Snyder Opens First Local Branch—John C. Sullivan Passes Away—Frank Smith Enters New Field—Grand Rapids Retailers' Association Perfecting Organization—Changes Among Dealers

DETROIT, May 8.

JOSEPH SNYDER was in town May 2 and 3, and while here saw the opening of his first Detroit branch, located at 146 Woodward Avenue, being the front of Churchill's well known saloon. The pretty color combination painted on the top and bottom of the front display window reads "Snyder's segar store de luxe," which is figuratively true. Mr. Snyder apparently knows what the public wants and what they can be educated to buy; a big percentage of his articles bear his own name. With merit and proper salesmanship it's only a question of time when smokers will be asking for and using them. Arthur D. Klotz, who ran the cigar stand at the Mecca on Michigan Avenue, will have charge of this branch; when his second store opens, which will be about May 12 at 117 Woodward Avenue, it will be in charge of Charles Holt, who has been employed at various Snyder stores in Cleveland and Buffalo. He will make his permanent residence in this city. J. S. Anderson will be the general manager of all the Detroit stores. Mr. Snyder does not intend to stop after having opened these two places; he says he likes Detroit, has been anxious to get in here for a long while, and while he has the inclination he is going to open just as many branches as he can, providing they are properly located. The cigar stand at the Hotel Tuller has also been added as a Snyder branch, but for the present there will be no radical changes there.

John C. Sullivan, head of John C. Sullivan & Son, cigar manufacturers at 26 Cadillac Square, said to be the oldest firm of its kind in Michigan, died early Wednesday morning, May 7. Death was due to paralysis, from which he had been suffering for over a year. He was seventy-five years old. For forty years he was in the cigar manufacturing business at the same location on Cadillac Square. Five children survive him.

Since the city of Flint went dry, May 1, a number of places heretofore operated as saloons have been turned into cigar and billiard rooms. C. A. Reitebuch will conduct a chop house, together with cigars; Henry McFarland will operate a restaurant and handle cigars; Robert Wisler will have cigars and soft drinks; A. J. Eiferle will conduct his place as a pool room and cigar store; William Haights will run a barber shop, lunch room and cigars.

In Detroit over ninety saloons were retired from business May 1; many of them will likewise turn their places into confectionery stores, handling cigars and putting in pool and billiard tables, in the hope that next year they will be able to be reinstated and granted a license.

Members of the Grand Rapids Retail Cigar Dealers' Association at its meeting May 5 considered favorably the congressional bill which proposes to have the government stamp fixed to all boxes of genuine cigars, specifying of what the cigars are made, and which is said to be designed to protect the genuine Havana cigars. J. F. Morrison was chosen secretary of the association to succeed John Stander, recently resigned. Secretary Morrison was instructed to communicate with the Cigar Dealers' Association of Seattle, and find out its methods of organization and work, including dealing with trade evils as cutting prices on standard brands of cigars.

The suit between John P. Hemmeter and the John McNee & Sons Cigar Company, of Windsor, Ontario, was to have a preliminary hearing this week, but was postponed.

Jim McLarty, proprietor of the East Side cigar store at Kalamazoo, has fully recovered from his recent attack of the grippe and is now able to be daily at his place of business.

David Kindstrand has engaged in the cigar business in Ishpeming, Michigan, opening a store on First Street.

Christian Audrian, formerly of Milwaukee, has engaged in the cigar and confectionery business in Manistee, Michigan, having secured a store in the Ryan Building.

Charles F. LaFond was one of the leading entertainers in the tabloid musical comedy entitled "An Evening at the Ritz" given at the Knights of Columbus, April 28 and 29, under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus Comedy Club. Mr. LaFond wrote the entire piece, staged it and played parts. It is nine years since Mr. LaFond was a professional actor.

On Sunday afternoon, May 11, at Cleveland, takes place a big party to announce the engagement of Edward Lichtig, who sells "Philip Morris" cigarettes in Michigan. It is to be one of the real events in Cleveland social circles, as both Eddie and the girl are popular in the Ohio city. Ed says he doesn't know how soon the wedding will take place, but says it will be just as soon as he can save up enough "Mazuma" to pay for a real honeymoon. Mazeltof.

Business has resumed normal conditions with the Lillies Cigar Company, whose plant is now running to full capacity.

Contracts will soon be let for the New Washington Hotel at Wayne and Michigan Avenues to be erected by David Stott, which means Detroit will have a new twelve-story modern hotel inside of one year. It is located within a stone's throw of the Hotel Cadillac and only a block from the proposed new Hotel Lafayette to be constructed at the corner of Wayne and Lafayette Streets by C. H. Clements, one of the proprietors of the Hotel Metropole. Detroit can stand another large hotel very easily.

The Wolverine Automobile Club has taken a long lease of the second floor at 127 Woodward Avenue, and one of the features will be an up-to-date cigar department, which will be in full charge of Frank Smith, recently in the cigar jobbing business and before that manager of the Hotel Ponchartrain cigar department. In addition to this, Mr. Smith has just opened a very fine confectionery and cigar emporium at 27 Woodward Avenue, only a block from the waiting room of the Belle Isle boat steamers which ply between Detroit and the famous Belle Isle Park.

Abe Hirsch, representative of Joseph Hirsch & Son, who with his family has been quartered at the Hotel Ponchartrain, has secured a furnished residence for the summer on Helen Avenue and will occupy the same starting with May 25.

The John McLaughlin cigar store at 747 South Division Street, Grand Rapids, has been purchased by C. R. and A. J. Hermance.

Eugene Watson denies that there are any negotiations on for the purchase of the Harry W. Watson Company's business. As a matter of fact, Mr. Watson, Jr., will add more retail stores if he can secure them in the right locations.

Fred Hirschorn, president of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company; Alfred Esberg, the vice-president, with L. C. Isaacson, president of the Metropolitan Cigar Company, of Denver, and A. Gans, of Dayton, were in Detroit early in the week on a tour of inspection. Mr. Hirschorn expressed himself as being well pleased with the local factory. The Hamtramck branch was closed sometime ago.

"Ben Lesser is coming" seems to be heard on every side whenever the popular salesman of F. Lozano & Company is scheduled for a trip here. Ben landed here Sunday the sixth and stayed until Wednesday. He was royally welcomed by his friends in the trade and didn't have any difficulty in signing up some nice orders. He has placed his line with the Central Cigar Company, which will be carried at all of the company's branches.

"Fatima" cigarettes continue to be an enormous seller in Michigan. Eddie Crooks, the state manager, allows no stone unturned to get them in wherever he can. Whether it's a country road or a back street in the city, Eddie sees to it that they sell "Fatimas."

Joseph Duys, of H. Duys & Company, of New York, is expected in town this week to close up some big orders for Sumatra tobacco.

Jacob Mazer, of the Mazer Cigar Company, is very pleased over the splendid orders being sent in by R. L. Olive, of Kansas City, who is now on a business trip through Texas. Mr. Olive was recently made Western sales manager of the Mazer Company. He has been covering the Middle West and South in the interests of the cigar industry for nearly twenty-five years and is known everywhere as "Bob." Nobody is more proud of "Bob" than Jake Mazer. The Pacific Grocery Company, of Everett, Washington, have made arrangements to handle the "La Cavalerie" cigar for that Coast section, and the Pieper-Turo Company, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, will job "Miss Detroit" in their territory. Both brands are made by the Mazer Company and are proving a big success. In the State of Illinois the Baker-Wignall Company, of Streeter, will have the exclusive selling rights for "Miss Detroit."

The Davis Cigar Exchange at 57 West Fort Street is now being managed by Frank E. Davis himself. The store for a long while was under the supervision of E. C. Frohn, who recently went into the jobbing business.

The fixtures of the G. J. Johnson cigar store in Grand Rapids have been offered for sale, and Mr. Johnson will vacate to allow, without interruption, the erection of the new million dollar Pantlind Hotel.

On April 26 took place a most notable wedding in Detroit, that of John T. Woodhouse, president of the John T. Woodhouse Company, and Mrs. Elizabeth Barnum, of San Francisco, who is extremely attractive and a woman of great literary merit, being a writer of note.

Herman Lieberman, general manager of the Central Cigar Stores, of which there are four at present, reports that every one is doing a splendid business and that every day shows a nice improvement.

The Victory Annex is now open for business after an expenditure of close to $150,000. Ted Snowhook, formerly with Woodhouse, is assistant manager and will be in charge of the cigar department as regards the purchasing, etc.

Frank E. MacDonald has opened his new cigar stand at the Hotel Lowry on Lafayette Avenue. His many friends are glad to learn that he has fully recovered from his recent illness.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Sumatra Selling Well in New York—Snails Eat up Plants in Lancaster County—Little Doing in Wisconsin Markets—Connecticut Prepares For Another Season

NEW YORK.

New York City, May 10.

THERE has not been any noticeable change in the leaf market the past fortnight. Somehow there are inquiries from time to time among the leaf men for different types, but they are generally the varieties that are hard to get. The Leaf Tobacco Convention next week may have some effect on the trade, as it is just possible that some of the delegates will take this opportunity of coming to this city after the meetings.

There is no intimation of just what questions will come up for discussion this year. The Philippine importation clause will probably be attacked by some of the delegates, but there are not many, at least they are not evident, who take the Manila business seriously. They state that the Philippine cigar has had every chance to grow in the past two years, and though it has made some headway, it has not injured the domestic manufacturers.

The local Sumatra importing houses have sold quite a large per cent. of their holdings. The trade in this leaf has been brisk and the tobacco is pronounced to be all that can be desired. At last Saturday's sale Americans took about 1800 bales.

There has been little doing in Havana. There have been few withdrawals from bond and trade seems to be going along only in a quiet way. The 1913 crop is coming along nicely and both importers and manufacturers are well pleased with it.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Lancaster, May 9.

THE Lancaster County growers are beginning to put out their plants. It is expected that as soon as the weather warms up a bit they will begin transplanting. They have been discouraged at the prices many of them received, and it is just possible that a number of them will cut down on their tobacco and devote more time to other crops. In fact many farmers say they are doing this, saying that potatoes will pay them better than tobacco.

Snails have been troubling some farmers, getting in their seed beds and destroying the young plants. They were a decided pest in some sections. Plants which had three and four leaves above the ground were eaten off, which necessitated sowing more seed.

Advertisements appearing in the local papers advertising leaf tobacco caused quite a bit of comment last week. This is the first time that the "oldest inhabitant" ever saw a case where the farmer had to advertise his tobacco. In former years the farmer often sold his tobacco in the field and was solicited by the different dealers. But advertising tobacco to the dealer through the newspaper was unheard of before. The tobacco, stated the ad, was graded nicely and specified the amount in pounds of each grade.

Considering the slump in prices recently, tobacco has been selling at a fair price the past two weeks. Prices have been ranging from five and six cents to eight and eight and one-half cents. Some growers, who were offered eleven cents earlier in the year and refused it, took seven and eight cents recently. Considering the state of mind the farmers are in at present, it is not very likely that packers will have any trouble in getting all the tobacco they need next year. Havana seed will be grown by some, but this will not be general. The Lancaster County grower is a cautious man and he is wary of anything new.

WISCONSIN.

Edgerton, May 9.

EXCEPT for the uncompleted work of warehouse handling of last season's tobacco crop, which seems destined to drag along for a few weeks yet, there is little doing in the local tobacco markets of the state. The country districts are practically bare of leaf of all descriptions and until the new crop is ready for inspection not much trading need be expected. What little old leaf remains in the hands of packers is gradually being absorbed in small lot orders from manufacturers. Some of the flood-damaged Ohio tobacco has been sent into the state for rehandling, but it is generally found in bad condition.

The rains that have fallen during the week have proven a great relief to the plant beds, and with warm weather ought to come forward satisfactorily now.

Copious rains have fallen during the week, which puts an entirely different phase on the plant bed situation, and with the return of warm days the young plants ought to make good progress. About all that is needed now is timely moisture to bring the beds along in time for the transplanting. Growers, however, should keep an eye on their beds and should a drop in temperature occur see that they are properly protected against frost as well as cold winds. Carelessness in these matters often results in a shortage of plants at transplanting time. If the plants are too thick upon the beds they ought to be hardened by removing the covers on pleasant days, permitting sunshine and circulation of air, which will accomplish this purpose.—Edgerton Reporter.

CONNECTICUT.

Suffield, May 10.

EVERYTHING is coming along nicely at this point for the tobacco growers. The weather the past week has been fine and the plants have been growing at a surprising rate. The farmers are preparing the ground and next week they may set out plants, if there is any prospect of the weather being warm enough.

There will be a small increase in acreage the coming season in raising Havana seed and broadleaf tobacco raised in the open. It is estimated that the Cuban tobacco raised under tents will amount to an acreage of two thousand. The total acreage of the valley will amount to twenty thousand.

Growers state that were it not for the tariff legislation the acreage this year would be larger than it is. The good prices that prevailed in 1911 and 1912 have given the growers confidence.

The help problem that has arisen almost every year will probably hinder some of the growers again. A good many of the Polish men that worked for the farmers last year have bought farms of their own this spring.

Hartford, May 3.

Nearly all the tobacco growers in town have the tobacco beds ready and the seed sown under the oiled cloth or glass covers. Many of the farmers report plants with two leaves, while some have three leaves on them. The weather has been ideal tobacco weather in the last few days and the light rains have done much good to the growing plants. This year's acreage will be larger than that of last year, as two large tobacco syndicates have started in the western part of the town and farmers are continually adding more acres of land to their tobacco crop each year. This will probably be the largest acreage grown in town for many years, probably over three thousand five hundred acres. Many of the farmers who picked their tobacco leaves last season are going to make a change this year, and cut the stalks, using the hook lath to hang them on instead of the old fashioned lath, whereby the tobacco stalk has to be split in order to force the lath through the thick stalk. The extra expense of picking the leaves is considerably more than the cutting of the stalks and taking a chance of the leaves coloring down to the right color.

OHIO.

Cincinnati, May 5.

AN interesting feature of the Southern Ohio Burley situation is the gradual realization of an actual shortage as compared with former years. It is now known that the incentive of factories in buying so extensively and at such advanced prices during the past season was not so much on account of the high quality of crop as of the real need of stocks. As a result the various small storehouses and thousands of individual holders scattered throughout the section are practically without the tobacco which they usually hold at this time of year. It is known that Cincinnati and Louisville hold practically all of the available supply and from the present prospect it would seem that by mid-summer these points will be practically sold out. With such a situation the prospect of future prices is good. It is now predicted that the 1913 crop of Burley will find a waiting demand and an even better market than have recent crops. Thus growers have an incentive to an effort to give their tobacco careful attention.

Very little buying is reported in Western Ohio cigar leaf. In some sections much of the crop remains unsold. Prices practically unchanged. It is said that buyers' attention is being turned to Pennsylvania, where prices are lower than here. At this point (Pennsylvania), however, prices are better than in recent weeks, but still much lower than during winter. At Cincinnati 36 cases were sold, of which 26 were seed leaf, averaging $3.72 per cwt. as compared with $3.35 the previous week; 8 were Dutch, averaging $5.40 as compared with $4.59 the previous week, and 2 were Pennsylvania, averaging $2.50 as compared with $3.23 the previous week. The quality of offerings was inferior and the demand for same very poor.—H. E. Tweed, in "Ohio Farmer."

KENTUCKY.

Hopkinsville, May 5.

AS predicted before there has been a let up in tobacco activities at this point that was most noticeable last week. The loose leaf sales fell off considerably, and there was an increased interest shown in hogshead offerings. The former is due to the active selling season of prized tobacco opening about May, and continuing until the stock is about sold out. Loose tobacco has already broken all records by the enormous deliveries and long continued selling season. Already more than 9,000,000 pounds has been sold on the loose floors alone, and before the season ends it will reach at least 10,000,000 pounds. The rehandling houses have handled two or three times this much, which was bought direct from the farmers, so the total receipts with loose tobacco

Newsy Paragraphs From Leading Leaf Tobacco Centres

The Connecticut Tobacco Corporation, with plantations at Tariffville, Windsor and Silver Lane, East Hartford, Connecticut, are considering the proposition to establish an irrigation system for their farms. The most serious drawback to this scheme is the procuring of sufficient water. A contract is said to have been made by the corporation above named to have water furnished to their Silver Lane plantation by the water commissioners of the county. Charles Soby, a well-known authority, has stated that it will not be long before some one will equip a plant and run a pipe line from the Connecticut River, thus getting all the water needed.

At a meeting of a committee of the Western Tobacco Growers' Association, in St. Joseph, Missouri, recently, it was decided to have a tobacco show in that city on December 12 and 13. Members of the committee were instructed to make the necessary preparations.

One of the largest shipments of tobacco ever recorded in that section was sent from Southern California recently, to W. Duke & Son, of Durham, South Carolina. The tobacco was grown near Exeter and is of the Turkish variety. The growing of tobacco such as this has been going on for years in that locality, but it has only been in the last year or so that it has reached any great proportions. The shipment was sent in six cars and totaled 120,000 pounds.

The law-abiding citizens of Henderson County, Kentucky, are aroused over the vandalism that has been committed recently in that section on seed tobacco beds. A delegation of men called upon Governor McCreary in Frankfort, who offered a reward of $500 for the apprehension of any one scraping plant beds. The reward of the state now swells the reward to the sum of $2700.

In their annual report published by the Leaf Tobacco Association of Baltimore, on May 6, they state that the crop of Maryland tobacco grown last year amounted to 29,934 hogsheads. The character and color of the tobacco was said to be disappointing to the packers. Prices for the tobacco opened fair to good last August, but a strong domestic demand caused all the better grades to advance from three to four cents a pound, some of the finer hogsheads selling as high as seventeen cents per pound. Common Maryland, however, sold lower than in 1911. Charles E. Moore was elected president of the association at the annual meeting; George A. Buchheister, vice-president; John Stokes, treasurer, and G. Louis Hester, secretary.

Counsel for the Imperial Tobacco Company, in court at Henderson, Kentucky, have asked for a change of venue in their suit, in which they are charged with fixing the price of tobacco below the cost of production. The grand jury of the state recently brought the indictment against them. The Imperial Tobacco Company in their petition state that they will not receive a fair trial in Henderson County, due to the feeling against them by growers and others.

More room has been taken by Manuel Alvarez, the New York leaf dealer, at 178 Water Street. This concern handles Porto Rico and Havana tobacco and state that they now have some of the best tobacco ready for sale they have ever packed. Mr. Alvarez recently stated that the new Porto Rico crop, as far as wrappers go, is better than last year.

Bloch Brothers, manufacturers of the well-known tobacco, "Mail Pouch," were heavy purchasers this year of Lancaster County tobacco. The cheap price this year attracted them and two warehouses were secured in Lancaster. They have been handling over a million and a half pounds of tobacco at this point, most of it hail cut, and it is said purchased tobacco that the Lancaster County growers would have had a difficult time getting rid of.

Minnesota's tobacco crop outlook is promising, according to Professor C. P. Bull, of the College of Agriculture of that state. The legislature of Minnesota appropriated $2000 this year for the purpose of protecting the culture of tobacco. Professor Bull says that the acreage this year will be an increase of twenty-five per cent. over last year. The acreage in 1912 was about one hundred acres.

The snails that have been bothering the Lancaster County growers were the cause of a number of planters re-seeding their beds. The plants were growing nicely, in some instances the stalks having two and three leaves. The plants were eaten off close to the ground in some places, necessitating the sowing of more seed.

Tobacco growers of eight states, at a meeting here in Louisville, Kentucky, on May 8, indorsed a plan looking to government control of the purchase, sale, manufacture and handling of tobacco. A bill favored by the growers, and to be presented by Representative Glass, of Virginia, provides for a bureau of tobacco industry in the Treasury Department, empowered to purchase the equipment and plant of any persons or corporations now engaged in the purchase, handling, manufacture or sale of tobacco. After July 1, 1916, the proposed bill states "it shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation" to engage in these branches of the industry except "as the duly appointed agents or officers of the United States Government." A fine of $1000 and imprisonment for from one to ten years is provided for violators of this provision.

here this season will run well above 30,000,000 pounds. The season, owing to unfavorable weather for handling, was late in opening and the prizers will continue operations proportionately longer, probably until August.

Paducah, May 5.

According to prominent local tobacco dealers, there is yet a great amount of the weed to be brought to the Paducah market. It is estimated that there are between 1,000,000 and 1,125,000 pounds undelivered. Some tobacconists are of the opinion that much of that which is now in the barns will not be brought to market before next season, owing to the low prices paid this season.

While there are some growers who have not delivered their crops, thousands of pounds are being brought here each week. For that reason it is said that the 1912-13 season may not close before late in May.

As was expected, there was a big decrease in the amount of tobacco sold on the loose-leaf floor, but the increase in deliveries to buyers was even greater. This has led some to predict that there will be a still further increase next year.

Princeton, May 5.

Destruction of tobacco plant beds in Caldwell County has been condemned by the Caldwell County Union of the Farmers' Equity and Co-operative Union of America, which passed the following resolutions:

"We, the Caldwell County members of the Farmers' Equity and Co-operative Union of America, condemn the destruction of plant beds at all times and all places, as not only being against the law, but both foolish and unwise, as the majority of the tobacco has left the farmers' hands and the cutting out of a crop would not only deprive the farmers of its proceeds, but would merely advance the price of tobacco now in the hands of the dealers, and we now take this method of tendering our services to the official authority of Caldwell County to bring the guilty to justice."

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 102 South Twelfth Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

☞ Positively no responsibility assumed for errors, duplications or any controversies which might arise. We will not under any circumstances act in a legal capacity in cases concerning disputed titles. We maintain a bureau of records only.

THE TOBACCO INDUSTRY OF GERMANY

[Consul George Nicolas Ifft, Nuremberg.]

The tobacco industry in this district is unimportant. There are no manufacturers of cigars aside from a few small shops, most of which use an occasional bale of American leaf tobacco, purchased from some importer at Hamburg, Bremen, or other larger center. Two concerns here manufacture smoking tobacco; neither of them is large, but both do a considerable business and buy more or less American tobacco. Both of these would import direct.

There are also two local concerns that make the so-called Brazil rolls used by the snuff makers. These also use some American leaf tobacco. The manufacture of snuff is a considerable industry at Regensburg in this district and at Landshut, the output of the snuff factories being about 220 tons annually. These factories all use more or less imported tobacco, and many of them, besides making snuff, also turn out the Brazil roll, which is on sale at every little shop throughout the Bavarian Forest district, and from which the Bavarian highlander, to a considerable extent, makes his own snuff at home, flavoring it to suit his own individual taste. [The manufacture of snuff in the Bavarian highlands was described in Daily Consular and Trade Reports for November 30, 1910.]

Bavaria grows 5000 to 6000 tons of leaf tobacco annually, most of which is produced in the Pfalz, though small quantities are grown in the vicinity of Nuremberg, Fuerth, Erlangen and Bamberg. It is of the variety known as Virginia, but it equals the average Virginia tobacco neither in quality nor size of leaf. The local product is entirely consumed by local factories. It is worth five to eight cents per pound. The Pfalz tobacco averages a little higher than the local product. [The names of the two manufacturers of smoking tobacco and of the snuff manufacturers in the Nuremberg district may be obtained from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Washington, D. C.]

[Consul George Eugene Eager, Barmen.]

In Rhineland and Westphalia there are many factories, both large and small, producing cigars and smoking tobacco, but one of the principal wholesale dealers in Barmen states that it would be difficult for foreign growers to sell direct to these manufacturers. The reason for this is the high German duty on tobacco, i. e., about 9.2 cents per pound and a 40 per cent. ad valorem surtax, which makes the manufacturer very cautious in buying, as he desires to know exactly what he is purchasing.

It is the custom here for manufacturers to buy their wrapper tobacco for Sumatra-Java-Habana cigars direct from the "Einschreibungen" in Amsterdam; Sumatra wrapper can not be had elsewhere. For American filler and binder tobacco the market is Bremen.

ENGLAND.

[Deputy Consul Ernest Harker, Birmingham.]

Considerable interest is being taken in the efforts now being made to revive the tobacco-growing industry in the English counties. The "Birmingham Post" states that several acres are to be cultivated in the Pershore district of Worcestershire and others in Gloucestershire and Warwickshire, adding: "These should constitute a fair test of what can be accomplished in the West Midland district of England."

Very good smoking tobacco was produced on a small scale in various parts of the United Kingdom last year and several large manufacturers have expressed their approval of its quality. Fruit and hop growers are hoping that nicotine extract, the basis of many insecticides, may be cheapened if they are allowed to grow tobacco for this purpose. One of the obstacles in the way of tobacco growing in England has been the lack of proper arrangements with the excise authorities. This has now been overcome. [An account of the experimental growing of tobacco in Norfolk, a county on the eastern coast of England, appeared in Daily Consular and Trade Reports for February 9, 1912.]

San Francisco

Trade Throughout State is Quiet—Tillman & Bendel Begin Strong Campaign on "Sanchez y Hays"—W. I. Pixley Pushes Krinsky Cigarettes

SAN FRANCISCO, May 5.

A GOOD many cigar men in San Francisco are complaining of quiet business, but there is plenty of evidence that many more cigars are being smoked, both in city and country, than ever before. The trouble seems to be due to the general effort to get on the ground in preparation for the Exposition rush, which has so far hardly started. Numerous new or little known brands have been introduced since the first of the year, and in many cases strong publicity campaigns have been conducted at considerable expense. Such work has produced results, but with so many in the field doing the same kind of competitive work, no one has been able to get as large a share as he would like. The California market is growing, and will continue to grow, but of late competition has been growing faster than the demand. This trouble has been complicated by a tight money market and slow collections, though some jobbers report considerable improvement in this connection. Contracts for Exposition work are coming out rapidly, and it is said that one thousand more men will go to work there next week, which should have some effect.

L. A. Sawyer, representing the "El Grifo" and "Las Dos Naciones" cigars, has just returned from the mining district of Amador County, where he found a very good business. Mining activities, he says, are on the increase, and the farming districts of the interior also appear in good condition.

Tillman & Bendel have made a strong beginning on their campaign for the "Sanchez & Haya" cigar, and are gradually replacing this well-known brand in the popular position which it held here for many years. They are taking considerable newspaper space, and advertising in other ways, at the same time doing a lot of window display work in retail stands about town, making a strong point of the improvement in this cigar since it was taken up by Edgar J. Stachelberg. Some strong missionary work is also being done among the clubs, etc., with the object of building up a box trade.

M. A. Gunst & Company's new window campaign is now well under way, a different line being featured every week or two, and the work is attracting no little attention both to the Gunst stores and to the various lines on which special emphasis is placed. One of the first special displays centered about the "Solace" cigar, recently taken up by the house of Gunst, causing this line to start with a large sale. Some novel features are being introduced in this work, one being glass covers for the cigar boxes, and another small electric window signs.

M. C. Eisenchimel, who has charge of the Manila cigar department of Henry W. Peabody & Company, import and export brokers, returned recently from a long trip through the Western States. He reports a very steady demand for nickel goods in the Manila lines, while the call for the cheaper sizes, such as Londres, has dropped off. He reports the arrival of a large shipment for his firm on Puget Sound by the steamer "Tacoma Maru," for distribution through the country he has just been visiting. The brands were "Maria Cristina" and "Intal."

Bertin & Lepori, of this city, recently received their first shipment of the "Valle de Cagayan" Manila cigars, and have been successful in placing the new brand with a number of their best customers.

Simon Myrson, who has been doing specialty work for the "Elisardo" cigar under H. L. Judell & Company, has gone back into business for himself, taking his old stand on Montgomery Street. Good progress has been made on the "Elisardo" campaign, however, and the goods are moving well. Emil Judell, of H. L. Judell & Company, has just returned from a trip through the south coast and San Joaquin districts.

William Bercovich, formerly of the Bercovich Company, has left for a pleasure trip in the Northwest. H. Bercovich, who now has complete charge of the Bercovich Company, is very much on the job, and reports a very satisfactory business, both wholesale and at his six retail stores.

W. I. Pixley, representing the Krinsky cigarette lines and Dill's smoking and chewing tobacco, has secured the privilege of selling cigarettes on the new Oakland baseball ground, where many games are to be played this season, and expects to get some very effective publicity for his lines, as well as a good business return from the operations there. Mr. Pixley has moved to a new office at 221 Hansford Building, on the floor above his former location. H. T. Spencer, who recently joined Mr. Pixley's force, and has since been in Southern California, has left for the North, where he will continue the Dill campaign that was started last year. Mr. Pixley is getting ready to start South, and will go through that district in his usual thorough manner, calling on practically every dealer in the country.

Al. Ehrman, of Ehrman Brothers & Company, has just returned from a long visit to the Philippine Islands. Ehrman Brothers & Company have just taken up a new brand, the "Roi Tan," which they will introduce here shortly.

BIG HAUL FOR WESTERN CIGAR DEALERS

The Detroit Show Case Company, of Detroit, manufacturers of a fine line of show cases, are now introducing them to the trade in every part of the country.

One of their cases is shown in the advertising columns of the present issue of THE TOBACCO WORLD. This case should appeal to every up-to-date merchant, who takes pride in having the latest and best fittings for his establishment. It is of all-glass, frameless construction, equipped with moisteners, and is a cigar case and humidor combined. The manufacturers will, upon application, send any one interested a catalogue of their line of goods.

Joseph T. Snyder, the enterprising cigar merchant, who has a chain of first-class stores in a number of the larger cities of New York State and the Middle West, is having two of his recently acquired stores in Detroit fitted up with cases made by the Detroit Show Case Company. Any one who has seen any of the Snyder stores knows that these cases evidently must be of the best, for a Snyder store typifies up-to-dateness in every respect.

A delivery wagon of Bier, Saalburg & Company figured prominently in an accident a few days ago, when wagon, horse and driver were precipitated to the bottom of a building excavation when the street caved in. Fortunately H. Hart, the driver, was unhurt, and horse and wagon were extricated but little worse for the tumble. H. Bier, of this company, says the "Ruy Lopez" cigar is moving in very satisfactory shape.

Arthur Meyer, Western agent for Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, is just getting about again after being laid up a couple of weeks with a sprained ankle.

Fred C. Starr, the prominent Sacramento tobacconist, made a visit to San Francisco a few days ago.

The largest shipment of California yet made from Tulare County, grown near Exeter, California, was sent out May 1, amounting to six carloads, destined for Durham, South Carolina. It is reported that about sixty cars will be shipped from California this year.

G. Hofer, representing Celestino Costello & Company, of York, Pennsylvania, has been spending a few days in this city, coming by the southern route. Another recent visitor was H. Robare, representing V. Guerra, Diaz & Company, of Tampa.

I. Dannenbaum, the cigar man of Vallejo, California, is branching out, having just ordered a stock for a new stand at Santa Rosa, California.

D. Frankel, of Frankel, Gerdts & Company, is again taking the baths at Paso Robles hot springs, where he went soon after his return from a Southern trip.

International Trade in Tobacco

In a monograph on the international trade in farm and forest products for the years 1901 to 1910, inclusive, the United States Department of Agriculture gives interesting data relative to the world movement of certain commodities. Tobacco is numbered among these, and the tables which appear below have been taken from the publication mentioned. In explanation of the tables the monograph states:

Figures for the United States include Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico. Data for Germany prior to March 1, 1906, do not include the commerce to or from the free ports of Hamburg, Bremen and Lubeck. As far as possible all figures refer to calendar years. For some countries, notably Canada, Mexico and British India, whose annual reports refer only to fiscal years ending with some month other than December, the data for calendar years were computed from official monthly reports. In some cases this was impossible, so that the returns for the fiscal year had to be used as follows: Aden, year beginning April 1; Persia, year beginning March 21; Turkey, year beginning March 14. Tobacco comprises leaf, stems, strippings and tombac, but not snuff. Shrinkage in transit may partially explain why the total imports and exports do not agree more closely.

Tobacco Industry of India

[Consul Edward J. Norton, Bombay.]

DURING the fiscal year ended March 31, 1912, India's tobacco exports reached their highest figure. Shipments of unmanufactured tobacco amounted to 26,484,127 pounds, or nearly 10,000,000 pounds more than in the previous year and two times as much as the exports for 1909-10. The value of the 1911-12 exports of leaf is given as $895,066.

Of the year's shipments, Aden and dependencies, one of India's best markets for unmanufactured leaf, took 7,986,490 pounds; the Straits Settlements, 2,280,354 pounds; Hongkong, 3,665,194 pounds. France bought more than twice as much as in any previous year, India's shipments thither aggregating 4,778,131 pounds; Germany took 3,346,219 pounds; and the Netherlands 2,805,216 pounds.

Much of the Indian leaf tobacco is of the variety consumed in the hookah or narghile, and therefore neither in kind nor in value is it strictly comparable with the leaf produced in other countries for manufacturing purposes. The following figures of the export trade for the fiscal year 1912 show the division of leaf tobacco shipments from India, the quantities being stated in pounds: From Bengal, 6,743,114; Bombay, 8,043,509; Sind, 65,770; Madras, 1,619,966; Burma, 10,011,768; total, 26,484,127 pounds.

Exports of Manufactured Tobacco.

In the manufactured class there was an advance in exports during the fiscal year 1912 of 18.4 per cent. in quantity and 12.1 per cent. in value. The increased shipments of cigars from 1,327,532 pounds in 1910-11 to 1,480,375 pounds in 1911-12 were due to the heavier demand proceeding from the Straits Settlements. These cigars, valued at $402,887, were produced in Madras and Burma. Exports of cigarettes aggregated 59,721 pounds, the share of Bengal being over 50,000 pounds. Cigarettes are made on a large scale in Bombay from tobacco grown in the Presidency, and chiefly for home consumption. Over 7000 pounds were exported last year.

Attempts have been made to manufacture cigars locally to suit European tastes, but without success.

Between February 25, 1910, and April 1, 1911, internal trade in Indian tobacco was stimulated by a high import duty and great progress was made in the use of native leaf for cigarettes. During the year under review the rate of duty was less by one-third, but reports indicate that the substantial advance is maintained both in cultivation and in preparation of the leaf. The area under tobacco in British India and Native States is now believed to be about 1,150,000 acres. In the Bombay Presidency there are 91,880 acres under tobacco, a net increase of 17,000 acres in five years. About 30,000 acres are under cultivation in the Central Provinces and Berar.

Agricultural experiments in this district with American varieties of tobacco suitable for cigarettes indicate that White Burley is the most promising. In the field this variety has shown a uniform growth, thin leaf, and bright coloring when matured. It has been decided to give this variety and also a Turkish leaf a trial on a scale of one acre each, in order to furnish reliable information with regard to yield and curing properties. Experiments with potash manures, with the object of increasing the potash content of the leaf, which is so deficient in certain native tobacco, have not yet produced positive results.

Tobacco Imports.

In 1910-11 India's imports of tobacco fell from $3,076,114 to $1,594,265, largely as a result of an increase in the duty. In 1911-12 they strengthened to $2,165,105 upon the reduction of that duty by one-third. Of these imports 76.4 per cent. represent cigarettes. These had declined in the previous year from 3,083,746 pounds to 1,113,006 pounds and in value from $2,108,654 to $1,181,586; the recovery to 1,414,830 pounds and $1,654,123 does not make good the loss, although it amounts to 27 per cent. in quantity and 40 per cent. in value. Accepting as correct the result of certain investigations made in 1908 regarding the weight per 1000 cigarettes in different classes, the number of cigarettes imported in 1911-12 must have been some 562,820,000 as against 443,720,000 in 1910-11. This represents about 2.3 cigarettes per year per head of the population of British India.

Of the total value of cigarette imports ($1,654,123) $1,473,089 came from the United Kingdom and about $7000 worth from the United States. Imports from Egypt, valued at $159,134, represent a different class of article. The average value per pound was: British, $1.10; American, $0.74; Egyptian, $1.85.

Imports of cigars into India amounted to 75,581 pounds and $109,816 in value. The Netherlands supplied one-half of these and the United Kingdom one-fifth. From the Philippines were imported 14,473 pounds, valued at about $15,000. Of pipe and cigarette tobacco and other sorts, including snuff, the imports amounted to 557,193 pounds, valued at $349,000. The United Kingdom furnished 390,324 pounds, valued at $288,082; the United States supplied 164,676 pounds, worth $54,412.

SERVIA.

[Consular Assistant Harry B. Richardson, Belgrade.]

During the twenty-three years for which data in regard to tobacco growing in Servia are available, the cultivation of this plant has been a government monopoly, administered through the Servian Monopole Company.

The area planted in tobacco varies from year to year. In 1909, the maximum year, the acreage was 6600, and in 1897, the minimum year, the acreage was 2545. The average acreage for the entire time was 4200. The number of plants allowed to be cultivated also varies. Thus the largest number planted was in 1909 and the smallest in 1893. The average number of plants authorized annually during the life of the monopole company was 122,254,811. It is here important to add that the actual number of plants set out never represents the number authorized, for "overplanting" is authorized by law and by supplementary permissions granted.

The number of plants which ripened and were harvested has always been less than the number planted, as the young plants often die from one cause or another. This number varies, naturally, from year to year, according to the conditions of the weather.

Crop Statistics.

The acreage, production and value of Servia's tobacco crop, as shown by the records of the monopole company, for the years 1889 to 1911, inclusive, were as follows:

AN IMPORTED WRAPPER

¶ But it does increase wrapper cost and cuts into profits.

¶ Which would you rather be, prejudiced or prosperous? It's up to you.

"La Flor de Portuondo"

Londres Grandes

¶ First introduced to the trade in 1869 by the late Juan F. Portuondo, one of the pioneers of cigar manufacturing in the Quaker City.

¶ The superior quality and workmanship of these goods, which made their maker famous from coast to coast, has been maintained ever since and is typified in the above brand, a Havana filled, Sumatra wrapped cigar of most excellent flavor.

CRESSMAN'S COUNSELLOR 5¢ CIGAR

or, in other words, "they appreciate the 'real thing' in a cigar when they strike it." Quality considered, they know they are smoking the best. Knowing this, Mr. Dealer, can you afford to ignore a brand with the reputation and selling quality embodied in the "Counsellor"? Are you getting your share of that business?

Not until you stock up on this cigar in the right way and push it by "putting your shoulder to the wheel", will you realize to the full what a prolific source of profit it is.

The Advantages of Sidewalk Advertising

Written for The Tobacco World By Frank Farrington
(Author of "Retail Advertising — Complete," Etc.)

THERE is no advertising that costs less money than that the cigar dealer can do out on the sidewalk in front of his store. Advertising space on the sidewalk costs practically nothing, but it can be made to pay excellent returns if properly handled.

About the simplest form of sidewalk advertising is that which can be done on a bulletin board. The bulletin board audience should be even larger than that which sees the store windows because such a board can be set where is will be more conspicuous, unless there is a local ordinance against such an obstruction on the outer edge of the walk. If there is such an ordinance it becomes necessary to use a board against the building, between the store and its neighbor, or under the window, or wherever sufficient space may be found.

There is, perhaps, nothing new about this bulletin board idea and to many of us the suggestion carries a mental picture of a lopsided, chalk-covered blackboard such as we have seen outside a cheap restaurant, bearing unreadable inscriptions or scrawls on a surface already gray with the remains of previous notations.

The sidewalk blackboard bulletin can be made attractive and profitable if the man behind it will take enough pains in looking after it. It is, of course, absolutely necessary that the board be kept looking neat. It should be constructed in a way that will give it a permanent look rather than the appearance of a temporary makeshift. It should be washed every time the inscription is changed, instead of being merely wiped off dry. It will have a more "classy" appearance if it is made with the blackboard portion of slate, like the best school boards, though smooth boarding covered with several coats of a blackboard enamel made for the purpose, or covered with a heavy black paper used in making school blackboards, may answer well enough. Unless slate is used frequent coats of enamel paint will be desirable to keep the board looking right.

The best looking sidewalk bulletin board is one that may be made with glass in frames. Two heavy frames are made with finished three-inch pine lumber, grooved like picture molding to hold the glass. Into each frame a piece of double strength American glass is fitted and fastened with a narrow molding or with points and putty. These two frames are then hinged together at one side and arranged with hooks and eyes on the other edge so they can be shut together and fastened. The whole should stand on a heavy base. By swinging open one frame, bulletins on paper may be inserted behind each glass. There should be a thin board or cardboard between the backs of the paper sheets to prevent the light shining through and rendering the inscriptions hard to read.

Using the signs thus made on paper, they can be made at leisure and made up in advance without keeping the bulletin board inside while the work is being done. Rubber stamps of the single letter variety can be used in printing these signs, or a marking brush if preferred. The work should be done with the same care that is used in making show cards. These signs are merely outdoor show cards.

The framework of the bulletin board may be painted to match the store front, or if it is desirable, it may be colored something more violent to make it conspicuous.

The lettering need not be done with waterproof ink because the sign itself should be made water-tight. This gives this sign an added advantage over the blackboard, which is of little or no use on a stormy day. There is, of course, some possibility of broken glass in this kind of a bulletin board, but the breakage is not very likely to happen and even if it does, the expense of new glass is not prohibitive.

In using the board a few inches should be ruled off permanently at the top and used for news items, and in that space should be written the latest important news matter, whether national or local. The public in smaller towns will almost always be more interested in some local affair than in outside matters of greater importance. When a local business man is dumped out of his automobile the item on the bulletin board before the public has heard of it will excite more interest than an item about a defeat of the Turkish army with great loss. Local news matter may well be given the preference.

This news section of the board may also carry the weather report every morning if there is room for it. Below the news space should be the main advertising section.

The advertisements should be written in a way to make them as interesting as possible. The plainest of lettering should be used because the difference between plain and careless lettering is the difference between a profitable and an unprofitable bulletin board.

Attractive pictures will often stop people when simple type inscriptions would not do it. Whenever possible the pictures ought to have some reference to the text, and it is a good plan to make them illustrative of the goods mentioned. The manufacturers of some lines supply posters and illuminated show cards which can be used whole or cut up in making good bulletin signs.

If there is any way in which the latest news item or the weather prophecy can be made to fit in with the advertisement of goods below it, the connecting of the two will make the advertisement the more profitable.

Of course the advertising part of the bulletin must be changed every day just as the news items must be. People who are going to become interested in the store because of its bulletin board must find that board at all times a live proposition with NEW matter on it. It is the expectation of finding something new there that is going to make the public stop, that is going to get the people into the habit of noticing it.

Another form of sidewalk advertising that can sometimes be made to produce results is lettering right on the pavement itself. This can be done with chalk or with some kind of paint that can be washed off with water, such as whiting preparations. A permanent paint is not desirable unless a permanent sign is desired, and then it is better to have one set in in metal. More or less sensational stunts have been resorted to by some dealers to attract attention to their sidewalk work. Some have imbedded a silver coin in the cement of the pavement, or some metal article from the merchandise in the store. This plan results in a great many people being made to appear foolish by their efforts to pick up the article, and any one thus embarrassed, it may be certain, will go on with little feeling of friendliness for the store.

A comparatively new thing in sidewalk advertising is what is called by some a Projectoscope. This instrument acts a good deal as the old-fashioned magic lantern used to work. It is wired and contains an incandescent lamp, and when connected with an electric light socket and the lens pointed at the sidewalk outside, a brilliant circle of light is thrown out in which any sign desired can be made to appear by inserting the corresponding slide in the lantern. If it is dark outdoors the brightness of this spot on the pavement and the novelty of the idea will make it valuable advertising.

These projectoscopes can be bought at from $12 to $17, and it is said the cost of operation, for current, etc., is about $2.50 per month.

A live store is always on the lookout for new sidewalk advertising schemes, as well as for new ways in which the old plans can be made more profitable. The dealer who wants more business will find it possible to get it in such ways.

RETAIL RINKLES

Catchy Schemes Used Successfully By Thinking Men To Improve, Enlarge and Popularize Their Business . . .

The Baltimore wholesale and retail firm of Lilly, Dungan & Company, have an unusual convenience for their customers that could be copied to advantage by other dealers throughout the country.

Have Humidor Cabinets for Box Trade

Several years ago one of the firm decided that many of their customers would get in the habit of buying cigars more by the box, were it not for the fact that when they did, they smoked too much in their offices and in addition, the cigars often dried out there until the last ones in the box were scarcely in smokeable condition.

To simplify this difficulty they had built in their "Flat Iron" store two cabinets. They are really humidors and contain about forty compartments each, where the customer, after purchasing a box to his liking, can put his cigars. He is given a key to the compartment and any time he wants a smoke can come to the store for them, or either send a boy.

Every morning these customers come to the store and get their day's supply of cigars. These men have the advantage of getting the box price on the goods. They select the box carefully and are getting their particular color each time. In addition, the cigars are kept in good condition, which might not be the case were they taken to the office. As a rule, these smokers consume about three times as many cigars by this plan as they do by buying them several at a time.

This scheme is undoubtedly a good one and should be a splendid one for stores in other cities to follow. It certainly will hold the customer, when he can come to the store, strut in and open his own humidor. He feels that he is a bit above the other fellows. No rent is charged for these compartments. The added consumption of cigars more than justifies the cost of installation and rental.

Retailers at times cudgel their brains to get up good schemes for attracting the attention of the passerby, but in an endeavor to get something out of the ordinary, occasionally get "in wrong." One thing which is considered bad is the placing of a coin in the sidewalk. There have been cases where dealers have thought this was a clever trick and enjoyed seeing some one stoop down and try to pick it up, only to find that it was embedded in the cement. One dealer said recently that one irate customer, who had been tricked, came into the store and gave the cigarist his opinion of him and flounced out again. Although a regular patron theretofore, that man has never been in the store since.

Trick Window Displays Valuable if Used Right

Something on this order, which is amusing, without offense being given, has been tried by crackerjack window trimmers. They take a cigar box and cut it through diagonally with a saw. Then after smoothing the edges carefully, one-half of the box is glued on the outside of the window glass. The other half is glued on the inside, taking particular pains to have the two portions of the box lined up right so as to make them look as one box.

Next a piece of soap is used to make lines radiating from the box in all directions. This gives the appearance of some one having heaved a box through the window and is bound to attract attention. It is an excellent optical illusion and as no one's feelings are ruffled, as in other trick displays, it is a safe one to use.

A unique display was recently made in the windows of Carroll's cigar store, Queen Street, in the Canadian Soo, says our Detroit correspondent. Some time ago a contest was announced in which women were invited to make cushions from the ribbons contained in "Players," "Murad" and "Fatima" cigarettes. The display consisted of the products of twenty-two ladies, and drew thousands to the Carroll store window.

Unique Cushion Making Contest —Use Cigarette Ribbons

To those who did not possess the genius necessary for the making of these ornamental cushions, the possibility of cigarette ribbons was a revelation. Prizes were awarded to the five best cushions. A handsome new front in oak, with olive green velour hangings had recently been put in by Mr. Carroll at this store, which made a fine background for the exhibit.

Some time ago, while in one of the Western cities, the writer noticed a "rinkle" that is worth mentioning. As he came out of the hotel he happened to glance down and saw on the pavement an arrow pointing up town. Behind the arrow were the words "The Right Place." He was just curious enough to follow that arrow and further up the street saw another, with the same words. He followed the sign still further and at last saw them, two this time, pointing to a cigar store.

Using Arrows to Lead Patrons to Store

There in the window was one of the most attractive window displays it has ever been his good fortune to see. Unusual taste was used in the groupings of cigars and tobacco, and the color scheme was harmonious enough to make a dyspeptic smile. A special sale of one brand of cigars was on the programme that day, and judging by the men passing in and out of the store, those arrows must have figured in that day's profits.

Have you ever thought of the parcel post as a means of increasing your sales on cigars? Don't you think that the fellow who is outside of the city and can now be reached by the parcel post might get cigars or tobacco that way, if the matter was put before him in the right way?

The Parcel Post in the Retail Cigar Business

Some manufacturer is probably pushing his cigars in your community. If you are a distributor, put a plan something on this order before him. Tell him there are a certain number of customers who could be reached through the parcel post and that if he supplied you with a number of cigars you would see that they would reach the right persons, and that you would pay the postage on them.

Then get a list of men who you know smoke and send them a cigar or two, explaining the convenience of the parcel post in sending them their supplies of cigars. And that you have made arrangements for handling business in this way in addition to your regular trade.

Of course there will be a number of men who would not get their cigars in this way. They want to see them before they purchase. But this circular and sample will go a long way toward showing those fellows that you are up to date and have a fine line of goods. A man may come in the store out of curiosity after receiving such a letter, and if you make a permanent customer out of him, even if he never uses the parcel post, it will have been worth while.

Semi-Editorial Puffs for the Thinking Dealer

HAVE you ever made a determined and organized attempt to cultivate the good will of your patrons? The importance of this element in cigar retailing should come home to you with full force. How often we see clerks handing goods across the case with that wooden demeanor that means absolute indifference to the purchaser and his likes and dislikes. Especially in large cities this is noted. Some retailers seem to think that as they cater largely to a floating trade it is not necessary to attempt any pleasantry as the chances are it will be met with a half-resentful attitude anyway and any cheerfulness is wasted.

And they bemoan the fact that their trade is decreasing because of inroads by chain stores. Chain stores have no patent on the good will policy. They work it up to its very highest degree and every customer looks to them like every other, no matter what the size of the purchase.

If you pursue this policy closely, you also can get a clientele that will make purchasing at your store a very habit. A prominent man said recently in the course of a conversation on the subject, that the majority of the clerks in the stores where he purchased committed almost every sin known to retailing but short-changing. If this applies to you, Mr. Retailer, take it to heart and see if you cannot in greater degree secure the good will of your patrons whether you know them personally or not.

And now the question comes up again: Can a young man be perfect to the female eye—be desirable as a husband, in fact—and still be a smoker? Truly girls are getting down to fine points when they consider that a really harmless habit which is world-wide should be considered as being against a young man when they come to decide that all-important question of "yes" or "no."

The young women of a church society in Chicago discussed this question recently with varying opinions. It is gratifying to young fellows who love the weed to learn that they failed to reach an agreement on the question. Eight of the girls said it was immaterial to them whether the ideal man smoked. Three of them said they would expect him to. The remainder said they would not agree to any such habit. We are not informed as to how many constituted the remainder.

Then it was found out that some of the most popular young men in the church were smokers, which perhaps accounted for inability on the part of the young ladies to settle the question, so it is hardly likely that the course of true love among them will ever be blocked by the smoking habit.

"No more credit for me," said a cigar dealer to me the other day. "I was stung so badly this morning that it has cured me for all time. You know I took over this store only a short time ago. I need not tell you what shape the business was in when I took charge, but it couldn't have been much worse. Well, I determined to build it up and I think that I have come pretty close to doing it now after a year.

"I found that there were a number of men in the office buildings near here that were in the habit of sending here for cigars, often buying by the box. They never came in person, but sent their office boys, and I now have many such customers that I have rarely if ever seen, who pay their bills regularly.

"But I have found to my sorrow that some of these men have been the fly-by-night kind of customers. I had gone in pretty deep with one fellow and there were a few others whom I determined I would shake up. Well, I went around to the building yesterday and went up to his office. I found that the fellow had gone to parts unknown. This morning I saw the boy on the street who used to buy the cigars and asked him about it. 'Oh, that guy fired me a short time ago,' he said. I later learned he had left the city.

"I don't know about the other fellows. They probably are dodging me, but if I find any of them they will cough up or be made to feel pretty cheap. Here's where I turn over a new leaf on the credit business. If a fellow can't pay cash for his cigars, let him do without them until he gets the money or borrows it."

IT COULDN'T BE DONE

Somebody's said that it couldn't be done,
But he with a chuckle replied
That "maybe it couldn't," but he would be one
Who wouldn't say so till he'd tried.
So he buckled right in with the trace of a grin
On his face. If he worried, he did it.
He started to sing as he tackled the thing
That couldn't be done—and he did it!

There are thousands to tell you it cannot be done,
There are thousands to prophesy failure;
There are thousands to point out to you one by one,
The dangers that await to assail you.
But just buckle in with a bit of a grin,
Then take off your coat and go to it;
Just start in to sing as you tackle the thing
That "cannot be done"—and you'll do it.

—Edgar A. Guest, in Detroit Free Press.

Enthusiasm is one of the most valuable assets the retail cigar dealer can have. The cigar dealer who impresses upon his customers that he is "always on the job" and takes pride in his work, will find that this will have a decided effect upon some of his customers. It will often overcome prejudice and opposition among the most skeptic. Faith in your business and ability to show the man who comes into your store that you are fully alive to what you are selling to him cannot fail to have a most beneficial result. Start the spirit of enthusiasm in your cigar store; show it by your manner and your methods of doing business. Many men who could purchase the same cigars at other places, will come to you, not realizing that the cheerful atmosphere and hustling spirit of the place means something to them.

European street railway companies, too, have been oppressing the long-suffering smoker, as was instanced in Berlin a short time ago when the authorities of the subway and elevated lines issued an order doing away with the smoking compartments in their cars.

Their reason for this move was that schedules were upset by smokers who wasted time looking for the smoking compartments of the trains. It is characteristic of the Teuton mind that instead of marking them by some easily-discovered sign and thus avoid any delay, the question was solved by abolition of the smoking compartments.

The smokers' action in the matter was quick and forceful They simply stopped using subway and "el," causing the receipts to fall alarmingly low. When it is known that in Germany almost every man smokes almost all the time, the effect of their action can be fully appreciated. Under this tremendous pressure the company held out for only a short time and now the Berlin smokers search out their own compartment with due deliberation as before.

I was in the Upmann factory in Havana, recently, and in the packing room my nostrils were assailed with the odor of gold paint. I walked over to one of the tables, and there stood several thousand beautiful large size Upmann cigars, which had been treated with a gold tip, extending about half an inch, and a gold band painted around them, about an inch from the end. I was informed that these goods were made up specially for a prominent London Club, which originally ordered a small shipment, and are now handling them in lots of several thousand. The goods were of a very expensive size, which easily retail at three shillings in London. I wondered if the gold paint on the tip could have added anything to the flavor of the weed.

Fads are a wonderful thing! I shouldn't be surprised to hear ere long, some enterprising club in Dublin had ordered some special goods, painted with a green tip.

Since hearing of the experience of Card Garrison, vice-president of the Banner Cigar Company, of Detroit, his friends are wondering what they must do to have a railway Pullman named after them. Mr. Garrison has traveled almost continuously for twenty-five years on the steam roads. In all that time he has saved the little checks given by the Pullman Company showing the rate paid for the section, the starting point and the destination of the journey. As his traveling career progressed a younger brother took these checks and pasted them in a scrap book.

In 1909 Mr. Garrison conceived the idea of having a Pullman named after him. He accordingly took out his scrap book and estimated that he had spent more than $15,000 with the Pullman Company. He wrote a note to the company stating the amount, and making the request that a car be named after him. Several months later he was pleasantly surprised when taking a train from Chicago to Omaha to find that his reservation was in a bright, new car, with the name "Garrison" in gilt letters on each side.

Here is your chance now, Mr. Oldtime Traveling Man, to have a car named after you. Send along your checks and see what happens.

Now that Pierpont Morgan and Joe Cannon are no longer in the public eye, reporters are wondering who will furnish "copy" for an occasional cigar story. Mr. Morgan, who was known for his good taste in tobacco, would smoke none but the best, and he was willing to pay any price to secure just the right kind of cigar. Many stories have been told of his good judgment in tobacco and his fondness for the weed. He was often cautioned by his doctor to cut down on smoking, and at times made valiant efforts to do so.

Joe Cannon, though still very much alive, will probably not figure in the public eye so much as formerly. The figure of the Speaker of the House of Representatives with his black cigar was a familiar one to Washingtonians. The last three Presidents have done little or no smoking. Theodore Roosevelt never used tobacco and Taft, his successor, used it rarely. Mr. Wilson never uses the weed in any form, nor does the Secretary of State, Mr. Bryan. General Grant and Major McKinley were two of the heaviest smokers that ever occupied the Presidential chair, especially the former.

Frank Bucher, the Dayton cigar manufacturer, had an amusing experience several weeks ago. Mr. Bucher was in the outskirts of the city, shortly after the flood in that section, and was mighty glad he could stay there at the time. But business one day necessitated his going down into the town. He went down and was looking over the place on the way when an over-zealous officer of the regular army, which was stationed in Dayton, noticed him. Every one available was being pressed into service to help clear up the debris and Mr. Bucher was ordered to get to work as soon as the official saw him. His protests were of no avail. "Important business" meant little to the officer, and before Mr. Bucher realized it he was in the shovel gang helping to clear the streets of Ohio River mud. He worked away for several hours when he was able to secure his release.

The revolution in Mexico has resulted in a number of privations, one being the lack of tobacco among the common soldiers. The Mexican is an inveterate smoker from the cradle to the grave. Every one in the country from the lately weaned baby to the gray-haired grown-up, on the edge of the grave, smokes cigarettes or cigars. This is true of both the sexes.

When the war was well under way, it was not long before tobacco became a scarcity. Prices went soaring in the cities. The soldiers, both rebel and federal, began to smoke marihuana, a deadly native plant of Mexico. When some of them were captured they were found to have some of the plant in their possession. Many of them smoked it in the prison in Mexico later and became insane as a result.

A few Americans have experimented with the weed. A number of years ago a citizen of San Antonio purchased a coffee plantation in Mexico and was induced to try marihuana by some one. He became addicted to the plant and finally became insane. Another American, the superintendent of a mine, was cordially hated by a number of his men. One of them started to mix the weed in his tobacco and the American, without finding out the cause, became insane, and while in one of his fits attacked some of the men, who killed him in self defense.

The plant is one of the most dangerous that grows in Mexico. It grows wild in some localities. The government realizes how dangerous it is and employs special inspectors to watch the markets for the drug.

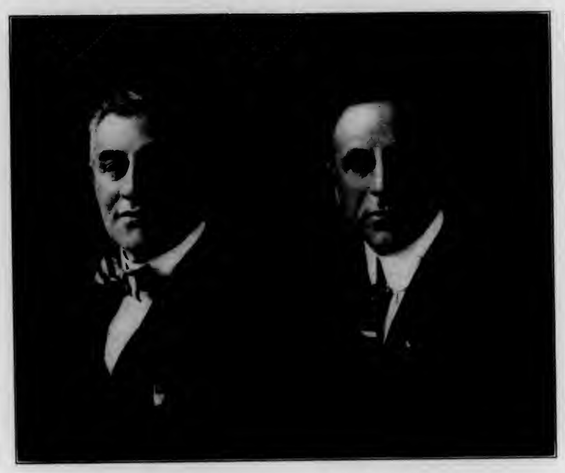
MEN WHO MADE GOOD

SIDELIGHTS ON INTERESTING TRADE PERSONALITIES

WERE one to study the history, growth and methods of many business houses nowadays, analyzing and comparing them carefully, he would probably find that they were all pretty much alike. He would also note that among the number were houses that were comparatively young, but had shot up suddenly, almost over night, and were making good at a pace that was just a bit out of the ordinary. An analysis of these concerns would disclose the fact that they were, in many respects, much like their smaller competitors, but that they had hit upon an original idea, one that the public had apparently been waiting for, and by backing up the idea by modern business methods and quality of product, had shot ahead in a wonderful manner.



ISAAC WERTHEIMER SAMUEL WERTHEIMER

A cigar manufacturing firm in Baltimore has reached their present successful position by just such means as this. They have been manufacturing cigars in that city since 1898, and the business flourished from its inception. The brands of this house are few, they having adopted the policy of many other firms in the tobacco trade—of having few brands, but good ones, and concentrating their efforts upon them. Their first cigar was the "El Werth." This brand made good headway and is still a large seller, yet the cigar, which embodied the idea spoken of above is the "El Dallo," one that is now known from Coast to Coast. At the time the manufacturers of the "El Dallo" introduced it, in 1911, they realized that cigar smokers were thinking along sanitary lines, and with that point in view, put out this piece of goods wrapped in tin foil and paper. When the smoker began to find out that he could carry the "El Dallo" around in his pocket, and that it would stay fresh and not break, the sales began to soar, yet had not this idea been backed up with superior and uniform quality, the success of the cigar would have been short lived. But the manufacturers laid special stress upon quality, which with the unique wrapping, spelled success.

Wertheimer Brothers, of Baltimore, manufacturers of the "El Dallo," was organized in that city in 1898, by Isaac Wertheimer, who still watches the workings of the business as closely as when the firm was in its infancy, and Samuel Wertheimer, the sales manager, who is well known in every part of the country. He is on the road the greater part of the year.

It appears as though the whole Wertheimer family has the true cigar instinct. Isaac Wertheimer had been superintendent in a number of New York cigar factories previous to going into business for himself in Baltimore. He learned his trade in the old Mendel factory on Broadway, New York. Samuel Wertheimer is also well known in cigar circles in that city.

Isaac Wertheimer's sons, Leonard and Milton, are both active in the business, and bid fair to follow in their father's footsteps. They were made members of the firm shortly after its organization. They are usually to be found at the factory and attend to the details of the business. They are both well known in amateur dramatic and musical circles of Baltimore, and are themselves actors and musicians of no mean ability. They are keen and alive to any matters pertaining to the welfare of the business and believe thoroughly in modern, up-to-date methods.

Wertheimer Brothers have been pressed so hard with orders the past year that other quarters had to be secured for manufacturing purposes. Part of a building was leased some time ago to help out the congestion in the regular factory, but this did not count for much before long. For that reason the new factory secured by them in Baltimore is now being occupied by the firm and should be commodious enough for some time to come. It occupies an entire city block in that city, bordering on Preston, Wolf, Durham and Gay Streets. The lot is 248 by 120 feet in size and the two buildings to be used have a combined floor space of 50,000 square feet, which will give them at least three times their present space.

The sanitary feature, which has always figured so largely in the methods of this firm and their product, is carried out in this latest factory. No pains have been spared to make it ideal for the employees. It has light on all sides, and a number of conveniences in the nature of dining and rest rooms are provided for the hands, which should insure the "El Dallo" a most satisfactory home in the future.

How Turks Graft in Selling Tobacco to Foreigners

In One Instance, Courage of American Puts Stop to Practice of Collecting "Bakshish"

THE famous tobacco from which the world's Turkish and "Egyptian" cigarettes are manufactured is practically all grown on odd little terraces amid the rocks near the Ægean Sea, in Southern Macedonia, says Paul Scott Mowrer, special correspondent for the Chicago "Daily News," in Salonica, Turkey. The railroad from Dedeagatch to Salonica runs through the length of this unique region. Less heavily here than elsewhere has fallen the shadow of the war. Save for a few guerrilla crimes and the burning of a few Turkish communities, there has been little bloodshed or destruction.

About the neat, gay colored Greek towns the Bulgar troopers of the occupying divisions lounge luxuriously, smoking inexhaustible quantities of the most delicate cigarettes from the warehouses of the Ottoman Government monopoly, contented as farmers after a full harvest. And, indeed, no tract in Turkey, commercially speaking, was so well worth the conquering as this. Bulgaria may rightly pride itself that the entire trade in the finest tobacco of the Orient will henceforth be in its hands.

The tobacco trade is almost the only commerce in Turkey wherein America has an interest. It is hard enough for Americans even in France or Germany to get used to the slow and roundabout ways of doing business, but imagine an American here, where the first word a foreigner learns is "bakshish," meaning gratuity; and the second, "yavash." "Yavash" is the very root and essence of Moslem character: "Go easy!" "No hurry!" "Take your time!" "Tomorrow will do!" It is the commonest word in the Turkish language.

The absurd commercial situation is well illustrated by the following incident, which happened shortly after the last war: A group of Salonica banks purchased on speculation a large quantity of tobacco from a certain Turkish bey, or overlord, at Seres, paying him the full price, cash down. The tobacco was bought from them by a large American company, which also paid cash down. It still remained, however, to get the tobacco from the bey's warehouse. The bey had locked the doors and wouldn't give up the keys. The directors of the banks summoned him.

"Yavash," said the bey. "Give me $500 bakshish and we'll call it square."

The directors had expected this. They paid the money. But still the doors remained locked. The bey now wanted another $500. The directors protested, but what could they do? They pulled out their pocketbooks. A week passed. The locks on the bey's warehouses were beginning to rust from disuse. The directors sent for the bey.

"How much do you want this time?" they asked angrily.

"Yavash! Yavash!" grinned the bey, pushing back his fez and settling down comfortably to talk it over. He soon confided that he had set his heart on $1500 more, making in all $2500. He considered that a fair price for putting a man to the trouble of opening such rusty locks. But the directors thought otherwise. They could not easily restrain themselves from kicking the great man out.

"I think I can help you," said Mr. Kehl. He sent word to the Governor of Salonica that he intended to have his Vice-Consul, Mr. Morris, and his consular guard go over to Seres next morning, and that if the locks weren't off the warehouses by noon these two could be compelled to pry them off.

"Yavash! Yavash!" replied the Governor, suavely. "I assure you nothing of the kind will be necessary. I will send word to the bey immediately that he must allow the tobacco to be removed tomorrow."

Nevertheless, Mr. Morris, who played football not very many years ago, and the consular guard, who is a tall Montenegrin with a genuine love for this sort of thing, went to Seres next day to make sure. They sat on the railing in front of the warehouse to see what would happen. The news of their presence spread around and a large crowd gathered. One o'clock came. Mr. Morris stood up, stretched and leaned against the first door. Snap! went the rusty bolt. The door stood open. Suddenly there was a commotion in the crowd. A heavy figure plunged upon the scene. It was the bey.

"What are you doing on my property?" he shouted. "I'll have you arrested!"

"Yavash!" cooed Mr. Morris, and went on opening doors.

The bey hastily summoned his own guardsman, who strode up in a businesslike manner. He was met, however, by the tall Montenegrin. The latter took him firmly by the shoulders, spun him around and started him off toward the South at a rate calculated to carry him clear to the sea unless he hit something hard meantime. That was all. Mr. Morris telegraphed the American company to come get its tobacco. And "L'Independent," the local French newspaper in Salonica, published an article which filled the front page, headed, "How the American Consul Does Business."

It is the foreign residents' hope that the regime of beys and bakshish is now forever ended in this region. Whether Salonica goes to Bulgaria or to Greece, civilized business conditions are sure to follow.

"Thank you" looks very insignificant, but it is a most significant thing in some retail establishments. So much so that any sales person caught dodging the expression, after having sold a customer, is hauled over the coals for it. You don't have to be so obsequious that the patron is uncomfortable. Try to make it just as cordial when it is a five-cent purchase as when the smoker takes home with him a box of the most expensive imported brands.

30 Per Cent. Increase in Leaf Tobacco Now Held by Dealers and Manufacturers

According to Cantrill Law Report, Amount Now Totals 1,359,252,597 lbs., an Increase of More Than 310,000,000 lbs. Over That Reported Last Fall—Many Sections Show Heavy Increases

(Special to The Tobacco World.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 27.

DIRECTOR of the Census Durand yesterday issued the following statistics on the leaf tobacco held by manufacturers and dealers on April 1, 1913, and October 1, 1912, as provided for by the Cantrill law. The figures, which are a preliminary report, are even larger than those published last November, the amount of leaf tobacco on hand totaling 1,359,252,597 lbs., as compared with a total of 1,047,404,560 lbs. reported last November, an increase of more than 310,000,000 lbs. in six months.

These statistics represent for dealers in and manufacturers of tobacco other than the original growers: First, the quantity of leaf tobacco reported as held by manufacturers who, according to the returns of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, manufactured during the calendar years 1912 and 1911, respectively, more than 50,000 pounds of tobacco, 250,000 cigars, or 1,000,000 cigarettes, and by dealers in or manufacturers of leaf tobacco who on an average had more than 50,000 pounds of leaf tobacco in stock at the end of the four quarters of the calendar years; second, all imported leaf tobacco in the United States bonded warehouses on April 1, 1913:

(3) Not reported separately.

(4) The 41,347,631 pounds of imported tobacco shown for October 1, 1912, included only that reported by establishments of the size covered by the law. The 51,762,509 pounds for April 1, 1913, includes the total amount reported by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce as remaining in bonded warehouses April 1, 1913, plus the imported tobacco withdrawn from bond and held by dealers and manufacturers of the class covered by the law.

One Per Cent. Tax on Business Done by Mail Order Houses Provided for in New Bill

Congressman Hinebaugh, of Illinois, Says Small Merchant Should be Protected from Large Corporations—Taxes to be Apportioned Among States—Measure to be Considered in December

WASHINGTON, May 26.

A BILL, which is aimed at the mail order houses of the country, has just been introduced in the House of Representatives by Congressman W. H. Hinebaugh, of Illinois. This measure provides for a tax upon all persons or firms doing an interstate mail order business, the tax to be based at the rate of 1 per cent. upon the total cash value of all the goods a house sold within any state.

Firms coming under the provisions of this law would be compelled to keep on their books an accurate account of all goods sold, the account to be submitted to the Secretary of the Treasury, who would determine the amount of tax that firm or person would pay.

The taxes derived from this measure it is intended will be apportioned to each state by the Secretary of the Treasury, according to the amount of the goods sold in each state. This money is to be put to any purpose that the states receiving it desire.

"I have long since felt," said Mr. Hinebaugh recently, "that we should do something for the small town merchant as his field is being encroached upon by the gigantic mail order houses. With the coming of the parcel post, this necessity was rendered doubly so."

It is expected that the bill will not be taken up until the December session of Congress. It is now before the Ways and Means Committee.

Senator Fletcher Proposes Four Amendments to Pending Underwood Tariff Bill

One for Protection of Manufacturers of Havana Cigars—Dock Weight Question Also Taken Up—Wrapper Percentage in Bales Increased from 15 to 25 Per Cent.—Philippine Clause Changed

(Special to The Tobacco World.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 29.

THE Senate Finance Committee does not contemplate making any changes in the tobacco schedule of the Underwood bill. This was indicated to your correspondent by Senator Simmons, chairman of the committee. Three sub-committees, comprised exclusively of Democrats, were authorized to take under consideration apportioned schedules of the House bill and to report back to the full Democratic membership of the committee. Senator Simmons said that the tobacco schedule was not assigned to any of these sub-committees because it is not proposed to alter the existing law.

Nevertheless, Senator Fletcher, of Florida, was permitted to appear before the sub-committee, of which Senator Williams is chairman, to plead for the insertion of an amendment permitting the withdrawal of cigars manufactured in bonded warehouses upon the payment of the tariff duties. The Fletcher amendment reads as follows:

"Provided, That cigars manufactured in whole of tobacco imported from any one country, made and manufactured in such bonded manufacturing warehouses, may be withdrawn for home consumption upon the payment of the duties under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, and the payment of the internal-revenue tax accruing thereon in their condition as withdrawn, and such cigars shall be stamped to indicate their character, origin of tobacco from which made, and place of manufacture."

Senator Fletcher has another amendment which has met with the approval of all cigar manufacturers and dealers throughout the country. This provides that the payment of a duty on imported tobacco shall be on the withdrawal weight instead of the dock weight which is the present basis of payment. Importers and manufacturers who import tobacco see no reason why they should be expected to pay duty on the moisture which the tobacco absorbs in being brought to this country.

The third amendment of Mr. Fletcher increases the limit of weight of wrappers in bales of tobacco from 15 per cent. to 25 per cent.

The last of Mr. Fletcher's amendment provides for the striking out of the phrase, "or 20 percentum in case of manufacturers of tobacco," in that section of the tariff bill taking up the free trade question with the Philippines as related to tobacco products. This last feature of the tariff bill is one that is being opposed by cigar interests all over the country, particularly the Cigar Makers' Unions.

Up to the present writing but one protest in writing has been filed with the committee against any of the tobacco feature of the bill. This was against the unlimited free importation of Philippine cigars. The protest was on one printed sheet, stating the cigar makers in islands receive an average daily wage of, in pesos, .74, equal to 37 cents in United States currency.

The statement said that the fifty-three cigar and cigarette factories in the islands paid in wages 2,183,049 pesos, average wages per annum 193 pesos, equal to $93.50 in United States currency, less than $2 per week.

C. A. Winters has taken over the cigar store of A. H. Rieger, Freeport, Ill., located 50 Chicago Street.

In order to meet the demands of their rapidly increasing business, the Bankable Cigar Factory, located at Frankfort, Ind., is rushing work on the excavations necessary for the foundations of the new building which they are planning to erect.

The Niles & Moser Cigar Co., of Kansas City, have just completed negotiations whereby they become the owners of the cigar store located at Market Street and Douglas Avenue, Wichita, Kan. The management of the new store will be under the direction of Glenn Barker and Harry Tatlock.

Confidence in Answering Legitimate Ads

In a recent address on "Making Advertising Efficient," Professor Walter Dill Scott, a noted psychologist and advertising expert, told of how he propounded the following questions to 21,820 people, who had answered advertisements in mediums, general and trade paper:

"Do you answer advertisements?

"Are you satisfied?

"If not, what is your complaint?"

Speaking of the test, Professor Scott says: "Of that number 17,855 asserted that they made use of advertisements. The remaining 3965 declared that they had never answered advertisements or else had ceased to do so. Of the 3965 who did not answer advertisements the overwhelming majority said that they did not trust the statements of the advertisers. Practically all would have been glad to make use of advertisements and would have done so if it were not for this element of distrust. Of the 17,855 who have answered advertisements 90 per cent. of them reported that their experience had been perfectly satisfactory.

This fact comes out in the result of the research: Although it is lack of confidence that makes the people hesitate to answer advertisements yet the number of persons who are disappointed in answering advertisements has been relatively small.

Readers of "The Tobacco World" need not be chary about answering advertisements in this publication. We have never, knowingly, accepted any fake advertisements. The majority of the firms advertising in our columns are known to "The Tobacco World" staff personally, and the mere fact that we accept their business, is a guarantee that we believe in their propositions, and it is also a certification that what they advertise is in good faith.

One of the best evidences of the fact that our readers have confidence in our advertisers, is the generous manner in which they respond to the efforts of our advertisers to reach them. Advertisers tell us that they not only constantly receive many inquiries from "The Tobacco World's" readers, but that the majority of these inquiries are superior as a class to those obtained from other sources.

Tax Proposed on Mail Order Cigar Business

The measure recently introduced in Congress by Representative Hinebaugh, of Illinois, to levy an internal revenue tax of 1 per cent. of the value of the merchandise sold by mail order houses, would affect the cigar and tobacco business less than many other branches of merchandise.

Nevertheless, since the new Parcel Post law went into effect, a number of new mail order cigar factories have sprung into existence, and these with some of the older established ones, have been conducting very aggressive campaigns of late to sell their cigars direct to the consumer.

In our opinion, the mail order game is not likely to prove a fortune maker nor to develop into an appreciable menace to local retailers, but if the Hinebaugh idea becomes a law, this tax together with the heavy advertising expenses necessary to a heavy mail order business, would likely drive what few houses there are today to quit the game and do business along established lines.

Reviewing the proceedings of the Fifteenth Annual Convention of the National Cigar Leaf Association held during the past month at Atlantic City, N. J., we find that this convention took a firmer grasp on the vital trade problems than any convention in recent years.

That the delegates and officers were alive to the needs of the leaf tobacco trade, is evident by the quick and almost unanimous action on the various matters presented.

Critics who came to scoff remained to get busy.

It is hoped that the committees appointed to draft plans for a credit bureau, and the adoption of new trade customs, will make their action speak louder than words by quickly framing up some definite plans for carrying out the sentiments of the association along these lines.

It is the habit of some members and even some trade journals, to accuse the leaf association of dalliance and inaction. These criticisms may be best answered by the speedy translation of the convention's resolutions into definite action.

The last report of leaf tobacco on hand, just issued, as provided for by the Cantrill law, is well worth the study of leaf dealers and cigar manufacturers. What will those persons say, who were surprised to hear last November that there were more than a billion pounds of leaf tobacco on hand, when they find out that this amount has increased 30 per cent. since that time? Here is another chance for the man, who likes to analyze statistics, to get to work.

Country's Output of Tobacco Products Increases Heavily

Figures for First Four Months of the Year Also Ahead of the Same Period in 1912

THE production of cigars, cigarettes and manufactured tobacco of the country for the month of April, as compiled from the Internal Revenue receipts, show increases in all lines. Cigars and cigarettes continue to hold their own in a surprising manner, the increase in cigars for the month over the same period last year being 59,749,443. The total cigar output of the country for the first four months of the year is also well ahead of the same period last year.

	APRIL.

Price-Cutting Druggists Explain

RETALIATORY action has been taken by the Riker-Hegeman Drug Stores Co. of this city, since this firm was cut off the jobbing list of the American Tobacco Co., because of flagrant price-cutting. In striking back, the Prince of Price-Cutters is using much newspaper and billboard space, stating that they "cut prices only to meet competition." They say:

"It is a fixed policy of the Riker & Hegeman Co. not to be undersold. We generally lead in straight, direct, low prices, and if any one tries to lead us in an indirect way we meet them or go them one better—in a direct way.

"When a certain company retailing cigarettes and cigars offered a particular brand at 20 cents per package, and gave with each package two coupons which are advertised as being worth 2 cents each in redemption value, we took the direct road and sold the same brand at 16 cents. We pursued a similar course in the sale of imported cigars."

Mr. Schlesinger Becomes Secretary

Succeeding Maurice Wertheim, who recently retired, Sig. Schlesinger has been elected secretary of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Co. in recognition of his faithful work during his 15 years' connection with that corporation. Mr. Schlesinger is well known among the cigar trade and his promotion to the new office has been the cause of many congratulations.

Retail Tobacconists Hold Special Meeting

Pass Resolutions Endorsing Stanley Coupon Bill Now in Congress—Discuss Measures for Restoring Prices on Cigars and Cigarettes

AT a special meeting of the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association, held on Thursday, May 22d, in Terrace Garden, various measures were discussed looking toward a restoration of prices on cigars and cigarettes. Resolutions were passed unanimously to support the Coupon Bill introduced into Congress by Representative Stanley. This bill proposes "to levy a tax upon the issuance of coupons, prize tickets and other devices, and on the redemption, payment, purchase or exchange of coupons, prize tickets, tags, bands, or other devices, things or parts of articles, or things which shall have been attached to, tacked in, or with, or formed a part of, or encircling, or given with any manufactured tobacco, cigar or cigars, cigarettes or snuff, or any stamped package or receptacle thereof." This measure provides for a tax of 2 cents upon every coupon.

Secretary Otto S. Jones read correspondence from other dealers throughout the country, showing that a keen interest is being taken in the progress of the Stanley bill, which is now before the Ways and Means Committee.

A letter from the Assistant Attorney General, J. A. Fowler, of the Department of Justice, to Harry H. Hunter, counsel for the independent dealers, in response to an inquiry whether the American Tobacco Co. dissolution case will be re-opened, is as follows:

"SIRS:

"Yours of the 9th inst., in which you state that the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association has directed you to ascertain if anything further is to be done by the Department of Justice in the so-called dissolution suit against the Tobacco Trusts, was received. In answer, will say, that the department at present has no statement at present to make upon this subject."

A resolution was offered by A. Benovitch, and later was passed, directing the secretary of the association to communicate with the American Tobacco Co., asking why independent dealers are not given the same privileges as are extended by big manufacturers to other concerns.

E. Spingarn, of E. Spingarn & Co., sails on May 27 for the purpose of attending the inscriptions abroad.

H. Duys & Co. Purchase 5500 Bales Abroad

Harry Duys, who is representing the firm of H. Duys & Co. abroad, has cabled the New York office that he secured 700 bales of tobacco at the May 23d inscription. This tobacco is all from the Deli Maatschaappij plantation, and is said to be of a superior quality. This firm has already bought over 5000 bales of Sumatra and Java tobacco, and state that the sales so far to their customers are over 1000 bales. They have recently received samples of some lots bought at the later inscriptions, and state that the tobacco is desirable in every way for the manufacturer of nickel cigars. The sales on the imported tobacco of the firm so far this year is close to 40 per cent. ahead of the same period last year.

New York City Items

Charles Gans, of Max Gans & Son, will shortly leave for Porto Rico, accompanied by Mrs. Gans.

Carlos Fernandez & Co., the Manila cigar house, have moved from their old quarters at 42 East Twenty-third Street to 121 East Twenty-fourth Street.

The Retailers' Co-operative Cigar Co., Orange, N. J., was recently incorporated with a capital of $100,000, N. E. Mullen, J. T. Kelly, Orange, N. J., and A. Morris, Jr., New York City, being named as the incorporators.

Offices have been secured at 171 Pearl Street by A. Diax & Co. Jose A. Cuyar will be in charge.

According to the will of the late Abraham Cohn, who died last August, an estate valued at $955,300 is left to the widow and four children. The widow receives property valued at $703,347; and the children, three sons and a daughter, a legacy of $20,000 and a quarter interest in the residue of the estate.

P. Pavon Alvarez has become a member of the firm of Jose D. Riera & Co., the well-known San Juan, Porto Rican cigar manufacturing and leaf tobacco house. The firm have opened offices at 98 Water Street under the direction of Frank E. Adams.

Jonas' Plea for Re-Hearing Dismissed

THE effort made by Otto S. Jonas, the independent tobacco dealer, to have the Federal District Court review the dissolution decision affecting the American Tobacco Co. has failed. Judge Mayer, sitting in the District Court of New York, dismissed the application, holding that it was impossible for the court to review the decisions of the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Mr. Jonas had endeavored to show that the dissolution of the American Tobacco Co. was not in accordance with the decision of the court, and that the damages to his business resulted from the connection previously existing between the Metropolitan Tobacco Co. and the American Tobacco Co.

H. Upmann's Wonderful Assortment

A recent visitor to the great factory of H. Upmann, in Havana, learned with interest from Theodor Garbade, that their factory is now turning out over two hundred and fifty-two distinct sizes of cigars, ranging in price up to eight hundred dollars. One of the recent sizes introduced is known as the "Upmann Demi Corona," which is an exact Corona shape, half size. Other brands which are distinctly popular in the United States, in addition of course to their standard perfectos, are the "Upmann Prominenencias," as well as the "Pyrimads," and "Petit Pyrimads": their "Iris" shape has also been in strong demand. As is well known, Charles Landau, 82 Wall Street, is sole agent for these goods in the United States and Canada.

Chicago

Wholesalers and Retailers Optimistic Over Outlook—Changes Noted—New Stores Opening

CHICAGO, May 26.

BUSINESS in the leaf tobacco market has been of fair volume. This is to be expected as the cigar industry has made wonderful strides of late, which is indicated by the recent report published on internal revenue returns. Trade in Sumatra goods especially is active and the demand for this particular kind has broadened considerably of late. Despite the advanced prices for new crop leaf the trade is taking hold freely and goods are disposed of as fast as they are imported. The demand for domestic leaf also has broadened out. While it is too early to pass judgment on the new Havana leaf yet, buyers show a desire to hold off as reports have been contrary regarding the burning qualities of that kind.

While business in cigars has been rather disappointing up to the present time, owing to unfavorable weather conditions, yet the trade as a whole take a very optimistic view and look for the next six months of the year to make up for the dullness experienced during the first half of 1913. There is good reason for this belief.

As can be remembered, the year 1912, or rather the late winter and spring months of last year, were similar as to weather conditions as the present year. But the summer and fall period more than made up for the deficiency and there is no reason why these same conditions should not prevail during the current year. There has been a big increase in the make of cigars so far this year, which is attributed to the nickel and seed and Havana manufacturers. Manufacturers of clear Havana cigars also show a tendency to increase their output.

Adolph M .Seckbach, formerly with Santaella & Co., and F. Bolano & Co. has bought an interest in the San Alto Cigar Co. With Mr. Seckbach in the firm are J. H. Cohan and H. M. Cohn. "El Continuo," "Flor de Pindus," "San Alto," "La Cremata" and "Emancipo de Cuba" are the leading brands of the concern. The new firm will now enter the Western field for business.

Robert Elliot has opened a billiard hall at 1363 Michigan Avenue. He has added a cigar line to his hall, the stock including all of the well known 5, 10 and two for 25-cent lines.

Isaac Horner, of Henry Horner, the well known wholesale grocery house, died May 22 after a short illness.

Henry Horner & Co. are featuring the Lipschutz "44" cigar, made in Philadelphia. George T. Loker, the new manager of the cigar department of that house, has arranged for a big advertising campaign on this cigar.

The Anargyros & Lorillard Cigarette Drop Shipment of six cartons from jobbers' stocks has been withdrawn.

J. & B. Moos have made up a list of seven cash prizes ranging from $30 down to $5 for the salesmen who interest the most dealers in their new "Moos Guarantee" cigar.

W. T. Flynn, of the American Tobacco Co., has inaugurated a selling campaign on "Giant" tobacco. For a limited time he is offering free with every package of "Giant" tobacco a fine "Togo" corncob pipe. This campaign is bringing about good results in the way of sales.

R. Sinsheimer will open a cigar stand about June 15 at the North Shore Arcadia dance pavilion at South Haven, Mich., for the summer season.

E. W. Shaw has opened a new place at Seventy-ninth Street and Cheltenham Place.

J. W. Moyer, of Ninety-second Street and Commercial Avenue, is having his place remodeled, putting a new entrance on the Ninety-second Street side of the building.

A. G. Fisher bought out J. Hermanson and is having his store, which is directly opposite Moyer's place on the corner of Ninety-second Street and Commercial Avenue, remodeled. He will improve the stock and put in new show cases.

Schermerhorn & Co. have secured a lease on the corner store at Randolph and Fifth Avenue, formerly occupied by Hittel Bros. Paul Koppel has been appointed manager of the new place.

Clarence Hirschhorn & Co. report that their sales of "Optimos" show an increase of 30 per cent. over last year's business. "Bank Notes" also are selling more freely and they expect big gains in the sale of "Tom Moore's" and "Little Toms."

James E. Flynn, formerly Western manager of the Khedival Company, died suddenly. He is survived by a wife and one child. Mr. Flynn was connected with the Khedival Company for three years and was well known throughout Wisconsin, Missouri, Iowa and Illinois. His body was taken to Perry, Ia., for burial.

A. Caro, of the Preferred Tobacco Co., was visiting the jobbing trade and stated that he had booked considerable business on his "Henry the Fourth" line.

During the last week all of the cigar stores in the Loop received direct orders to remove their punch boards. Most of the trade took it good naturedly and all seemed of the opinion that the removal of this device was a benefit rather than a detriment to their trade. The dealers are well pleased also on the stand taken by Mayor Harrison in regard to the dice game.

Mail Order Bill Before Congress

A BILL

To provide for a tax upon all persons, firms, or corporations engaged in interstate mail-order business, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That all persons, firms, or corporations in the United States which are now conducting, or which may hereafter conduct, a mail-order business interstate for the purpose of selling goods, wares, and merchandise direct to the consumer shall pay a tax of one percentum upon the total cash value of all goods, wares, and merchandise sold within any state.

Sec. 2. That every person, firm, or corporation conducting a mail-order business as defined in section one of this act shall keep in proper books, to be provided by the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, an accurate and complete account of all goods, wares, and merchandise of every character and description so sold, together with the actual selling price of the same.

Sec. 3. That on the thirty-first day of December, after the passage of this act, and on the thirty-first day of December of each year thereafter, every person, firm, or corporation engaged in such business shall render a full and complete statement to the Secretary of the Treasury, upon blanks to be furnished by him, of the total cash value of all goods, wares, and merchandise sold during the year in the various states of the United States.

Sec. 4. That the Secretary of the Treasury shall determine the amount of the tax to be paid by each person, firm, or corporation (at the rate of one per centum upon the total cash value of all goods, wares, and merchandise sold within any state) engaged in such mail-order business, and shall give notice of the amount of said tax due and payable, pursuant to the terms of this act in such manner as in his judgment is most practicable.

Sec. 5. That every person, firm, or corporation subject to said tax under the provisions of this act and reporting to the Secretary of the Treasury shall pay said tax on or before March 1 of each and every year after this act shall become a law.

Sec. 6. That the Federal courts of the United States shall have power to enforce the collection of said tax upon the application of the Secretary of the Treasury.

Sec. 7. That the Secretary of the Treasury shall apportion said tax among the several states in the ratio of the actual amount of goods sold in each state.

Sec. 8. That the tax so apportioned shall be paid by the Secretary of the Treasury to the various state treasurers entitled thereto; said tax to be used in such manner and for such purposes as the said states may by law direct.

The Tobacco Trade in Germany

THE net receipts from the tobacco tax in the German Empire increased from $16,630,000 in the year 1906-7 to $35,866,000 in 1910-11, the per capita thus being $0.27 and $0.55 respectively. It is noted that the duties and taxes on tobacco have increased by 105 per cent. per capita. There is a still further increase for 1911-12. On the other hand, consumption per capita has decreased. Government statistics show that the average annual consumption of raw tobacco per capita from 1871 to 1875 was 3.9683 pounds; from 1876 to 1880, 3.7479 pounds; from 1896 to 1900, 3.5274 pounds; and for the fiscal year 1910-11, only 3.2 pounds.

Saxony, and particularly Dresden, is the center of the German cigarette industry. According to official statistics, 51 per cent. of all cigarettes manufactured in Germany and 54 per cent. of the cigarette tobacco prepared in the Empire come from Saxony factories. According to the Suddeutsche Tabackzeitung, in the German Empire during the fiscal year 1911-12, 9,382,400,000 cigarettes were manufactured. These figures include the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg. Of this number 4,756,200,000 were made in Saxony, 3,057,100,000 in Prussia, 427,500,000 in Bavaria, 426,700,000 in Alsace-Lorraine, 240,500,000 in Baden, 193,200,000 in Wurttemberg, and 184,700,000 in the Free Cities—Hamburg, Bremen and Lubeck. In the year in question 192 cigarette factories operated in Saxony, each factory making on an average 24,000,000 cigarettes. The average for the 1312 factories of the German Empire was only 7,250,000.

It is reported that just as soon as James B. Hayden, who operates a jewelry store on Kansas Avenue, Topeka, Kansas, disposes of his stock, the space now occupied by Mr. Hayden will be taken over by the United Cigar Company.

A regular quarterly dividend of three per cent. on common stock, payable June 2 to holders of record May 16, has been declared by the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company.

The American Tobacco Company also has declared a regular quarterly dividend of five per cent. on common stock, payable June 2, to stock of record May 15.

Trade Paragraphs

The McAndrews & Forbes Company, at one time a subsidiary of the American Tobacco Company, issued its first annual report recently, in which the net profits for the year 1912 are given as $989,440.96, from which $191,233.50 was deducted for dividends, leaving a surplus of $798,207.46. The assets of the company are given as $8,526,097.33.

F. J. Sullivan has opened a cigar store and newsstand in the Stanton Building, Scranton, Pennsylvania.

Night-riders are again committing depredations in the neighborhood of Princeton, Kentucky. Nearly every day brings new developments in regard to the destruction of the tobacco plant beds. Usually the night-riders remove the canvas from the tobacco beds, scratch the surface of the earth and sow grass seed, after which the canvas is replaced as if nothing had happened.

J. A. Griffin, who was first appointed receiver of the Ybor City Building and Loan Association, of Tampa, has been succeeded by G. A. Petteway. This was done because Mr. Griffin was a stockholder in the association. It has been found that the affairs of the association were in very bad shape. About $4,000 cash was in hand, and many payments made within the past six months had not been credited upon the books by S. L. Biglow, who had been managing the concern. It is expected that the court will try to recover some of this money from the estate of Mr. Biglow.

A. J. & C. R. Hermance have purchased the John McLaughlin cigar store, at 747 South Division Avenue, Grand Rapids, Michigan.

D. Brauer and C. G. Hillmer have opened up a wholesale cigar store at 46 South Galena Avenue, Freeport, Illinois.

Another location has been rented by the Ben E. Meyer Cigar Company, of Denver, at 1655 Blake Street, that city.

An innovation which may go a long way toward improving conditions among the retail cigar trade of San Francisco, is the appointing of a sifting committee by the San Francisco Retail Cigar Dealers' Association. Hereafter before any representative of a cigar or tobacco firm can place his line with members of the association, he will first have to present his goods to the committee and show that the prices on them are fair to the San Francisco cigar men. He must also guarantee that they will not advance in price within a year's time.

Moore & Jones, of Nashville, Tennessee, report a heavy trade on the "Havana Ribbon" cigar, made by Bayuk Brothers Company, of Philadelphia. The factory representative in that section is L. T. Shacklett.

Hoyt Brothers have purchased the cigar factory of Charles L. Wetzel, of Clarkeville, Arkansas, and expect to enlarge the plant.

Henry Gauvreau and John Hoffman have purchased the C. W. Douglas cigar store in Hastings, Nebraska, and will take possession as soon as they secure the license from the city council.

Cleveland

CLEVELAND, May 25.

A TOUR of the several down-town thoroughfares at this time reminds one of a boom town in the West. Everywhere you turn are cigar stores. All the choice locations are at a premium, with the lessees reaping a harvest.

Cleveland is undergoing a complete revolution of its retail cigar business, with big chain stores heading the list. The fronts of most of the prominent cafes are being remodeled and leased for cigar stands. All the owners of chain stores are scouring the city for the good locations. It is nothing unusual to see two and three cigar stands, one right alongside of the other. On Euclid Avenue, from East Ninth Street to the Public Square, are ten big cigar stores and an equal number of restaurants, lobby stands in the prominent buildings and drug stores handling cigars, cigarettes, tobaccos and smokers' articles. Just stop and consider what that means; in the short space of three blocks are twenty stands catering to the smokers' needs. These stands, if all bunched, would occupy one-third of the most valuable property in the city. The three highest-priced corners of the entire city boast of a cigar store; the next three in price have cigar stores two doors away.

On Superior Avenue, from East Ninth Street to the Public Square, a distance of but two short blocks, are no less than twenty-five stands handling smokers' articles; nearly every other store in that short space boasts of a cigar stand of one sort or other. One concern has three stores in this section, and they are so close together that you could stand in one and toss up stones and hit the other two. Five different chains of stores are represented here. And if you are a very particular sort of a person you can have your pipe made-to-order while you wait on your cigars; all this in two short blocks.

The Joseph T. Snyder Co. have just consumated one of the biggest deals pulled off in Cleveland in recent years. They have bought all the retail stores of the R. & W. Jenkinson Co. This gives them six stores here. Saturday was their grand opening day and they were taxed to capacity to attend to everybody's wants. Those who came here for the opening were: Messrs. Joseph T. Snyder, Matthias, Traenkle, Getofeo and Kibbler, of the Buffalo stores; Mr. Jack Merriam, of the Merriam Co., and Frank Horning, of Anton Bock & Co. The Cleveland office of this concern will be located at 506 Superior Avenue, West. They are stocking there new stores with all the brands handled in the other two stores.

Fred P. Shields has just returned from the East, where he has been doing a large business on "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives."

The Shields-Wertheim Co. is receiving bunches of orders from Bert Smith in the Middle West and J. C. Leverance in the Far West. Billy Blaschke, one of the Shields-Wertheim city men, says business is increasing nicely and the only fault the trade finds is that they can't get the goods fast enough. L. B. Shields, the "grand old man" of the cigar game in this locality, can be depended on to show a nice increase from month to month on "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives."

Mr. Sanburn, of the Pyle & Allen Co., reports business as booming both in their wholesale and retail departments. They are highly elated over the showing of their East Fourth Street stand, which has developed way beyond their fondest expectations. They have just added two new brands, the "Pauline Hall," a 10-cent cigar, and the "Trade Mark," a nickle proposition, made by the Charles J. Spietz Co., of Detroit.

Mr. Sanburn devised a novel way of increasing business in their Hippodrome stand. He had a candle made 6 feet high and 5 inches in diameter, weighing 40 pounds. This was lit at nine o'clock on the morning of May 10, and from then on with every purchase the customer was handed a card which entitles him to a guess as to the duration of the candle. This novel scene has brought many customers to the store and has increased the daily sales about 20 per cent. This concern also has the sale of reserved seats for the ball games, which is bringing many new faces into their Superior Street store.

L. J. McGuire has been made manager of store No. 1. He was formerly with the Stranahan Company and managed their cigar department up to the time it was taken over by the Fred G. Gollmar Co.

One of the features of the down-town business section this week was the handsome window display in Morris Glucksman's window in the Leader Building of "La Saramita" cigars.

The Fred G. Gollmar Cigar Co., with three stores, are gliding along in good shape and are having big success with their own brands, made by the Shields-Wertheim Co., Corral-Wodiska, Andrez Diaz, S. G. Brown and several others. The new "Saramita Fives" is an exceptional big seller and they have trouble in getting enough to supply the demand.

Harry Fagan, formerly with the R. & W. Jenkinson Co., will open up a cigar store at 816 Superior Avenue, N. E., and will carry the highest grade of cigars, tobaccos, cigarettes and smokers' articles. He will feature a line of clear Havana cigars, manufactured by Corral-Wodiska, "Counsellors," "Flor de Manuel," "Van Dycks" and "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives." Mr. Fagan is very well known in this section and should make a success.

The many friends of Mr. Max Mendelsohn will be pleased to note that he is rapidly recovering from his recent illness.

William E. Standen, formerly of Mendel & Co., has connected himself with I. Teitelbaum & Co. He has been working locally for the past few weeks placing "Sarzedas" to good advantage. His regular territory is in the South and Middle West. Mr. I. Teitelbaum is in the West and has been sending in many nice orders. Their big complaint is the lack of labor to turn out their merchandise.

Mr. F. J. Mittelberger, of the Newman & Mayer Co., has just returned from the West, where he has succeeded in opening up several new jobbers. He reports conditions very good and looks forward to a big increase in business on "White Knights" and "Bella Mundos."

The Louis Klein Cigar Co., of this city, will open up a new store in the Moreland Hotel, on Euclid Avenue, near East Fourteenth Street. The building is being remodeled and a beautiful front is being added. The fixtures will be most modern in every respect and will correspond with those of their Weber Cafe stand. Among the choice brands there will be "Baron de Kalb," "Corina," "La Integridad," "Charles the Great," "Perfecto Garcia," "Cortez," "Julia Marlowe," "Smokecraft," "El Verso," "La Azora," "Barrister" and "Girards." This should be one of the best locations in the city within a very short time, as many of the big business houses are moving into this district.

Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, May 22.

THE Eagles are here and are a joy to the retail cigar people. All the stores are feeling the remarkable increase in business. Complaints are very few pertaining to poor business, despite the warm weather we are experiencing at present.

Albert Greenwood, credit man for Klauber-Wangenheim Co., left for a two weeks' vacation to Wheeler Hot Springs for a much needed and deserved rest.

Ed. Elliott, formerly with J. J. Gans Bros., has accepted a position with the A. B. Greenwald Cigar Co. and will call on the city trade hereafter. As Ed. is a very popular young fellow hereabouts, he will have little trouble boosting his new lines for the new house. Ed. says "Barrister" first, last and all the time.

Morris Burke claims that work agrees with him and smoking does not interfere with his business. He is working again. This time he is pushing two cigars that have already gained note, due chiefly to his efforts, namely, "Luxello and "Picadura" cigars. These cigars are the talk of the town and sales shown already bid fair to stamp them as the best brands in this territory. Window displays of these two cigars are preferable over others. One or more boxes can be seen in each showcase down town.

The Abbot Drug Co. have a most attractive window display of "Luxello" cigars. The first day this display of "Luxello" cigars was exhibited to the public the Abbot Drug Co. disposed of approximately 600 of the cigars.

Mr. E. Neiders, city salesman for the Emil Frank Cigar Co., is doing some fine work on "R. B." and "Gato" cigars. Look at his fine work: In the past 10 days Mr. Neiders has sold 160,000 "R. B." and 86,000 "Gato" cigars.

T. J. Shields, representing the Solis Cigar Co., of Denver, Col., has just returned from San Diego with some nice orders on "Dry Climate" cigars. M. A. Newmark, of this city, are distributors of this brand.

The Max Roth Cigar Co. are facing a shortage again of "Bachelor" cigars. It is hard for them to supply the enormous and steady demand for this good seller.

The "Cinco" cigars are steadily taking the lead of all 5-cent cigars in this territory. The Klingenstein Company handling this cigar have increased their standing order on "Cinco" cigars in order to supply the demand.

J. J. Gans has just returned from a four weeks' "vacation" and can be seen around the store again doing business at the "old stand" as before. "Lawrence Barrett" and "Tom Keene" are holding their own.

The Beck Cigar Co. are making a strong campaign on "Counsellor" cigars and are meeting with a great amount of success for their efforts.

PHILADELPHIA.

BAYUK BROS. CO. have closed their books on one of the most successful month's business ever experienced on their "Havana Ribbon." Mr. Dave S. Achenbach has just completed a trip through his Pennsylvania territory and was successful in lining up a large portion of his jobbers on standing orders. J. V. Revercomb, Southern representative, is working in Virginia and West Virginia at the present time and reports all of his jobbers there doing a most satisfactory repeating business on the brand. Lyle T. Shacklett, who covers the extreme South, has just completed a sales campaign in the interest of Smith Bros. Co., of New Orleans, who have control of "Havana Ribbons" for that territory.

Mr. Samuel Bayuk expects to reach San Francisco early in June and has paid a number of social calls on the "Havana Ribbon" jobbers en route. He recently visited O. McCaffrey & Co., distributors for Maquoketa, Ia.; The Mosher Cigar Co., who have control for Omaha, and The Harle-Haas Drug Co., who have jurisdiction at Council Bluffs. Mr. Bayuk intends remaining in Frisco for a short period as the guest of Ehrman Bros., and will then return by the way of Kansas, where he will visit some of the distributors in Kansas, Missouri and Illinois.

Crawford & Koshland New Leaf Firm

The new leaf tobacco firm of Crawford & Koshland, which was organized the middle of May, announce that they will handle all classes of cigar leaf tobacco, and will act in a commission capacity for a number of firms which they will represent in this territory. The members of this firm are well known to leaf tobacco circles. Charles E. Crawford has been connected with the firm of Dohan & Tait for a number of years. Albert Koshland, the other member of the firm, is known as having traveled for the leaf firm of Kemper & Sons, of Baltimore, which went out of business a short time ago, after the death of Mr. Kemper. Crawford & Koshland have taken offices at 107 North Third Street.

Sig C. Mayer is home again after an extended trip to Western points. He found the new sanitary package of the "El Wadora" taking good hold everywhere it had been placed. This is especialy the case in Los Angeles, where the "El Wadora" is one of the big sellers. Sales on "Rey Oma" are well above the average for this time of the year. Mr. Mayer will shortly take a trip to the South. He will stop off at Old Point Comfort, where he expects to enjoy a much-needed rest.

"Bold" Jobbers in Other Cities

Max Breuer, the jobber of "Bold" cigars, Bobrow Bros., in Wilmington, Del., is meeting with pronounced success on this brand in that city. Mr. Breuer was a practical newcomer in cigar ranks in that city at the time he took on this brand, but the wide distribution it has received at his hands the past six months has done much to make him recognized as a factor in the trade. Among the "Bold" jobbers that have shown marked effort in placing the brand widely are L. W. Bosart, of Springfield, O., and Bentley Bros., of Dayton.

Louis H. Eisenlohr Visits Western Jobbers

Louis H. Eisenlohr, of Otto Eisenlohr & Bros., is again in the city after an extended trip to the many "Cinco" jobbers in the Middle and Far West. Mr. Eisenlohr traveled as far as the Pacific Coast and found conditions excellent there for the future of the "Cinco." While in Los Angeles, one of the strongholds of the brands, he called upon the jobbers, the Klingenstein Company, who are to a great extent responsible for the position this brand occupies in Southern California. There it is known as one of the few brands which a cigar dealer is compelled to carry, whether he wishes or not, due to its popularity.

Benjamin Labe & Sons purchased seventy-five bales of Sumatra tobacco at the inscription held in Amsterdam on May 23d. They are represented abroad at the inscription by Jacob Labe. The tobacco just purchased is said to be of a superior quality, and is desirable in every way for the customers of this well-known Philadelphia house.

H. P. Farrand, district sales manager for D. Theocaridis, New York, cigarette manufacturer, recently completed a quick trip through Central Pennsylvania, where he opened up quite a few new accounts on the Theocaridis brand. These cigarettes are selling like hot cakes in Philadelphia, and Farrand is delighted with the manner in which the duplicates are coming in from his territory.

Leo Rosenthal, who has been representing A. S. Valentine & Son in the Middle West, making his headquarters in Chicago, has resigned this position to take an interest in the store of Tracy Bros., wholesalers and retailers of cigars, in Omaha, Neb. Mr. Rosenthal formerly resided in Omaha, and he is glad to get back to his old town where he expects to boom things in his new connection.

Quaker City Notes

Claude E. Turner, whose abiding faith in "Charles the Great" Havana cigars has led him to eat, think and sleep nothing but his brand, for the past few years, spent a week in Philadelphia in May calling on local distributors and opening quite a few new accounts.

Nathan Baum returned recently from a trip through the Middle West, where he conferred with Bert Thompson, their representative in that section. Mr. Thompson has been very successful in securing good connections for the "Coiner," the Baum-Jaffe nickel proposition in those sections.

The new factory recently opened in Quakertown is expected to greatly help in relieving the congestion in orders with Theobold & Oppenheimer Co.

A new cigar store was opened the past two weeks at 11 South Eighteenth Street by John Deacon.

The cigar dealers are losing no sleep over the new cigarette law. The majority of the down-town retailers say that it will affect them little, as the profits on cigarettes are a small percentage of the total earnings of any store. They depend on their cigar sales to "bring home the bacon."

The engagement of Nelson M. Vandegrift, of Sheip & Vandegrift, to Miss Ethel Luth, of Cincinnati, has been announced.

Jack Frechie has recently returned from Baltimore and Washington, where he called upon the jobbers in the interests of his father's line of cigars and those of Luis Martinez, of New York, which firm he represents in this territory.

An individual booth has been opened at Washington Park, on the Delaware, by the Baum-Jaffe Company, which will be used for advertising their cigars among the pleasure-seekers who frequent the park.

Jack Mittelberger, the genial Western representative of the Neumann & Mayer Co., is in town. He made a hurried trip East from his headquarters to attend the funeral of the late Leo W. Mayer, of this firm, in New York on Friday, the 30th.

Mendelsohn Co. Succeeds E. A. Kline & Co.

Announcement has been made that the Mendelsohn Company, of Cleveland, succeeds E. A. Kline & Co., manufacturers of the "Rigoletto" cigar. This business was virtually taken over a year ago by the Mendelsohns, but the concern has been operating under the old name. Max Mendelsohn is president of the company, and Grover Mendelsohn is secretary and treasurer. The "Rigoletto" cigar will continue to be manufactured by this concern, as well as the "El Symphonie," "Decision" and "Opinion" cigars.

The Charles Donovan Cigar Co., of Chicago, have taken on for distribution in the Central West, the "Ponce De Leon" cigar of Cuesta, Rey & Co., Tampa. It will be handled in 17 sizes.

A new salesman in the person of William E. Stawden, has been taken on by I. Teitelbaum & Co., of Cleveland. The territory assigned to Mr. Stawden is the South and Middle West. He will specialize on the "Sarzedas, "Addison" and "El Sallago."

Wants Information on Cigar Making Machine

PITTSBURGH, PA., April 4.

THE TOBACCO WORLD:

Gentlemen—If you can give me any information on the machine of the Cigar Machine Corporation of America which they are putting out, and the stock of which company is being put out by The C. Ford Seeley Company, of Baltimore, the same will be greatly appreciated. They have an office here in Pittsburgh and are offering the stock at a price of $2.50 per share. They claim for this machine a revolutionizing in the cigar industry.

Any information you can give me will be appreciated.

Yours truly,
W. J. McKEE,
624 Grant Street.

This concern is demonstrating its machine in Baltimore, where it apparently is making good. A full description of the device appeared in a recent issue of THE TOBACCO WORLD.

JOBBERS & DISTRIBUTORS DEPARTMENT

Klauber-Wangenheim Co. Distributing "Luxello" Widely

THE Klauber-Wangenheim Co. salesmen of Los Angeles are showing splendid results on the two new cigars taken on recently by this firm. They are the "Luxello" cigar, manufactured by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, and the "Picadura Import," manufactured by L. Newberger & Bros., of Cincinnati. Duplicate orders are pouring in steadily every day. These cigars have at last started on their way due to the efforts of Klauber-Wangenheim Co.'s hustling force of salesmen.

Klauber-Wangenheim Co. recently placed an order with the Manhattan Briar Pipe Co. for $30,000 worth of pipes. This concern has secured the services of William Levy, who will have full charge of the pipe department.

New Jobbing Arrangements in Pittsburgh

Arrangements have been made by the United Cigar Manufacturers' Co. to distribute their goods in Pittsburgh through the Bock & Stauffer Co., successors to R. & W. Jenkinson Co., who will handle the "Owl," "Duquesne Club," and other brands formerly sold by Jenkinson. The distribution of the "Robert Burns," "Little Bobbie" and "Bank Note" brands will be made by the Siller-Narten-Barnes Co.

New Pipe Business For Northwest

A pipe department under the management of Mr. Lea, formerly connected with the National Grocery Co., of Seattle, Wash., is being installed by the Rosenfeld-Smith Co., of Portland, Ore., and the Rosenfeld-Rovig Co., of Seattle. Mr. Lea will personally control both of these departments and expects to be ready for business by the first of June. Both of these businesses will be run separately from the cigar end of each concern, and the present plans call for an extension of the trade by which the States of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana will be covered, in addition to British Columbia and Alaska.

L. Singer Candy Co. Takes on "Bold" Cigar

The L. Singer Candy Co., of Newark, N. J., retailers and wholesalers, will shortly open up a campaign in that section on the "Bold" cigar, manufactured by Bobrow Bros., of Philadelphia. They recently took on the brand and have placed it in a number of the more prominent cigar stores of Newark. Another big selling nickel brand with this concern is the "44" cigar, made by the "44" Cigar Co., of Philadelphia. This is one of the big sellers throughout Northern New Jersey. In order to facilitate deliveries, this wholesale house recently bought a new automobile delivery wagon.

The Niles & Moser Cigar Co., of Kansas City, have taken over the Pfister Cigar Store, at Douglass and Market Streets, Wichita, Kan. S. A. Welsh, who had been proprietor of the stand for the last 10 years, retains possession of the billiard hall in connection with the store. Mr. Welsh will continue his other store on East Douglass Avenue, Wichita. Niles & Moser will use their store for headquarters in Wichita.

S. L. Uhrig Tobacco Co. Offers 25 Per Cent.

The S. L. Uhrig Tobacco Co., Inc., of Pittsfield, Mass., have sent out notices to their creditors offering 25 per cent. in settlement of all claims against the concern. Recently suit was brought against the company and others had been threatened. The notice sent out by the firm states that their affairs are in such shape that they cannot pay the outstanding bills in full. One reason given for the lack of cash is that collections were very slow. There are preferred claims for labor amounting to $105 and other bills outstanding amount to $1400. The letter states further that under a forced sale it is believed that the creditors could not realize more than 15 per cent. William G. White is president of the firm, and Joseph F. Gardner, treasurer.

Hoffman-Moore Co. in New Building

The Hoffman-Moore Co., the San Francisco wholesale house, have removed to their new four-story brick building at 465 Mission Street. The old quarters of this concern were becoming too cramped for the growing business and this new large store with the basement 180 feet in length, was badly needed for the transaction of their business. A number of conveniences for the traveling man have been installed. This concern distributes the "Sinceridad" cigar of Gonzalez, Fisher & Co., of New York.

Jobbing Notes

David Ellis, the Buffalo retail and wholesale cigar dealer, with store at 184 Main Street, has leased a four-story building at 19-21 Terrace, from which he will conduct his jobbing trade. John Bollin and Louis Morris are in charge of the jobbing department.

Announcement has been made both in New York and Denver of an arrangement whereby Rothenberg & Schloss, of Denver, Col., will resume the handling of the "Owl," "Joan of Arc" and other brands formerly made for them by the United Cigar Manufacturers' Co.

T. Wright & Co., distributors of the "Webster" cigar of Y. Pendas & Alvarez, of New York and Tampa, in St. Louis, report an increasing demand for this cigar in that section. They recently closed a campaign on the brand with the assistance of Allen Lutt, the factory representative.

The "El Roi Tan" cigar, manufactured by Seidenberg & Co., of Detroit, has been taken on for distribution by the Badger Tobacco Co., of Milwaukee, and is being placed in that city. This firm also distributes the "Havana Ribbon" cigar of Bayuk Bros. Co., Philadelphia.

The Smith Bros. Co., of New Orleans, recently received shipments of "Charles the Great" cigars, Salvador Rodriguez, and "Americans," Regensberg & Sons. Both of these brands have been selling especially well in that city.

"A. J. Cassatt", the Cigar that Made Good in Less Than a Year

JUST about twelve months ago there was organized in the city of Philadelphia a cigar manufacturing firm, which immediately after getting into operations began to advertise and get after business on a scale that surprised many manufacturers in the trade. They stated from the beginning that their slogan would be, "The larger the sales the better the quality." Among one of their brands was the "A. J. Cassatt," named after the late well-known railroad king. It was a broad leaf wrapped, Havana cigar, and it began to make friends immediately by reason of the campaign of publicity which the makers used. This cigar has been advertised in trade journals, billboards and in the newspapers. As a result it was not long before it could be found in almost every worth while store in the Quaker City, and soon after that it began to be pushed on the outside.

The jobbers and dealers throughout the city and in other cities realized that the cigar was of a superior quality, and that pains were taken to keep it so. They reasoned also that the manufacturers evidently had faith in their product to put it before their notice in the manner they did. As a result, smokers began to try them, and at this writing the brand "A. J. Cassatt" is strongly entrenched as a quality article.

The members of the Baum-Jaffe Company at the time of its organization were unknown among the cigar trade. Nathan and Isadore Baum had been connected with one of the oldest liquor firms of the city. But they lost no time in getting in touch with the pulse of the trade, and with the assistance of Isaac Jaffe, a widely known expert on leaf tobacco and cigar making, they made excellent headway from the beginning. Mr. Jaffe had been superintendent of Sulzberger-Oppenheimer, Inc., of Philadelphia, for a number of years, and knows cigars as few men do. He is continually experimenting with new combinations in an endeavor to get the best possible quality in their cigars.

To have placed the "A. J. Cassatt" cigar, as this firm has done, and in less than a year has meant hard and consistent effort. Yet the Baum-Jaffe Co. state that they aim to make it a national seller in every sense of the word. To that end they wish to get in touch with jobbers in sections where they are not represented and guarantee that the co-operation that has made the cigar so successful in its present stronghold will be extended to other jobbers who appreciate a fine piece of goods.

The "Coiner," their nickel brand, is making friends fast. This cigar had not been pushed as heavily at first as the two ten-cent cigars, the "A. J. Cassatt" and the "El Jaffe," but when the opportunity presented itself no time was lost in placing this among the dealers. The "Coiner" is a hand-made long filler, Havana blended cigar, and stands up well with the other big brands coming out of Philadelphia, the big "Nickel Market."

Americans Take 3500 Bales at Sixth Inscription

At the sixth Sumatra inscription held on May 23 in Amsterdam, competition was fairly keen between the cigar manufacturers and the importers. American purchasers succeeded in securing 3,500 bales. Among the purchasers and quantities taken are the following: E. Rosenwald & Bro., 1,800 bales; H. Duys & Co., 700 bales; E. Spingarn & Co., 350 bales; Hinsdale, Smith & Co., 50 bales; G. Falk & Bro., Otto Eisenlohr & Bros. and the Deisel-Wemmer Co., also bought. Benjamin Labe & Sons, of Philadelphia, Pa., purchased 75 bales.

New West Virginia Cigarette Law in Force

The new cigarette and tobacco law passed by the West Virginia legislature went into effect in that state on May 21. According to this law, it is unlawful to sell or to give to any minor under the age of 21 any cigarette or cigarette paper. It is also against the law to give to any youth under the age of 16 years, any tobacco of any kind or to provide him with any pipe or other means of smoking or using tobacco. Smoking is strictly prohibited on any school property.

Newsy Trade Jottings

Albert and Julius Tafel, wholesale and retail cigar and tobacco dealers, Piqua, O., are now occupying their new building on West Ash Street. The new quarters are up to date in every respect.

Harry Copeland is reported to be the new owner of the cigar and newsstand located on South Main Street, Carthage, Mo.

Fred A. Strobach has retired from the Koch & Strobach Cigar Factory, Rolla, Mo., having disposed of his interest to his partner. Mr. Koch will continue the business, manufacturing as heretofore the "Century," "Half Century" and "Supremo" brands of cigars, which retail at 5 cents and 10 cents.

J. George Kremelberg Passes Away

GEORGE KREMELBERG, senior member of Kremelberg & Co., tobacco exporters, of New York, died in East Orange, N. J., after a short illness, recently. Mr. Kremelberg was a native of Germany, having been born there in 1837. He came to America in 1858 and went into business with his brother in Baltimore, doing an export tobacco business. The New York firm of Kremelberg & Co. was organized in 1863, Mr. Kremelberg becoming its president and remaining so until the time of his death. He was a member of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Essex Country Club, of Orange, N. J. He is survived by one daughter.

Mr. Kremelberg was a man of sterling qualities and world-wide reputation. He had been actively interested in the business almost up to the very last and supervised the branch house of his concern in Louisville, Ky., as well as being interested in J. D. Kremelberg & Co., of Baltimore. These houses have built up a big business with European tobacco monopolies and have acted as representatives for the Spanish Tobacco Regie, as well as purchasing for the Imperial Austrian Tobacco Regie.

In the death of Mr. Kremelberg the tobacco trade loses one of its most highly respected and valued members.

A. Story Goodrich Killed in Automobile Accident

A. Story Goodrich, of A. S. Goodrich & Co., wholesale tobacco dealers, of Milwaukee, Wis., was killed by his own automobile in Winnetka, Ill., on Tuesday, May 13, while on his way to Chicago. Mr. Goodrich was cranking his automobile, but in dismounting from the car he failed to throw out the clutch and the engine plunged forward as he twisted the crank. He was caught between the automobile and a telegraph pole and fatally crushed.

Mr. Goodrich was born 55 years ago in Kingston, N. Y. He came to Milwaukee when quite young, starting with a tobacco firm and later going on the road as a traveling salesman for Bernard Leidersdorf & Co., large tobacco manufacturers. About 20 years ago, he embarked in business for himself and made a success of it from the beginning, his concern at the time of his death employing eight traveling salesmen. He is survived by a widow.

Colonel Elijah Withers

Colonel Elijah Withers, well known to every tobacco man in the tobacco districts of Ohio and Kentucky, died several weeks ago on a railroad train coming South from Mt. Clemens, Mich. Mr. Withers' health failed about three weeks ago and he went to Mt. Clemens to recuperate. Soon after arriving there he saw that his death was only a matter of a short time, so that he insisted on being taken back to Cincinnati. One peculiarity of Mr. Withers was that though he had probably sold more tobacco at auction than any other man in the United States, he never smoked nor chewed in his life.

Frank Kroeger, a cigar manufacturer, of Louisville, Ky., died recently at his home in that city, aged 60 years. He was a native of Germany and had been a resident of Louisville since 1872. Mr. Kroeger is survived by a widow, two sons and six daughters.

Urge "Made in Bond" Amendment to Tariff Bill

Edward C. Berriman Claims Government Would Realize More in Taxes—Would Do Away With So-called Havana Cigars

EDWARD C. BERRIMAN, a member of the firm of Berriman Bros., Tampa, Fla., manufacturers of the "Jose Vila" cigar, and the Tampa Board of Trade, appeared before the Senate Finance Committee in Washington recently, in urging the adoption as an amendment to the pending tariff bill, a provision to allow the manufacture of cigars of imported tobacco in bonded warehouses, the manufacturer to pay the internal revenue tax when the cigars are taken out of bond. The Florida cigar manufacturers all demand the passage of this bill, and since it was considered impracticable to introduce it as a new bill, Representative Sparkman, of Florida, put it in the form of an amendment to the pending tariff bill.

In arguing for the adoption of this amendment, which appeared to be favorably received by the Finance Committee, Mr. Berriman said in part as follows:

"There are two very desirable objects to be accomplished by this provision. One is the furnishing consumers of cigars manufactured in this country out of foreign grown tobacco evidence that such cigars are what they purport to be. The other is better and more convenient facilities for collecting the duty upon tobacco used in cigars for exportation to foreign countries.

"The desirability of accomplishing the first mentioned object grows out of the following conditions. The so-called tobacco trust, it is said, controls from 60 to 75 per cent. of the cigars made in Cuba and exported to the United States and other foreign countries. Further that they also control 85 per cent. of the raw material and manufactured products from Porto Rico which are marked and sold as Havana cigars in competition with the real Havana cigars made in the United States. Thus the government loses a duty it would have received if these cigars were made out of Havana tobacco as claimed to be and the sale of the real Havana cigar is lessened in proportion to the amount so made, estimated to be 150,000,000 per year.

"Before the United States took possession of Porto Rico the duty on tobacco from Porto Rico was the same as the duty on tobacco from Cuba; that is, 35 cents per pound on filler and $1.85 per pound on wrapper less 20 per cent. It is now, of course, entered free, and the former duty becomes in fact a profit to the tobacco company, which permits them to sell the cigar made of Porto Rican tobacco at what it costs the American manufacturer to produce the genuine Havana cigar. The tobacco company's practical monopoly of the imported Havana cigar on the one hand and of the Porto Rican material and the cigars on the other hand reduced the production of the real Havana cigars made in the United States over 150,000,000 in 1912, and will, if continued, entirely destroy that industry.

"Thousands of skilled cigar workmen, about 7000 to be exact, are out of employment in Tampa and Key West, the principal Havana cigar producing cities of the United States, and are forced to accept the charity of those cities. In addition to this the government naturally loses a duty amounting to a large sum on the 150,000,000 cigars made of Porto Rican tobacco and sold as clear Havana goods.

"To permit the American cigar manufacturer to make his cigars in bonded warehouses with stamps as asked for would quickly relieve the condition now existing, destroy the monopoly, and would give this product an equal standing with the cigars made in Cuba in the markets of the world.

"The stamp would also protect the consumer against the imitation Havana cigars, and increase the income to the government."

Samuel Mendelsohn

Samuel Mendelsohn, one of the oldest tobacco merchants of New York City, being connected with J. Mendelsohn & Bro. for many years, died on Tuesday, May 13, from a complication of ailments. Mr. Mendelsohn was 83 years of age and had retired from business a number of years ago. He leaves five sons, Abraham, Samuel, Julius, Max and Jacob, all of whom are in the tobacco business, and two daughters.

Ernest Bunzl, the last member of the old firm of J. Bunzl & Sons, pioneers in the leaf tobacco trade of New York City, died at his home in that city on May 19, after a prolonged illness. He was 53 years of age and had been a member of a number of clubs. He leaves a widow, one son and a daughter.

Detroit

Business Among Cigar Manufacturers and Retailers Good—Two More Snyder Stores Opened Auspiciously—"Lozano" Distributoion Increasing

DETROIT, MICH., May 24.

IT is interesting to note that the report of the State Labor Commissioner shows that more than 300 new factories have been established in Detroit during the past year, which indicates that this city was never more prosperous and on a more substantial footing than right today. Traveling men who have visited Detroit in May have been free to admit that business was not up to expectations in other cities, that people were holding back orders, that collections were slow, etc., but no such condition applies to Detroit. All the manufacturers are busy and do not anticipate any slump, despite the change in administration and the tariff agitation.

Cigar manufacturers say that business is showing much improvement. As for the retailers, May was decidedly profitable. The convention and tourist season as a rule does not start before the first of June, but this year things started to boom early in May. Detroit entertained 5000 delegates of the Order of Railway Conductors, who remained two weeks and were liberal spenders. Then came the Northern Baptists' Convention, bringing about 4000 delegates, and last week 500 members of the National Association of Manufacturers, who had headquarters at the Hotel Pontchartrain. At the banquet given the manufacturers, "Count Pontchartrain," "Romeo & Juliet," "Manuel Garcia" cigars, and "Philip Morris" and "Nestor" cigarettes were served.

Charles Coombs will be back in Detroit about June 5. He is president of the Central Cigar Co., which operates five retail cigar stores, and has been in Europe for the past two months for his health.

At a reception given May 10 in honor of Edward Lichtig's engagement to a Cleveland girl, friends and relatives numbering close to a thousand were present. Mr. Lichtig sells the "Philip Morris" cigarette in Michigan.

The opening of the "Snyder Segar" stores at 117 and 158 Woodward Avenue proved highly satisfactory. Jos. T. Snyder had advertised in the daily newspapers, stating that expensive and useful souvenirs would be given with each purchase exceeding 25 cents. Mr. Snyder was here personally for the opening, and he said he was well pleased with the day's results. "Every time we make a sale today of 25 cents or over we lose money," he said to THE TOBACCO WORLD. "Our souvenirs are costly, but we believe that it is good advertising and that the people we sell the opening day will come back." Mr. Snyder is opening two more stores in Toledo this month and another one in July, which will give him a total of seven in the Maumee city.

Louis Heitman, of the Louis Heitman Co., of Dayton, O., was in Detroit looking for a factory in which to locate, moving here from Dayton. Mr. Heitman suffered a big loss from the Ohio floods, and as he must practically start all over again, believes Detroit would be the best place. He did not make a definite decision while in Detroit, but will return here soon.

Damage amounting to $25 000 was done to the plant of the Detroit Tobacco Co., at 126 Lyman Place, on May 9. The company made cigar cases, which were given away free with the purchase of a certain amount of cigars. William I. McGraw, president of the concern, says the plant was only partially covered by insurance and that it is unlikely he will rebuild at present.

Fire on May 17 in the carpenter shop of the National Can Co.'s plant did about $25,000 damage and for a time threatened to destroy the entire plant.

The Hartman Cigar Co., of Battle Creek, claims to have the largest pipe in the city. Mr. Hartman says the pipe will hold 28 full packages of "Bull Durham" tobacco, packages and all. The pipe has been on display in the company's window.

A new billiard and cigar parlor was opened in Jackson at 121 East Cortland Street, known as the Alexandria, under the ownership of Bobby Reakes, of Lansing, once claimant of the lightweight wrestling championship of the world.

William H. Forster, of the Forster news agency and cigar store on Fifth Street, Calumet, has just let contracts for the erection of a two-story business block which he expects to occupy by the Fourth of July.

Karreman & Bogerd, proprietors of the cigar store at 137 Lyon Street, Grand Rapids, have recently remodeled and now possess one of the neatest stands in the western part of the state. They report business to be unusually good.

Since Snyder came to town calabash pipes have been strongly featured, not only in his stores, but LaFond & Harris have been showing a similar line in their windows. All made the same price—$1.

J. A. Miller, who conducted a cigar store and buffet at 22½ Gratiot Avenue, has moved around the corner to 59 Farmer Street.

Allen Conden has opened a cigar store at the corner of High and Michigan Streets, Marquette.

At the new club rooms of the Wolverine Automobile Club in the Springfield Building Frank Smith has the cigar privilege. His confectionery and cigar store at 27 Woodward Avenue, opened a few days ago, is doing fine.

Frederick W. Linneburg, a Mt. Clemens cigar manufacturer, was married this week.

Jacob Mazer, of the Mazer Cigar Co., says that his Western sales manager, R. L. Olive, has finished a business trip through Texas which was a very successful one, and that early in June he will start on an extensive trip through Colorado.

Real estate men in Detroit say that they have closed a deal with the Statlers, of Buffalo, for down-town property on which will be erected an 800-room hotel, involving a total expenditure of $4,000,000. Plans are said to be in the hands of the architects and contracts will be let very soon.

The cigars of F. Lozano, Son & Co., of Tampa, have been making great headway here. Ben Lesser, of the factory, says that in Detroit he has found it to the advantage of his concern to have the best dealers handle the F. Lozano brand rather than have it handled by one firm exclusively. Every high-class retailer is now handling the "Lozano" brand, which is proving to be one of the largest Tampa-made sellers in the city.

Tommy Burns and Jack Johnson have formed a copartnership and on May 24 opened a cigar store at 20 Monroe Avenue, next to the Berghoff Hotel. Mr. Burns is one of the best known cigar men in Detroit. He has managed the Berghoff cigar stand for many months and made it one of the most popular places in town. His partner, Mr. Johnson, was for ten years connected with the United Cigar Stores, having for the past year and a half been sales manager of the company's stores in Chicago.

Hector Weir and Frank Ponsford, clerks at the Berghoff stand, will be in charge for the present at least. Both have been employed there for some time and are well acquainted with the trade.

Gordon Bailey returned this week from a visit to the western part of Michigan and secured some nice orders on "Nestors" and "Milo" cigarettes.

The Soper Cigar Co. has found it necessary to add an extra clerk owing to the increase in the business. The lobby store will be opened about the first of June.

D. Weiss, district manager for the American Cigar Co., was a visitor here the middle of May.

The new "El Tyco" brand being put out by E. M. Harris at 119 Woodward Avenue is well liked by his trade. The brand is made by E. M. Schwarz & Co.

The Booth Cigar Co. at 29 Michigan Avenue has been sold to Paul Sikora, a leading light in local pugilistic circles. Business has already shown signs of improvement.

According to the internal revenue department there were approximately 23,000,000 cigars manufactured in the First District of Michigan, which includes Detroit, during the month of April. For May the number will reach 25,000 000.

The Ambos Cigar Co. has opened another store at 123 Wayne Street, directly across from the post office. The lease on the present store at the corner of Shelby and Lafayette Streets expires the first of July to make way for a large theatre building.

Heine Kuhn, salesman in Cleveland for Melachrino cigarettes, is in Detroit, being laid up with a bad foot.

O'Brien & Co. have added the "Walls-Court" brand, made by F. Lozano Son & Co., Tampa. Ed Heineman, manager of the cigar department, hopes to make it one of his leaders.

Henry F. Johns is a new addition to the sales force of the Harry W. Watson Co. in Detroit, and is covering the West Side. Walter Smith, formerly with a Chicago cigar company, is now handling the East side in place of Frank Nash, resigned.

"Charles the Great" is having a splendid run at O'Brien & Co.'s cigar department. Ed Heineman says he considers it to be one of his best clear Havana sellers. "We have a number of customers who buy them always by the box and wouldn't have anything else," he said.

Steve Herz, booster of "Henry the Fourth," was a visitor this week and said he was well satisfied with the way this brand was selling everywhere. He wrote some good orders in Detroit.

E. G. Weymuth, sales manager of the "Fatima" department of Liggett & Meyers, was here last week. No need to say that "Fatimas" are by far the leading 15-cent seller today.

Visitors: John Duys and Howard Kinney, of H. Duys & Co.; Harry Nathan, of Spingarn & Co.; Abe Hirsch, of L. Hirsch; Jules Marquzee, Ed Jandorf, L. Schmid, H. Shelteman and W. C. Tanner, of M. F. Schneider, New York; C. S. Sarluy, of F. & E. Cranz; Walter Eisenman, of Eisenman Bros., Cincinnati.

Cigar men: Sig C. Mayer, of Philadelphia; E. C. Smering, of Pavon Alvarez & Co.; C. K. Duschnes, of Jameson & Metzler; Paul Dickerson with "Rameses" cigarettes; Jack Gordon, of Harned-Hewitt Co.; George Becker with "Tadema;" Col. G. H. Crane, of Krause & Co.; Hi Hammer with "Julia Marlowes."

Cigar Factories, Recently Damaged by Fire, Make Settlements—Key West Cigar Co. Fully Insured and Others Make Satisfactory Adjustments—All Local Cigar Plants Report Conditions Fair

KEY WEST., FLA., May 25.

IN view of the fact that existing conditions in the cigar and tobacco trade throughout the country is not at all very encouraging, business in Key West is quoted fair and steady, according to the reports from various local factories.

In an interview at the office of Martinez Havana Co. the manager stated: "Business with us is good; the major part of our cigarmakers are making our 'Louis Martinez' cigar, which is enjoying a healthy increase, and while business could be a great deal better, we have no complaint to make considering existing conditions." Mr. Louis Martinez, president of this firm, passed through the city this week en route to Havana from New York.

Mr. Menendez, manager of the M. Perez Cigar Co., stated: "Conditions remain practically unchanged; orders are coming in steady as usual and we make large shipments of our 'Pinzon' cigar on nearly every steamer leaving Key West."

Some addition in force has been made by the E. H. Gato Cigar Co., who quote business as good.

At the office of Trujillo & Co. business is quoted fair and steady; 50 per cent. of the cigarmakers are confined to the manufacture of the "Polinius" cigar.

Business is listed as brisk by the Cortez Cigar Co.; 275 cigarmakers are being employed with no limit of production. "Hernan Cortez" is having quite a run.

Practically no change is apparent at the factory of Ferdinand Hirsch Co. Orders are coming in steady and large shipments are being made as usual.

J. Pendas, manager of Moreda & Co., has just recently returned from Tampa, where he had been on a short business visit.

Mr. M. J. Bloom, New York leaf dealer, was a caller on the trade last week.

Mr. R. S. Tatum, representing Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., was in the city for one day calling on the trade in the interest of "Sovereign" cigarettes, after which he sailed for Tampa.

The chief events of the past two weeks were two successful aviation flights, made from Key West to Havana by the daring Cuban aviators Domingo Rosillo and Augustine Parla, on May 17 and 19, respectively. The two daring aviators were to race on Saturday the 17th, and when everything was in readiness they started. Unfortunately the Curtiss hydro-aeroplane in which Parla was became out of order and refused to rise out of the water. Signor Parla was compelled to turn back when he saw that his machine refused to rise from the water, and when he landed he attempted suicide when told that he must not try the trip. He was prevented by the prompt action of his brother, Louis, by knocking up the hand holding the pistol. Signor Rosillo kept on going and made the 90 mile trip in about two hours; carried by the aviator was a note of much interest to the tobacco trade to the Eduardo H. Gato Tobacco Co. in Cuba, duplicating an order for 450 bales of tobacco which was sent here sometime ago for the E. H. Gato Cigar Co.

Owing to the strong winds which sprang up for two or three days after this excitement Signor Parla was not permitted to make the flight by his manager and brother, but he assured them that he was going to try his machine, and would not go to Havana. Being assured that Signor Parla would not attempt to go to Havana the manager and Parla's brother permitted him to try his machine, but when he started he kept on going on a straight course to Havana, and reached there in spite of the strong winds.

Revenue Inspector Charles H. Ingraham was in the city for a few days calling on the manufacturers.

The Key West cigar factory, destroyed by fire on May 7, will receive the full amount of their insurance.

A setlement has also been made with the Principe de Golfo Cigar Co. in a most satisfactory manner.

J. M. Navarro also stated that his insurance was settled satisfactorily.

At present it cannot be ascertained as to whether or not the insurance company will make satisfactory settlement with S. Wolf's Sons, but judging by the other three factories it is thought that they will.

Mr. William Torres left for Havana on the 19th inst., where he will board one of the Ward Line steamers for New York, where he will remain for sometime calling on the trade in the interest of the Principe de Golfo Cigar Co.

The Cuban Market

HAVANA, May 23.

THERE are various reasons why we cannot report a more hopeful condition of the state of our market during the past fortnight, although after all there is nothing serious the matter, and in due course of time we fully expect that the present drawbacks will disappear and give way to increased activity and a more cheerful outlook all around.

The delay in the passage of the new American tariff is, of course, one reason that to a certain degree makes the manufacturers of clear Havana cigars holding back in trying to invest already in the new crop. The latter has been delayed in coming to our market in larger quantities through continued dry weather, although fortunately during the past week some rains have fallen in the country, which have created more humidity in the atmosphere, thus enabling the vegueros to bundle and throw into piles their remaining stock of dry leaves. The high pretensions of the farmers in asking exorbitant figures for their leaf are bound soon to some to an end. A perplexing question is, however, the strike of the hands employed in the Partido region, which virtually ties up all escogidas, and while it was thought that the same would not last more than a few days, it is now doubtful how long the strike leaders will be able to keep the rank and file from their customary labors. Our association of leaf dealers, packers and growers of tobacco of the Island of Cuba had named a committee to have a conference with the bosses of the union, but the latter, thinking perhaps that our packers were in a hole and would have to give in to their demands for higher wages, which under the prevailing circumstances were entirely unwarranted, refused to listen to any conversation which might have arranged matters in an amicable way by making some mutual concessions, and therefore the good intentions of the committee could not be carried out. In the meantime the bosses are spending money freely, have a good time, eating well, and as their only work are riding around in automobiles from one village to another, haranguing the strikers to stand firm, as they try to make them believe that they will surely gain the day. The packers are, on the other hand, in no great hurry, as the tobacco in the piles can only improve by a further prolonged fermentation, and there is no urgent demand on the part of the manufacturers. As soon as the hands learn that their services are not needed yet for some time to come, it is hoped that they themselves will see their folly and go to work again at the old rates.

Fortunately there is no strike in the Vuelta Abajo and the new crop is coming forward in increasing volume.

We have had no further news from the Santa Clara province, but as soon as the rains should become general it is hoped that the vegueros will come down from their high horses and be willing to accept reasonable offers for their crop.

There have been more buyers from the United States in our market, but their principal object has been to post themselves about the new crop. Nevertheless there have been some sales of old tobacco, as well as of the new crop already. One cigarette manufacturing concern shall have contracted for future delivery 2000 bales of Vuelta Abajo colas, paying full prices for them. The German exporters have also operated to some extent in low grades to that country. There are, however, reports that the first shipments of last month had fallen flat and remained unsold, owing to the uncured condition of the leaf. This, of course, creates no surprise, as the nature of leaf is entirely different this year, and while the 1912 growth could be shipped without having undergone much, or even any fermentation in the piles, the same procedure so early in the season was only inviting a setback. The Argentine Republic continues to call for more tobacco and the shipments have been fairly heavy right along. The local demand on the part of our cigar manufacturers has been limited, but on the other hand our various cigarette manufacturers have operated more largely.

Buyers were: Americans, 1632; exporters to Europe, 795; shippers to South America, 544, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 1317 bales.

Exports during the past two weeks ending May 17 from the port of Havana were: to all ports of the United States, 6847; to Europe, 852, and to South America, 429 bales; thus making a total of 8128 bales.

Cigars.

Business has been quieter during the past two weeks in our cigar factories, but still there has been no retrograde movement perceptible, as compared with last year, therefore conditions are normal for this season of the year. Some hopes are placed upon an increased activity of the new conservative party in power, as through the message of our new President, General Mario G. Menocal, the latter has promised to look out in future to foster and protect the three vital interests of the Island of Cuba: Agriculture, commerce and industry. If through reciprocity treaties our cigar industry should at last get a fresh impulse, our manufacturers would indeed be thankful, as the Liberal party evidently had no time to give to this important matter, and had been principally intent how to increase the income and how to spend the same benefiting the office-holders.

The following factories are working in good shape: Romeo y Julieta, H. Upmann, Partagas, Sol, Castañeda, Flor de P. A. Estanillo, and the chief ones of the Henry Clay and Bock & Co., Ltd.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

F. Rocha & Co. closed transactions to the extent of 250 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido to their customers.

Ernst Ellinger we learn has been very active in the country and acquired some very choice lots of the new Vuelta Abajo.

José C. Puente & Co. disposed of 150 bales of the new crop to several of their customers during the past fortnight.

J. F. Berndes & Co. were the heaviest buyers for the German market not alone, but also to Buenos Aires, their takings amounting to 649 bales in the last two weeks.

Maximilian Stern has been very active in the country making purchases for the account of his customers. While in town we have learned only of 410 bales of leaf as the extent of his operations.

Other buyers were: Celestino Corral, for Corral, Wodiska & Co., 214 bales; Cuesta, Rey & Co., 210; E. H. Gato Cigar Co., 170; Partagas, 200; Gutierrez & Diehl, 173; Leslie Pantin, by cable for his customers, 133; Adolfo Moeller, 117, and C. E. Beck & Co., 100 bales.

Mr. Hermann Diehl, of Gutierrez & Diehl, is expected home from his bridal trip to Europe during the coming week. Don Miguel Guiterrez has been very active in the country making contracts of leaf for future delivery to their escogidas.

Mr. René Berndes will leave Germany on May 31 per S. S. "George Washington" for New York, and ought to reach here about June 17.

Mr. Walter Keffenburgh continues to devote his time to supervising the heavy purchases made for their firm of I. Kaffenburgh & Sons in the Santa Clara province. We understand that they purchased heavily of the Manicaragua crop as usual. Mr. Albert W. Kaffenburgh is expected here by the end of this month.

The principal nine shippers above 200 bales of tobacco from the port of Havana during the last two weeks, ending May 17, were: Max Stern, 1758; Mark A. Pollack, 1333; J. F. Berndes & Co., 753; Leslie Pantin, 347; Menendez & Co., 334; M. A. Suarez & Co., 322; Diego Montero, 230; José H. Cayro & Son, 219, and Manuel Suarez, 218 bales.

Don Antonio Garcia, who deposits his tobacco at 100 San Miguel Street, has purchased in San Juan y Martinez the justly famous vegas of La Isleña, El Gacho, Manuel Cabrera and Juan Lopez in escogidas by the vegueros. He also purchased in bundles, to be packed by him, the vegas of Juan D. Hevia, La Chorrera and the vega of La Viuda de Abra. The prices paid were high, but there are some wrappers, and the aroma is as fine as could be possibly desired, therefore the manufacturer that should acquire these vegas would be fortunate indeed in getting some of the cream of this year's crop. There will be about 1500 bales in all when the packings are finished.

What Cigars are Selling in Minneapolis

Investigators Found that Advertised Brands Lead—A Detailed Report on Smoking Tobacco, Too

AS the result of an investigation of merchandise sold and in demand in the downtown shopping district in Minneapolis, the Tribune, of that city, has prepared a very interesting report on the cigar and tobacco trade. Fifteen wholesale cigar and tobacco stores and 70 retail were visited by the investigators in Minneapolis proper.

In addition to the cigar stores, in the Minneapolis market there are the following cigar houses in territory contiguous to that city: St. Paul, 16 wholesale and 51 retail; Minnesota, outside of Minneapolis and St. Paul, 58; North Dakota, 26, and so on. In addition to the strictly cigar stores, there are 8815 general stores and 2381 drug stores in this territory, nearly all of which retail cigars.

Speaking of Minneapolis proper, it was found that there are 1000 cigar stands, including those operated in connection with other kinds of business, six of them being United Cigar Stores.

Dealing specifically with the brands in demand, the report says:

Twenty important cigar stores and drug stores in the downtown district of Minneapolis have furnished us with a list of the 10 best selling 10-cent cigars. This list makes a pretty good representation of the 10-cent demand in Minneapolis.

Don Antonio.
La Securidad, 2.
El Salero, 5.
La Venga.
Lovera, 7.
Lawrence Barrett, 8.
Corina, 2.
Roi-Tan, 13.
Aquilas, 5.
Tom Moore, 13.
Webster, 2.
Lozano.
El Sidelo, 3.
La Toca, 2.
La Azora, 11.
Charles the Great, 7.
Buddha, 2.
Van Dyke, 2.
Sanchez Haya.
Coraza, 7.
Chancellor, 4.
Garcia, 7.
Rigoletto, 7.
El Firma, 6.
Henry the Fourth, 2.
Seal of Minnesota, 10.
Commercial Club, 3.
Alcazar, 2.
La Preferencia, 6.

It will thus be observed that the "Tom Moore" cigar is one of the 10 best sellers in 13 out of 20 leading cigar outlets; "Roi-Tan" is equally popular; "La Azora" is one of the big sellers in 11 of these places; and "Seal of Minnesota" in 10 of them. The relative popularity of any of the above brands can thus be noted.

The 10 best 5-cent sellers from each of the same dealers resulted in the following list:

Little Tom, 12.
P. D. Special, 3.
El Merito, 3.
Black & White, 3.
La Azora, 10.
Cinco, 10.
Henry George, 13.
Preferencia, 6.
Chas. Denby, 12.
Sight Draft, 12.
Bachelor, 7.
Little Barrett, 7.
Tom Keene, 5.
Newport Club, 3.
La Thama, 2.
Kossuth, 2.
Bella Mundo, 2.
John Ruskin, 5.
Owl, 2.
Full Weight, 2.
Little Seal, 6.
Portuondo, 3.
Sanchez Haya, 3.
Little Arthur.
Aquilas, 5.
El Radio, 2.
El Salero, 2.
Roi-Tan, 4.
Bank Note, 2.
Lovera Havana.
El Sidelo, 2.
El Firma, 2.

The "Henry George" seems to be the most popular 5-cent cigar; being one of the leading 10 in 13 of these places. It is closely followed by "Little Tom," "Charles Denby" and "Sight Draft" and "Cinco."

In the better grades of smoking tobaccos "Edgeworth" leads in distribution, being sold by about 70 per cent. of the dealers. "Herbert Tareyton," "Falk's American Mixture," "Falke's Serene Mixture" and "Cake Box Mixture," are all good sellers at most of the tobacco stores.

In the cheaper brands of tobacco, "Bull Durham" leads in demand, "Prince Albert" is second, "Tuxedo" third, "Velvet" fourth, "Shag" fifth, "Lucky Strike" sixth, "Epicure" seventh, "Twin Oaks" eighth, "Duke's Mixture" ninth. Some of the others called for frequently are: "La Mira," "Red Band," "Nicollet Mixture" and "Stag."

Such well-known 10-cent cigars as "Tom Moore," "Roi-Tan," "Seal of Minnesota," "El Salero," "Lawrence Barrett," "Charles the Great," "El Sidelo," "La Azora," "La Preferencia," "Rigoletto" and "Chancellor" have all been extensively advertised and show it by their popularity.

In the 5-cent sellers, the advertised cigars are equally prominent. "Henry George," "Little Tom," "Charles Denby," "Sight Draft," "La Azora," "Cinco," "Preferencia," "Bachelor," "Little Barrett," "John Ruskin" and "Little Seal" have all been well advertised in this city.

In the cheaper tobaccos, the influence of advertising is generally shown. "Bull Durham" has always been one of the best advertised tobaccos in America, and naturally leads. The most aggressive advertiser next to "Bull Durham" in the past few years has been the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., and their "Prince Albert" has already climbed to second place in local demand. The next seven leaders have also been well advertised. In fact, the advertised cigars and tobaccos dominate the field in Minneapolis.

Louisiana Tax Collector Brings Suit Against "United"

JOHN FITZPATRICK, State Tax Collector of Louisiana, has brought a suit for $5000 against the United Cigar Stores Co., of that state, alleging that coupons or certificates are given away with purchases at the chain stores, which he considers is a violation of the law in that state against using trading stamps. Under the Louisiana law, a license tax of $5000 is levied upon all concerns doing less than $100,000 business yearly if these concerns use trading stamps. The suit so far has had no effect upon the United's way of doing business. They recently celebrated their twelfth anniversary in the city of New Orleans, and as is usually done on these occasions, gave double certificates. The independent dealers of New Orleans state that Mr. Fitzpatrick's interpretation of the trading stamp law will allow them to compete with the chain stores on a more even basis, provided he wins his suit.

J. T. Snyder Takes Over Jenkinson Stands

Joseph T. Snyder, of Buffalo, N. Y., the proprietor of a chain of retail tobacco stores, added four new stands to his chain on May 13, when he took over the R. & W. Jenkinson Co.'s stores in Cleveland, O. The R. & W. Jenkinson Co., who asked creditors for an extension a short time ago, have disposed of all their retail stores and will hereafter devote their efforts towards manufacturing cigars and stogies. This last deal of Mr. Snyder's gives him six first-class cigar stores in Cleveland. Within the last month he opened two new stores in Detroit and one in Erie, Pa.

Buys Interest in Enterprise Cigar Co.

An interest in the Enterprise Cigar Co., of Trenton, N. J., has been purchased by James Schucarth, a New Yorker. Samuel Levy and C. F. McDonald, formerly the members of the concern, still retain an interest in the business and will remain with the company.

The Enterprise Cigar Co. has a factory on Ewing Street and manufacture the "Lord Sterling," a 10-cent seed and Havana cigar, and the "Taking," nickel brand. Messrs. Levy and McDonald are the organizers of the concern and have held the controlling interest for a number of years.

Walter Sutter & Co. New Havana Exporters

A new Havana tobacco exporting concern which recently acquired a warehouse at Estrella, 55, that city, will conduct a commission and exporting business. The concern, known as Walter Sutter & Co., consists in addition to Mr. Sutter, of Fred Abbott and Manuel F. Quinto. They are all well known in the leaf tobacco circles of Havana.

The Independent Cigar Manufacturing Co., of Cincinnati, have purchased a property located at 124 East Pearl Street, that city, consisting of a three-story and basement building. It is understood that they intend using the entire building for manufacturing purposes.

PENNSYLVANIA TRADE NEWS — Late Reports from Lancaster, York, Reading

READING, May 21.

FROM reports given by leaf tobacco men and others who are in touch with all the cigar manufacturers in this district, there is every indication of a decline in the cigar output the last two weeks. All the factories are running in a fair manner, but the hustle that was so evident a short time ago is now lacking. This is true of the larger factories as well as the smaller ones. The concerns in Quakertown, Perkasie and other points on the way toward Philadelphia also make the same report. The manufacturers state that this is but temporary and that after the tariff bill has been passed, they look forward to a resumption of trade on the former scale. There is no doubt that in the Middle West there seems to be a tendency to wait until the tariff scare is over before stocking up heavily on cigars. And since the business of many firms in this vicinity depends on conditions in that section the present dullness is to be expected.

S. S. Stewart & Sons are making good headway on their "John Hay" and "John Hay, Jr.," cigars. The quality of these brands is beginning to be recognized in a substantial manner by the jobbers who are handling them. They are among the biggest sellers in Reading.

The cigar dealers state that there has been a decided falling off in cigarette sales since the new law has been passed, which prohibits the sale of cigarettes to any person under 21 years of age. One retailer interviewed stated that as far as he is concerned he was glad that the Thompson bill was enacted into law, for then the dealer was not worrying all the time whether he had sold to a minor or not. Under the new law the purchaser of cigarettes under age is compelled to tell the name of the dealer who sold him the cigarettes or the purchaser is held liable as well as the dealer. This has tended to make the young smoker a bit wary about misrepresenting his age. Many dealers say that their profits on cigarettes are so small that they would be willing to discontinue selling them. They say they are compelled to carry them for convenience.

Alderman Henry H. Wentzel, who died about ten days ago, was well known among the cigarmakers of this city and his death has been much regretted by his many friends. Mr. Wentzel was engaged in the manufacturing of cigars at his home at the time of his death. He lived at 527 Laurel Street and was 57 years of age. He is survived by a widow and six children.

John U. Fehr & Son report a lively demand the past month or so in Pennsylvania tobacco. When speaking of it recently to a TOBACCO WORLD representative, Mr. Fehr, Sr., said that they had a good amount of the best Pennsylvania on hand and that they were well prepared to take care of all calls for this variety of tobacco. This concern packs all their tobacco and carry anything that the present day cigar manufacturer needs in the way of leaf tobacco. They were losers in the flood in the Middle West recently. One carload of tobacco came through in good shape, but another was delayed by the railroads and was lost. The latter shipment should have been in Reading at the time of the flood, but on account of the delay by the railroad in shipping it on time it was caught by the rising waters and ruined. They are heavy sellers of Ohio tobacco, buying it from the farmers in that state and packing it in their warehouse here in this city.

Since the new plate glass has been placed in the Fourth Street side of the American House, following the renovations that popular hostelry has been undergoing, the cigar department has benefited by the change. It gives a good view of the business section of the city, and after the interior of the stand has been fixed up it should be one of the best stores in the city. Schlapping & Eddy, who operate the cigar department, carry a good line of cigars, catering to the traveling trade as well as to the Reading smokers.

Lancaster Packers Slowly Absorb 1912 Crop

THE local interests have been buying up the remnants of the 1912 Pennsylvania crop at prices of from 5 to 8 cents. Considerable tobacco has changed hands and it will not be long before all the crop is in the warehouses. A number of the Lancaster packers have been buying up York County tobacco the last month or so because it is cheaper than Pennsylvania, and they have had a call for cheap tobacco lately. From all reports the new tobacco is coming along nicely, although some packers report black rot. There is not much of it they state.

The tobacco growers evidently are beginning to turn over a new leaf this year. It was not thought at first that they seriously intended to raise Havana seed, but from all indications the acreage in this country will run close to 1500 acres. There is no question that the tobacco grower in this county can make more money raising that kind of leaf, but the question is, can he raise the required quality. He will probably realize from 18 to 20 cents if the tobacco comes up to the standard. If he does not raise the right quality, he will realize even less than he does on broadleaf. Several packers have stated to the writer that the Lancaster County grower will be compelled to pay more attention to his tobacco if he expects to raise Havana seed. If he goes at it the right way and does not use some of the methods condemned by the packers in late years he will make money.

At a recent meeting of the tobacco growers several members urged the farmers to grow binder tobacco. It was pointed out that Wisconsin could not be expected to raise all the binders and that if the Lancaster County farmer realized it he could supply a large part of the binder tobacco. There has been a pronounced dullness in cigar manufacturing circles as compared with a short time ago. Some of the manufacturers account for this by the unsettled condition of some parts of the country due to the pending tariff bill, and that dealers in the Middle West are wary about stocking up heavily. Whether it is that or not, there is no question that the factories are experiencing a slump.

J. K. Shirk, the wholesale dealer, has recently purchased an automobile delivery truck. He reports business as good for this time of year.

At the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association a resolution was passed, which will be forwarded to Congress, protesting against the free admission of cigars and tobacco to this country from the Philippines, as proposed under the new tariff law. They claim it would work injury to the domestic tobacco grower.

York Manufacturers Not So Busy as Formerly

YORK, May 22.

ALTHOUGH the majority of the cigar factories in this vicinity have been running to full capacity the first three months of the year, a number of plants report that business is not coming in now in the manner it should. This condition seems to prevail in almost all parts of the country, particularly in the lower end and down in Red Lion and Dallastown. The first months of the year have been so good that the cigar manufacturers are somewhat surprised at the change which has been so noticeable recently.

The C. H. Plitt cigar factory has been working night work for some time, but they are again only running on regular time. The "Liar" cigar has been pushed with excellent results since the first of the year and the many orders on file at the factory compelled them to run overtime for a while. The new shape "Liar," londres, caught on well and is one of the most popular shapes. One of the show windows of the Young & Busser store has had a catchy display on this brand the past week. The "Twentieth Century" cigar, the small, Havana filled brand of this house, is finding new connections regularly. Mr. Plitt stands back of his guarantee that the filler of this cigar is all Havana, and of the best quality, and challenges any manufacturer to equal the brand in quality.

George W. Parr, the Littlestown cigar manufacturer, has been operating his factory since the first of the year on full time and states he expects to do a record breaking business this year. His "Lord Wharton" cigar is one of his best sellers at present.

A trip by THE TOBACCO WORLD representative to Red Lion, Dallastown and McSherrystown disclosed the fact that the cigar manufacturers in those towns have been doing a good business so far this year, but that there has been a let-up the past few weeks. This drop has been surprising, in view of the activity only a short time ago.

Ask Injunction for Infringement of Title

H. Rippen, of Perth Amboy, N. J., has asked for an injunction against Samuel Fisher & Co., of Trenton, N. J., to restrain the latter company from manufacturing and selling two brands of smoking tobacco which they claim are inferior imitations of their "Kassan" and "Tisza" brands and infringe upon the trade-mark rights.

The brands in question are specially used for chewing and smoking by foreigners and the Rippen Company state that Fisher's were not only imitating the style of package and brand, but printed the words "H. Riplen" across the label in imitation of the original manufacturer. The application for the injunction is expected to be answered within the next week by Vice-Chancellor Lewis, of Jersey City, N. J.

The United Cigar Stores Co. opened their first stand in Charleston, S. C., on May 17, and as a result there is a lively warfare on between the independent dealers and the chain stores. Meanwhile, the smokers of Charleston are enjoying bargains never heard of in that city, many of them having become addicted to the coupon fever.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Lancaster County Growers to Put Over 1000 Acres in Havana Seed—Transplanting Goes Along Slowly in Cigar Leaf States—Warmer Weather Needed Everywhere

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY, May 23.

THE principal feature of the leaf market at present is the activity in Sumatra. The large importing houses are doing a fine business. Sales to out of town manufacturers have been unusually large. The totals are far above any figure of previous years.

Domestic tobaccos are selling fairly well, but there is no special demand for them at present, with the exception of binders and Havana seed. Ohio tobacco has been changing hands at figures a little above the average, but it is problematical whether this is due to any lack of the leaf. No one predicts any decided change in prices on account of the flood.

There is a let up in Havana tobacco circles. There has been little demand and the tobacco that changed hands was of only small amounts. Packing is going along slowly and the strike of the selectors in the Havana warehouses has helped to slow up the operations. In addition, the weather has been far from favorable.

Since the majority of the cigar manufacturers are optimistic as to their business so far this year and their plans for the coming months, there is no reason for not thinking that the leaf markets will not share materially in the prosperity. The delegates are again back from the convention in Atlantic City and report having a beneficial as well as enjoyable time.

PENNSYLVANIA.

LANCASTER, May 21.

THE tobacco growers of Lancaster County will take up the matter of growing Havana seed tobacco, instead of the usual broadleaf, to a greater extent this year than is generally supposed. Some growers have stated their intention of supplanting broadleaf altogether if things go the way they want them to this season.

Fully a thousand acres, mostly in the southern section of Lancaster County, will be planted with the Havana seed, and if it is a success it will mean a revolution in tobacco growing in Lancaster County, for beyond a doubt it would mean abandonment of the broadleaf, which has been the kind of tobacco favored by Lancaster County growers heretofore. The prices paid for broadleaf in the last few years have been about 10 and 11 cents a pound for wrapper goods and 2 to 4 cents a pound for the filler grades, and a poor market for the grades when they reach the packers' hands, at that. If the Havana seed turns out a good crop it means selling the grade for 18 to 20 cents a pound, and the packers would find a ready market for it.

The Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association has decided to institute a membership boom, which is very necessary, as only 200 out of the 10,000 tobacco growers of the county are members of the association. It is felt that until the body grows in numbers it cannot have the influence it should have in tobacco circles. A committee, consisting of George Hibshman, I. H. Weaver, F. N. Stevenson and Otto Olson, was appointed to arrange for a great farmers' outing on August 8, the committee to choose a place. The outing has in view interesting growers in the association. Considerable time was devoted to discussing plans for aiding the grower to secure better prices for his tobacco, but no definite action was taken. Community warehouses for receiving the tobacco, to be sold by agents, are favored by many.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, CONN., May 18.

SOME of the tobacco growers have already begun the work of transplanting tobacco plants from the seed beds to the fields, but the work will not become general for a week at least. Some of the seed beds have been coming along very nicely and it has been necessary in some instances to thin out the plants in order to save the rest. The land is being prepared in all sections. Farmers say that in plowing up the ground they are unearthing an unusually large number of cutworms. This is probably due to the fact that the winter has been an unusually mild one and did not kill the worms. As many of the growers now prepare the ground before planting this may not injure the plants. The weather has not been quite as favorable as the farmers would have liked to have it, but a number who have larger acreages than usual were compelled to start earlier this season.

Even if the prices of Connecticut tobacco are good, there will not be a very large increase in acreage this year. It would seem that in view of the fact that Connecticut has been selling so well the past two years and that the duty on imported wrappers will not be reduced, that our growers would take advantage of this and raise more tobacco. The shaded acreage will not be larger than last year, at least not large enough to be noticed; but Havana seed and other tobacco will probably be grown more than last year. This may have the result of relieving the binder situation. But some of the Connecticut growers seem to think that the first time that Wisconsin raises a large crop that prices are scheduled to take a tumble in this section.

Reports from Manchester state that the Connecticut Sumatra Tobacco Co. will try another planting at the tobacco plantation in Buckland this year. It is said that 175 acres will be under cultivation. They have run a pipe line and the water is pumped to a reservoir where it is distributed to all parts of the plantation. All the tobacco is to be grown under cover.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, WIS., May 16.

THE weather of the week past has proven entirely too cool for the satisfactory growth of the plant beds, quite severe frosts having occurred one or two mornings that might show its effect upon the unprotected beds. Warmer days must soon be forthcoming or the planting season will be delayed beyond the usual date in this state.

A couple of quite severe freezes occurred during the week which will doubtless have some effect upon the uncovered beds. There is complaint, too, that the plants are rather thin on a good many beds, resulting from the drying winds soon after the seed was sown. However, under influence of the right weather conditions the young tobacco plants come forward surprisingly, so it is hard to tell at this stage just what the coming month may bring forth, but the prospects at present must be put down several points below the normal at this date.

Three or four warehouses have still considerable packing to be done in this market before completing the season's handling, otherwise there is nothing about the local markets worthy of mentioning. Sales of cured leaf are confined to small order business.

Wherever the bulks of cased goods have been broken, it is found that the tobacco is sweating generally satisfactory, though an occasional bit of black rot is encountered in the early packings, but not enough to cause much alarm.—Edgerton Reporter.

OHIO.

CINCINNATI, May 17.

PLANT beds in the burley section have been doing well but are now delayed and in some instances permanently injured by the prevailing drouth and cool weather. Those late in breaking land will be further delayed by the dry weather. The ground is plowed with difficulty and is hard to prepare for plants. Another adverse feature is the prevalence of myriads of cutworms. However, interest in the situation is by no means waning. There is now practically no burley in the country and little in the growers' hands. A small amount is held at Cincinnati and Louisville. Speculators, however, still hold quite a large amount but a very small per cent. of the total crop. These holdings are being slowly sold at the two points mentioned above. The market is stronger and average prices slightly higher.

The financial matters of the Burley Tobacco Co. are found to be quite irregular by those appointed to investigate the same. Loose and incompetent bookkeeping, resulting in much uncertainty and confusion, is found in many instances. A lawsuit involving $100,000 is now pending against the organization and the result is being watched with much interest. Another important case is one instituted by this company against certain members for selling pooled tobacco. These cases are now before the Supreme Court which is considering them this week.—H. E. TWEED, in Ohio Farmer.

KENTUCKY.

HOPKINSVILLE, May 19.

MUCH tobacco is being set in Christian and adjoining counties today following the rains which fell in many sections yesterday and this morning. This is the first chance the farmers have had to transplant their plants, and as most of them had the ground ready and plants were well grown, they have been anxious for a season.

The rain was not as general as had been wished but in those sections visited it was generous. This will probably entirely relieve the dry condition throughout the county, which had almost reached the proportions of a drouth and as the result of which crops had begun to suffer and farm work was being delayed.

In the Church Hill neighborhood and possibly other sections, there was considerable hail recently. Some of the hailstones were of large size. But the hailstorm was of short duration and was not severe enough to do any real damage. This probably accounts for the cooler temperature which has prevailed since that time.

HENDERSON, May 17.

The grand jury has begun an inquiry into the tobacco plant bed depredations and a number of witnesses have been examined. Several tobacco growers who suffered at the hands of the miscreants have appeared before the body. It has been currently rumored that there are a few men whose beds were sown who have made statements that they know who the depredators were. Whether they will furnish information, and indictments returned as a result, or whether the grand jury will meet with the same failure as the Webster County jury, is only a matter of speculation, of course.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

The cool weather which has been general in all parts of the country the past two weeks, has caused many tobacco growers in all sections, who had planned to begin transplanting, to decide to wait for a while. This condition is found in Wisconsin where the young plants have made poor headway, in Pennsylvania where the growers had to contend with snails in their seed beds, and in Connecticut, where cool weather is hampering farmers in the work of setting the plants in the fields.

John H. Duys, of H. Duys & Co., the well-known Sumatra house, recently completed a quick trip to Detroit, where he personally disposed of a large block of Sumatra to cigar manufacturers.

The trial of the Imperial Tobacco Co., Inc., and the Imperial Tobacco Co. of Great Britain and Ireland, Ltd., indicted at the last January term of the Henderson Circuit Court, Kentucky, on the charge of combination in restraint of trade, will be tried either in Union or Henderson Counties, with the chances in favor of the former. The Imperial Tobacco Co. had asked for a change of venue, claiming that they could not get a fair trial in Henderson County.

A tobacco sales company in whose membership will be farmers and growers, who dissent from the policies of National Leaf Growers' Union, and its offspring, the Growers' Sales Agency, was formed at a meeting in the Phillips House, Dayton, O., on May 20. The new organization is capitalized with $150,000, with the par value of the stock placed at $25.

Several firms of leaf dealers have recently organized in Havana, Cuba. One of them just opened for business is Lozano & Miguel, at 130 Monte Street. Their warehouse is undergoing some alterations. The partners are Manuel Lozano and Saturnino Miguel, more familiarly known in that city as Casin.

Perea, Valdesuso & Co. is another leaf firm recently organized at 97 Amistad Street, Havana, and this firm will handle principally Remedios tobacco, as the two partners, Mr. Perea and Mr. Valdesuso are natives of the Santa Clara province. Don Cesareo Gonzales, also a member of this firm, will shortly leave for Spain for a short vacation.

Late reports from the Winconsin tobacco growing centers state that farmers are complaining of the poor showing the young plants are making for this time of year. This is due to the dry winds which killed much of the sprouted seed and cool weather which retarded the growth of the plants. Many growers have been compelled to re-sow their seed beds.

From Boston comes the news note that Benno Neuberger, of E. Rosenwald & Bro., New York, put through a big Sumatra deal in that city. This is not surprising. It's an old habit with this man.

The large re-drying plant at Winchester, Ky., which has been idle for three years, has been leased by G. L. Kirkpatrick and J. W. U. Clay, tobacco men of Mt. Sterling, Ky. The plant has a capacity for 60,000 pounds daily and was leased from the Planters' Loose Leaf Warehouse Tobacco Co. for a term of three years.

San Francisco

Scheunert Bros. Co., of Sacramento, Sell Out Jobbing Business to Reynolds & Dyer—Conditions of Trade Reported Fair

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26.

BUSINESS is not exactly booming in San Francisco, and with crops somewhat lighter than usual the country business is only moderate in most localities, but on the whole the situation offers little ground for complaint. The Exposition is constantly becoming a more important factor affecting the local trade, as nearly all the large buildings are now under construction and work on the grounds will be rushed for the next year and a half. Travelers who have an opportunity to observe conditions in many parts of the country state that the Pacific Coast is in as good shape as any part of the United States.

A change has taken place at Sacramento, Cal., which will be of considerable importance to the trade throughout the Sacramento Valley. Scheunert Bros. Co., one of the oldest cigar firms in the state, having been in business at the capital city for about 30 years, have sold out to Reynolds & Dyer, of Chico, Cal. The former concern has had quite a large jobbing business, mainly on the "long-shot" order, covering several counties around Sacramento; while Reynolds & Dyer have had a jobbing trade throughout the northern end of the Sacramento Valley, and by the purchase have added greatly to their territory. While the latter firm has already taken charge, the Scheunerts will look after their old accounts for a month or two before retiring from the business.

Mr. Furguson, covering Oregon and Washington for the Turco-American line of cigarettes, is making a short visit to San Francisco.

Edward Wolf, of the Edward Wolf Co., has just returned from a week's visit to Los Angeles. Mr. Wolf says the "Nestor" cigarettes are selling "like hot-cakes," the demand having grown rapidly in the last few months.

Harry W. Robare, representing V. Guerra, Diaz & Co., Tampa, whose "La Mega" brand he is featuring, is in San Francisco. Needless to say, he is busy.

Fillmore Street has had its ups and downs, and now seems to be coming up again, as the shacks of 1906 are being replaced by permanent buildings. A fine block of concrete stores is going up opposite Dan P. Carter's stand, at Turk and Fillmore, and he looks for lively times in that district on its completion.

W. I. Pixley has just returned from a tour of the South Coast counties and reports a fair business in Dill's tobacco, though he says crops in that district are very poor. The Krinsky cigarette line, he says, now has a good start, as the jobbers are beginning to send in some good orders of their own accord, and the goods are going well at many retail stands. Mr. Pixley will start shortly for his Sacramento Valley trip. H. T. Spencer is getting started on the Dill's campaign at Seattle.

Herman Moss, Western representative of the S. R. Moss Cigar Co., has returned from a Southern trip and reports business rather quiet at Los Angeles, which is beginning to feel some effects of the orange freeze. He has started North.

Reynolds Tobacco Co. to Improve Lexington Plant

Plans have been completed whereby the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., which owns extensive warehouse property in Lexington, Ky., will make increases in their facilities in that city, by the building of a three-story storage warehouse and a modern power plant to furnish power and light for all the R. J. Reynolds houses in the city. The plans also call for the reconstruction of the old Bowmar warehouse on South Broadway, entailing an expense of thousands of dollars. The new three-story warehouses will be equipped throughout with automatic sprinklers.

C. Clinton Clark, a cigar salesman, of Westfield, Mass., died suddenly at his home in that city recently. He was 46 years of age, and before becoming a salesman for the Eastern Cigar Co., had learned the cigarmaking trade.

The many friends of General Emilio Nunez, who was formerly a partner in the Loeb-Nunez Tobacco Co., of Havana and Philadelphia, will be pleased to learn that he has been appointed Secretary of Agriculture, Commerce and Labor in the Cabinet of President Menocal, of Cuba. His friends in Cuba are congratulating him and feel assured that his administration will result in the improvement of agricultural and commercial relations.

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 102 South Twelfth Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

☞ Positively no responsibility assumed for errors, duplications or any controversies which might arise. We will not under any circumstances act in a legal capacity in cases concerning disputed titles. We maintain a bureau of records only.

Samuel N. Kramer a Bankrupt

Samuel N. Kramer, of Durham, N. C., at one time a member of the Ware-Kramer Tobacco Co., cigarette manufacturers, on May 19 filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy at Raleigh, N. C., giving liabilities of $8000 and assets of $7000. Mr. Kramer will be remembered as having been interested in a suit which his concern brought against the American Tobacco Co. for damages. They won the suit, but the damages awarded went to the creditors of the Ware-Kramer Tobacco Co.

Otto Krahn Opens Cigar Store in Milwaukee

A cigar stand, with a pipe repairing department, has been opened at 591-593 Third Street, Milwaukee, by Otto Krahn, well known in that city as having been manager of the pipe department of Leo Abraham & Co. Mr. Krahn has a wide circle of friends in Milwaukee and knows the pipe repairing business thoroughly. A mail order trade will be a feature of the business.

New Stands for M. A. Gunst & Co.

The cigar stands of the Sun Drug Co., of Los Angeles, Cal., have been taken over by M. A. Gunst & Co. At present this drug concern has but three cigar stands, but they contemplate leasing four additional locations. The Gunst stores feature the brands manufactured by M. A. Gunst & Co., such as "Van Dyck," and those of the United Cigar Manufacturers Co., the "Robert Burns," "General Arthur" and the "Owl."

Late Trade Bulletins

Thad Troy, a Columbus, O., stogie manufacturer, has sold his business at 877 East Long Street, that city, to A. S. Anderson and Luke Lehmann. The new owners expect to reorganize and to improve the business considerably.

The E. J. Hamburger Co. has applied for a charter to manufacture cigars in Cincinnati, O. They start with a capital of $25,000. E. J. Hamburger is named as the incorporator of the concern.

G. Composti & Sons have opened a new tobacco store at 59 Central Street, Milford, Mass.

The new store of the Silversmith Cigar Co., at Fifty-first Street and Indiana Avenue, Chicago, Ill., was opened a short time since. They are carrying a full line of imported and domestic cigars, tobacco and cigarettes.

The Hub Cigar Co., 819 Fifteenth Street, Denver, lately owned by J. A. Bergey, has been sold to J. F. Dowell, who already owns three stands in that city.

The Lamar Tobacco Warehouse Co., of Lamar, S. C., has been organized in that city with a capital of $5000. The incorporators are R. J. Chapin, W. C. Mims, S. W. DuBose, J. F. Watson, M. J. Spears and L. J. Beasley.

A new pipe factory has been opened at 510 Fifteenth Street, Denver, which will do business under the name of the Denver Pipe Repair Shop. The members of the firm are A. B. Bernstein and H. Klompus, a practical pipe repairer.

Charles L. Steffen recently purchased the interest of A. H. England in the Cozy Cigar Store, in the Lemcke Building, Indianapolis. The store will be managed by W. J. Love, the local manager.

E. L. Moriarity, of Moriarity & Bray, cigar dealers, at Massachusetts Avenue and Alabama Streets, Indianapolis, has purchased Mr. Bray's interest in the firm and is now sole owner of the store.

The May Drug Co., of Pittsburgh, opened a new store at Sixth Avenue and Smithfield Street, that city, making the ninth stand of this concern.

A new retail cigar store has been opened at 913 Walnut Street, Kansas City, by Fred Lederman.

The Richards-Scheble Candy Co., of Hutchinson, Kan., have taken over the Travelers Cigar Co., of that city, and will continue the business along the same lines.

AN IMPORTED WRAPPER

¶ But it does increase wrapper cost and cuts into profits.

¶ Which would you rather be, prejudiced or prosperous? It's up to you.

¶ Increased use year after year shows that progressive manufacturers realize the quality of the Florida-Georgia wrapper. They use it in preference to Sumatra, strictly on its merit, regardless of cost.

"La Flor de Portuondo"

Londres Grandes

¶ The superior quality and workmanship of these goods, which made their maker famous from coast to coast, has been maintained ever since and is typified in the above brand, a Havana filled, Sumatra wrapped cigar of most excellent flavor.

Chewing Snuff

It is made of the best, old, rich leaf tobacco. The Snuff Process retains the good of the tobacco and expels the bitter and acid of natural leaf tobacco, making Copenhagen the World's Best Tobacco for Both Chewing and Snuffing.

Whenever a dealer has any difficulty in obtaining his supply of Copenhagen Chewing Snuff satisfactorily, we will help him if he will write us.

Old Prices Restored on Leading Imported Cigars; Market is Steadied After Costly Cutting War

All Grades of "Partagas" and "Hoyo's" Restored—Other Brands to Resume Normal Level—Slashing of Prices Has Proved a Boomerang to All Concerned

On Monday, June 5, the old price-list on all grades of "Partagas" clear Havana cigars, was once again made effective, and Robert E. Lane, the American and Canadian representative for the factory, received congratulation from many sources.

The price of "Hoyos" is also back at the old list now, and the price of Perfectos is $190, less 5 per cent. on both of these makes, with other grades quoted at the figures which so long prevailed.

This action in connection with the attitude of the other manufacturers in Cuba, should go far toward re-establishing the strength of the clear Havana perfectos, especially in the American market, and if prices are rigidly maintained it is quite reasonable to expect that the price cutting on standard grades of Havana cigars must stop abruptly.

As a matter of fact, and from personal investigation, price cutting on Havana goods has acted as a boomerang, and it would appear that importers and distributors as well as the retailers, who have felt the suspicion of consumers at seeing their favorite brands become a cut-price football, are quite ready to cease operations along this line, and let normal conditions once again prevail.

Gonzales, New Minister to Cuba

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 13.

PRESIDENT WILSON has just announced the appointment of William E. Gonzales, a well-known editor of Columbia, S. C., as Minister to Cuba. Mr. Gonzales is the son of Ambrosio Jose Gonzales, a distinguished Cuban patriot. His appointment to this important post will, no doubt, be received with much satisfaction by the Cuban Government, as well as by his many friends in this country.

McReynolds' Excise Plan too Radical; Likely to Be Passed to the Discard

President Wilson Has Not Approved Scheme to Tax Big Tobacco Interests Out of Existence and the Cabinet is Divided Over This Question

(From Washington Bureau of "The Tobacco World.")

NO measure that has come to light since the opening of the Wilson administration, has attracted more attention than the proposed graduated scale of taxation, meant to wipe out the so-called "Tobacco Trust." The idea is so radical and so novel, that it has set the legislators a-buzzing and has aroused no end of comment among tobacco interests everywhere.

When Attorney-General McReynolds announced last week that he was satisfied that there had been no real dissolution of the American Tobacco Co., and that he proposed to bring such dissolution about, by taxing the remaining parts of the "Trust" out of existence, he did so on his own initiative. The White House was quick to assert that the proposed scheme of taxation had not received the official sanction of the Wilson administration, although the plan had been discussed in Cabinet meetings.

Sharp differences of opinion have developed within the Cabinet, it being the prevailing idea that the scheme is too hazardous to be seriously thought of. The plan was suggested to the President before it was made known, and he allowed it to be placed before the Senate Finance Committee, but it does not appear that he ever gave it unreserved support. When there had been a day or two of time to study the situation it was made evident that there was a direct division of the Cabinet into two wings—one favoring the taxation proposition, the other opposing it. The division was based upon anti-trust lines, those who have always been consistent opponents of trusts and advocates of any plan that would enable them to be brought under control or crushed by any possible means being on one side, while on the other were those who have been in the past supporters of trust prosecutions as the proper mode of attack upon monopolies and who regard taxation as simply a method of raising revenue and nothing more. The scheme is likely to pass to the discard.

Following closely Mr. McReynold's announcement of his proposed tax scheme, Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska, introduced an amendment to the tariff now being considered by Congress, providing for the levying of special taxes on the manufacturers controlling more than 25 per cent. of the production of any particular commodity in the tobacco field. The amendment follows:

"That manufacturers of tobacco, cigars, cigarettes and snuff shall, after the thirty-first day of December, 1913, be subject to pay a special quarterly excise tax, in addition to all other taxes provided by law, which special additional excise tax shall be payable quarterly and be graduated and levied as follows:

"A—On all tobacco, whether smoking tobacco, plug tobacco, twist or fine cut, manufactured during the quarter over and in excess of 20,000,000 pounds, 1 cent a pound for the first 1,000,000 pounds excess or part thereof; 2 cents a pound for the second 1,000,000 pounds excess or part thereof; 3 cents a pound for the third 1,000,000 pounds excess or part thereof; 4 cents a pound for the fourth 1,000,000 pounds excess or part thereof; 5 cents a pound for the fifth 1,000,000 pounds excess or part thereof; 6 cents a pound for all above the fifth 1,000,000 pounds excess.

"B—On all cigarettes weighing not more than 3 pounds per 1,000, manufactured during the quarter and in excess of 400,000,000 cigarettes, 25 cents per 1,000 on the first 50,000,000 cigarettes excess or part thereof; 60 cents per 1,000 on the second 50,000,000 cigarettes excess or part thereof; $1 per 1,000 on the third 50,000,000 cigarettes excess or part thereof; $1.50 per 1,000 on the fourth 50,000,000 cigarettes excess or part thereof; $2 per 1,000 on the fifth 50,000,000 cigarettes excess or part thereof; $2.60 per 1,000 on the sixth 50,000,000 cigarettes excess or part thereof; $3.25 per 1,000 on all above the sixth 50,000,000 cigarettes excess.

"C—On all cigarettes weighing more than 3 pounds per 1,000 manufactured during the quarter over and in excess of 1,000,000 cigarettes, $1 per 1,000 on the first 500,000 excess per quarter or part thereof; $2 per 1,000 on the second 500,000 cigarettes excess per quarter or part thereof; $3 per 1,000 on all above the second 500,000 cigarettes excess.

"D—On all cigars weighing more than 3 pounds per 1,000 manufactured during the quarter over and in excess of 400,000,000 cigars, $1 per 1,000 on the first 100,000,000 cigars excess or part thereof; $2 per 1,000 on the second 100,000,000 cigars excess or part thereof; $3 per 1,000 on all above the second 100,000,000 cigars excess.

"E—On all cigars weighing not more than 3 pounds per 1,000 manufactured during the quarter over and in excess of 50,000,000 cigars, 20 cents per 1,000 on the first 10,000,000 excess, or part thereof; 45 cents per 1,000 on the second 10,000,000 cigars excess or part thereof; 70 cents per 1,000 on the third 10,000,000 cigars excess or part thereof; $1 on all above the third 10,000,000 cigars excess.

"F—On all snuff manufactured during the quarter over and in excess of 1,000,000 pounds, 1 cent a pound for the first 1,000,000 pounds or part thereof in excess; 3 cents a pound for the second 1,000,000 pounds or part thereof in excess; 5 cents a pound for the third 10,000,000 pounds or part thereof in excess; 10 cents a pound for all above the third 10,000,000 pounds excess.

"G—In computing the product of any manufacturer, there shall be included the products, as above specified, made directly by said manufacturer, and by any company controlled by said manufacturer, in whole or in part through stock ownership, contract, lease, or otherwise, and any company having directors or stockholders in common to the extent of 25 per cent. of the stock, or one-third of the directors, shall be considered and held to be a part of the same manufacturing organization, and the rate of tax shall be based on their combined output, each company to pay upon its proper proportion thereof. –

"H—It shall be the duty of every manufacturer of tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, or snuff, on demand of any officer of Internal Revenue to render such officer a true and correct statement, under oath, of the quantity and amount of all tobacco, cigars, or snuff manufactured by him during the quarter, and this statement shall be made on or before the tenth day of the month following the close of the quarter. It shall be the duty of every manufacturer, on demand of any officer of Internal Revenue, to render to such officer a true and correct statement, under oath, showing in detail the ownership, management and organization of the business, who the officers and directors or trustees of the same are, what, if any, contract, lease, or other arrangement exists with another manufacturer of tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, or snuff.

"I—In case of refusal or neglect to render any such statement as herein provided, or if there is cause to believe such statement to be incorrect or fraudulent, the Collector shall make an examination of persons, books, and papers, in the manner provided by law in relation to frauds and evasions of internal revenue laws.

"J—The special additional quarterly excise tax on tobacco, cigars, cigarettes and snuff shall be paid on or before the tenth of April, July, October and January for the previous calendar quarter, and in enforcing this act and in the collection of this tax, all existing provisions of law relating to the collection of internal revenue are hereby made applicable, and the Commissioner is hereby authorized to make and enforce proper regulations to carry these provisions into effect."

Hitchcock Explains the Move.

Speaking of the amendment, Mr. Hitchcock said:

"I have drawn this amendment proposing to exempt from its operations the products of those companies which are on a competitive basis, those companies which are doing business in a legitimate way, but so designed as to fall upon the great concerns whose monopoly power is so great that they are gradually wiping out the competition that still lingers in the manufacture of tobacco.

"This amendment is not drawn so as to provide for littleness; it is not drawn so as to destroy manufacture upon a large scale and in an efficient way. I exempt, for instance, from this tax a tobacco product up to 80,000,000 pounds a year."

Kansas Cigar Manufacturer Dead

E. F. Morton, ex-Mayor of Burlington, Kan., and a prominent cigar manufacturer, died at his home in that city recently, following a six-weeks' illness. Mr. Morton had been in business for over thirty years, his goods having practically been known in every town in the state. He is survived by a widow.

La Follette Has Another Bridle to Restrain "Unreasonable" Trusts

Latest Legislative Freak Aims to Make Combinations Prove That They Are Good

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 13.

A SWEEPING amendment to the Sherman anti-trust law, which, if passed, is likely to prove the most radical measure yet adopted to control big business combinations, including the tobacco and oil interests, has just been offered in the Senate by Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin.

Mr. La Follette's amendment begins by throwing upon any combination, in even the slightest restraint of trade, the burden of proving that the restraint is reasonable.

But in many cases, under conditions set forth in the proposed amendment, unreasonableness is established as a matter of fact and the corporations are debarred from presenting evidence of the smallness of their holdings to show that the restraint was reasonable.

End "Rule of Reason."

Mr. La Follette's amendment, if adopted, would put an end to the famous "rule of reason" announced by the Supreme Court in the tobacco trust and Standard Oil decisions. But it would end it not by the radical proposal so often mentioned shortly after the two great decisions came down that all restraint of trade, even the most incidental, he considered illegal.

Mr. La Follette adopts a more moderate view, admits the distinction between reasonable and unreasonable restraint and attempts to define what makes restraint of trade objectionable.

Mr. La Follette defines the word combination as "including any contract or combination in the form of a trust or otherwise." Restraint of trade, according to Mr. La Follette's bill, means "any restraint in any respect or to any extent." The burden of proof, once the existence of a combination is established, shall be thrown on the defendants to show that the combination is reasonable.

Mr. La Follette's bill describes nine classes of combinations regardless of their size or condition shall be held in all unreasonable.

First—Combinations that prevent the purchase from another source of an article which it manufactures.

Second—A combination which discriminates in prices by offering lower rates where the purchase is in large amounts.

Third—A combination that refuses to sell to some of its would-be customers.

Fourth—A combination that seeks to increase its business by offering better terms in one territory than in another.

Fifth—A combination which contracts among its members as to a division of territory.

Sixth—A combination that seeks to promote its business under an assumed name or by disguising in any way the controlling interests behind it.

Seventh—Any combination that artificially stimulates its sale at the expense of competitors by selling below the cost of production.

Eighth—Any combination that spies on the business of its competitors by bribing their, or bribing inspectors or other officers of the United States.

Ninth—Any combination that controls a raw material necessary to the manufacture of any article and seeks to prevent competitors from making this article by holding the raw material at an unreasonable price.

Kooreman & Dossin, prominent cigar manufacturers of Meriden, Conn., have completed arrangements for space in the new building being erected in the Hall & Lewis Block, that city. Their new store will face on East Main Street.

THE cigar clerk who contemplates going into business for himself is immediately up against one of the most difficult and important questions he will be called upon to solve in his business career. That is the matter of the right location.

The first thing to consider, of course, is the population of the neighborhood. Granting that this has been settled, let us go into another question just as far reaching in its effects, that of the class of people in the neighborhood. If the young clerk has been employed in a first-class store in the center of the city, where the better grade of goods are sold, he had better take this into consideration. It is just possible that he will have to revise some of his selling methods in the new place. His prospective customers may not be in the habit of buying the class of goods the former patrons did and he will usually have to talk quantity in making a sale when he had much rather dwell on quality. If he has definitely decided to have a really first-class store, to carry none but the best cigars, he had better turn down the location if the neighborhood is a "cheap" one.

It would be preferable by far for him to take a stand in the centre of town, where he is known and probably has a clientele, even if the location is not of the best. Then it would be up to him to put some individuality in the place and cater to a good class of trade. There is a great deal to be said in favor of having a corner location, but many of the most successful stands are not on the corners.

As an instance of poor judgment in selecting a location, take the following: A dealer in one of our large cities had been operating a store several doors from a good corner. He told the writer a number of times that he was dissatisfied with the place and would move at the first opportunity. He was advised to make the store more conspicuous, have the front repainted, and place one or two attractive signs. He admitted that "that might do some good," but never tried to do it. In addition, he had a show window two feet deep, which was never used as it should have been.

Several months ago he vacated this store for a location in a neighborhood where his patrons considered they were "blowing themselves" when they invested in a nickel cigar. There were enough people there, but thy did not buy the kind of goods he wanted to sell. His stock of cigars, selling at ten cents and upwards, were drying on his shelves when the writer called upon him a short time ago. He was disgusted at the outlook and said, "I wish to heaven I had stayed at my old place. That was bad, but this is rotten."

That fellow would not have made good in any but the very best location. His old stand was opposite the post office. There was not another store in that block, neither was there another store on any of the adjoining streets within a square or more. A young fellow, who had a number of good ideas on cigar retailing, took that stand shortly after the other man gave it up and is making good. He was no sooner in the store than he had the front repainted in a bright, but not gaudy, color. When he announced that he was going to place a sign or two in front of the store, he secured them for next to nothing from the manufacturers. And they were not the cheap wooden affairs that are so common.

The advantage of locating in a business district can be appreciated when it is taken in consideration that ofttimes a number of industrial establishments in a neighborhood, partly residential, are running on part time. There is a consequent business depression in that locality and the cigar dealer is the first one to suffer.

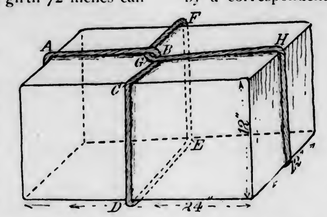
Many cigar dealers, who are new in the business, hesitate to take over a stand which the former owner could not make pay. But the man who has good judgment and can detect the weak points in the other fellow's methods of getting the trade and holding it will be rewarded for it. The instance quoted above is an example. A location, the best to be had, in the wrong hands will be of little use.

A young clerk going into business for himself should be careful about taking over another cigar store, particularly where the business, big at one time, has been run to the ground. Many smokers who went into that store before he took charge, did not get the service of goods they wished, and it often takes a good deal of persuasion to get that man to go into the store again, even under new management. It is sometimes advisable to start at a new place in preference to taking over a store which has been a failure in the hands of another. It has been said with a great deal of truth that it is far easier to take over a new store and fight for recognition than to rehabilitate a run down business.

The new clerk who is on the outlook can well afford to spend some time and thought on this question, weighing the advantages of each place. And when he starts up it is up to him to go after the business in the right way, to go after it hard.

THE MAXIMUM PARCEL POST PACKAGE

According to section 15 of the parcel post rules, no package which exceeds in combined length and girth 72 inches can be sent by mail. Another paragraph in the same section explains the term "combined length and girth" by saying that in measuring the length the greatest distance in a straight line between the two ends of the parcel shall be taken, while the girth is the actual measurement by a tape encircling the parcel at its thickest part.



This regulation raises the question as to the shape and dimensions of a package having the largest possible capacity and yet fulfilling the requirements of the Post Office Department.

The question is answered in the "Scientific American" by a correspondent whose contribution is accompanied by illustrations showing packages of four different shapes allowed by the regulation and we reproduce here one of these illustrations showing the shape and size of the package apparently the largest in capacity and most convenient to handle Its dimensions are 12 x 12 x 24 inches, the combined length and girth being the full length of the string A, B, C, D, E, F, G and H. Its capacity is 3456 cubic inches.

It is, of course, to be remembered that no matter what the shape no package weighing over 11 pounds can go by parcel post.

RETAIL KINKLES

Catchy Schemes Used Successfully By Thinking Men To Improve, Enlarge and Popularize Their Business . . .

A cigar merchant in one of our Western cities, who runs a well-paying billiard parlor in connection with his cigar business, decided recently that he would be compelled to open a "Lost and Found" department if his patrons did not cure themselves of absentmindedness. Many men came through the store daily. Often at night, after the place was closed up, he found packages that he could not account for. Several times men came and inquired for them afterward and they were not to be had. While he was not responsible for them, he felt annoyed that the wrong persons had secured them. At the suggestion of a clerk he had a small card, of striking design, made. The card was about eight inches square. On a white background, with letters in red an inch high, he had printed,

A Suggestion for Absent Minded Patrons

HAVE YOU FORGOTTEN ANYTHING?

Over all the card in a faint blue was printed an interrogation point. This scheme worked out to perfection. Many men started out and just as they reached the door would notice the sign. They would suddenly remember, and with a sheepish look go to the back of the store to the billiard room and come out with an umbrella, raincoat or package they had forgotten.

Since wireless telegraphy has occupied a great part of the public's attention the past two years, a display used in the window of a Western cigar dealer a short time ago is well worth attention. This plan can be used in selling almost any kind of goods, but was originated by a cigar dealer.

The first requirement for the display is a wireless telegraph sending outfit. This is placed in the centre of the window on an artificial rock. Any window dresser can arrange this effectively. The cigars, cigarettes, or whatever variety of goods are selected for display, are arranged around the rock. A background for the display can then be painted, showing a lighthouse scene. On the sky of the background is painted, "P. D. G. A Wireless to you. Try a ——— cigar and be on the safe side. They sell for five cents." The originality of the merchant may suggest some other wording which may apply better on another occasion.

The wireless apparatus in the window is then connected at the back of the window to a small motor so that the loose ends of the wire strike every time the motor makes a revolution. This produces an effect to the passersby of the wireless outfit sparking and is a realistic and catchy bit of display work.

If you are located in one of the states which have stringent cigarette laws and naturally want to keep on good speaking terms with the law, a plan used by a cigar dealer recently for squaring himself with both parties of the transaction is worthy of emulation. This dealer had a picture frame made just large enough to hold a copy of the cigarette law, in which the law was pasted. Every time a boy came in the store to purchase cigarettes, and the dealer decided he was not twenty-one years of age, he was referred to the copy of the law, hanging nearby. It is a simple and effective way of handling the situation.

Refers Young Smokers to Copy of Cigarette Law

The Endorso Cigar Co., a mail order New York house, is a firm believer in treating its customers well and making friends of them. The following recent happening shows the value of such treatment:

Shows How Courtesy and Square Deal Pays in Business

A customer in Boston wrote in thanking them for some courtesy and stated that the house would surely gain by such treatment. Mr. Ficklen, the president, in replying stated that he was well aware of the value of courtesy and the square deal and remarked that, for instance, a doctor living at such a street and number, Dorchester, Mass., had recommended the house to Admiral Falger, of the United States Navy, and that the admiral had become a regular customer and had brought others also.

Some weeks later the first man wrote in ordering cigars and wound up: "By the way, you will note that I have moved to Dorchester. It may also interest you to know that a member of my family fell sick soon after we got here, and knowing no doctor and remembering the one you wrote about to me (who lives near us) I sent for him. He is now our family doctor and we both enjoy your cigars."

With the advent of summer and the vacation period, many cigar dealers can add a substantial sum to their income by handling novelties that appeal to the smoker about to enjoy his holiday.

Novelties That Sell in Tobacco Stores

A number of harmless trick novelties are finding a ready sale throughout the summer resorts where the patrons welcome a diversion.

A match box from which the matches disappear when brought into use, a trick cigarette case which flies open and inflicts a sharp blow upon the thumb of the person attempting to use it, and a running cigarette case, regulated by clockwork and which moves across the table, are among the latest novelties that have attracted considerable attention.

A hook for a hat rack with a spring which precipitates the hat or cloak upon it, to the floor, and a fountain pen which shoots small pellets, are other novelties which have received considerable distribution.

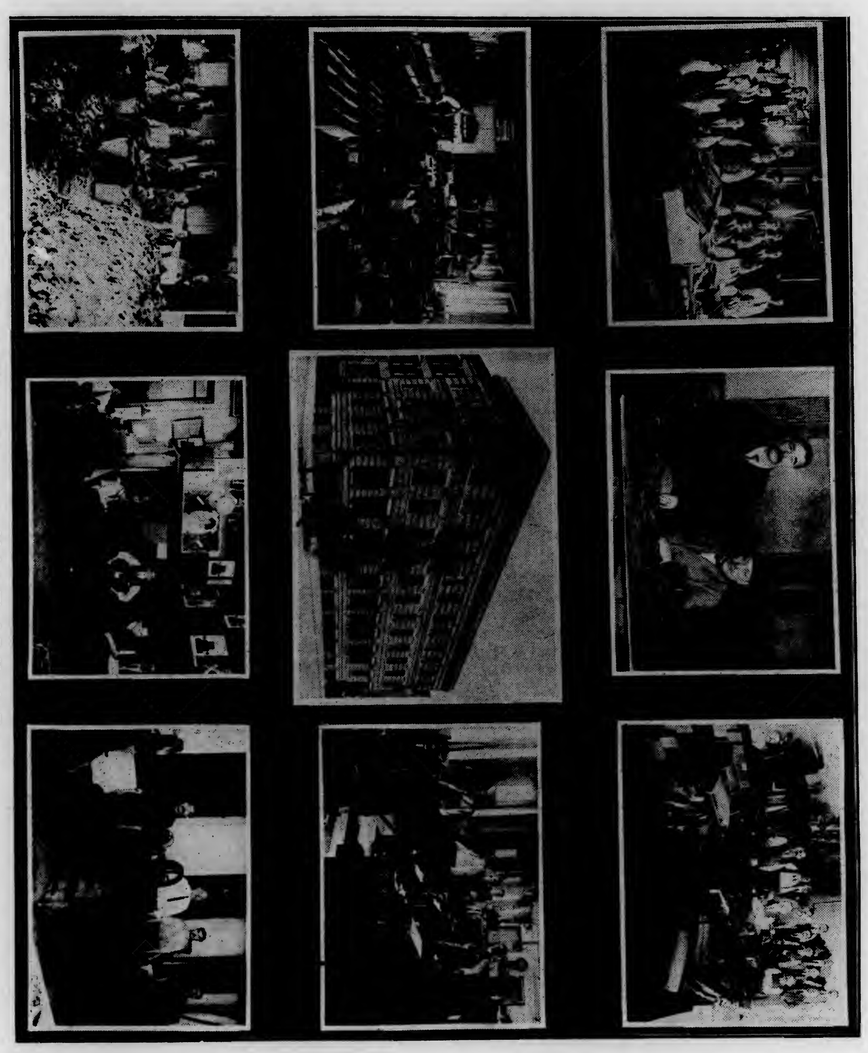
Photos of Customers a Good Scheme

Standing on the sidewalk in front of his store, Mr. Dealer took a snapshot of people entering or leaving his store, until he had secured enough "backs" to make a a fair sized picture. The entire picture was placed in the window, and any person identifying himself to the satisfaction of the judges was awarded a prize of cigars or some small smoker's article.

Upon the application of creditors, a temporary receiver was named for Robert Harris & Bro., manufacturers, at Reidsville, N. C., on June 10. The court ordered a return on June 22 to show cause why the firm should not be declared bankrupt.

P. Buzzard, the retail tobacconist, on Fox Street, Aurora, Ill., has sold out his shop to Henry Franklin.

VIEWS OF A BUSY BROOKLYN CIGARETTE FACTORY



How the Fifth Ave. Cigarettes Are Made in The I. B. Krinsky Factory

A newspaper reporter with a sense of curiosity recently conducted a smoke census at Cheyenne, Wyo. On entering the men's waiting room at the Union Pacific depot, he was struck by the number of people who were smoking. A count of the occupants of the room showed forty-eight people present. Of this number, thirty-one were smoking either pipe, cigar or cigarette.

The cigarette easily led other forms of indulgence, nineteen of the tobacco users having cigarettes in their mouths. The other twelve smokers were equally divided between pipes and cigars.

Of the seventeen who were smoking at the time, inquiry developed that five were addicted to the habit of smoking, though not indulging at that moment. Six stated that they did not smoke but used chewing tobacco.

This left but six people out of a total of forty-eight, who did not use tobacco in some form. If the percentage is a fair estimate of the remaining male population of the country, the use of tobacco must be spreading.

An interesting story came out of the West recently about one of the well-known traveling salesmen for a New York house. This man was standing on a corner in St. Louis when a shabby stranger approached him and asked for the "makins." The salesman always made his own cigarettes and had been occupied in this when the stranger approached him. The salesman had put the bag in his pocket, but on the request of the hobo took it out and handed it to him. The stranger fumbled with it for a time, then grumbled, "It's empty," and threw it in the gutter and walked off. A short time later the salesman, needing another smoke, walked in a store and bought a pack of tobacco. After using it he put it back in his pocket and discovered another sack. He did not stop long before he made tracks for the place he had been approached by the stranger. He was after the "empty" bag. It had contained almost $300. Needless to say the bag or the stranger have not yet been located.

Tobacco interests of Los Angeles, Cal., have just won a notable victory in the election of Judge Henry Howard Rose as mayor of that city. Mr. Rose was backed by the liberal element of the city, and his platform was "Progress and Prosperity." The Tobacco Dealers' Association of Southern California, espoused his cause and took a very active part in the campaign. A committee consisting of Anthony Schwamm, Tobe Harris, Harry Havel, Charles Bennett and Morris Burke were appointed by the tobacconists to assist in the election of Mayor Rose. They succeeded.

She—To be nearest your heart, my own?

He—Yes, love. Incidentally, the young man refrained from saying that he wished to protect the cigars in his right-hand breast pocket.

If you are a member of the Anti-Smoking Crusade League, do not commence to peddle your views to F. W. Scott, who lives in New London, Conn. Mr. Scott, some time ago, went to see his physician and was advised by that worthy gentleman not to smoke his regular quota of cigars, unless he wanted to make an early exit from life. His patient, however, was recalcitrant and happened to be among the passengers on board the Boston express which was wrecked at Stamford two or three days ago. Mr. Scott was in the "Skylark" which was crushed by the engine from the rear, and after repressing his desire for a smoke for some time, finally walked forward towards the day smoker just as the tragedy occurred. This action saved his life, and physician or no physician, Mr. Scott states that he shall smoke as long as he has the necessary change to get himself a perfecto.

Cigarette smokers, beware! A poor chap in New York City who was an inveterate smoker and a teamster as well, accidentally pushed the lighted end of a cigarette against his nose some ten days ago, and as a result, within twenty-four hours a serious case of erysipelas developed. The poor chap was taken to the Bellevue Hospital in New York, and after a long day's suffering died there on the fourteenth instant.

Julius Frumpkin, who conducts the cigar store, 139 South Main Street, Salt Lake City, Utah, with a saloon in the rear, but which does not belong to him, was arrested recently for opening his store on Sunday. According to the state law, it is prohibited opening on Sundays a cigar store in front of a saloon. Mr. Frumpkin proposes to test this provision of the state liquor law by raising this point at the preliminary hearing, and if it is not upheld, he proposes carrying the matter to higher courts.

THE ONLOOKER.

Tobacco Products to Declare Dividend

At a meeting to be held in the near future, the directors of the Tobacco Products Corporation will, it is reported, declare their second quarterly dividend on preferred stock, which will be payable July 1. It is stated that the advance in the preferred stock of the Tobacco Products Corporation is due to the good buying influenced by the heavy business the company has shown within the last few months. The sales for April and May were larger in the aggregate than for any other two months since the incorporation of the company.

Steigerwald Factory Busy

The John Steigerwald & Co., Philadelphia, have been making excellent progress under the present management and are today in better shape than they have been for several years. Their books are well filled with orders and reports from their customers indicate that their two brands, the "Latonia" and "El Borita," are finding favor wherever they have been distributed.

REMOVAL

The main offices and the editorial rooms of "The Tobacco World" have been removed during the past week to 236 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Here, housed in our printing establishment, the management and the representatives of "The Tobacco World" are in closer touch with the tobacco centers of Philadelphia than they have been heretofore, and the local trade, as well as visitors to the city, are invited to call in at any time they desire information, or happen to be in the passing throng.

The new phone numbers of "The Tobacco World" will be announced in the next issue, July 1, but in the meantime, the office may be reached through Bell Telephone "Lombard 38-51" and Keystone Telephone "Main 18-24."

It's Up to Mr. McReynolds

There was something of a gasp when the announcement was made last week in Washington that the McReynolds plan for a graduated tobacco tax was a personal measure and by no means a settled policy of the present administration. This action of President Wilson's had a salutary effect in more than one quarter, and indicated that the Chief Executive was by no means prone to grasp hold of a thorny bush without very careful consideration. It is well known that the Attorney General has never been satisfied with the final work of the United States Circuit Court in the dissolution of the American Tobacco Co., but it might also be recalled that the plan for dissolution which was adopted for the protection of all interests involved, really emanated from the minds of the most astute corporation lawyers in the United States working with the Attorney General, and was not the job of a few weeks or even months.

It is apparent that Attorney General McReynolds is still dissatisfied with the work accomplished, but his fertility will be taxed to the utmost, we believe, to devise a scheme for proceeding against the big concerns. We doubt seriously whether the mandates of the court can be upset. The rub of the wohle matter is that in the fierce warfare for business which is now being waged by the three big companies who formerly composed the American Tobacco Co., the smaller manufacturers in the trade are suffering more directly than ever. Whether this competition be genuine or not, the result is the same.

Good News About Havana Prices

The announcement has been made that the list on "Partagas" and "Hoyo de Monterrey" had been restored to the old figures a few days ago, means a great deal more than is apparent on the surface.

It would lead us to believe that the fight for the maintenance of prices on Cuban-made clear Havana cigars had been won by the importers, and that the cut-rate war, which appeared to be very imminent, has been checked. To our mind there has not been a more foolish bit of merchandising in years than the recent attempt to unsettle the retail market for Havana goods, perfectos especially. The consuming public want standard 25-cent cigars and they do not want to see them hawked in the retail stores at 18 cents, 19 cents and 20 cents apiece.

The cut-price war on Havana perfectos, and several other grades, has been directly felt by our Tampa, Key West and New York manufacturers of clear Havana goods, who are quite content to let the 25-cent Cuban perfecto supply the demands of customers who want this price cigar, and to get their volume of business out of the 15-cent and 20-cent sizes.

The inside story of the cut on Havana perfectos will some day be told in its verity and will make interesting reading.

In the meantime, with the list at $1.90 less 5, for two of the popular grades, and $1.80 less 1 per cent. for practically all of the rest, the current of importations is running smoothly.

Don't wait for the boss to tell you everything that you must do. Every time you do something, a little outside of the regular routine, without being told, you rise one step higher in his estimation. If you have a good idea for improving the store service, don't keep it to yourself. Tell it to the "man higher up," the fellow that pays you your salary.

Personalities

John Wardlow in Havana

President John Wardlow, of the Ruy Lopez Ca., arrived in Havana via the "Olivette" on the eleventh instant. Mr. Wardlow states that business for them has picked up with a rush during the last two months, and that their orders from the West have been particularly good. He will remain in Cuba for about two weeks and secure all the business he can out of the new crop of tobacco.

Don Pepin Rodriguez Here

Don Pepin Rodriguez, one of the foremost Havana cigar manufacturers, is making a short visit to America preparatory to embarking for Europe. The head of the Romeo y Juliette factory is an enthusiastic golf player and while in this country is likely to pit his talent against some Yankee cigar men, who think they can play the Scottish game.

G. D. Gifford, who has been prominently connected with the American Tobacco Co., and also the little cigar department of the Lorillard Co., has resigned to accept an executive position with the Tobacco Products Corporation.

Bernard Cohen, foreman of the Lesher Cigar Manufacturing Co., has just returned to Lansing after a trip to Detroit. Mr. Cohen inspected a number of the big plants in Detroit and returned convinced that the C. P. L. factory is one of the most sanitary in the State of Michigan.

Julius Marquessee, the well-known leaf tobacco merchant of New York, was a recent visitor to Dayton, O., where he has extensive interests.

W. J. Snyder, Orangeville, Ill., is the new owner of the cigar store corner of Galena Avenue, Freeport, Ill., formerly operated by Mr. Morrill.

J. L. Selikowitz and M. Chain, of Pittsfield, Mass., have joined forces to engage in the tobacco business under the title of the New York Tobacco Co., their store is to be located in the Lyric Building, 411 North Street. A specialty will be made of "Berkshire" and "Loraine" cigarettes, Mr. Chain formerly having given these brands much of his attention.

At a recent meeting of the directors of the Porto Rican-American Tobacco Co., a resolution was adopted authorizing the payment on Judy 1, of the first installment of interest of six per cent. per annum on scrip series A. & B. to scripholders of record, June 15.

Solomon L. Mossler, formerly a cigar dealer, located 601 West 180th Street, New York, a short time ago filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $1205 and no assets.

Americans Buy 1700 Bales of Sumatra

CABLE advices from Amsterdam relative to the inscription sales held June 13, state that there were 1700 bales disposed of to Americans. Among the leading American buyers were: G. Falk & Bro., 700 bales; A. Cohn & Co., 419 bales; E. Rosenwald & Bro., 50 bales; S. Rossin & Sons, 50 bales; H. Duys & Co., 220 bales, J/H/Deli and other brands; Benj. Labe & Sons, of Philadelphia, 175 bales, and Meyer & Mendelsohn, 27 bales. Joseph Hirsch & Son and Yocum Bros., of Reading, also bought.

Cleveland

CLEVELAND, O., June 13.

CONDITIONS are extremely bright among the jobbing manufacturing and retail trade. Manufacturers are extremely busy, and the majority of them are having great trouble in filling their orders owing to the scarcity of labor. The labor question has been a great problem here since before the first of last year, scarcely a factory but what has been held back, and several of them are contemplating opening up in other cities where labor is not at a premium.

The retail trade is coming along nicely now, and business is increasing steadily in spite of the ban on dice. Those retailers who feared that the abolishing of the dice game would hurt business have been agreeably surprised to find their trade increasing instead of diminishing, and to find a better class of trade frequenting their stores. If the ban were to be lifted today the majority of the big retailers and a great many of the smaller ones would not resume the game.

The jobbing trade has taken on a very healthy aspect, and all look forward to a big increase over the first six months of the year.

When Henry Fagan opened his store at Superior Avenue, it looked more like Flower Shoppe that a cigar store. This popular young retailer had one of the biggest opening days ever held in Cleveland, and if the first day's business is any criterion he will soon be up among the leaders.

Nate Leichman's two new locations at Superior and West Ninth and West Twenty-fifth and Detroit are exceeding his fondest expectations. He has devoted a lot of time to making his windows attractive, and has been repaid for his pains by the many new faces that are being attracted to his several stores. The past week he displayed "La Saramitas" (Shields-Wertheim Co.), and was more than pleased with the increased sale of these goods, which he attributes to his classy window displays plus the merits of the goods.

Morris Glucksman with two stands in the new Leader Building is enjoying a steady increase. Eddie Blitz, who assisted Mr. Glucksman in opening these locations, has returned to the road.

Robert Heaney, manager of the Joseph T. Snyder cigar stores, reports business exceedingly good. Mr. Heaney leaves for a combination business and pleasure trip, accompanied by his wife and family. He will stop off at Toledo and Detroit and say "Howdy do" to the boys in the several stores, and from there will go to Flint, Mich.

J. M. Gans, of Gans Bros., New York, was in town the past week, shaking hands with his many friends, and incidentally taking away some nice business.

Ed. Wodiska and Hiram Hammer, of Corral & Wodiska Co., were in town the past week, and found everything to their entire satisfaction.

Grover Mendelsohn, of the Mendelsohn Co., has just left for a short trip through Indiana to call on the firm's jobbers in that territory. Business has been exceedingly good with them, and their only complaint is to get labor enough to turn out their many orders for "Rigolettos," "Decisions" and "Opinions."

I. J. Mittleberger, of the Neumann-Mayer Co., Philadelphia, returned from New York, where he went to attend the funeral of Mr. Mayer. Mr. Mittleberger leaves again in a few days for a long trip through the Western States, where he has many jobbers carrying their "White Knight" and "Bella Mundo" cigars.

J. B. Shields, of the Shields-Wertheim Co., has just returned from a flying trip through the West, and brought back several big orders on "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives."

J. M. Jenkinson has been in Cleveland the past couple of days on business.

Nate Weisenberg, formerly of this city, and now of Nashville, was in town for a couple of days, making all arrangements for his opening in the Southern city, which takes place in about two weeks. Mr. Weisenberg will feature "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives" and "Englo" cigars.

Al McCracken, formerly with the R. & W. Jenkinson Co., has connected himself with the Fred G. Gollmar Cigar Co., and will have charge of the lower stand in the Arcade.

Charles Shuethelm, in charge of the Arcade stand of the Standard Drug Co., has built up an elegant cigar trade, due mainly to his genial personality. He is a wonderful student of human nature, and applies this every minute of the day, thereby making a friend as well as a customer of a man.

Mr. I. Teitelbaum, of the I. Teitelbaum Co., is making an extended tour of the West, and every mail is bringing in orders, which are taxing the factory to the limit to turn out.

Fred Singer, of S. Rossin & Sons, was in town the past week. He left here well satisfied with the business he received. He believes that the outlook for fall business is the best in recent years. The best proof of that is that his business so far has been way beyond any year since he has been in the leaf tobacco game.

Stace & Vincent, who have the finest pool and billiard parlors in the Middle West are showing the public how to run a strictly high-grade establishment. Their separate ladies' billiard room is attracting much attention, and there isn't a day goes by that they don't have two and three ladies' parties. Their jobbing business is also coming along nicely, and they threaten to cut as big a swath in the jobbing business as they have in the pool and billiard game. Their "Stavina" and "Sonada" brands are displayed in nine-tenths of the cigar cases in this section.

OBITVARY

Henry A. Repetto, a prominent leaf tobacco dealer, of St. Louis, Mo., died suddenly in the Deaconess Hospital, St. Louis, May 28. Mr. Repetto, who had been in ill health for some time, took a trip to recuperate, but an attack followed shortly after his arrival home, which resulted fatally. Mr. Repetto was a well-known figure in the leaf tobacco trade of St. Louis, and the cigar manufacturers of the Mississippi Valley. He is survived by a widow and six children.

John Hinton, aged eighty-three years, member of a pioneer Pittsburgh family, which had been engaged in the tobacco business for several generations back, died at the home of his daughter in that city a short time ago. He was a son of Valentine Hinton, who was engaged in the wholesale tobacco business for a number of years in Penn Avenue, Pittsburgh. He leaves a widow and six children.

Isaac Horner, head of the grocery house of Henry Horner & Co., of Chicago, died at his home a shore time ago, aged fifty-nine years. Horner & Co., are large distributors of cigars. Mr. Horner had associated with him five brothers, who, it is understood, will continue to operate the business.

Olof Andrew Neilsen, son of Commodore Charles J. Neilsen, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and for a number of years connected with his father in the cigar manufacturing business, died a short time ago, after a brief illness, in Poughkeepsie, N. Y. He was thirty years of age..

Raymond Martinez, a retired cigar manufacturer, died a short time ago, at his home, 567 Seventh Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., from a complication of diseases. He was born in Spain seventy-one years ago, and is survived by a widow, three sons and a daughter.

William N. Dowler, of Gloversville, N. Y., a cigar manufacturer, later proprietor of a retail tobacco stand in that city, died recently at his home from a hemorrhage of the brain. Mr. Dowler was forty-five years of age and is survived by a widow.

Hesse Rosenstock, well known in Omaha, Neb., as having been engaged in the wholesale leaf tobacco business in that city, for more than thirty-five years, died recently of Bright's disease after a long illness. Mr. Rosenstock is survived by a widow and four daughters.

Henry G. Jackson, widely known as a cigar manufacturer and one of the pioneers in that industry in Binghamton, N. Y., died a short time ago at his home in that city. Mr. Jackson had been active in political affairs, at one time having been Democratic state committeeman.

John L. Thompson, a Buffalo, N. Y., cigar broker, died recently at his home in that city after a long illness. He had been connected with the firm of Philip Becker & Co., at 266 Pearl Street, Buffalo.

Emil J. Smith, a cigar dealer at Buffalo, N. Y., died a short time ago from heart trouble. Mr. Smith, who was thirty-nine years of age, was at one time a cigar manufacturer, and later, a member of the firm of Smith & Rupp.

J. C. Joyslin, a cigar broker, of Minneapolis, Minn., died at his home in that city a short time ago, fifty-eight years of age. Mr. Joyslin had a wide experience in the cigar trade, having been a retailer, a salesman, and later, a general cigar broker.

Samuel Phelps Newberry, for more than fifty years a tobacco grower of South Windsor, Conn., died at his home in that place recently, aged seventy-seven years. He is survived by five children.

William H. Ball, a successful tobacco raiser, of Massachusetts, for more than thirty years, died recently at Stillwater, West Deerfield, that state, after a short illness. Mr. Ball was seveny-two years of age. He was never married.

John Shivery, a cigarette manufacturer, died recently in the King's County Hospital, New York. He was fifty years old and was born in Syria.

James Claude Jackson, a cigar manufacturer of Mobile, Ala., died recently at his home, 612 Congress Street, that city. He is survived by a mother, a brother and two sisters.

Patrick H. Crahen, a Beloit, Wis., cigar manufacturer, died a short time ago, aged sixty-four years.

William A. Wilson, the veteran New England tobacco grower, died at his home in North Hadley, Mass., on June 9, aged sixty-seven. He is survived by two sons.

Tobacco Warehouse for Dearborn

The citizens of Dearborn, Mo., through the work of W. R. Holland, secretary of the Western Tobacco Growers' Association, have organized for the erection of a big tobacco warehouse in Dearborn, Mo., to be built by local subscriptions.

The Olander Cigar Factory has just been incorporated at Minot, Ward Co., N. R., with a capital of $25,000. The incorporators are A. C. Olander, E. W. Myers and Paul Olsen.

W. J. Snyder, of Orangeville, Ill., has acquired the Morrill cigar store, at Galena Avenue and Galena Street, Freeport, Ill., having succeeded F. F. Meeker. Extensive alterations are planned by Mr. Snyder.

The firm of Overkamp Bros., who operate a first-class cigar factory and have manufactured several private brands of their own at 112 North Fourth Street, Lyons, Ia., for twenty-five years past, has been succeeded by Theodore Overkamp, this gentleman having purchased the interest of his late brother, John H. Overkamp, in the concern.

M. M. Schwabe has just bought the fine cigar stand in the Union Building, San Diego, Cal., formerly operated by E. W. Hadley and W. C. Benton.

JOBBERS & DISTRIBUTORS DEPARTMENT

Goodman-Kinstler Creditors Have Receiver Appointed

Creditors of the Goodman-Kinstler Cigar Co., of No. 6 Church Street, New York, have brought proceedings against that concern, a petition being filed on April 6. It is understood that one of the largest creditors of the concern is the American & West Indies Sales Co., of New York, who hold a note for $1000 dated Los Angeles, Cal., December 15, 1912. The Goodman-Kinstler Co. maintain a branch house in Los Angeles. Other creditors hold notes approximating $1500 in value. The assets of the concern are based at $14,831.69, with liabilities of $100,690.89.

Frederick C. McLaughlin, 175 Broadway, has been appointed receiver by Judge Holt, who has authorized him to continue the business of the concern for twenty days. S. B. Goodman is president of the Goodman-Kinstler Cigar Co. It was capitalized at $25,000 and was organized about five years ago.

Hirschl & Bendheim Discontinue St. Louis Business

Hirschl & Bendheim, 411 North Third Street, St. Louis, Mo., have announced that they will discontinue their cigar and tobacco business, after a business career extending over forty-two years. Hereafter, they will confine their efforts to the manufacture of corncob pipes. They have been manufacturing such well-known makes as "Sweetheart," "Old Glory" and a number of others, and are fairly well known all over the country.

The factory and offices in the future will be located in Washington, Mo. The stock of Hirschl & Bendheim has been taken over by the Peter Hauptman Tobacco Co., of St. Louis, who will distribute the products of the former in that city.

A. S. Goodrich & Co. Reorganized

A. S. Goodrich & Co., of Milwaukee, Wis., the head of which, A. S. Goodrich, was killed recently in an automobile accident, has been taken over by C. L. Heintz, Herbert J. Cordes and Harry Richards, all of whom have been connected with this concern for some time.

A charter has been applied for by the new owners to incorporate the business with a capital of $100,000, after which the firm will do business as A. S. Goodrich Co. There will be no change in the employees of the concern nor in the method of conducting the business. They will continue to distribute the same lines of cigars in the future. Among them will be the "Sight Draft," W. K. Gresh & Sons; "El Verso" and "San Felice," Deisel-Wemmer Co., and the "Cinco," Otto Eisenlohr & Bros.

New Jobbing House for Seattle

Brown Bros. & Matthews are now occupying their new quarters at Fourth Avenue and Cherry Street, Seattle, Wash., and will conduct a sub-jobbing business. Brown Brothers were engaged in the retail business for several years, while Mr. Matthews was city salesman for the National Grocery Co.

New Distributor for S. R. Moss Cigar Co.

THE S. R. Moss Cigar Co. have completed arrangements with Mason, Ehrman & Co., Portland, Ore., whereby this firm becomes the northwestern distributors for the "Royal Circle" cigar. A shipment of 75,000 cigars of perfecto shape has been received, and with the assistance of Adolph Sinsheimer, who represents the manufacturers in the West, active campaigns have been inaugurated in the States of Oregon, Washington and Idaho.

Bella Mundo Cigars Make Good in Buffalo

Jay R. Gardiner, Buffalo, N. Y., distributor for "Bella Mundo," made by the Neumann-Mayer Co., Philadelphia, reports a steady increase in sales on this brand during the past fortnight. The "El Tello" cigar, from the same manufacturer, is also meting with favor.

The "La Mega" cigar of V. Guerra, Diaz & Co., Tampa, is being pushed with unusual vigor by Mason, Ehrman & Co., of Portland, Ore. This high-grade piece of Tampa goods is one of the leading sellers.

The Neudecker Tobacco Co., of Baltimore, distributors of the "44" cigar, 44 Cigar Co., are pushing this brand throughout that section of Maryland with pronounced success. They had the assistance of W. H. Nicholson, the Southern representative of the manufacturers, in carrying on this work.

The W. S. Conrad Co., who have had a steel and concrete building built for them at First Avenue, N and Seventh Streets, Minneapolis, are now well established in this building. It is a most up-to-date affair, the building being planned in such a manner that ample space is allowed for display room. They will do a jobbing and retail tobacco business at this location.

Edward Gettin and Paul Wickham, of the Hettin & Wickham Cigar Co., Omaha, Neb., will open a new stand at 1322 Farnam Street, that city, in the Albert Cahn Building, on June 15. Mr. Wickham will have charge of the store.

William Fleming, who has been engaged in the manufacture of cigars in Burlington, Kan., is reopening his factory there and making the five-cent cigar "Booster."

A sub-jobbing business will shortly be opened in Seattle, Wash., by David Matthews and Hill Brown. They are now looking for a suitable location. Mr. Matthews was formerly with the National Grocery Co. Mr. Brown is a member of the firm of Brown Bros., of Seattle.

The retail and wholesale cigar house of Rosenau & Stripleman, formerly located at LaSalle and Lake Streets, Chicago, Ill., have removed to 2338 West Madison Street, which affords them better facilities for their wholesale department.

Late Jobbing Notes

Woolley & Co., exclusive jobbers of Manila cigars and cigarettes in Seattle, declare that the taste for these kinds of cigars is running to better grades. They recently received a shipment of Manila cigars consisting of some of the new sizes and the high-class stock. Mr. Woolley, of this concern, reported that recently that 75 per cent. of his retail trade on Manila goods is for high-class brands.

The Garthright-Chiles Co., of Richmond, Va., jobbers of the "La Famosa" cigar, E. Kleiner & Co., are just closing a most successful campaign on this brand in that territory. They have been using many windows in Richmond for attractive displays in popularizing this brand.

A new cigar stand has been opened in San Bernardino, California, by G. T. Webb.

Quarters have been leased at Fifty-first Street and Calumet Avenue, Chicago, for the United Cigar Stores Co., at a term rent of $10,500. This makes the eighty-sixth stand of this concern in Chicago.

Jack Levy, formerly of Levy & Levin, 76 Ellis Street, San Francisco, has purchased the stand of Simon Myrson at 310 Montgomery Street, that city.

The Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., of St. Louis, Mo., have leased quarters at 1317-1319 Pine Street, that city, which will be used for the advertising offices of this corporation. This space will also be used for storing matter used by the many missionary men of this concern in pushing the brands of the company.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed in the Federal Courts at Louisville, Ky., by Louis Berman, a cigar manufacturer. The assets are placed at $622.60, with liabilities of $2827.90.

The Industrial Cigar Co., of Pittsburgh, stogie manufacturers, will shortly move into their new three-story building on Enoch Street, that city.

John H. Hodge, president of the Hodge Tobacco Co., Paducah, Ky., is contemplating the erection of an addition to the warehouse occupied by the company at Ninth and Harrison Streets.

Harry K. Ramsey Dead

Harry K. Ramsey, who was for a number of years state agent in New Jersey for the American Tobacco Co., but who retired several years ago and has been living in Bound Brook since then, was stricken with apoplexy while serving as a juror in Somerville, N. J., on June 5, and upon being removed to his home, sank into a stupor from which he never rallied.

Mr. Ramsey was in his seventy-first year, and is survived by a widow and one son, Harry Ramsey, who conducts a retail cigar store in Bound Brook.

Chicago

Brisk Competition on Smoking Tobacco Results in Fat Premium Offers—Cigarettes Too Carry Double Premiums—Late Happenings in the Windy City

CHICAGO, June 12.

SMOKING tobacco dealers are in a strenuous campaign for business of late and all sorts of premiums are given away to induce the purchaser to take hold of their particular brand. "Giant" smoking tobacco offered a corn cob pipe with each package not long ago and during last week "Tuxedo" made the same offer with a 10-cent tin of that well known brand. "Central Union" is offering a sanitary drinking cup with each 10-cent tin of that brand. These premiums have resulted in a good run of business for the loop dealer while in progress. The run on "Tuxedo" in particular was brisk. A good many dealers reported at the end of the first day's offer that they were completely cleaned up on that brand. The report on "Giant" was also good, and a good many sales of the big package were made. The same is true of the other brands who offered premiums.

Cigarette men also are in a strenuous selling campaign. Almost every manufacturer of cigarettes has taken up the new miniature rug premium plan and it has proven a winner as far as getting results. Some of the brands have been having limited sales on their brands in which they are giving away two rugs with each package, which tended to stimulate business. The cigarette case premium also has been revived this summer and some very handsome cases have been given away with the popular brands.

The trade in small cigars has broadened considerably in this city of late. Many of the cigar manufacturers are putting some of their popular 10-cent brands in boxes of five, and they have proven a winner. The smoker of a small cigar wants good quality of tobacco in these goods, and cheap goods do not sell very readily. The dealers have noted the growing demand for these goods and many of the loop stores are featuring these goods.

J. Lanoff, a jobber located at 1015 South Halsted Street, returned from the Ninth District, Pennsylvania, recently. He purchased over 1,000,000 cigars in all shapes and sizes while there.

J. P. Galligan has opened a new Red Cross drug store in the Nebele Block. He has put in a lot of handsome fixtures for the cigar department.

E. Klimst has purchased the cigar store at 775 Milwaukee Avenue from Joseph Miller.

On June 4 the Illinois State Senate sounded taps over all anti-cigarette legislation. Miss Lucy Page Daston, head of the Anti-Cigarette League, sat alone in the main gallery with a tab and pencil while the Senators floundered through new mysteries of parliamentary practice to escape a vote on the question. A new bill introduced by Senator Canady was finally sent to the committee of manufacturers presided over by Senator Brady, one of the leaders of the opposition to the bill.

Richard J. Killick, of the firm of Kennedy & Killick, investment brokers, shot and killed himself while locked in a vault of the Fidelity Deposit Company, 116 West Randolph Street. Killick invented several tobacco brands while working with the Duke and Sorg companies many years ago, and in connection with this he claimed, in a letter he left behind him, that John J. Mitchell, president of the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank, and Charles H. Randle, an independent capitalist, practically had driven him to take his own life by refusing to pay him claims of $50,000 and $15,000 which he declared due him. Killick charged that he personally arranged deals by which the Sorg Company and the Duke Company combined and reached their working agreements with the American Tobacco Co., a series of deals by which he claimed there was great profit to Mitchell and Randle. Both the parties accused say that there is not a word of truth in the accusation.

William Prouty can truthfully say that he paid the highest price for a cigar ever paid before and then he did not get it. Prouty is a farmer who resides in Lincoln County, Ill. While passing the corner of State and Harrison Streets he met an affable stranger, who pretended to be an old acquaintance. After a few minutes' talk the stranger asked for the loan of 50 cents to buy the cigers, as he had left his money at the Blackstone Hotel. William had nothing smaller than a $10 bill, which he handed to his new friend. The gentleman in question went into the cigar store, but William waited a long time, and at last tiring also went into the store, but his new acquaintance had left through the side door with the money.

Maurice F. Rothschild opened a new cigar store in the Webster Building last week.

Cigar box makers reported business very active in their line. They say trade has improved greatly of late and shows an improvement over last year.

Albert Breitung left last week for New York, where he will sail for Europe to be gone throughout the summer months.

Best & Russell and Ryan & Raphael have secured the cigar and cigarette concessions at Sans Souci Park.

H. E. R.

PHILADELPHIA.

P. F. Albertz New President of Dusel, Goodloe & Co.

Willard Goldsmith and N. Popper, president and vice-president respectively of the local jobbing house of Dusel, Goodloe & Co., have resigned their positions in that concern, the resignations taking effect June 1. Neither Mr. Goldsmith nor Mr. Popper have announced any plans for the future. Paul Brogan, secretary and treasurer of the company, will remain in that capacity.

P. F. Alberty, formerly connected with the wholesale grocery and cigar house of Francis H. Liggett, of New York, as manager of their cigar department, succeeds Mr. Goldsmith as president. Mr. Alberty is said to have had a wide experience in the cigar business, one who is capable in every way for this position. He was at one time connected with the large wholesale house of J. & B. Moos, of Chicago.

Dusel, Goodloe & Co., have been pushing the "Cubanola" cigar the past month, a brand which was only taken on recently. The results so far are said to be all that were anticipated. This cigar is made in the Seidenberg factory in Detroit.

Benj. Labe & Sons, Amsterdam Buyers

A cable to his house, on June 6, from Mr. Benj. Labe, indicated that he was on the outlook for fine lots of Sumatra, and had secured seventy-five choice bales at the inscription of that day. On June 13, he bought 175 bales.

"Tungsten" Brand For Nashville Market

Jeitles & Blumenthal, Ltd., manufacturers of the "Masterpiece" and "Tungsten" cigars, have completed arrangements whereby Paul and John Stumb, Nashville, Tenn., will handle their "Tungsten" cigars in that city.

The Showell & Fryer Co. removed from their location, Juniper and Market Streets, on June 2 to their new location, Chestnut Street above Fifteenth. The cigar department has been well located in the new store, just as it was in the old. They expect to add several lines of cigars to the stock, including the "Webster" of Y Pendas & Alvarez.

Colonel Robinson, the popular manager of the cigar department of Thos. Martindale's, asked for a leave of absence about a month ago and is now enjoying himself at his home in Ventnor, N. J. Mr. Robinson is not expected "back on the job" until the first of September. Meanwhile W. S. Russell, who has been with the Martindale establishment for seven years, has charge of the cigar department.

The "Sintoma" cigar of Juan F. Portuondo Cigar Mfg. Co., has been placed with the J. S. Brown & Bro. Mercantile Co., of Denver, Col., by Warner Searles, their Western representative. This Denver wholesale house has been handling the Portuondo goods for more than twenty-five years.

Harry Bremer, of Lewis Bremer's Sons, the North Third Street leaf dealers, is now at Atlantic City, where he has been staying for several weeks. Mr. Bremer had been working hard and he was ordered by his physician to take a rest before a breakdown followed. He went away with the best wishes of his friends for a speedy recovery.

Sig. C. Mayer & Co., of Philadelphia, have appointed a new representative for the "Rey Oma" and "El Wadora" cigars in the person of John Schnecter, who will cover the Rocky Mountain States.

The cigar store of H. A. Lee, which has been located at 54 South Third Street, has been discontinued.

The Augustinez Cigar Store at 16 North Thirteenth Street has been removed to No. 22 North Eleventh Street. There is a "For Sale" sign on the old store.

Mr. King, the Cuesta-Rey representative, was a welcome caller among the trade recently.

R. Russell & Co., of Pittsburgh, have opened a new cigar store at Smithfield Street and Strawberry Way.

A rapidly increasing and enormous business on the "Cinco" cigar of Otto Eisenlohr & Bros. is being done by E. A. Saunders & Sons Co., the distributors for this brand in Richmond, Va., and adjoining territory.

The premium department of Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., at 805 Arch Street, recently opened, is now in full swing, although the manager, H. A. Hughes, stated that up to the present they had not received their full stock of premiums. All coupons from the cut plug tobaccos, cigarettes and scrap tobaccos, including "Fatima" cigarettes, are redeemed at this location.

The Twelfth and Filbert Streets cigar stand of the United Cigar Stores Co. has been discontinued. It is understood that this location has been controlled by the owner of the saloon a few doors below, Geo. Schott, who has announced that he wishes to use the entire front.

44 Cigar Company's Advertising Wagon

EVER alert to the further distribution of "44" cigars, the company have recently made an interesting addition to their sign department equipment in the shape of a specially constructed advertising wagon which they use exclusively for the delivery of their signs.

We reproduce herewith a photograph recently taken of a bulletin board sign in one piece, which shows the portrait on the right of F. B. Kirschner, of the "44" sign department; also Frank Davoli, who has been a crew manager throughout the country, and Max Lipschutz, the son of the president of the company, who has always taken personal charge and directed the work of this department, and to whom many of the cleverest of the company's advertising ideas are to be attributed.

The spring business of the "44" Cigar Company has been quite up to past records and with no abatement in sight.

Pittsburgh Manufacturers Exonerated

The indictments for involuntary manslaughter which the grand jury hysterically returned against the officers and directors of the Union-American Cigar Co., in Pittsburgh, growing out of the water tank accident at their factory, Twenty-eighth and Smallman Streets, recently, were thrown out by direction of the court on the fifth instant, and the defendants, President G. P. Waidley; J. M. Philbin, secretary, and Messrs. Bailey, Lang, Kitzmiller and Logue, directors, were honorably acquitted.

The deplorable accident resulted in the deaths of three girl cigarmakers, when the newly erected water tank crashed through the roof, but the manufacturers were absolutely blameless.

High Prices in Santa Clara

SYDNEY ROTHSCHILD, the well-known tobacco commission man, of Havana, in a personal letter to the "World," says that he has just returned from a recent trip through the Santa Clara provinces and that the district is in splendid shape. Mr. Rothschild, however, deplores the fact that just at present the people seem to be going mad about prices, paying as high as $22, which will mean first Capadura at least $60, and second from $45 to $50. He states that naturally a good many buyers are holding off with prices in such a state as this, and disaster must surely follow if merchants load with tobacco at these figures. Mr. Rothschild further adds that with the unsettled conditions in the States, and the general panicky feeling, and with a large crop in Cuba, he would advise conservatism.

Any of the following can suit you: Brunhoff Manufacturing Company, Cincinnati, Ohio; Art Metal Works, No. 7 Mulberry Street, Newark, N. J.; John J. Sander, 113 Maiden Lane, New York City.

Inquires for "Red Cherry" Brand

ALCOMA, WIS., June 7.

Editor THE TOBACCO WORLD:

Dear Sir,—Can you give us any information as to where we may buy a shoe peg cigar at $10 to $12 per thousand? Is there a cigar label made with some red cherries on it? Would like one called "Red Cherry." Will buy the cigars if they are put up under such a brand from $12 to $25. Prefer the latter price. Thanking you in advance for the courtesy, we beg to remain,

Yours very truly,
KUEHLMANN BROS.

Wants First District Cigar Manufacturer

BRONX, N. Y., May 9.

Editor THE TOBACCO WORLD:

Having learned that the "El Proposo" cigar is manufactured by Factory No. 555, First District of Pennsylvania, would appreciate, if you will inform me of the name and address of the manufacturer listed under this number.

Yours very truly,
MURRY LIVINGSTON,
941 Livingston Street.

Sulzberger & Oppenheimer Company, 1106 Montgomery Avenue, Philadelphia, are listed under the above number, but we believe that this factory was sold out to the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, who still operate it under the old name.

G. A. Watson to Leave Havana-American Co.

Announcement has been made that G. A. Watson will retire from the management of the Havana-American Co., at New Orleans, La., about July 1. Mr. Watson has been in ill health for quite some time and returns to his old home at Danville, Va.

W. P. Rison will succeed Mr. Watson, and though a young man, is widely known as a hustler and is familiarizing himself with his new duties prior to the departure of Mr. Watson.

Phlia. Brands Feature in Buffalo

W. A. Burke, formerly connected with Joseph T. Snyder, has opened a cigar stand in the new Marine Bank Building, Buffalo, N. Y. Mr. Burke is featuring "Rey-Oma," "Havana Ribbon" and "Flor de Jeitles," in addition to imported cigars, and carries a full line of cigarettes and tobaccos.

New Cigarette Co. Finely Organized

DURING the past few days the Cado Company, 26 Park Place, New York City, have placed on the market a new brand of Turkish cigarettes, which they expect to demand instant attention at the hands of discriminating trade. The new brand has been named "56," and the goods are packed as handsomely as any goods now on the market. The boxes are of pure white, with gold trimmings, and the covers show an embossed shield, and the name, "56," in raised gold letters. letters.

The "56" cigarettes are to be marketed at 25 cents for a package of ten, in both cork and plain tips, and a standard price of $18.50 per M. to the trade outside of Greater New York has been fixed, with the price at $17.50 in the Manhattan district.

The Cado Company has recently been incorporated with Charles Drucklieb as its president. Mr. Drucklieb has been known for many years as one of the most energetic and intelligent of our importers of Turkish tobacco, and his dip into the manufacturing end is quite a natural sequence. The Cado Company have been fortunate in securing as sales manager, Robert Appleton, whose work along high-class lines is well known, especially in the New York market. As a matter of fact, before really making any announcement, Mr. Appleton went out into the trade with his preliminary samples of the new "56" brand and placed the goods with hosts of private distributors in New York City, so that Park & Tilford, Charles & Co., Acker, Merrall, Condit & Co., British-American Cigar Co., as well as a score of exclusive hotels, have the new goods already on display.

Much of the success of this early work is due to the fact that the Cado Company have guaranteed that their goods shall not be marketed at cut prices.

For a national distribution, the company have engaged a most excellent staff of salesmen, which includes C. C. Lieb as Boston representative, R. A. Burke, Providence, R. I.; A. Andruss, covering the Middle West, and Count A. de Montaglas in the territory west of Salt Lake City to the Pacific Slope. This latter gentleman, although of the nobility, is a splendid salesman and has kept himself well before the public in his territory.

In addition to the "56" brand, which will be their stylish leader, the company will shortly offer the "Cado," a 20-cent package of ten, at $15 per thousand, and "Turkish Dreams," a 15-cent package, at $11 per thousand. A novelty in connection with these goods will be the detachable cork mouthpieces which come with each package, ten enclosed in a small envelope.

With the splendid connection of the Cado Company in the Far East, through Mr. Drucklieb's superior knowledge of the Turkish market, it is an assured fact that from the outset this company will be a big factor in the field. They have a splendidly located plant at 26-28-30 Park Place, and their equipment is second to none.

British-American Stores Title O. K.

A VAST deal of interest attended the decision rendered by the United States Circuit Court on Friday, the sixth instant, when Justice Ward handed down a decree dismissing the temporary injunction which was obtained some time ago by the British-American Tobacco Co., a foreign corporation, against W. W. St. John and others, in connection with the use of the name of "British-American Cigar Stores Co." Mr. St. John's company, some months ago, started the formation of a chain of retail cigar stores and stands in New York City, prominent among them being the stand in the New York Central Terminal, one at Forty-second and Vanderbilt Avenue, and another at Seventy-second Street and Broadway. These stands are operated by the British-American Cigar Stores Co., a United States corporation, the directorate of which embraces a number of exceedingly prominent financial men.

The British-American Tobacco Co., whose headquarters are in England, with New York offices at 200 Fifth Avenue, brought suit against the British-American Cigar Stores Co., restraining them in the use of the name and secured a temporary injunction.

In an argument before the court, Kearny & Dickinson, who represented the British-American Cigar Stores Co., maintained that the foreign corporation had not set forth facts in their bill of complaint which would constitute cause for a suit in equity, and the court upheld this contention.

Otto S. Murphy New Cayey-Caguas Manager

Dating from June 9, Otto S. Murphy, who has heretofore covered the Middle West for Storm, Fisher & Co., will look after the business of the Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Co. in Chicago, St. Louis and the Middle West territory.

Mr. Murphy is a real cigar salesman and is enthusiastic over his new connection. He says the present output of "Savaronas" are as fine cigars as could be produced, and that his company has a wonderful crop of the very choicest Porto Rican tobacco this year to keep goods right up to the notch.

Mr. Murphy's home is in Peoria, but he will have headquarters in Chicago.

"Clover Farms Shade Grown" Selling Fast

S. Loewenthal & Sons, importers of Havana and packers of leaf tobacco, 131 Maiden Lane, state that the trade is beginning to take hold in fine fashion of their "American Havana Shorts." Prices for this tobacco range from 10.5 cents to 23 cents. Business with this concern continues exceptionally good. They expect to be entirely sold out of their fine grade of Clover Farms shade grown before the first of September. This is the gilt edge proposition of this concern and is one of their biggest assets.

B. C. Keit is making good progress in Nebraska for this concern, as are H. Freund and E. B. Hauenstein, who cover the state of Pennsylvania. H. Gossman is now working Boston, I. Neumann, New Jersey; E. Hemple, West Virginia; Mr. B. Loewenthal, the South, and H. S. Loewenthal, the eastern part of the country.

New York City Items

According to the will of Andrew B. Willingham, late chief buyer of the American Tobacco Co., who was killed in an automobile accident a short time ago, he leaves an estate valued at $15,000. In addition to this, Mr. Willingham carried a considerable amount of insurance. All this will be left to Mr. Willingham's widow.

Leonard Cohn, of A. Cohn & Co., and of the American Sumatra Tobacco Co., will arrive home from the inscriptions on June 18, having sailed on the "Kaiser Wilhelm II." Julius Lichtenstein leaves shortly for his annual visit to the American Sumatra Co.'s great plantations in Florida and Georgia, to be present during the harvesting period.

Samuel Fisher, of Storm, Fisher & Co., has announced that Julius Lehmann is no longer connected with their firm, and that in future he would conduct the business individually under the same firm name.

Mr. Fisher has just returned from a two-weeks' trip out as far west as Chicago, and says that their affairs are shaping up nicely.

Morris J. Levi, formerly an officer and director of the American-West Indies Sales Co., has announced in a letter to the trade that he has severed his connection with that concern. Being well versed in the manufacturing of Porto Rican cigars and the packing of Porto Rican tobacco, Mr. Levi says that he will shortly continue to do business along the same lines. He is now making arrangements to put on the market a number of brands of Porto Rican cigars.

E. Rosenwald & Bro. announce that their purchases of Sumatra at the Amsterdam inscription on May 27, which consisted of 1800 bales, are composed of an unusually fine assortment of choice tobaccos. They are confident that their purchases will meet with the unquestioned approval of all their customers, stating that the tobacco is desirable in every particular, having every quality which is appreciated by the manufacturer of nickel cigars. Business is unusually good so far for them this year, the Sumatra selling extremely well.

Reshid Sadi Sails for Home

After several months' stay in New York, Reshid Sadi, one of the owners of the Pera Cigarette Co., sailed for London on the "President Grant" on the fifth instant.

He leaves the recently established American branch at 333 Fifth Avenue, New York, in excellent running order, and "Pera" cigarettes are rapidly attaining a wide distribution.

H. Table Porter has closed his connection with the Pera Company and Manager Zia Mufty has now associated with him Mr. Val Schultheis, who is an experienced merchandise and advertising man.

R. E. Lane Up in Canada

After getting his offices nicely settled on the second floor of 115 Broadway, Room 214, having removed from the sixth floor, Robert E. Lane, United States representative of the Partagas factory, made a quick break for Chicago and the Middle West, and has been cleaning up in fine style.

Mr. Lane at present is in Canada, where he finds conditions really much improved when compared with his last visit.

B. F. Alexander With A. Fernandez Garcia

Hereafter the selling of the clear Havana product of A. Fernandez Garcia, in New York and the United States, will be handled by B. F. Alexander, who has just opened new offices in the Woolworth Building.

Mr. Alexander is an experienced clear Havana man, and was recently connected with Cienfuentes, Fernandez & Co., selling Partagas goods. He will also handle the output of Tomas Gutierrez, Partidos goods, which factory is successor to the Juan Lopez factory at Havana.

Mr. Alexander has a good reputation in the trade and his friends predict big things for him in his new alliance.

Charles Barend Dead

New York City lost one of its oldest cigar manufacturers in the death on June 7 of Charles Barend, which took place at his home, 28 Fillmore Street, Brooklyn.

Mr. Barend came to the United States in 1856, when but twenty-nine years of age, and in the same year he established a cigar factory in New York City, remaining continuously in business until the first of May last.

He was born in London, England, in 1827, and is survived by three sons.

U. S. Tobacco Association Convenes

The Thirteenth Annual Convention of the Tobacco Association of the United States was held in Richmond, Va., on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 5, 6 and 7.

On Saturday the delegates and guests made a pilgrimage on the steamer "Pocahontas" to Jamestown, the birthplace of the tobacco industry, and the final business of the convention was transacted afloat.

Tazewell M. Carrington was re-elected president without opposition and the other officers include W. L. Petty, first vice-president; R. P. Watson, second vice-president; B. P. Eggleston, third vice-president; G. E. Webb, secretary and treasurer.

New and Modern Factory for "El Dallo" Cigars

THE new "El Dallo" factory of Wertheimer Bros., located at Gay and Preston Streets, Baltimore, Md., is now ready for occupancy, the formal opening being celebrated on June 7, by a dance given the employes. Acting as chaperons and hostesses, the wives of the four members of the firm contributed largely to the success of the evening.

The new building is a two-story structure, bounded by Gay, Preston, Durham and Wolf Streets, covering almost an entire block. The first floor contains the private offices of the firm, the stripping room and the work room proper, which allows for a force of 350 cigarmakers. Just beyond is the packing room where the cigars are examined, wrapped and boxed, after which they are transferred to closed compartments until such time as they are packed.

PENNSYLVANIA TRADE NEWS

Late Reports from Lancaster, York, Reading

Seedlings Very Scarce in Lancaster District

Prices Soar Upwards and Growers Are Alarmed—To Develop More Seed-Havana

LANCASTER, PA., June 13.

QUITE some alarm was evidenced at the meeting of the Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association, held Tuesday in this city.

The primary complaint is the scarcity of tobacco seedling plants. The very backward spring and the cold weather which has been experienced in this section have much retarded the development of the plants and the "slugs" which have gotten among the beds have caused much destruction.

Instead of a normal price of 50 cents per thousand for seedlings, quotations run as high as $3 to $4, and this has not helped by any means.

The pleasant weather of this week has given the farmers an opportunity to set out a lot of plants and it is probable that within the next day or so another crop will be planted, although the acreage for 1913 will show a yield much less in volume compared with that of last year, which is due to the fact of the low price of Pennsylvania broadleaf for 1912.

Quite a few of the growers in Lancaster County have set out Havana seedlings this year as an experiment, and we know of about 1200 acres which will be used for this purpose. There is no reason why good Havana tobacco should not be grown in Lancaster County. Altogether, the outlook is none too promising, when it is considered that the warehouses here have big lots of old tobacco on hand yet to be sold, and if the prices for the 1913 crop exceed those of last year, many will be delighted.

YORK, June 12.

OWING to the unsatisfactory results in disposing of the leaf from last year, hundreds of acres of tobacco land has been planted in potatoes. A number of growers, especially those located in the lower section of the county, have become affiliated with the organization effected some months ago at Red Lion, where the marketing would be left in the hands of an expert, but there are numbers of growers who are unable to avail themselves of this feature, and consequently decreased acreage is the result.

The highest prices paid for tobacco raised here last year was about six cents per pound for wrappers, but in some instances the prices were as low as three cents, while filler sold as low as one cent per pound. Several shipments to Wisconsin and Ohio have been reported.

With the State Tobacco Experimental Station established on the farm of H. L. Stein, near Red Lion, it was hoped that farmers would benefit from the co-operation afforded by the State and National Departments of Agriculture, and not only equal, but enlarge their acreage. The prices obtained seem to have discouraged the growers, and the decision to raise crops giving larger returns, seems well established.

Clyde Smith, a cigar manufacturer of Red Lion, is confined to his home and under the care of a physician as the result of bathing his feet with powdered alum.

Reading Retailers Willing to Discontinue Sale of Cigarettes

READING, June 10.

CONDITIONS among the leaf men and cigar manufacturers have not changed during the past fortnight. While the factories are running full handed in the majority of cases, an unsettled condition exists, due in a great measure to the uncertainty of the tariff, and the labor bills now pending in the Senate and House.

Reports received from Red Lion state that the acreage of tobacco will be considerably smaller the coming season than heretofore, as the prices obtained did not meet with the expectation of the planters. The new cigarette law is streaking with gray the heads of some of the local tobacco dealers who cater to a class of working young men and boys, as they are never sure but what the purchaser has misrepresented his age, even though he is liable under the Thompson Act to be held in conjunction with the dealer.

A number of cigar dealers have expressed a willingness to discontinue the sale of cigarettes, but so far none have advertised the fact, as they do not wish to cause customers any inconvenience.

The employes of the Fleck Cigar Factory have received their charter, which authorizes the organization of a relief association for the payment of sick and death benefits, and the election of officers will follow as soon as the necessary details can be arranged. J. Herbert Leiby, Frank D. Eneck, Oliver H. Weand, John Hessler, Allen D. Butzer and William Buhler are the subscribers.

Lancaster Growers May Try Seed Havana

LANCASTER, June 11.

CONSIDERABLE interest is manifested throughout this section as to whether planters will attempt to raise Havana seed in place of the Pennsylvania broad leaf.

Many growers realize that larger returns can be obtained from seed Havana if the quality is up to the standard, but they are beginning to realize that tobacco of this type requires considerably more attention than the native growth.

As the result of the meeting held some time ago, several growers are planning to raise binder tobacco, as they believe the soil is adapted to raising tobacco of this type, and secure a considerable portion of the business now obtained by the Wisconsin growers.

Practically all of the 1912 crop has been purchased, with prices the same as those paid during the past fortnight.

The demand for cheap tobacco still continues fair, and a number of sales of York County tobacco are reported.

Reports received from different sections show that the frost on Monday night did considerable damage to the plants which had been set out, in some instances entire patches will have to be replanted.

The death of Abram Brubaker occurred on June 11, at his home in Millersville, at the age of fifty-six years. Deceased was a tobacco packer, and for twenty-one years assessor of Manor Township.

B. F. Gonzalez, who recently started the manufacture of cigars in Gadsden, Ala., reports that his goods have met with a hearty reception in that city, and that he is pushing them in three shapes under the brand "Bennie Boy."

The Krummel Tobacco Co. have recently leased the four-story brick building at the corner of Broadway and Bedinger Streets, Cincinnati, for a term of five years.

Frank Ripley has just commenced the manufacture of two grades of 5-cent cigars, at Macomb, Ill., known as "High C." and "Zampa."

William Horlacher, who has been foreman for a number of years for the Cook Cigar Factory, at Norwalk, O., has recently purchased the business.

W. J. Lightbourn, manager of the Cortez Cigar Co., Key West, is at present in Havana on the lookout for tobacco purchases.

Herrick Johnson, who has been making good headway with his cigar factory at Cordele, Ga., has been making a quick trip to Tampa, Key West and Havana during the past ten days.

P. N. Jacobsen, cigar manufacturer, at Fourth and Harrison Streets, Davenport, Ia., reports that business with them has been so good that they have been compelled to operate night and day for the past ten days.

Kirvan & Davis Company, Portland, Maine. To manufacture and deal in tobacco and smokers' articles. Capital stock, $10,000; par value, $100; paid in, nothing. President, Hugh Davis; clerk, George F. Gould; treasurer, William H. Kirvan; directors, W. H. Kirvan, E. H. Davis and Stephen W. Hughes.

Detroit

The John P. Hemmetes Cigar Co. Brings Suit—Harry W. Watson Co. Secure Additional Cigar Privileges

DETROIT, June 9.

PROBABLY the most important news happening in this section of the world, so far as the manufacturers are concerned, is the $50,000 suit brought by the John P. Hemmeter Cigar Co. against John McNee & Sons, of Windsor, Ont., located directly across the river from Detroit. The Hemmeter Company alleges that the Windsor concern induced one of its foremen to go to Windsor and take a number of employes (96 in all) with him, which he did. With him he is alleged to have taken certain secret processes of the Hemmeter Company. A number of the employes who went to the Windsor concern were put on the witness stand and stated that they were induced to cross the river by the higher wages offered them. James McNee alleges that the Detroit cigar manufacturers are in a deal to crush competition from Windsor. From inside source it is learned that, no matter which way the decision goes, it will be taken before the Supreme Court, as both sides are anxious to have victory.

W. D. C. Moebs, proprietor of the Berghoff Hotel on Monroe Avenue, has leased his cigar department to the Harry W. Watson Co. for an annual rental said to be approximately $12,000. The stand is an excellent one, in the very heart of "Detroit's Gay White Way," and the most popular place in town for noonday luncheons and six o'clock dinners, to say nothing of the big evening trade in the grill. The Watson Company has also taken a lease on the cigar stand at the Hotel St. Claire, at the corner of Randolph and Monroe Streets, which is one of the leading hostelries in the city. The cigar business at the Hotel Griswold and the Berghoff is said to be the largest in the city. Both are now controlled by the Watson Company. Charles Bird, who has been manager of the Griswold stand, will also have charge of the Berghoff stand, dividing his time between the two places.

Commencing with Monday, June 2, the Harry W. Watson Co. took over the Detroit retail business on the "La Cavalerie" and "Miss Detroit" cigars, made by the Mazer Cigar Co. Heretofore the Mazer Company has handled its sales direct and has not pushed either brand in the downtown section, but with the sales staff maintained by the Watson Company there will be a big opportunity to place these brands in all of the leading cigar stores in the city. At all of the stands owned by the Watson Company a feature will be made of "Miss Detroit" and "La Cavalerie," both of which sell at 5 cents each. Jake Mazer says he is "tickled to death" over this new arrangement, as it will take a lot of work off his shoulders and will mean that he can devote more time to seeing that more goods are turned out. "The new combination is a good one; we know how to make them and the Watson staff knows where and how to sell them," he said.

Fire on June 1 did considerable damage to the stock of tobacco of the Winestone Cigar Co. on the third floor of the building at 263 Gratiot Avenue.

Charles Collins is now managing the cigar store at 242 Woodward Avenue. He was formerly associated with the Taylor Bros. Co., of Battle Creek, in the capacity of traffic manager. The concern went into bankruptcy a few weeks ago.

Ernest Lamkin, who has a cigar store at Grand River Avenue and Third Street, has retired as ticket taker at the Avenue Theatre after twelve years of continuous service. His cigar store has been a gold mine for more than twenty years and Mr. Lamkin will have no cause for worry, as during that time he has built himself a fine six-family flat building.

Omer Wurtz has opened a cigar store in Gaylord, Mich.

Edward Lichtig, of the Philip Morris Co., who has returned from a Northern Michigan trip, says that the resorts are well loaded up with stock and that all they need now is good, warm weather.

John S. Donavan has sold his cigar stock in Belding to Smith Stanton, who has already taken possession.

E. O. Smith has sold his stock of cigars in New Lothrop to Chester Walters, who will continue the business.

A cigar and newstand depot has been opened in the postoffice at Hubbell, Mich.

The "Horsehead" cigar, featured so strongly by E. M. Harris on Woodward Avenue, is made by E. M. Swartz, but the new "El Tyco" cigar is made by Perfecto Garcia & Co., and is proving a big seller. Mr. Harris states that business is picking up despite the keen competition on both sides of him.

The Cadillac Cigar Co., of Detroit; the Sedorah Cigar Co., of Detroit; the San Zeno Cigar Co., of Lapeer, and the Harry W. Watson Co., of Flint, are creditors of Stier Bros., of Lapeer, who have been declared bankrupt.

P. G. Klemos is spending $45,000 on his candy store on East Main Street. A new cigar case has been installed, which is modern in every respect.

Business at the Ponchartrian was exceedingly good the first week in June owing to the convention of the Society of Automobile Engineers, of which there were nearly 500, including their wives and friends. At their banquet was used "Count Ponchartrain" cigars and "Philip Morris" cigarettes. It was noticeable that they preferred imported cigars.

Ed Heineman, manager of the cigar department at O'Brien & Co., had a very attractive window display this week of "Seneca" cigars, which he says are proving a good seller.

"Herbert Tarryton," made by the Falk Tobacco Co., are gradually growing in demand. A representative of the company was here this week.

Paul Bagley, of the Bagley Tobacco Co., returned on Monday, June 9, from a six weeks' trip abroad.

Commodore M. B. Mills, president of the Banner Cigar Co., arrived in town this week after cruising in Southern waters all winter. After spending some time at the factory he will tour the Great Lakes.

Thieves entered the Richards drug store at 1568 Broadway, Grand Rapids, on June 5, and stole a quantity of cigars. Entrance was gained through a rear window.

Joseph Fisher, of Niles, has sold a half interest in the cigar and tobacco business to Theodore Harnish and the business will be known hereafter as Fisher & Harnish.

Harley Davidson, manager of the Hotel Cadillac cigar stand, has enjoyed a big business this week owing to the convention of the Tri-State Bakers' Association, which brought close to 800 bakers to the hotel for five days. Mr. Davidson has added the "Corina" in five different sizes. Tom Branyan, who was here recently, engineered the deal.

The Ambos Cigar Co. recently opened another branch cigar store and news emporium at 561 Grand River Avenue. Alterations are now being made and the completed store will be ready by July 1 at the latest. With his new store on Wayne Street, Mr. Ambos will have two places even when he is compelled to vacate his present stand at the corner of Shelby and Lafayette Streets.

The brands of Y. Pendas & Alvarez, F. Lozano & Co. and Jose Escalante are the largest sellers in Detroit of Tampa-made cigars, according to the statements made by the leading cigar dealers.

Oscar Rosenberger, of the San Telmo Cigar Co., is very much improved in health. He gets down to the factory every day.

Dave Love, who has operated "Dave's Smoke Shop" on Monroe Avenue for the past eighteen months, has discontinued business.

Rube Walters, who has been manager of the Wayne Hotel cigar department for many years, has resigned and engaged in business for himself on Randolph Street, near Macomb Street.

Ted Snowhook, who manages the cigar stand in the Victory Hotel Annex, at Larned and Randolph Streets, and which was only recently opened, says business is very fine.

Eugene Watson attended the races at Indianapolis accompanied by Harry Bumps, with J. L. Marcero & Co.; Harry Bassett, Jack Murphy and Karl R. Stradley.

John W. Merriam was a recent visitor to Detroit.

Business has opened up at the Casino and Pavillion on Belle Isle. Last year the lunch rooms and cigar departments were under lease to Paul Kolbe. This year they will be operated by the city.

Claude Howell, another Grand River Avenue jobber, is conducting a successful campaign on "Peter Pan." Mr. Howell is the local distributor for the Swift cigar, made by Joseph Muir on Gratiot Avenue, and states that he is considerably oversold.

There has been some person in Detroit calling on several of the leading retailers with a quantity of imported cigars—the leading brands—offering to sell them at ridiculously low prices, saying that they were samples and that he had instructions to sell them cheap.

M. A. LaFond & Co. have purchased the San Eta cigar factory in this city. The San Eta, a 5-cent cigar, has been their leading brand and this will be made a strong feature by the LaFond Company at its various retail stores.

There was a good representation of cigar men at the annual state convention of the B. P. O. E. which met last week in Port Huron. All of the leading cigar stores decorated their places with the Elk colors and welcome signs. Swickert Bros. went a little further than the rest and spent considerable in fixing up. Both brothers are Elks and the store did a rushing business during the convention. In their window they featured "El Palencia" cigars and "Milo" cigarettes. Eddie Crooks, of "Fatima" fame, was there every day letting every one know that "Fatimas" were still selling for 15 cents a package.

Joe Snyder was in town last week. He says he can't complain in the least about business here; in fact, it is coming along nicely and showing a gradual increase. Mr. Snyder is a great believer in window displays; some change is made every day.

Charles Coombs, of the Central Cigar Co., who has been abroad for six weeks, returned June 9. He looks fine.

Mel Soper has added the "Henry Irving" cigar.

Visitors have been: Howard Kinney (H. Duys & Co.), Mr. Penper (E. Rosenwald & Bros.), J. H. Weller (G. S. Nichols & Co.), William Charles (H. S. Nicholas & Co.). AL. U. THORNBURG.

George J. Whelan, leading spirit of the United Cigar Stores Co., returned recently from a European trip via the North German Lloyd steamship "Kronprinzessin Cecilie." Mr. Whelan predicts a raise in the price of cigarettes, as the Balkan war has affected the Turkish tobacco crops and advanced the price of the raw material about 25 per cent.

The Cuban Market

HAVANA, June 7.

LITTLE change has taken place in our market during the past two weeks, as the transactions reported in town only show a very slight increase over the previous fortnight. Few buyers have arrived from the North, where with the exceptions of a small number of Tampa manufacturers, the same unsatisfactory conditions seem to have prevailed. Until the tariff should be finally passed, and become a law we hardly dare look for a decided improvement in business. The calls from Germany so far are restricted to small sample shipments. Our cigarette manufacturers on the other hand seem to have been caught in a hole, and for this reason they are buying, besides the new colas from the Vuelta Abajo, also the loose leaves of Partido and Remedios, for which they are paying higher prices than our German friends would be willing to spend. However, to cheapen the cost of their raw material there may be a thrifty reason to resort to this expedient of the cigarette manufacturers.

The strike of the leaf selectors in the Partido district has been settled by compromise in 22 villages, and which are now working again, but the chief town of San Antonio de los Baños is still in a dilemma, through the fault of one or two packers, who instead of abiding by the measures of our association of leaf dealers, that tried hard to come to a settlement with the strikers, went independently to work and paid the higher figures of the strikers. Now, the latter for the sake to help their comrades, in retaining their advanced pay, refuse to go to work upon the compromised terms of their leaders. The final upshot may be that the packers get so disgusted and move their escogidas to other places, and in such a case the workingmen will be the losers.

In the Santa Clara province the difference between the asking prices of the Vegueros and the packers continue, and there is little buying going on. Don Manuel Muñiz, of Muñiz Hermanos, stated upon his authority that the Remedios crop would not yield over 200,000 bales in all, but that the same might give 55 per cent. of first and second Capaduras. He is willing to back up this statement by any amount of a wager, and while this reduced quantity would amount to about 20 per cent. less from the original estimate of this crop, still he stated, that he would not pack at the present asking figures of the farmers. Another large packer, who has a valuable and extensive clientage to look out for in the United States, and that always buys the choicest Vegas from the best districts, complained to us saying, that if he should pay the present high prevailing prices, he would be sure to lose a pile of money this year; but, on the other hand, if he abstained from buying the class of tobacco that he is in the habit of securing, and would be waiting for a fall in the figures, he might lose his customers. So here there is a nice how do you do, how to solve this conundrum? The risky speculators who have been buying at the prices from $20 to $25 per qq., including the stalks of the plants, may have a repetition of the experiences of the year 1907.

The new tobacco that has come to our market, principally from the Vuelta Abajo, shows up in fine style, and promises to give us excellent cigars later on. The demand will be keen, and there is less likelihood of seeing lower prices for this class of goods. The only fault with the Partido this year may be the scarcity of good clean wrappers, as what has reached us so far shows the same defect of last year, being heavily spotted. We have noted no defects of the burn in the packings of the reliable packers, as they are careful enough not to buy Vegas of doubtful burn.

Sales during the past two weeks totaled 4,356 bales, or split up into Vuelta Abajo, 3,035; Partido, 915, and Remedios, 406 bales.

Buyers were American, 2,062; exporters to Europe, 417; shippers to South America, 418, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 459 bales.

Receipts of Tobacco From the Country Were:

For the two weeks ending May 31, 1913.	Bales.	Since January 1, 1913. Bales.
Vuelta Abajo,	6,068	27,389
Semi Vuelta,	1,007	3,500
Partido,	227	1,563
Remedios,	658	2,707
Oriente,	18	876
Total.	7,978	36,035

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana, during the last fortnight, ending May 31, 1913, were: To all ports of the United States, 5,959 bales; to Bremen and Hamburg, 68; to Rotterdam, 349, and to Buenos Aires, 418, making a total of 6,794 bales.

Leaf Buyers That Come and Go.

From Boston: Albert W. Kaffenburgh, of I. Kaffenburgh & Sons.

From Tampa: Angel L. Cuesta, of Cuesta, Rey & Co.; L. B. Gunst, of M. A. Gunst & Co., Inc.

From Key West: Jaime Pendas, of M. A. Gunst & Co., Inc.; Wm. J. Lightbourn, of the Cortez Cigar Co.

Departures—To New York: M. Klein, Thomas Healy, Joseph Mendelsohn, via Chicago, Nicolas de Cardenas, and Ernest Ellinger.

To Tampa: José Escalante, José Lovera, Manuel Garcia, Val M. Antuono.

To Chicago: Edmund Delbert, and Walter C. Sutter.

To Spain: Pablo Quadreny, Angel Gonzalez, Cesareo Gonzalez.

To Europe, via New York: Antonio Allones and Pepin Rodriguez.

Cigars.

Business has been quieter during the past month, as according to our customhouse returns, there has been a falling off again in our exports to the various countries. The official figures are as follows, viz.:

From May 1 to May 31, 1913,	13,336,714	Cigars.
From May 1 to May 31, 1912,	15,470,102	"
Decrease in May, 1913,	2,133,388	"

On the other hand, the first five months of this year still show an increase, as follows:

From January 1, 1913, to May 31, 1913,	72,693,306	Cigars.
From January 1, 1912, to May 31, 1912,	67,178,976	"

The United States,	1,025,187	Cigars.
Argentine Republic,	367,281	"
Great Britain and Ireland,	301,257	"
France,	152,200	"

President Mario G. Menocal has promised a delegation of cigar and cigarette manufacturers to study the question seriously, in which way he could materially help and assist the second most important industry of our country, either by the making of reciprocity treaties, or otherwise, and as soon as the tariff in the United States should be settled. He is fully aware of the imperative necessity to do something, and which had been neglected by our former President and Congress.

The following factories are the ones which are working the most in our off-season, viz.: Romeo y Julieta, H. Upmann, Partagas, Henry Clay and Bock & Co., Ltd., Sol Castañeda, and Flor del Fumar, of the Flor de P. A. Estanillo Factory.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez were sellers of 650 bales of leaf tobacco, of all kinds, to their customers.

José Menendez disposed of 526 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido during the past two weeks.

José C. Puente & Co. closed various transactions of leaf, amounting to 300 bales, to their customers.

José Escalante was a buyer of 400 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido, of both old and new crop, for their Corina factory in Tampa.

M. A. Suarez & Co. turned over 262 bales of their stocks of leaf to some of their numerous customers.

Manuel Garcia, of Perfecto Garcia & Bro., of Tampa, added some 350 bales to their stocks of leaf, as they were running short of goods.

Cardenas & Co. sold 200 bales of their choice old Vuelta Abajo fillers to a couple of their customers.

Celestino Corral, of Corral, Wodiska & Co., bought 286 bales of old and new Vuelta Abajo for their Tampa factory, thus making a total of 500 bales since a month ago. Their factory is crowded with orders, turning out 35,000 cigars daily.

F. Rocha & Co. disposed of 98 bales of new Vuelta Abajo fillers and colas to our local manufacturers.

Leslie Pantin, even if he has no customers in town, never lacks orders of some kind, as he is constantly in touch with them through the sending of samples, and by this manner of stimulating trade he managed to buy 200 bales of leaf for them.

A new firm has been established under the style of "Nuñez & Co.," the partners of which are: General Emilio Nuñez and Helmrich Struckmann. They will do a general leaf tobacco business, with a warehouse and office at 81 Calzada de la Reina.

Don Pepin Rodriguez has engaged passage by the steamship "Saratoga," which will leave on Sunday morning, June 8, and there is no doubt but that his many friends here will give him a rousing send-off, and wishing him a bon voyage, and a safe and speedy return.

Herr Hermann Diehl arrived here safely by the "Fürst Bismarck," on the 2nd inst., with his bride, from Hamburg, and is already hard at work, executing some orders that he brought along from Germany.

As far as we could learn Mr. Joseph Mendelsohn only came here to look over the ground and prepare for the future buying campaign later on. He only stayed here six days and then left, by way of New Orleans, for Chicago, to visit the many friends he has in that city.

Angel Cuesta apparently is more interested in the progress of his factory and warehouse than in buying tobacco, as in any event he has an expert buyer here all the time on the lookout, so his presence is not absolutely needed.

Mr. H. H. Strater, the leaf dealer of 26 Galiano Street, has been receiving his purchases in bundles of genuine, legitimate Manicaragua tobacco, in large quantities from the farmers, and there has been no kick on either side. He will start his escogida in La Moza, a suburb of Manicaragua, as soon as the leaf has had enough pilon.

We submit herewith the list of the 11 principal shippers of leaf tobacco, from the port of Havana, during the last two weeks, ending with May 31, and above 200 bales, viz.:

Leslie Pantin,	706	Bales.
Mark A. Pollack,	617	"
Maximilian Stern,	614	"
H. Upmann & Co.,	439	"
Ernst Ellinger & Co.,	437	"
J. Bernheim & Son,	429	"
Virgilio Suarez,	422	"
Menendez & Co.,	346	"
Garcia & Co.,	245	"
Adolfo Moeller,	218	"
Allones, Ltd.,	200	"

Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE, WISC., June 11.

BUSINESS locally continues about normal, both with the jobbers and retailers.

Steve Surman, manager of the Cuba Rica cigar store, reports business good. He is featuring the "Tuval" with a big window display.

The Wright Drug Co. continues to enjoy a good business with the "Robert Burns" and "Jose Villa," and are at present giving a window demonstration of how one of their own brands are made. Mr. Sol Eckstein attended the convention of the Royal Arcanum at Quebec.

Leo Abraham & Co. continue busy at all retail stores. The "Jose Lovera," "Rosa de Mayo" and "La Verdad" are continuing as prime favorites.

A calabash pipe sale is now in progress, which should appeal to pipe smokers.

Allansan's are doing their usual good business at the Plankinton House. They are making an attractive showing of the "Harvester" cigar.

Fay Lewis & Bro. Co. are busy at their retail stores, and also in the wholesale department. The Pabst Building store is making a showing of their leading brands. The firm recently erected one of the largest electric lighted signs in the Northwest. The sign is located at Third Street and Grand Avenue, the busiest corner in the city. Surmounting the structure is a painting of the trotting horse "Harvester," which at night is so lighted as to give the impression of motion, the legs moving and the wheels of the sulky revolving. Beneath appear the words: "Smoke the 'Harvester,' a Fay Lewis Brand." The sign has created much comment, and is another indication of the firm's progressiveness.

Milwaukee, and especially the trade, were greatly shocked a few weeks ago upon hearing of the death of A. Story Goodrich, head of A. S. Goodrich & Co. Mr. Goodrich left an estate of approximately $100,000, all of which will undoubtedly go to the widow, Nellie A. Goodrich. The wholesale cigar, tobacco and pipe business has been taken over by the A. S. Goodrich Co., incorporated by Henry B. Richards, Herbert J. Cordes and Christian L. Heintz, all employes of Mr. Goodrich. The capital stock of the new company is $100,000. Mr. Heintz has been elected president, Mr. Richards, vice-president, and Mr. Cordes, secretary and treasurer. The business will be continued along the same lines as heretofore.

Mr. C. J. Dexter, of the Roundy, Peckham & Dexter Co., wholesale grocers, has been re-elected president of the Wisconsin Wholesale Grocers' Association. Wm. Hoffmann, of John Hoffmann & Sons Co., is first vice-president; Mitchell Joannes, of Joannes Bros. Co., Green Bay, is second vice-president; August E. Inbusch, of Dahlman & Inbusch, is treasurer.

The Paul Ruf store, at Monroe, Wis., has been equipped with entirely new fixtures of golden oak, making it one of the best appearing stores in Southern Wisconsin. Mr. Ruf moved the old fixtures to Monticello, Wis., where he opened a branch store.

Jake Schaefer, Jr., has sold his interest in the cigar and billiard parlor at Madison, Wis., to his partner, Jack Abaly.

Wm. Schimmel & Son, cigar manufacturers at Watertown, Wis., celebrated their third anniversary, May 30. Special bargains were offered to their trade.

H. Fredrich, of Evansville, Ind., was in the State recently, looking over the offerings.

O. A. KROMPAS.

Hon. Chas. L. Knowles Appointed Deputy Collector—Three Firms Secure License to Enter Cigar Industry—Business Continues Good

KEY WEST, June 10.

FROM the reports of the various cigar manufacturers in the city, business continues to be fair and steady, and in some instances there seems to be a little improvement.

The E. H. Gato Cigar Co. reports business as fair. Mr. E. H. Gato, Sr., president of this concern, who had been in Cuba for some time, returned to Key West recently and will leave for New York within a short time, accompanied by his son, Mr. Thomas Gato, who will take charge of the New York headquarters.

Business with the Cortez Cigar Co. remains unchanged from the last report, frequent shipments are being made of their "Herman Cortez" cigar. Mr. W. J. Lightbourn, president of this company, who spent quite some time in New Mexico for the improvement of his health, returned to this city recently and is now in Cuba, where he will remain for several weeks longer. Miss Agatha Roberts, daughter of Mr. Claude H. Roberts, foreman of the Cortez Cigar Co., who had been attending school in Demorest, Ga., returned recently to the city, where she will spend her vacation.

A strike of the trimmers was called at the Key West Box Co., as the result of reducing wages down to those paid in other box factories; the matter was satisfactorily adjusted after a very short time. The addition to the box factory, which will enable them to nearly double their output, is pretty well on the way to completion, and it is expected that the entire building will be occupied as soon as completed.

A beautiful silver loving cup has been presented to Sr. Domingo Rosillo, the daring aviator, who in his Morane Saulnier monoplane made the first successful flight from Key West to Havana. This loving cup was purchased by popular subscription through a committee of the strippers from the E. H. Gato cigar factory.

Hon. Chas. L. Knowles has been appointed Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue for Key West, and will immediately assume charge of the affairs of the office.

Mr. Menendez, manager of M. Perez & Co., quotes business as very fair under existing conditions.

Mr. L. B. Gunst, of the M. A. Gunst Cigar Co., of Tampa, was a through passenger bound to Havana, and during the stop of the vessel in port, met and held a business conference with Preston Herbert, of that company.

Quite some increase in business has been apparent at the factory of Trujillo & Co. There is no limit of production, the "Polonius" cigar is moving well. There is also some activity in the "Bouquet de Trujillo" cigar.

Mr. Julius Wolf, of S. Wolf's Sons, returned from New York recently, where he has been for some time in the interest of the firm.

Mr. G. F. Upchurch, representing the "Sovereign" cigarettes, was in the city for several days, looking after the sales of that brand.

Plans were completed by the "Lilliosa" cigar department on June 1, and a very extensive campaign is being made for the "Lilliosa" cigar.

Mr. Stanley Baker, who recently made application for a cigar manufacturer's license, has been issued Factory No. 304. Kemp Brothers have been issued Factory No. 345, and E. Henriquez & Co., Factory No. 349.

Mr. A. Aurelio Torres, president of the Principe de Golfo Cigar Co., and general manager of Trujillo & Co., left on the fourth for Cocoanut Grove, Fla., accompanied by Mrs. Torres and five children. Mrs. Torres and the children expect to spend the summer there, visiting other points as well. Mr. Torres will visit several of his customers in that vicinity before returning to Key West. J. G. MARUCCI.

C. A. Whelan & Company, of Syracuse, New York, operators of twenty-three cigar stores, recently took over the Plattsburg Tobacco Company's store at Plattsburg, New York. After a new front has been put in the building and the interior renovated, a local man will be put in charge as manager.

Michael Hanley, who had been operating a cigar stand in the McKnight Building, Minneapolis, Minnesota, was stricken with paralysis recently and died the following day. He was sixty years of age.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Lancaster County Growers to Put Over 1000 Acres in Havana Seed—Transplanting Goes Along Slowly in Cigar Leaf States—Warmer Weather Needed Everywhere

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY, June 7.

ALTHOUGH the leaf dealers were not expecting any great amount of business just now, as the warm weather will soon be upon us, when things slow up, they state that sales have been above their expectations. The first four months of this year have been above the average, especially among the nickel cigar manufacturers, and this is bound to have an effect on the leaf market. But it must not be overlooked that a great many of the factories, at least the larger ones, have a great amount of tobacco on hand, and even if the revenue receipt figures are above those of this period a year ago, the manufacturers are not running out of tobacco by any means. There is a general feeling of optimism among the leaf tobacco men, who appear to think that the summer months will be above the average.

There have been inquiries for all kinds of leaf. The Sumatra importers have been hustling and everyone reports the tobacco to be moving well. There is no question of it being of a superior quality and giving satisfaction. The manufacturers have been hedging at the price, but those who use none but Sumatra tobacco for wrappers had no choice in the matter. The fact that the leaf is so good has reconciled them to the prices. The domestic wrappers have also been selling well. From all indications the Georgia and Florida interests have disposed of their tobaccos very easily. It appears to give satisfaction everywhere.

The dry weather in Cuba and the strike of the packing employees on the island have almost paralyzed this market, as far as new business is concerned. There has been comparatively nothing done the past two weeks except the ordinary daily transactions. With the resumption of packing operations in Cuba things are expected to brighten up.

PENNSYLVANIA.

LANCASTER, June 7.

THE transplanting of the tobacco plants to the fields has been going along merrily this week. The weather had been cool before this, but since it has warmed up the farmers have been kept busy. One drawback to more rapid planting has been the lack of good plants. Slugs have been destroying the young plants and did considerable damage.

There seems to be a tendency this year for the farmers to put more thought on the problem of raising better tobacco. They have been told a number of times that Pennsylvania tobacco is not as popular among the cigar manufacturers as formerly because the growers have not been giving it the proper attention, regarding fertilizers, and that the quality and burn of the leaf suffered. Farmers are beginning to realize that such has been the case and there is a different feeling among many of them than prevailed heretofore. They refused to take the advice of leaf dealers, who took over their tobacco because they figured that the dealer had an "axe to grind" in some way and the farmers were suspicious of his motives.

While there has not been any pronounced activity among the dealers, they say that business is fair, but that it is below that of this period in other years. Nevertheless there is good reason for thinking that things are beginning to look up in the leaf market.

The 1912 crop of Lancaster County tobacco is slowly being cleaned up. Now and then one hears of a crop in certain parts of the county which has been purchased. A New York concern recently took over twenty acres in the northern section of the county. Prices are now ranging from 8 to 8½ cents. That tobacco which has been put through a forced sweat is said to be of a good quality, about on a par with that of last year. Of course, not enough of it has been tested to give a definite statement as to the general qualities of all the tobacco.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, June 7.

THE work of transplanting the tobacco plants to the field is going along better since the weather has become warmer. Farmers have been discouraged at the work so far. The weather has been so cool that the plants have been growing slowly in the beds, and then when some growers put them in the fields the past two weeks the snails got to work and chewed them off close to the ground, necessitating transplanting. Beds affected by the snails lose color and begin to look unhealthy, and after a few days the plants die out in patches, and by digging into the beds the slugs can be found. The representative of the Department of Agriculture who is making observations in this town has had a number of complaints of trouble with seed plants, and has found different causes for it. Root rot, which made so much trouble a few years ago, seems to be less troublesome since the practice of sterilizing the beds has become more common. The growers are beginning to realize the advantages of sterilizing, as the freedom from weeds is worth the cost of having the beds treated.

The farmers are praying that the warm weather will continue, for up to this time the plants already out have been standing still as far as growing is concerned. Yet no one is worrying much as the season is still young. One man said the other day that if the weather was warm, and the farmers needed rain badly, it would spoil the prospects for a good crop, while the cool weather, as long as it does not kill the plants, is not to be feared.

The plants will fairly shoot up when they get started, and with the right weather there is no reason for thinking otherwise than that the 1913 Connecticut cut crop will turn out all right. Nevertheless it is rather early to make any predictions on this point.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, June 6.

AT last warm days have again returned, much to the relief of the tobacco growers who have been anxiously waiting for conditions that would hasten the growth of the plant beds. Recent rainfalls have so thoroughly saturated the soil that about all that is needed now is plenty of sun and a warm temperature to bring about a quick growth of the young plants. Owing to the delays experienced in other farm work it seems quite probable that the plants will be in readiness by the time growers can have their fields prepared to receive them, though it is probable that the transplanting season may be later than usual this season. Just how serious the shortage of plants will be, due to unfavorable conditions in getting the seed beds started, cannot as yet be foretold, but generally in seasons when transplanting opens late with a dearth of plants, the contemplated acreage is rarely reached. It is pretty certain, however, that the coming crop will not show much additional increase in Wisconsin the present season.

A very marked improvement in the condition of the plant beds has occurred since the return of warm weather that has prevailed largely during the week. The plants are now coming forward so rapidly that in many cases they are reaching a size for transplanting and growers will be pushed in the work of preparing the fields to receive them. A little planting has been started in a few isolated cases the past week and by the middle of the month considerable transplanting will be under way. If suitable weather conditions continue the season for planting the tobacco crop may not be so much behind that of other years after all.

There is no news concerning movements of either old or new goods in the local market worthy of mention. The warm weather has sent the cased bulks into the casing sweat and packers now await the result of the sure.—Edgerton Reporter.

OHIO.

CINCINNATI, June 2.

IT is conceded that more Burley tobacco was transplanted ere the close of May than was ever known at that time of year. It is estimated that one-half of the acreage is out and with plant beds still doing well it is probable that practically the whole crop will be set out by the middle of June. As a rule insects are not seriously hindering the growth of transplanted seedlings. The drouth of recent weeks has passed away and seasonable conditions prevail. Unusual interest and activity prevails and with the exception of a few widely separated communities the acreage will equal and possibly exceed that of recent years.

The prompt use of Paris green will control the insects. The most practical way to use the insecticide is mixed with air-slaked lime and applied with a sifter such as that used by potato growers in Michigan.

Encouraging market conditions prevail in the country. While there are few, if any, sales, the feeling is "bullish" and it would be impossible to contract for the new crop on a lower basis of prices than that which prevailed during the past season. Uniformly those who buy and handle the Burley crop are predicting good prices and a waiting demand.

The city markets were stronger during the week. The volume of sales was greater and it is thought that the low point of the season has been passed. Cincinnati sold 259 hhds.; Louisville, 375 hhds. Practically all of this was old—1911 and previous years. The average price at Cincinnati was $7.86 per cwt. as compared with $8.53 the previous week and $8.50 the corresponding week last year, the lower average price being on account of the lower quality of offerings.—H. E. Tweed, in Ohio Farmer.

An eight-acre tract of land in Lexington, Ky., has been purchased by Charles W. Bohmer, who formerly conducted the Burley Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse in that city. It is rumored that Mr. Bohmer contemplates the erection of a large tobacco stemmery plant upon this land and that he is backed financially by a number of capitalists.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

Porto-Rican Shade Crop Estimate

One of the best posted men in the trade, in discussing the shade crop of tobacco in Porto Rico for this year, estimates it as totaling a trifle under three million bales. While lacking in volume, however, he says that the quality of the leaf promises great things for the Porto Rican cigar manufacturers when contrasted with the last two or three years of disappointment.

Julius Lichtenstein, president of the American Sumatra Tobacco Company, the largest growers of domestic wrapper tobacco in the country, is most optimistic regarding the prospects for this year's crop of that concern in Florida. The growing plants at this writing are several weeks ahead of those last year at the same period. The acreage of the American Tobacco Company in Florida will not be increased this year, stated Mr. Lichtenstein. This concern has been laying great stress on raising only the best tobacco possible and not the largest amount possible.

The transplanting of the young tobacco plants to the fields has been going along slowly in the sections devoted to the culture of cigar tobacco. In Pennsylvania the farmers have been annoyed by snails and cool weather, which condition to a certain extent prevailed in Wisconsin and Connecticut. The warm weather of the past weeks should give the farmers all they can do in these sections.

The new insurance bureau of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association, which has been in process of organization for some time, it is now announced is ready for business. This bureau was advocated several years ago, but the work had been unavoidably delayed. The object of the bureau is to secure a lower rate, if possible, for the leaf dealers and packers, who are not always aware of the fact that by slight alterations in their buildings they may secure lower rates. Insurance will not be placed through this bureau. It will simply act in an advisory capacity and do all in its power to see that the dealers are protected in a proper manner and that they are securing the best insurance for the money invested. The bureau is located at 91 William Street, New York City.

Prices ranged slightly higher than heretofore at the May 23 inscription in Amsterdam, when Americans secured in the neighborhood of 4000 bales of the imported tobacco. Among the largest American purchasers were E. Rosenwald & Bro., 1800 bales; H. Duys & Co., 700 bales; Deisel-Wemmer Co., 562 bales; Otto Eisenlohr & Bros., 165 bales; Benj. Labe & Sons, 75 bales; E. Spingarn & Co., 307 bales, and G. Falk & Bro., 114 bales.

The Bureau of Entomology of the Department of Agriculture, has issued a circular under date of May 27, entitled, "Arsenate of Lead as an Insecticide Against the Tobacco Horn Worms." The advantages of using insecticide in eradicating this pest are shown plainly as against the old methods by which the growers were forced to employ labor to do it by hand. Paris green is commented upon as being one of the safest and most efficient insecticides. Arsenate of lead is stated to be superior to paris green because it produces none of the injurious results of the latter. Detailed instructions for the application of arsenate of lead are given in this pamphlet, and should be of much value to the grower of leaf tobacco.

"United" Circumvents Washington Coupon Law

In order to circumvent the new cigarette law recently passed in the state of Washington, a measure which was advocated by the Western Retail Cigar Dealers' Association, the United Cigar Stores Co. have announced that after June 1 all the certificates issued from the stands of this corporation in that state will be redeemed in cash on the basis of one cent each. The new anti-coupon bill provided for a license of $6000 a year on all retail cigar stores issuing coupons to purchasers.

The Independent Retail Cigar Dealers, of Seattle, state that they feel confident the coupon will lose much of its force as a drawing card to prospective customers by redeeming them in cash. They figure that women will be no longer interested in the coupons if they are unable to secure premiums for them, and that many men purchasing at the United Stores did so at the requests of their wives and sweethearts, and would prefer to go to other stores not using the coupon.

A. S. Goodrich Co. Incorporate

C. L. Heintz, Harry Richards and Herbert C. Cordes, former employes of the A. S. Goodrich Co., have purchased the cigar, tobacco and pipe business from the Goodrich estate, and re-incorporated under the title of the A. S. Goodrich Co., with a stated capital of $100,000. Business will be continued at the old address, 298 East Water Street, Milwaukee, Wis. Mr. Heintz has been elected president, Mr. Richards, vice-president, and Mr. Cordes, treasurer.

Charles A. Spatz, cigar manufacturer of Dallastown, Pa., had a narrow escape from death recently, when a bullet from a 32-calibre revolver ploughed through the shutter and window of his sleeping room.

An examination of the shutter indicated that the shot was fired from a height equal to a second-story window, and, though several persons heard the report, all denied knowledge as to how the weapon was discharged.

It has been announced that the American Tobacco Co. has leased the new eight-story building at 337 to 347 W. Twenty-seventh Street, New York City, for the manufacture of cigars and cigarettes.

Robert Tanksley, Tampa representative of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., has returned from a trip to the west coast, where he was successful in distributing "Chesterfield" cigarettes.

Robert Tyler has disposed of his cigar store at 114 North Street, Middletown, N. Y., to J. M. Brown and Elbert D. Courtwright.

C. A. Kirk has purchased the W. F. Wagner cigar store, at 710 Second Street, Fort Madison, Ia.

The Dover Cigar Co. is to enlarge its factory by the addition of a third story, at York, Pa.

Mr. Probst has purchased the James Kock cigar store on Bridge Street, Harrisburg, Pa.

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 102 South Twelfth Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

☞ Positively no responsibility assumed for errors, duplications or any controversies which might arise. We will not under any circumstances act in a legal capacity in cases concerning disputed titles. We maintain a bureau of records only.

Late Trade Paragraphs

Louis Kindling, president of the Louis Kindling Cigar Co., Milwaukee, Wis., will sail for Europe on June 25 via steamship "Imperator," for a two-months' tour through Germany. Upon the completion of this trip Mr. Kindling will have crossed the Atlantic twenty-five times in as many years.

A charter has been granted to the employees of the Fleck Cigar Factory, Reading, Pa., for the organization of the Fleck Cigar Company Employes' Relief Association, for the purpose of paying sick and death benefits. The subscribers are J. Herbert Leiby, Frank D. Enck, Oliver H. Weand, John Hessler, Allen D. Butzer and William Buhler.

Official reports from Springfield, Tenn., announce that over 5300 hogsheads of tobacco has been sold by the association during the season. Prices ranged from $4.50 for lugs to $16.50 for leaf, and a record would doubtless have been made had not the stock run short.

Federal inspectors from Boston, Mass., and Providence, R. I., recently seized 75,000 cigars in Federal Hill and 3000 in Natick because the boxes did not bear revenue stamps. The cigars were made in New York and bore the name of a Boston manufacturer.

Reports received from Clarksville, Tenn., indicate that the sales of tobacco for the last week in May were the largest of the year, totalling 1338 hogsheads. The market has been firm and higher prices prevailed.

The Caspar-Moss Cigarette Machine Co., Inc., of New York. Capital, $100,000. Incorporators: Richard Moss, Charles Smith and Constantine Katsoros, of 7 West Sixty-fifth Street.

A regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. on preferred stock has been declared by the American Tobacco Co., payable July 1, to stockholders on record June 14.

The regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent. has been declared by the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., payable July 1 to stockholders on record June 20.

The Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. have declared the usual quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on preferred stock, payable July 1 to stockholders on record June 14.

The A. S. Goodrich Co., Milwaukee, Wis. To deal in cigars and tobacco. Capital, $100,000. Incorporators: Henry B. Richard, H. J. Cordes and Christian L. Heintz.

Foreign Consular Trade Notes

The Tobacco Trade in Amsterdam.

The total importation of Dutch East Indian tobacco into the Netherlands in 1912 amounted in value to $40,079,000, compared with $32,562,000 in 1911, of which amounts $33,969,000 in 1912 and $27,738,000 in 1911 came to Amsterdam. These figures mark a record and that the large crop was marketed without a lowering of price speaks well for the quality and proves that the world consumption of this product is increasing. A good crop well marketed means large profits for many people in Amsterdam. Nearly one-fifth in value of this imported tobacco was shipped to the United States. Indications are that the 1913 trade will be as prosperous as that of last year.

THE total imports of Sumatra tobacco for the Netherlands in 1912 amounted to 277,791 packages, of which 29,087 packages arrived at Rotterdam. The highest general price reached was $1.02 per half kilo (101) pounds, although at a later sale as much as $1.60 per half kilo was paid for a special brand. United States dealers found a large variety and bought considerably more than in preceding years, taking 31,000 packages in 1912, as against 29,000 in 1911 and 21,000 in 1910. The total Sumatra crop averaged 57 cents per half kilo, the proceeds from which amounted to nearly $25,000,000. The 1912 crop, to be marketed in 1913, is estimated at 274,000 packages, as against 264,000 in 1911.

The total imports of Java tobacco in the Netherlands in 1912 amounted to 636,779 packages, of which 145,600 packages arrived at Rotterdam. Prices were up to the average, and for some choice lots were even far above expectations. The total crop was sold at an average price of 12 cents per half kilo, and realized $15,200,000. The 1912 crop is reported to be unfavorable as to quantity and quality, on account of the drought which prevailed during the season. The total arrivals of Borneo tobacco in the Netherlands in 1912 amounted to 15,231 packages, as against 14,961 in 1911. The average price was 36 cents per half kilo, and the total amounted to $856,000.

Business in Manila tobacco was very limited, and prices remained dull during the year. Disadvantages in handling this tobacco on the market are due to irregularity of arrivals and wide variation in crops, the cigar manufacturers being unable to supply themselves regularly. However, as the export of Manila tobacco is of small importance when compared with the home consumption and the sales to such countries where the manufacture of cigars is monopolized, it is not expected that the conditions of the market here will change materiallly. A consignment of 553 packages of Mexican tobacco was forwarded to the Netherlands and sold by inscription, but the lot was so varied in quality that only a moderate price was obtained, notwithstanding the interest shown in it at first.

Of American tobacco Maryland and Burley brands were of chief importance to Dutch dealers. The Maryland crop was not of the required color in the beginning of the season; prices were low, however, and when later on the color improved a satisfactory business was evidently carried on. Complaints were made as to the inferior condition of the Burley tobacco; prices were very low, and after the summer fermentation considerable quantities were handled and found ready purchasers.

The consumption of Turkish and Greek tobacco in the Netherlands was limited, a natural result of the high ruling prices, and it is not expected that conditions will soon change, in view of the existing state of affairs in the Balkan States.

Tobacco Prospects in Salonika, Turkey.

The time for spring plowing and sowing in Salonika is March 1-20. The loss of a single crop, which now seems apparent in many sections, will entail additional suffering and hardship. The effect of the deplorable condition of the tobacco-producing districts of Macedonia may be felt in the United States, Macedonia's best tobacco market, by way of a shortage in high-grade cigarette tobacco. The center of the tobacco trade is Cavalla. The different districts comprising the Cavalla and their normal production are as follows: Mahalla, 283,000 pounds; Mahalla Dakia, 311,300 pounds; Kir, 764,100 pounds; Serres, 2,685,500 pounds; Drama Basma, 1,584,800 pounds; Pravista Basma, 1,415,000 pounds; Sarrishaban, 141,000 pounds; Zihna, 1,132,000 pounds; Pravishta, 1,415,000 pounds; Nevrocop, 2,284,000 pounds; Djouma, 1,556,000 pounds.

The foregoing estimated normal production varies at times as much as 30 per cent. Fluctuations are controlled mostly by supply and demand. The 1912 crop was below the normal in both quantity and quality, but owing to the war prices were excessively high—in many instances 100 per cent. higher than during 1911. Since the outbreak of the Turko-Balkan war fully 15 per cent. of the crop of the district in question has been lost through various causes.

It is quite certain that the 1913 crop will fall short of the normal by fully 25 per cent., due to the shortage of labor, animals for cultivating, and the lateness of preparing the seed beds, which ordinarily takes place before March 20. The normal crop produced in the region of Xanthi and handled in that place is about 8,490,000 pounds, and in the Saloniki district the production is about 2,160,000 pounds. The conditions prevailing in the Cavalla district apply equally to the Xanthi and Saloniki districts. The tobacco grown in the Saloniki district is mostly of a quality inferior to that of the Cavalla or Xanthi districts and does not participate to any great extent in the American trade.

The declared value of filler leaf tobacco exported to the United States from Saloniki during the past three calendar years was as follows: 1910, $2,584,009; 1911, $5,382,452; 1912, $5,036,136.

San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, June 5.

NOTWITHSTANDING the opening of the vacation season accompanied by the absence from the city of a considerable number of people and a number of rather adverse conditions affecting trade in all lines, the general verdict of San Francisco cigar and tobacco men is that trade conditions are slowly improving. Aside from a few limited districts where local causes have caused a falling off in trade, the country business continues in first-class shape. In the city the volume of business is just about up to the normal for the dull season.

H. H. Manley, Pacific Coast representative for the American Cigar Co., is now in the Northern Coast territory in company with R. E. Christie, vice-president of the American Cigar Co., who is now completing a tour of the Coast States. Mr. Manley will return to San Francisco about June 15.

H. Bercovich, the San Francisco jobber, is expecting a visit before many days from C. M. McCormick, traveling representative of Y. Pendas & Alveraz, manufacturers of the "Bachelor" cigar. Mr. Bercovich now has some very attractive displays in his windows of the "Bachelor" cigar in all sizes.

Percy Lowrey, representative of the Valentine line of seed and Havana cigars, who spent several days in and about San Francisco during the past week, has now moved on to Los Angeles and other Southern points, where he will look after the Valentine interests.

R. V. Morrison, Southern and Western representative of the Cayey Cagnas Tobacco Co., of New York and Porto Rico, is now in San Francisco placing the company's goods with the cigar trade here through Charles Mattheas & Co. The cigars are moving very well and a good placement has been procured.

F. Lozano, of F. Lozano Sons' Co., who has been spending some time with the San Francisco trade, has left here for Los Angeles to complete his tour of the Coast. He was accompanied South by Sig. Mayer, the Pacific Coast representative of the company. They will, after completing their work in Southern California, go North to Portland, Ore., and other points in the Pacific Northwest.

Sol Arkush, Western representative of the Martinez-Havana Co., is now in the South doing some work on the company's line in conjunction with Skinner & Knight, Los Angeles jobbers, who are distributing the Martinez-Havana goods in Southern California. After completing his work there Mr. Arkush will do some work in this territory.

William Bercovich, formerly with the Bercovich Company, of San Francisco, has something new under way and is expected to make an announcement in a few days. He is expected to locate in the interior in the jobbing business.

With a million Alhambra Manila cigars, due on the steamer "China" the first of next week, M. A. Gunst & Co. are hoping to have enough Manila goods on hand to tide them over until the next shipment comes in. This company is now featuring the "Diligencia" line of cigars. This is the cigar formerly made at Havana under the same name, but now made by M. A. Gunst & Co. at Key West.

M. A. Gunst & Co. continue to add to their chain of stores on the east side of the bay. This week they took over the Varsity Smoke Shop at the corner of Thelgraph Avenue and Bancroft Way in the University town of Berkeley.

L. C. Comoy, of Comoy & Co., well known English pipe manufacturers, has been in San Francisco this week visiting the trade.

Mr. Ellison, traveling representative of Kaufman Bros. & Bondy, New York manufacturers of pipes, is calling on the San Francisco trade this week.

Mr. Brooks, formerly manager for Rinaldo Bros. & Co., for many years in the wholesale business in this city, and more recently a store manager for the United Cigar Stores Co., has now accepted a position with the Bercovich Company in San Jose, Cal.

Edward Wolf, of the Edward Wolf Co., of this city, reports that the Manila cigar business is in a much stronger position than it was, though there is still a good deal of "junk" lying around that is hard to dispose of. His house has two good and well established lines, the "La Prueba" and the "La Insular," and is working up a permanent trade on these. This week Mr. Wolf is entertaining K. Hosaeus, vice-president of the La Prueba factory, of Manila, who is making a stay in San Francisco en route to New York and to Europe. While in Los Angeles, a few days ago, Mr. Wolf arranged with the Klauber-Wangenheim Co., well known wholesalers, for the Southern California distribution of the "La Prueba" line.

Mr. Spencer, representing W. I. Pixley, of this city, in Oregon and Washington, has now left Portland for Seattle, where he will do some live work for the Dill line in the Puget Sound country.

Daniel Wharton, one of the factory representatives of Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, and J. Hopkins, representing Michaelitschke Bros. & Co., San Francisco distributors of the "Henry the Fourth," are now in the Sacramento Valley booking orders for that line of cigars.

Emil Judell, of H. L. Judell & Co., is taking his vacation a little early this summer. He and Mrs. Judell are now in the Yosemite Valley for a few weeks. Mr. Judell expects to return to San Francisco about the middle of the month, and to get away for the North a short time later, covering Northern California and Southern Oregon.

Congressman Cantrill Comments on Leaf Tobacco Report

J. Campbell Cantrill, father of the Cantrill tobacco law, gave out a statement recently relative to the last report of leaf tobaccos on hand, provided for by this law, in which he cautioned the Burley leaf tobacco growers not to increase their acreages this year. He expressed his appreciation of the support he received when this bill was before Congress and said it would be of great benefit to the growers of the country.

He said: "The second report under the Cantrill census law has just been issued and shows a very favorable condition of the crop from the farmers' viewpoint, especially in the Burley type. It should be borne in mind that there is practically no Burley tobacco in the hands of the farmer of the 1912 crop, and that it will be seven months before the 1913 crop will begin to move to market. On October 1, 1912, there were 215,000,000 pounds of Burley in the hands of dealers and manufacturers. From October 1, 1912, to May 1, 1913, the entire 1912 crop went into the hands of the manufacturers. This 1912 Burley crop was estimated at about 225,000,000 pounds. Adding this amount to that on hand October 1, 1912, and then subtracting the 327,000,000 pounds now on hand, shows that 113,000,000 pounds have been consumed within the past six months.

"It is fair to presume that consumption of Burley will be the same for the next six months as for the past six. Upon this basis, we will get to market next winter under exactly the same condition as last year, namely, about 215,000,000 pounds of Burley in the hands of the manufacturers. Last year the entire crop of Burley sold for an average of nearly fourteen cents per pound, and there is no reason, whatever, why this year's crop, now being planted, should not bring a good price.

"This report shows the consumption of Burley tobacco equals the production for last year. Under this condition the Burley planters should thrive. I sincerely hope the growers of Burley will not attempt to increase the acreage. We are now growing about all that our labor conditions and the fertility of our soil will stand. It is the part of wisdom for the planters to keep conditions as they now are, namely, equality of production and consumption.

"The law under which this report is made is a great protection to the tobacco growers, and let us not destroy ourselves by excessive production. We are now in a safe position, and with caution and wisdom the growers of Burley can keep up the high prices of last year. I am profoundly grateful to my colleagues in the House of Representatives for assisting me in the passage of the bill under which this report is made, and to Senator Bradley for his successful work in the Senate. In my judgment this measure has been of untold benefit to the tobacco growers of the nation, and I rejoice that I had the opportunity to draft the bill and introduce it and assist in its passage."

On June 10, W. I. Pixley will get away to the South on his automobile trip through the San Joaquin Valley and Southern California. Some portions of this territory are reported a little quiet owing to the dry season, but Mr. Pixley has some pretty good connections for Dill's tobaccos, and is confident that he will find a certain amount of good business as he goes along. He does not expect to get back from his tour before the early part of August.

The retail store of M. A. Gunst & Co., formerly located at Market and Sansome Streets, has been temporarily discontinued owing to the tearing down of the building to make way for a fine new structure. As soon as the new building is completed the store will be reopened.

L. Samuels, of Fresno, has been visiting in San Francisco this week, and took occasion to place some nice orders with the wholesale houses.

Ernest Snelling, salesman for the John Bollman Co. in the Alameda County territory, was married a few days since to Miss Lillian Howell, of San Jose, Cal.

A new cigar store has been opened in the Bailey Building, Second and Cherry Streets, Seattle, Wash., by Albert Rideout. The place has been fitted out with elaborate and costly fixtures.

Late Trade Bulletins

Charles Cranz, a former cigar manufacturer of Kankakee, Ill., operating under the title of Charles Cranz & Son, has disposed of the business to his sons, W. C. and W. J. Cranz, who will conduct the business under the firm name of Cranz Bros.

The Delavina Cigar Co., located at 396 Fore Street, Portland, Me., have reopened a retail stand which will be run in connection with their wholesale and jobbing business. This firm recently discontinued the retail branch, but recognized the demand from former customers.

Arguments were recently heard in the case of C. C. Bell and the Imperial Tobacco Co., against the L. & N. Railroad. Damages to the amount of $100,000 are sought on the grounds that engine sparks set fire to a warehouse which was completely destroyed.

Russel S. Clark, Elizabeth F. Towne and David K. Carhane are the incorporators of the newly organized Parkway Cigar Co., which is capitalized at $4000, with headquarters in Chicago, Ill.

Judge Ward, in the United States District Court at New York, denied the motion of the British-American Tobacco Co. for an injunction restraining the British-American Cigar Stores Co. from using the words "British-American."

Harry Grems, cigar and tobacco dealer, at Court and Arsenal Streets, Watertown, N. Y., has filed a petition in bankruptcy with the United States Circuit Court at Utica.

A cigar store will be opened by Paul Wickham at 1322 Farnam Street, Omaha, Neb., on June 15, which will be known as the Getten & Wickham Cigar Co.

E. E. Rauch, G. A. Milius and James Macklin are the incorporators of the newly organized Rauch-Milius Cigar Co., of St. Louis, Mo., with a stated capital of $4000.

E. F. Meeker has purchased the cigar store and billiard business formerly known as the Morrell store, in the Mackay Building at Freeport, Ill.

Roh Mossman has moved his cigar store to the St. Nicholas Block, corner Main and Third Streets, Mt. Vernon, Ind.

A charter has been granted to the Farmers' Tobacco Packing Association of York County.

L. Whetstone, Rockville, Ct., is building a large tobacco shed.

The American Tobacco Company

NEW YORK

To the Cigar Jobbers and Distributors in the United States

If you want to make your business profitable and get the desirable light colors which the trade demands, and to enable your cigar manufacturers to give you a better quality cigar for the money insist that they give you a good cigar covered with an American Sumatra Wrapper.

The manufacturer is not able to pay $1.85 per pound duty on imported tobacco and build as good a cigar as those which are covered with American Sumatra Tobacco, on which no duty is paid.

Skilled labor is high, Binders are high, good Fillers are high, everything pertaining to cigar manufacture is high, but the difference in the cost of wrappers, will enable the manufacturer to give you a finer article for your customer and more profits for you.

The Florida-Georgia wrapper is not a substitute. It is the

STANDARD MONEY-MAKING WRAPPER OF THE HOUR

Over 20,000 bales used last year by the leading cigar manufacturers in this country proves it.

WHICH WOULD YOU RATHER BE—PREJUDICED OR PROSPEROUS? IT'S UP TO YOU.

Cigar Manufacturers Must Stop Stealing Cigarmakers, Says Court

Detroit Firm Gets Injunction Against Canadian Firm Which Took Employees Away—Case Arouses International Interest

DETROIT, MICH., June 26.

A BODY blow against unfair competition for the services of expert cigarmakers was struck in the Circuit Court here, when the Hemmeter Cigar Co., of this city, obtained an injunction against the John McNee & Sons Cigar Co., of Windsor, Ont., restraining them from taking employes from the Hemmeter factory by unfair methods.

The suit which was brought in the Circuit Court has aroused interest, not only in this city, but in many other cigar manufacturing communities where the demand for cigarmakers has grown much faster than the supply, and as a result manufacturers have been resorting to unfair and underground methods to lure employes away from competing factories.

In this particular case, the question was one of international importance, because the McNee factory was situated in Canada, directly across from this city, and many Detroit cigarmakers, attracted by the flattering and glowing promises of the Canadian cigar-makers, were induced to give up good-paying positions here and go to Canada daily to work.

The Detroit company brought suit, alleging that Frank Boult, former foreman for the Detroit firm, had been persuaded to help the Canadian manufacturers establish a factory in Windsor. It was alleged that he had taken with him valuable trade secrets, and that he had enticed away valued employes from the Detroit firm. This was denied by the Canadian firm, although it was admitted that many Detroit cigar makers had left the Hemmeter company to go across the river. The injunction will prevent any further competition of this kind, which is adjudged unfair. The judge said that it took three years to make an efficient cigar maker, and in view of the dearth of skilled labor of this kind, it was a positive hardship for the Detroit concern to have its employes enticed away. He held that the employment of Frank Boult, the complainant's foreman, and the subsequent exodus of 65 of the Hemmeter employes to Windsor, did not come within the limits of fair business competition.

Cigars and Feathers Wrecked Him

The odd combination of a cigar and millinery business proved the financial undoing for Clermont C. Apple, a Lima, O., salesman, who has just filed a bankruptcy petition in the Federal court, giving assets of $2250 and liabilities of $2301.93. He found that tobacco and feathers did not mix very well. It pays to specialize.

Nebraska Revives Dead Law

LINCOLN, NEB., June 20.

City ordinances regulating the sale of tobacco and cigarettes to minors are to be enforced by Commissioner King, who announced that all minors found smoking cigarettes and all dealers selling to them are to be watched very closely and prosecuted.

First Prosecution Under New Anti-Cigarette Law In Penna. Hits Dealer Hard Blow

Harrisburg Retailer, Innocent Victim of New Measure, Found Guilty—Liable to $300 Fine—Other States Revive Dead Laws to Prosecute

THE first conviction under the new Thompson law, recently passed by the Pennsylvania Legislature, imposing drastic and unfair punishment on the retail dealers who sell cigarettes or cigarette papers to minors, has been made at Harrisburg, Pa., in the case of H. L. Beaumont.

Beaumont was tried in the Dauphin County courts on the charge of selling the forbidden cigarettes to a young man under age, and the verdict of guilty was rendered although several of the jurors told Judge Kunkel that they did not wish to find a verdict of guilty. The evidence showed that Beaumont had unknowingly violated the act. The court declined to allow the verdict to be changed, although the fine has not yet been imposed. Under the Thompson law, Beaumont is liable to a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $300.

At Meadville, Pa., Otto Nies, nineteen years old, was arrested by County Detective Ryan, when he refused to tell where he had obtained the cigarettes which he was smoking. Later the prisoner admitted that he bought the tobacco from a well-known Meadville firm and obtained the cigarettes from a stranger. The dealer has not yet been arrested.

The two cases, mentioned above, illustrate the drastic provisions of the new anti-cigarette law, which promises to work considerable hardship upon the retail dealer who unwittingly sells cigarettes or the makings to customers who misrepresent their ages. For the benefit of retailers who are unfamiliar with the new act, and in order that they may know its provisions to protect themselves, we reprint it from our recent issue May 15.

That any person who shall furnish to any minor by gift, sale or otherwise any cigarette or cigarette paper shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be sentenced to pay a fine of not less than one hundred dollars ($100), nor more than three hundred dollars ($300).

Section 2. Any minor being in possession of a cigarette or of cigarette paper and being by any police officer, constable, juvenile court officer, truant officer or teacher in any school, asked where and from whom such cigarette or cigarette paper was obtained, who shall refuse to furnish such information, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof before any alderman, magistrate or justice of the peace, such minor being of the age of sixteen years or upwards, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding five dollars or to undergo an imprisonment in the jail of the proper county not exceeding five days or both. If such minor shall be under the age of sixteen years he or she shall be certified by such alderman, magistrate or justice to the juvenile court of the county for such action as to said court shall seem proper.

North Carolina Has New Law

LEXINGTON, N. C., June 28.

At the last General Assembly an act was passed to amend section 3805, revisal of 1905, relative to selling or giving cigarettes to minors and provided that any minor who shall fail or refuse to give to any officer, upon inquiring the names of persons selling or giving him cigarettes or the substance out of which the same was made, shall be guilty of misdemeanor.

The law prescribes that it shall be the duty of every

Foreign-Blend Manila Cigars Taken Off Tariff Free Lists; Other Senate Changes

Only Cigars Made of Philippine Tobacco Are to Be Admitted Without Duty—"Made in Bond" Provision for American Manufacturers—Cigar Box Lumber Lowered

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 28.

AS was predicted by THE TOBACCO WORLD correspondent, the Underwood tariff bill has been undergoing some important changes since it reached the Senate Finance Committee. While no startling revisions have been made affecting the tobacco industry and its allied branches, a number of minor alterations have been made in response to the appeals made by the interests affected.

Probably the most important change—one which was demanded and in no uncertain tones, by the International Cigar Makers' Union, and by domestic leaf growers in Pennsylvania, Florida and Connecticut, as well as tobacco men and cigar manufacturers elsewhere—is the alteration of the administrative features relating to the admission of Philippine cigars free. As now changed, only cigars, made exclusively and entirely of native tobacco, can be admitted into the United States from the Philippines, duty free. The provision of the Underwood bill permitting cigars with 80 per cent. of Philippine tobacco and 20 per cent. of tobacco grown in other countries, duty free, has been stricken out in the Democratic caucus, and the altered version, although not entirely satisfactory to American tobacco interests, is regarded as an acceptable concession.

The House duty of 25 per cent. ad valorem on clay pipes, and 50 per cent. upon other pipes and smoking articles, cigarette papers, tobacco pouches, etc., stands unaltered, but the Senate Committee has added a provision, imposing 20 per cent. ad valorem on meerschaum in its crude and unmanufactured state.

American pipe manufacturers fear that they will be affected by the duty of 20 per cent. ad valorem placed on raw meerschaum. A prominent pipe manufacturer stated that if this duty were approved by Congress, that the American pipe makers would suffer in competition with cheaper labor abroad, which even now under the free meerschaum is able to undersell American-made pipes of certain sizes and grades. It is feared that domestic pipe men will suffer considerably in competition with such pipe centers as Vienna, where labor is cheap and the overhead manufacturing expenses much lighter than those prevailing in America.

Cigar bands, less than eight colors, twenty cents a pound; eight or more colors, twenty-five cents a pound; printed in whole or part of metal leaf, forty cents a pound.

Provision for Cigars Made in Bond.

The most important change in the administrative features of the tariff bill as amended by the Senate Committee, is the inclusion of an amendment proposed by Senator Fletcher and Representative Sparkman of Florida, permitting cigars to be manufactured in bond for domestic consumption. The amendment is made to Paragraph "M" of Section 4, relating to manufacturing in bond, and reads as follows:

"Provided, That cigars manufactured in whole of tobacco imported from any one country, made and manufactured in such bonded manufacturing warehouses, may be withdrawn for home consumption upon the payment of duties under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, and the payment of the internal revenue tax accruing thereon in their condition as withdrawn, and such cigars shall be stamped to indicate their character, origin of tobacco from which made, and place of manufacture."

Duty on Cigar Box Lumber.

In response to the protests of the domestic cigar box makers from Philadelphia, Brooklyn and other points, who recently sent a delegation to the Senate Sub-Committee appealing for a 10 per cent. duty on Spanish cedar lumber, the committee has changed the Underwood bill in compliance with their request.

As the Paine-Aldrich duty on Cuban-grown lumber is 15 per cent., on which there is a drawback duty of 15 per cent., making the net duty about 12 per cent., the new net duty on the same lumber would be about 8 per cent., a very slight reduction that would make no appreciable difference in the cost of finished boxes. Most of the logs from which cigar box lumber is made are imported from South and Central America duty free. Cuban lumber, in its manufactured state, is little used. Consequently, the lower duty will have little or no effect on cigar box prices.

No changes have been made in Schedule "F" affecting imported tobacco.

Several petitions have been filed on behalf of the cigar manufacturers and leaf men asking for a change in the dockweight clause in the administrative section. In spite of this, no changes have been announced.

Tobacco Men Protest Licorice Duty.

Despite the protest of President William T. Reed, of the Independent Tobacco Manufacturers' Association, against the proposed duty of one-half of one per cent. on licorice root, no changes have been made in this schedule.

President Reed recently wrote the following letter to Chairman Underwood:

"In behalf of the independent tobacco manufacturers of the United States, I wish to protest against the proposed duty of one-half cent per pound on licorice root as proposed in H. R. 10, page 9, lines 9 and 10.

"This would mean an increase in the cost of licorice to the independent tobacco manufacturers of certainly one and one-half cents per pound on their requirements of licorice, which is a necessity to the successful manufacture of chewing tobacco and cut plug smoking tobacco.

"There is not, from the best information I can get, a pound of licorice root produced in the United States. The tobacco industry is now paying something like $60,000,000 per year revenue to the government, and this proposed increase in duty on licorice root would add still other burdens to the manufacturers, and one which small independent manufacturers can ill afford to stand, and one which would be difficult for them to pass on to the consumer.

"The tobacco trade is just recovering from the recent advance of two cents per pound internal revenue tax, and while this increase is evidently aimed at the licorice trust, it will in the meantime, be a severe blow to the independent tobacco manufacturers.

"The last report of the Department of Commerce and Labor showed that forty independent tobacco manufacturers only averaged a net profit of something like two cents per pound on their product, and this increased duty on licorice will still add to their burdens and decrease their profits without in any way affecting the licorice trust, who will immediately pass this increase on to the manufacturer, and I do hope that in the final settlement of the tariff that your committee in its wisdom can see fit to let licorice root remain as it is, on the free list."

United Enlarging Edgerton Warehouse

Improvements contemplated for the warehouse of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Co., Edgerton, Wis., embrace the extension of the present building to the length of eighty feet, two stories and basement. The basement in its full length will be widened thirty feet. This will increase the capacity of the sorting room, and also provide facilities for the bundle tobacco.

Tobacco Growers Tell Congress Commission They Oppose Proposed Government Monopoly

Virginia, Kentucky and North Carolina Men State That Prices are Kept Down by Big Buyers Here and Abroad—Virginia Dark Tobacco Unprofitable

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 30.

THE joint Congressional commission to investigate the purchases of American-grown tobacco for European consumption, of which commission Senator Martin, of Virginia, is chairman, resumed hearings on June 24 and have been in session every day since. The witnesses heard today were all from Virginia and included F. D. Williams, of Richmond; A. F. Thomas, of Lynchburg, and D. M. Gannaway, of Fuinea Mills.

Most of the witnesses so far heard were from Virginia, Kentucky and North Carolina, and the burden of their complaint was that the tobacco growers are losing money in selling to the American Tobacco Company, and also to the representatives of foreign countries.

C. R. Sanderson, a tobacco grower from Virginia, stated that the prices which the growers are now receiving are lower than they have been for the last ten years and that the dark tobacco industry is in very bad shape. He stated that the average price obtained for this kind of tobacco was six and one-half cents per pound against eight cents cost, and that tobacco growers really made more money by hiring out for field labor than growing tobacco on this basis. He believed that a tobacco monopoly, fostered by the government, would not remedy the condition of the Virginia growers, but he believed that if the government would use its good offices to induce foreign governments to pay from four cents to five cents per pound more for tobacco, that the farmers would be much benefited.

Unless conditions improved, the witness said, the Virginia growers would have to retire from this branch of agriculture.

Congressman Flood suggested that it might be possible for the United States to negotiate with some of the foreign countries where government monopolies existed and obtain treaties by which would bring higher prices to the American tobacco growers.

R. T. Davis, a grower, stated that the American Tobacco Co. and the Imperial Tobacco Co. work in harmony in purchasing supplies, not only for themselves but also for foreign monopolies, and thereby keep down the price of tobacco and control the market.

E. K. Vietor, German Consul, at Richmond, Va., submitted testimony to the commission setting forth the operations of his government in the purchase of tobacco supplies in this country.

Ohio Leaf Growers Endorse Sales Plan

AT a conference between the Tobacco Growers' Sales Co. and the National Cigar Leaf Growers' Union, held in Dayton, O., last week, about one hundred leaf growers from the Miami Valley, who were present, approved the sales method which had been in force during the present year for the disposal of their tobacco. S. W. Pierce and E. E. Norris, of the Sales Company, were strongly endorsed for their energetic salesmanship and were continued in charge of this end. President Phillip Spence, of Lebanon, and Secretary Phillip Croll were re-elected as officers of the Sales Company.

Chicago

Retail Trade Aided by Seasonable Weather—Lorillard District Manager Resigns to Embark in Business—Changes Among Retailers

CHICAGO, June 28.

BUSINESS in the tobacco and cigar trade is everything that could be desired. Weather has been of the made to order kind. The temperatures have been high, but there has been very little rainfall and this has helped the trade considerably. Smoking tobaccos continued to boom with the outdoor season. Almost every smoker has hunted out his old corn cob pipe and is puffing away at it as he sits on the front door stoop after his evening meal. Cigars also are doing well.

W. G. Fitzgerald, an old timer, is now with the Roby Cigar Co., of Barnesville, O. He was in the city placing stogies called "Three Queens" and "Roby's Retail Wrinkles."

Bloom & Mayer sold the cigar store at 30 East Twenty-second Street to Harry Newman. The former concern will probably open up a Loop store if they can find a suitable location.

The San Souci, under the new management of the Pabst Brewing Co., has been remodeled, with a garden, hippodrome and a Venetian Garden. Creatore and his famous band have been engaged for the summer season.

M. Van Buren has resigned his position as district manager for the P. Lorillard Co., to go into business at Elgin, Ill. He will be succeeded by Everett Meyer, who will have complete charge of all of the Lorillard brands, excepting cigarettes. Mr. Meyer has represented Lorillard in the local territory for the past eighteen months on plugs and scraps.

After June 26 J. & B. Moos will not redeem any Lorillard or Anargyros Company, Ltd., white and blue Triangle certificates, but same can be redeemed at Jersey City, N. J.

H. Comhauser, who represents Mendelsohn, Bornemann & Co., New York, Cuba and Porto Rico, has an office now at 138 North La Salle Street to look after his local leaf trade.

Owen O'Malley, Fifty-first and Indiana Avenue, received a new brand in fifteen sizes called "La Docilla," made by Quiros, Villazon & Co., Tampa, Fla.

The American Tobacco Co.'s cigarette branch have been giving away two rugs with "Omar" cigarettes.

Harold Cigar Co., of Chicago, has been incorporated with a capital of $500. Margaret Klawana, Margaret Corrigan and Margaret O'Grady are the incorporators.

The American Can Co. will construct a new plant on Clybourn Avenue, near Clyde Street, to cost $30,000. It will be located within about a block of the Northwestern Elevated Railroad. The principal building will be three stories high, 280 x 300 feet, and will be of concrete construction. It will be completed and ready for occupancy by May 1, 1914.

E. C. Elliason, a wholesale dealer in cigars at Mishawka, Ind., was a visitor to Chicago.

J. & B. Moos have placed a brand of Manila cigars called "Non Plus Ultra" in tin foil, marked "Vencedors," packed twenty-five in a box, and also packed fifty in a box called "Cazadores," in two bundles. This has been a great repeater with 75 per cent. of their customers.

Best & Russell have succeeded in getting many retail dealers to place their "Hand Made" 5-cent cigar, packed twenty-five in a tin, on the show case. They provide the dealer with a receptacle to hold two tins with their advertisement on it.

Evansville Dealer Gets New Location

Jacob Hartz, who conducts two of the finest retail cigar stores in Evansville, Ind., has just secured new quarters at Second and Sycamore Streets, formerly occupied by Charles Stockwell, and will move his store and pool fixtures from Eighth and Main Streets to this new location. The old building, formerly occupied by Hartz, is to be razed to make way for a new building. Stockwell will move his store to the rear of the National Bank Building.

Charles F. Nordhoff and F. E. Brittingham are named as the incorporators of the Martter Cigar Co., Columbus, O.

Your "4th of July" Windows

IT should hardly be necessary to remind every retailer of the wisdom of preparing a special display to attract trade during "Fourth of July" week. This is the great holiday which is observed and celebrated more generally, possibly, than any other of our national holidays. Three or four days preceding the "Fourth" retailers should begin to dress their windows to catch the trade that expect to spend the day out of town as well as to draw the trade that is passing the store during the day. We know of one retailer who dressed up a couple of boys as imitations of huge firecrackers and had them parading up and down the main streets of his town advertising his store. Painted on the front and back of the walking firecracker were the following advertisements:

DON'T GO OFF FOR THE "4TH" WITHOUT A FULL LOAD OF CIGARS, CIGARETTES AND SMOKING TOBACCO. GET THE BEST AT JONES' SMOKESHOP.

How to Land the "Sun Dodgers"

The collar-melting, perspirating, soft shirt time of the year has come when pedestrians seek the shady side of the street and pass your cigar shop in a hurry to get out of the burning sun. Lucky you are, Mr. Retailer, if your store is on the shady side of the street during the rush hours, for then you will catch the transients who otherwise might be dropping into Charley Competitor's store across the way.

But——

Suppose you are on the sunny side, what then?

You must lure the perspiring victim to your counter with subtle charms. How can you do this?

First and foremost, keep your doors wide open like outstretched arms welcoming the passing throng. Many cigar stores, particularly those in extremely hot sections of the country where flies and mosquitoes abound, find it imperative to have screen doors. They serve a useful purpose apparently, but really they are barriers to business. The average transient customer is a lazy cuss. Nine times out of ten, other conditions being equal, he will go into the store that has no doors, rather than push aside the swinging screens. Unconsciously, he chooses the line of least resistance and buys his cigars and tobacco in the place most easily entered.

The conclusion is "No Screen Doors" if you can possibly avoid them.

Another magnet for drawing trade to your store during dog days is the plan to make it the coolest and most inviting haven for the travel-stained pedestrian. Have electric fans over your counters, keep the floor cool by frequent sprinkling of water, dress your windows occasionally with a cake of ice or other cooling suggestions and don't be afraid to advertise the fact. A sign something along the following line placed in such window displays should prove attractive:

Box of Cigars For Each Home Run

Retail cigar dealers who keep their ears to the ground and are ever alert to draw the smoking public to their stores, will find it advantageous to cater to the baseball fans during the summer months. In addition to bulletining baseball scores, in their windows or in their stores, retailers could make a hit with the local fans by offering occasionally—in fact, every week if they found it a good thing—a box of cigars—(the leading brand being featured by their store)—to each member of the local team knocking a home run that week.

This offer could be advertised attractively in the windows and also announced in the local score card, or on the signboards in the ball park.

We believe that such a scheme would make a big hit with both the players and the fans, and bring to the enterprising retailer many times the value of his premium. The award could be announced in the window of the store every Saturday, and a photograph of the winner placed in the centre of the window display.

We would like to hear from any dealer who will try this scheme. We believe that it is a good one.

Catchy Schemes Used Successfully By Thinking Men To Improve, Enlarge and Popularize Their Business . . .

You never miss the water till the well runs dry, and you never miss your umbrella till the weather runs wet. How often during the showery spring that has just passed, have you, Mr. Retailer, been caught in the rain without raincoat or umbrella?

Lending Umbrellas to Make Friends and Money

Surely many of your customers, caught in similar predicaments, have dropped into your store every once in a while to borrow from your own private stock of rain-defiers. How many umbrellas have you lost through your generosity in helping such rain-soaked individuals?

Stop the leak. Adopt this scheme and see how it works. Place this sign in a prominent place in your store.

Umbrellas loaned Free.
Deposit $1.00 to be refunded when you return it.

You can buy a couple dozen umbrellas at wholesale for fifty or sixty cents each. If the umbrellas are not returned, you have made a profit! if they are returned, you have made a life-long friend of the fellow you saved from the storm.

When it comes to originality, we must take off our hats to that highly imaginative Frenchman, who has just evolved a scheme to evade the recently enacted law which imposes prohibitive taxes on unsightly sign-boards, disfiguring the countryside of Paris.

Uses Flower-Beds to Advertise, Instead of Signs

No sooner had the anti-sign law been passed than this man began to plant flower beds laid out in attractive designs, featuring a cow, a yellow cow at that, which is the trade-mark of the product he was advertising. As fast as he could tear down his old billboards, he planted floral beds all along the suburban railroads leading to the city, thereby not only circumventing the law, but providing original advertisements that attracted no end of comment.

While we know of no such local laws having been passed here in America, there has been much agitation along this line by various associations who are bent on realizing a city beautiful. Why not beat the game by putting out a few flower signs of our own?

How would the famous "Bull" look, florally advertising the smoking mixture we all know?

In order to beat the new Anti-Coupon law passed by the State of Washington, the United Cigar Stores Co. posted notices in their stores in that State that coupons hereafter will be redeemed in cash only, at the rate of one cent each.

Coupons Cannot Live Without The Women

While this move circumvents the law, it will deprive the United of one of its chief assets—the women who have been urging their husbands, sweethearts and brothers to give them the certificates so that they can get silk stockings and other feminine premiums.

Robbed of its feminine incentive, the coupon idea loses much of its force. The average male smoker does not care to be bothered saving coupons. The women, after all, have been the indirect cause of the coupon's success in the cigar store.

We believe that the Washington legislators have struck at the root of the evil when they brought this new condition about. The coupon cannot live long without the women.

Out in Minneapolis, in the big retail store of Ferris & Grady, located at Washington and Hennepin Avenues, there has been inaugurated a rather unusual scheme of doing business.

Each Clerk Keeps His Own Stock

This store is laid out so that it is in reality a double store, each part being a duplicate of the other.

Under this scheme each clerk has his own cash register and separate compartments for carrying his stock, and when he goes off watch, he not only locks up his cash register, but also his stock, and the next clerk coming on duty sells from the duplicate stock, and rings up his sales on his own cash register. This scheme enables the owners of the store to keep an absolute record of the stock sold by each clerk, and also to trace the exact amount of his sales.

Another distinctive feature of this store is the fact that no goods are sold from the show case. The full line of samples are shown to the customer, and as the goods are called for they are taken from the wall cases, thereby keeping the samples intact, and lending an orderly and neat appearance to the show cases.

Go into any of the retail stores of the Middle West, from Pittsburgh to Indianapolis, where stogies are featured, and you will find that probably 95% of these stores have their stogies out on the counter unprotected from the dust and dirt of the street, and subjected every minute to the promiscuous handling of every "Tom, Dick and Harry."

Selling Stogies In Sanitary Manner Pays

There is one store, however, in Pittsburgh, where stogies are not handled or sold in this fashion, but are stocked and displayed just like high-class cigars in dust-proof show cases. Running along the front of the show cases are signs reading as follows: "We display our stogies with as much care and sanitary arrangement as the other stores handle cigars."

In talking with the manager of this store, it was learned that his customers of the better class seem to appreciate his sanitary methods, and as a result he has built up a splendid box trade as well as a good transient trade.

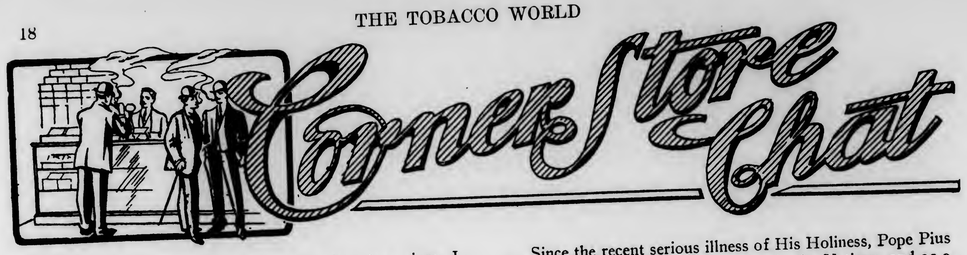
If more dealers who find it necessary to feature stogies were to adopt similar methods, they could not fail to be benefited. This is an age of sanitation, and the progressive retailer will do well to follow the public mind in this direction.

Dealers who handle J. W. Merriam & Co.'s brands of "Baron De Kalb," "De Luxe" and others, have reported a good stimulus to box trade, due to the certificates which the makers pack in each box.

Using Premiums To Boost Box Trade

Five of these certificates are exchanged by the firm for an ornate art metal bulldog paper weight, two inches high, of "King Lud," the champion bulldog of the world. Ten certificates call for a genuine Russian leather cigar case with the owner's name stamped in gold.

Retailers in certain sections save the coupons, and then chance off the paper weight or cigar case to good customers at regular intervals, thus giving the manufacturers excellent publicity and helping their own business as well.



WHILE standing in a cigar store, a few days since, I heard a good one. Opposite to where I was standing stood a young fellow, whom I should judge was no more than nineteen years of age. After looking around the cigar case for some twenty minutes, he finally gave in to a dark thick cigar. After clipping the end of the weed, he cautiously proceeded to light up. After some few minutes of hard labor, he took the cigar from his mouth with a disgusted look and surveyed it contemplatively. "Well, I'll be hanged," he burst out, "if you'se people call this thing a cigar, I'd like to know what you'd call them explosives over there," indicating a case of stogies. "This ain't a smoke shop, it is a rope shop," he fairly shouted, after glancing at the sign "Smoke Shop," which hung over the door.

The ladies—God bless them—have taken to canes. It is the style now to parade Peacock Alley, in the Congress Hotel, Chicago, with the latest confection in bamboo or cocobolo. Not that the ladies need them to support a tottering step or a weak knee, any more than are their male companions crippled who carry a club an inch in diameter swung from elbow crook.

And so the "weaker sex" gradually emancipates itself. The modern woman is riding astride, she is gradually shedding her bathing skirt, she has pockets in her skirts and votes in her vest pocket. And, bless their hearts, the wise ones among them have babies at home to look after and cheer up the old lady when glories of canes and cross-country rides have faded into the past.

I sat in the grill room at Rector's big Broadway hotel a few weeks ago, about 5.30 in the afternoon, accompanied by an out-of-town visitor, and the gentleman expressed himself as shocked at the sight of some dozen well-dressed women puffing cigarettes in the most nonchalant manner.

His disapproval, however, has not prevented the almost general privilege allowed ladies of smoking in the public dining rooms in the best New York hotels. Oscar, of the Waldorf, is a rabid anti-smoker, however, and woe betide the female patron who has the temerity to light a cigarette in the Waldorf dining room. At the St. Regis, Vanderbilt, and Hotel Knickerbocker, the management never interfere with the women guests who wish a puff with their meal. Manager Keller, of the Ritz-Carlton, when approached on the subject, said: "What right have we to forbid a woman to smoke if she wants to? There is no law against it."

This may all be true, but though not a prude, I have always believed that this little harmless vice should be practiced by our best women in the seclusion of their homes. It's hard to draw a line in public places.

A number of leading American cigar and tobacco factories, especially those whose owners are affiliated with the Catholic Church, have made it a rule for years to send offerings of fine cigars and tobacco to Rome for the Papal use. The Pope has recently requested that this form of "Peter's Pence" be changed and that snuff be sent instead.

It's a sure thing that the new rule will lead to a largely increased use of snuff in the Vatican.

Since the recent serious illness of His Holiness, Pope Pius X, the Pontiff has forbidden smoking in the Vatican, and as a result, the Papal Guard and other attendants are hard-pushed to get an occasional whiff of the much-desired cigarette or cigar. The orders issued in this connection were rigorous and forbids the use of pipes, cigarettes or cigars even in the private chambers of the Papal family. Pius X, unlike Leo XIII, has always been a devotee of the weed, but now he has resorted to the snuff box, in which practice also Pope Leo indulged.

Thomas M. Honan is the attorney-general of Indiana. The other day he was called upon to deliver an opinion as to whether the giving out of cigars by a candidate for election was illegal under the "corrupt practices" act. Mr. Honan opined that such practices were illegal, but he was sorry it was so, as he considered cigar campaigning one of the most effective means of getting votes. He further stated:

"The first time I made the race for prosecuting attorney down at home, I had it impressed on me how valuable is a cigar, even of the campaign grade, in vote getting. I had gone to a township where I had never been before, and stopped at a cabin, and let in by an old woman who was smoking a pipe. I found her intelligent, interested in politics, and as much a Democrat as if she had been a voter. I noticed she was smoking tobacco grown on the native hillsides, and I drew a cigar from my pocket, suggesting that she break it up and try it in her pipe. She did, and liked it. I then gave her three more, and she crumpled them up and stuffed them into a clean tobacco bag. I asked her if there was any other person in her family, and she told me she had a son, old enough to vote. At that I produced three more cigars, and asked her to give them to him. She was greatly pleased by the simple gift. On leaving, I asked her to speak to her son about me, and ask him to vote for me in the primary.

"'Ask him! I'll tell him he has to do it, an' he'll do it, too. Don't you never worry; he'll do it, too,' she declared.

"A few days later I was campaigning in Salem, on Saturday afternoon, when I observed a young fellow watching me very closely. He told me he was the son of the woman I had visited; that his mother told him to vote for me, and that he had come to see what sort of looking chap I was.

"'You'll do, I guess,' he said. 'I'll vote fer you, an' I'll help you get some votes in our neighborhood.'

"I handed him another handful of cigars, and had the satisfaction of carrying his precinct in the primary election.

"In that same campaign I carried one other precinct by distributing a box of cigars in a little sawmill town where I was not known, but where the balance of power was held. The cigars and a half hour spent with the boys at the sawmill did the work. I tried to talk for fifty minutes before I produced the cigars, but couldn't get any one to listen to me, and as soon as the cigars showed up, I had an attentive crowd."

A good cigar has turned the tide in many a battle other than political.

Cuba's Treaty With Spain

Secretary Bryan can do a great deal toward furthering the excellent impression which the present administration has acquired down in Cuba by prompt action in the consideration of the Modus Vivendi which is now pending between Spain and Cuba, and which will do much toward the relief of the Havana cigar manufacturers, in so far as their trade relationship with Spain is concerned, and yet, on the other hand, in no wise affect the interests of the United States.

This treaty which has had the endorsement of both Spain and Cuba, has been hanging fire for many months, and apparently received no attention whatever at the hands of Ex-Secretary Knox. If the Cubans can have it promulgated and endorsed by the United States Government, it will, as stated previously, in no wise affect the reciprocity arrangements with the United States, and it will give the Cuban manufacturers a much enlarged outlet for the heavy black cigars which are not wanted in the United States anyway, and which are dear to the heart of Spanish-smoking connoisseurs. We believe that Secretary Bryan should take up this matter at once, as the Cubans feel justly that the last administration treated them slightingly, if not arbitrarily, in a number of cases which affected their material welfare.

Cigar Production Shows Big Increase

Returns of the national production of tobacco products reveal for the month of May figures which should be a source of gratification to cigar and cigarette manufacturers. Cigars show an increase in production of 21,490,260 over the same month of last year, and May, 1912, showed a decrease of 7,225,970 cigars, compared with the May of 1911. The new figures for 1913 not only make up the deficit of May, 1911, but go far in excess of it.

The Government returns more than confirm the prediction freely made by THE TOBACCO WORLD during the past few months that 1913 would be a banner year for the cigar manufacturers of this country. The first six months of the new year have held out every reason for encouragement to cigar makers everywhere from Tampa to Detroit. This showing of the cigar industry in face of general business conditions which have not been altogether satisfactory, proves that the cigar is not losing its hold upon the American smoker, and is not likely to be displaced by the cigarette, which has shown a much larger percentage of increase. The fact that cigarettes have grown so tremendously in production while cigars have increased more conservatively, leads to one conclusion—that the army of smokers in this country is daily gaining recruits at a percentage far in excess of the normal increase in population.

Cigarettes show a gain of 139,102,344 over May, 1912, compared with 207,093,000, increase in May, 1912, over the same month in 1911, which figures indicate that cigarettes are not gaining as fast this past May as they did last. This falling off, however, is causing no anxiety among cigarette manufacturers who realize that 1912 was an abnormal year in the cigarette business, and as a whole, that 1913 will compare favorably with it.

Far Reaching Effects of Cut Prices

A live handler of fine cigars from the South who was visiting in New York the other day, decried bitterly against the price-cutting on Havana goods in the big markets, and when reminded that it was only confined to New York and Boston, replied that while this was true to an extent, the effects were demoralizing in all sections.

His home city is over 1500 miles distant from New York, but his sales have already been distinctly affected. One of his best customers, a wealthy man, who has for years consumed thousands of imported Havana cigars, arrived home from a visit to New York a few weeks ago with 500 cigars of his favorite brand bought at $18 per hundred and a copy of an advertisement showing the cut figures, and demanded to know why he should pay the dealer $22 per hundred for the same goods.

The merchant could only show him his bills, disclosing the fact that he had paid a fraction of a cent under 18 cents a piece for the cigars, and trust to the customer's sense of fair play as to whether he was not entitled to a retail profit of 4 cents on a cigar costing 18 cents wholesale.

"But," he added, in conclusion, "the worm was in his brain, and the pleasant business relation of years is in jeopardy."

"Although it is asserted that an import duty on bananas will be levied solely to procure needed revenue, there is a grave suspicion that the scheme is, in fact, the result of an insidious intrigue, engineered by Connecticut farmers who have long entertained the ambition to break the power of the banana trust by converting their tobacco fields into banana plantations. There has not been a tariff discussion in years in which the possibility of producing bananas in New England under glass and a protective system has not figured. The Republican party, however, consistently refused to coddle this infant industry. It has remained for the Democrats to do so by a scheme of incidental protection."

Bobrow Bros. to Build Seven-Story Factory

Purchase Plot of Ground at Third and Cambridge Streets, Where New Home of "The Bold" Will Be Erected

TO keep pace with the increasing demand for their "Bold" cigars, orders for which have been overtaxing their facilities for the last year, Bobrow Brothers have just purchased a plot of ground on the northeast corner of Third and Cambridge Streets, Philadelphia, on which they will erect a seven-story and basement factory.

The site has a 55-foot frontage on Third Street, and runs back 200 feet to Orianna Street. It is proposed to erect a modern concrete building fireproof and up-to-date in every respect. As there are no tall buildings on the property surrounding, light will be obtained for the workrooms from all sides, making the manufacturing conditions ideal. Room for seating 1000 to 1200 hands will be provided, and facilities will be laid out to bring the maximum capacity up to 80,000,000 a year—a figure which in view of the almost unprecedented growth and demand for "Bold" cigars, is likely of attainment within the next few years.

In the new factory, the entire manufacturing business of Bobrow Brothers will be concentrated, and it can be said that this factory will be the largest under one roof in the First District of Pennsylvania. Preliminary plans are now being prepared by an expert architect.

When Bobrow Brothers moved their plant to 114 South Second Street, several years ago, they more than doubled their capacity, but even this increase did not keep up with growth in their business. Just recently they opened an additional factory at 133 Arch Street, but again this has not enabled them to fill their orders. Looking towards the future, they have therefore planned a factory which will give them an output which will anticipate several years' growth.

As the leases which they hold on their present quarters have some time to run, and as it will take nearly a year to construct the new factory, they have decided to open a third factory as a temporary means of increasing their production, until they can get into their new plant. This third factory will be opened in Philadelphia within the next sixty days. They have several buildings in view in the down-town section, and will make their choice very shortly.

The Riker-Hegeman Company, which recently opened its first Philadelphia store at 1332 Chestnut Street, has leased the store formerly occupied by Twaddell's Shoe Company on Market Street, above Twelfth, and after remodeling the same will open their second Philadelphia store. The cigar department of the Chestnut Street store is now in charge of G. A. Beach.

Tobacco Salesman Killed in Auto Accident

A. J. Carter, Representative of Bloch Bros., Meets Death in Philadelphia—David Dean Injured

FOLLOWING the turning turtle of their automobile, which was going at a terrific rate of speed on Broad Street above Lehigh Avenue, Philadelphia, in order to evade two motorcycle policemen who thought they were exceeding the speed limit, David Dean, 737 North Twenty-sixth Street, that city, Philadelphia representative of the Bloch Bros. Tobacco Co., Wheeling, W. Va., was slightly injured, and his companion, A. J. Carter, 39 years old, of Gransville, O., also a salesman for the same company, was instantly killed.

Starting out for a joy ride they gradually increased their speed. When spied by the policemen they were warned to slacken, but instead of so doing made the machine go faster, until the striking of a rut in the street caused the lifting of the automobile in the air, after which it came down on the street, the wheels being upward. Carter was crushed beneath its weight, and Dean thrown some distance. When taken to the hospital it was found that Carter had met death instantaneously, while Dean was only slightly scratched. Dean was arrested.

H. Duys & Co. in Philadelphia

Ralph Levine, who looks after H. Duys & Co.'s business in the Philadelphia market, has been sending in some splendid orders for the firm's Sumatra tobacco, and a number of the best names in the cigar and tobacco trade of the city are to be found on the firm's books.

As is well known, the Duys' purchases at the inscriptions this year broke all records, and the quality of the tobacco they have shown thus far seems to quite justify them in getting the tremendous lots which they acquired.

New "Stratford" Salesman in Ohio

E. G. Walthall, the newly appointed Ohio representative for the El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Co., Philadelphia, has been making a tour of Cleveland and Toledo during the past month placing "Stratford" cigars among the Ohio retailers, and also opening several good jobbing accounts. Mr. Walthall is an experienced cigar salesman, having been associated in the past with such well-known houses as Straiton & Storm Co., and Jeitles & Blumenthal, Ltd.

In the Quaker City

Samuel Bayuk, of Bayuk Bros., recently made a tour of the Western States as far as the Pacific Coast.

Samuel C. Jeitles, of Jeitles & Blumenthal, Ltd., Philadelphia, has returned from a very satisfactory trip through the Western States, where he found the leading brands of this factory selling freely. In Chicago the "Frat" brand, made by this factory and distributed by George C. Knight, is having a splendid distribution. Millions of this 5-cent smoke have been sold in Chicago, and the demand is constantly increasing.

The "Coiner" cigar, made by the Baum-Jaffe Co., is making rapid strides in the Philadelphia market. Within the past six weeks there has been a decided spurt in the demand for this popular nickel smoke in the Philadelphia territory.

Warner B. Searle has been booming things throughout New York State during the past month for the Juan F. Portuondo factory. W. E. Gumpert, the newly appointed Southern representative for this factory, is making his first trip through Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi on behalf of the Portuondo line.

Louis R. Eisenbrand, Philadelphia representative for Cullman Bros., New York importers and packers of leaf tobacco, rejoined the ranks of the "Happily married" fraternity on June 29, when he wedded Miss Laura Hamberg, a charming Philadelphia girl. Mr. and Mrs. Eisenbrand are at present on their honeymoon trip through the Middle West, and upon their return will reside at 2023 North Thirty-third Street, Philadelphia.

Albert Gumpert has been covering the larger towns of Ohio during the past month on behalf of Gumpert Brothers. He has been sending in very encouraging reports to the Philadelphia factory which has been exceedingly busy during the past few months on all of their brands. In their new quarters in Church Street, they have already increased their capacity 12 per cent., and within the next thirty days expect to add considerably more.

Francis E. Gyory, general sales representative of Gonzales, Fisher & Co., Tampa, made his first call on the Philadelphia trade late in June. He formerly represented the "Sinceridad" line on the Pacific Coast, but has just recently taken over Eastern territory. While here, he booked some very satisfactory business on factory and private brands.

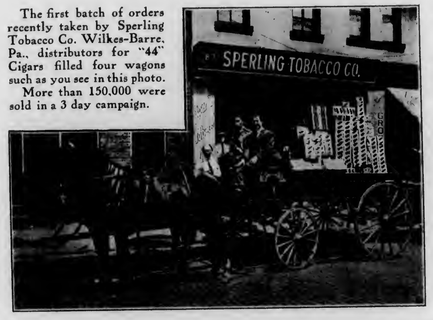
The J. J. Sullivan Co., Watertown, N. Y., has had a crew of salesmen out during the past month pushing "44" cigars. W. B. LeCouver, "44" missionary man, has been on the job lending a helping hand.

For reasons unknown to members of his family, William Schultz, 52 years old, who conducted a cigar store at the southeast corner of Twelfth Street and Indiana Avenue, Philadelphia, committed suicide by inhaling gas.

Dows as Treasurer of B.-A. Stores

Joseph H. Dows has been elected treasurer of the British-American Cigar Stores Co., succeeding Charles F. Murphy, Jr., who becomes vice-president. Mr. Dows is experienced in financial affairs, and his accession to the office of treasurer will greatly strengthen the organization.

A Wagon Load of "44" Cigars



The first batch of orders recently taken by Sperling Tobacco Co. Wilkes-Barre, Pa., distributors for "44" Cigars filled four wagons such as you see in this photo. More than 150,000 were sold in a 3 day campaign.

How to Choose a Perfect Briar Pipe

DIFFERENT pipe smokers have their special preferences as to pipes," says a pipe expert, "but I believe that if a census were taken, the briar would be found most in favor, for it will stand any amount of rough usage and hard wear, and is not too conspicuous or too expensive. A mistake, however, that many pipe smokers make is to buy a pipe simply because it is cheap. Briars of a sort can be bought as cheaply as 25 cents, but they are full of varnish, smoke hot, and make the mouth and the tongue sore. Besides, they last no time, and are therefore dear in the long run. A really good pipe should be in commission for at least two or three years.

"As the price of the pipe increases so the quality improves to a surprising degree. The good pipe gets seasoned much more quickly, and in a short time becomes as sweet as a nut.

"Many a beginner has been put off pipe smoking altogether simply because his first pipe—which, by the way, is reasonably sure to have been a cheap one—was a failure. If he had started with a good quality briar he would have become a confirmed pipe smoker.

"A reasonably good price paid for a pipe is money well invested, as the smoker obtains an old, well-seasoned, close-grained bit of briar, and not a piece that has had the crevices filled with some compound that tastes abominably and takes weeks to remove. The old wood is already in condition, and after about the second pipeful it is difficult to tell the difference between the new pipe and the old seasoned friend.

"It may happen sometimes, however, that a cheap pipe is the only one available. A good plan then to make the pipe quickly smokable is to stop up the end of the mouthpiece with a wooden plug, fill the bowl with whiskey, and let it remain in the pipe for a few hours. At the end of that time the whiskey should be drawn off and the pipe aired thoroughly before smoking, and it will be found that the first smoke is not quite so rank as it would otherwise prove.

"If you are not a good judge of a pipe, go to a first-class dealer and rely on his judgment, or get some friend to select one for you. One last word of advice—above all, don't be afraid of the price; buy the best, and then you can look upon your pipe as a friend."

(To the dealer: Cut this out and put it in your window the next time you have a pipe display.)

Norbitt Popper, who will be remembered as having held for many years the position of vice-president with the Dusel-Goodloe Co., and who recently resigned from that firm, will in the future act as the Philadelphia representative for the Metropolitan Tobacco Co., of New York.

H. J. Susskind Co. Take Over Kern Business

OWING to the withdrawal some time since of A. Kern, who headed the cigar corporation of that name at 109 West 42d Street, Harry J. Susskind, who has been the president and treasurer of the company, has decided to change the name of the firm to the H. J. Susskind Co., Inc., and in future business will be transacted under this style. Mr. Susskind remains as the president and treasurer of the new corporation; L. B. Freeman is secretary, who, together with J. A. Susskind, Frank Greenberg, form a Board of Directors. As stated in our last issue, Mr. Susskind has the cigar privileges at the Grand Union Hotel in Saratoga, and in one or two other choice spots, and he is known as a very energetic, capable man, with ample capital to successfully conduct its affairs.

Eugene Vallens' Big Purchase

IN addition to his recognized ability as a cigar manufacturer, Eugene Vallens, head of the Gene-Val Cigar Co., has turned some mighty clever real estate deals in Manhattan. Only a few days ago, Mr. Vallens bought the four-story dwelling at 54 West 92d Street, and this purchase gives him ownership of five properties, 46-54, with a frontage of 90 feet on 92d Street and 100 feet in depth. Mr. Vallens started to accumulate this property away back in 1907, and he now has a splendid site, and it is understood that he will shortly sell it to a builder to construct a big nine-story apartment house thereon.

"King's Club" on Hudson Boats

E. P. Oakes, general distributing agent for Pedro Castro & Co.'s "King's Club" cigar, closed a neat deal a few days since with the Hudson Navigation Co., whereby his goods are to be featured on the People's and Citizen's Line fleets, including the superb new vessel, "Berkshire," which runs between New York and Albany.

Mr. Oakes has fully recovered from his recent illness, and is busy putting their special brands into new cases. He says that their "King's Club Coronas" have found special favor in the eyes of the trade, and are handled in the most select places in New York.

"King's Club" cigars were the favored brand at the recent Master Car Builders' Convention at the Hotel Shelburne, Atlantic City, and new accounts have also been lately opened with the Brighton Beach Hotel, and Shelburne, Brighton Beach, and the swagger Milford Inn at Milford, Del.

The Riker-Hegeman Co. and Schulte stores are also large handlers of these goods.

Louis G. Smith & Co., 52 Beaver Street, New York, are the accredited metropolitan distributors for these goods.

E. H. Gato, accompanied by his son, Thomas Gato, arrived in New York a few days ago, for his regular summer visit to the Manhattan headquarters. Mr. Gato will stay in the city for about a month, and then make a visit to the mountains before returning to Cuba.

New York Notes

E. J. Stachelberg, vice-president of Sanchez & Haya, reached New York about ten days ago for a two-days' stay. Mr. Stachelberg has just returned to Tampa from an extensive trip, and says that the trade generally are showing more interest than ever in the product of old "Number Ones" of Tampa. He says that the waiters in all leading restaurants in New York immediately produce a box of Sanchez & Haya's perfectos if any customer dares to call for a "Hoyo." "It's merely a matter of pronunciation," adds the genial little cigar veteran.

A call at the factory of D. Theocaridis, the Egyptian cigarette manufacturer, at 108th Street, just off Broadway, discloses the fact that the firm are making fine headway with their high-class goods, not only in New York, but in Philadelphia, Chicago and other leading centres. The house were much pleased at the big window display of their goods on Broadway by Caswell, Massey & Co., last week, and they advise us that they have just appointed E. T. Tonissen to look after their trade in Ohio, Indiana and Michigan, with headquarters at Columbus.

Carlos Fernandez & Co., formerly on East 23d Street, have just occupied a splendid loft at 121-23 East 24th Street, where they are in better shape than ever to handle their growing Manila business in which they specialize. A splendid big humidor has been installed in the new quarters, and the firm carry probably the most complete assortment of Manila goods in this country.

J. R. Burns, of the F. Lozano staff, has been in New York the past week, and left a day or two since for a quick trip as far as Louisville. Mr. Burns will return in about ten days, and later on will take his annual summer trip to the Adirondacks looking for trout.

Fernando Rodriguez, home from a ten-days' trip out as far as St. Louis, reports that if the sales of "Charles the Great" are any criterion, merchants are doing much more business than talk would lead us to believe.

Robert Appleton, of the Cado Company, Inc., was in Philadelphia last week, where he and Mr. Laidlaw are introducing the new "56" brand of high-grade Turkish cigarettes. Both of these were formerly with the "Dabs" company, and Mr. Appleton is remembered especially for his splendid work with "Rameses" in the New York field.

Dave Echemendia, of the Castaneda factory, reports some recent good orders for his goods from the Hathawan Inn at Deal Beach, Terra Marine Inn on Staten Island, and the Lorraine Hotel at Edgemere, L. I. He states that despite the expected July dullness their business has kept up most encouragingly.

Purely Personal

Felix Eckerson, well known Philadelphia leaf dealer, accompanied by his wife, sailed on the "Imperator" last week for an extended trip to Europe.

Edward M. Davis, the New England representative for Roig & Langsdorf, has been elected to the membership of the executive committee of the New England Grand Council of the United Commercial Travelers' Association.

The many friends of Max Lipschutz, son of B. Lipschutz, founder of the "44" Cigar Company, are congratulating him on the arrival of his first-born—a 7½-pound boy, who arrived at his home, 4617 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, on June 11.

H. J. Susskind, president of A. Kern & Co., opened a cigar stand at the Grand Union Hotel, Saratoga, N. Y., June 28. Mr. Susskind has obtained the concession at this popular hostelry and intends to feature the "Bernadotte" cigars at this stand.

Following a two weeks' courtship, Jacob Bels, 241 East Eighteenth Street, Flatbush, New York, a cigar importer, married Mrs. Minnie Brouthers, of East 161st Street, the Bronx, he having been introduced to the bride by the lawyer who secured him the divorce from the first Mrs. Bels.

John W. Merriam arrived home a few days ago from a short trip out through Ohio and Pennsylvania. He reported excellent business, especially in the smaller cities. Mr. Merriam was one of the prominent guests at the opening of the fine Hotel Lawrence at Erie, Pa., where Joseph T. Snyder has a fine cigar stand.

Fernando Rodriguez, who has charge of the New York sales end of the "Charles the Great" factory, has made a brief trip out to St. Louis and other distributing points of this fine old Tampa brand during the past ten days and is now back at his desk. Salvador Rodriguez, founder of the "Charles the Great" factory, and known as the Grand Old Man of Tampa, will arrive in New York in a few days for his regular summer visit.

Nicolas de Cardenas, of Cardenas & Co., Havana, makers of "Castaneda" cigars, has been in New York for some time, quartered at the Hotel Seville. Mr. Cardenas has not been in good health, and has placed himself under the care of Dr. Einhorn, of the Rockefeller Institute, one of New York's best specialists, and is progressing slowly but favorably, according to last reports, to a restoration of his health. Mrs. Cardenas is with him in New York.

Edward Wodiska, of Corral & Wodiska, Tampa, left New York on the 22d ult., headed for Memphis. Mr. Wodiska was a guest at the Hotel Rector during his stay in Manhattan, located in the heart of the theatrical district. He still has a fondness for the stage, having at one time been a leading member of Miss Julia Marlowe's company, after which lady his firm's well known brand of cigars is named. "The stage lost a good actor and the country gained one of the best cigar salesmen in the business when Ed. Wodiska doffed the grease paint," was the way one of his friends sized the matter up.

Cigar Base Ball Contest Barred from Mails

Heineman Bros., of Baltimore, Lose Suit to Restrain New York Postmaster from Putting Ban on Premium Idea

(By Special Dispatch.)

NEW YORK CITY, June 24.

JUDGE LACOMBE handed down in the Federal District Court yesterday a decision refusing the application of Heineman Bros., cigar manufacturers of Baltimore, for an injunction to restrain Postmaster Edward M. Morgan from interfering with a baseball competition which they desired to carry on. The scheme was intended to advertise a brand of popular-priced cigars and no fee was charged to those who entered the contest. The prize for the most successful guesser was to be a ticket for every game of the World's Series of the present season, railroad fares to and from the games, and $7 a day expenses.

The authorities at Washington took exception to this competition on the ground that it was gambling, and in accordance with instructions from the Post Office Department, Postmaster Morgan refused to permit the use of the mails for the contest. Heineman Bros., in asking for an injunction against this prohibition, maintained that there were no legal or reasonable grounds for refusing the regular use of the mails.

Judge Lacombe took the ground that according to the precedents he had no authority to require Postmaster Morgan to receive the literature of the complainants. He considered that it was a debatable question whether the project amounted to a lottery, and he admitted that he was himself not inclined to hold that it was one, but the Postmaster General, he pointed out, had reached a different conclusion, and had the authority to decide the matter.

Sues City for Night-Rider Damages

HOPKINSVILLE, KY., June 20.—The $10,000 damage suit of W. T. Tandy against the city of Hopkinsville for its alleged failure to provide proper protection to property during the night rider troubles was begun in the Circuit Court to-day, and a jury is being impaneled. Mr. Tandy, who is president of the City Bank & Trust Co., owned a tobacco warehouse which the night riders burned during the raid of December 7, 1907. A similar suit with W. T. Cooper as plaintiff will be tried when the Tandy case is concluded.

F. B. Elliott Joins "Cado" Forces

THE Cado Co., Inc., who are making splendid progress with their new brands of high-grade cigarettes, "Fifty-Six," have just engaged F. B. Elliott to act as their general New York State representative, with headquarters at 14 East Eagle Street, Buffalo, N. Y. Mr. Elliott is rated as one of the top-notch cigarette men in the Empire State, and was for 11 years connected with the Surbrug forces. In addition to his ability as a salesman, he is a clever advertiser, and two years ago won a silver medal offered by "The Tobacco Leaf" in their window dressing contest.

He will look after all of New York State and part of Northeastern Pennsylvania, and will be assisted by D. A. Bellinger, who will make his headquarters at Syracuse.

The New Brand of Cigarettes Now Being Made by The Cado & Co., Inc., New York

The Cuban Market

HAVANA, June 23, 1913.

AS far as activity in our local market is concerned there has been even less doing than during the previous fortnight. The number of buyers that have come here was also limited, and their purchases only consisted of little lots to cover their immediate needs. The rumor mongers are at work to paint the future even worse than the actual conditions warrant, although it cannot be denied perhaps that the outlook is not of a rosy nature. The unfortunate delay in the passing of the tariff is certainly to blame for the retrenchment policy in nearly all kinds of business in the United States, and this is naturally reflected here, where, for instance, the millions of capital locked up in the sugar crop are sorely needed to move our tobacco crop at the present time. Our banks and bankers are for this reason handicapped, as they can neither get any money from the United States, where bankers likewise are by no means eager in extending any aid, as they have to prepare for the moving of their own crops this summer and fall, and Europe is also not in a shape to lend money, but on the contrary is looking for sources that might supply her with gold. So it seems there is a scarcity of money all around in the world, and as a natural consequence, this will result in a curtailment of business, with lower prices for most commodities, in the near future, until the equilibrium shall have been re-established. For the layman who is not initiated in the mysteries of finance, it is hard to understand why there should be a need for more money, when undoubtedly the yearly production of gold and silver all over the world ought to result in an increase of funds, as surely the arts do not consume all of the production of the precious metals. Under these circumstances the only plausible explanation could be, that the money is locked up somewhere, either artificially by speculators that wish to depress the stock markets, or by people that have lost faith in the banks, preferring to handle their own cash.

During war times a great deal of money may be hidden in the earth, and if the party that did so should die, without being able to tell where he hid the money, this amount would undoubtedly be lost, unless as has happened, later on by accident it should be discovered. It would be an interesting problem to ascertain what amount of gold could in reality disappear from the circulation in a century.

Leaf Selectors Back at Work.

Since our last the strike of the leaf selectors in San Antonio de los Banos has been finally settled by the giving in to the demands of the strikers. The escogidas in the country are now all over in full blast, and the receipts are growing larger from week to week.

Buying has been going on lively in the Vuelta Abajo, Semi Vuelta and Partidos, while in the Santa Clara province, trade is still handicapped by the high figures of the vegueros, who are asking the same high prices for inferior styles as for the better vegas. However, there are so many rumors afloat that not half of them can be believed. Still that very high prices were paid by some packers at the beginning is undoubtedly a fact, which cannot be denied. It remains to be seen how the yield may turn out later on. That this year's crop, all over the island, for the fine part of the growth will be fully as high as last year, if not higher even, is also undoubtedly true. What the buyers may have to say when they come into the market is naturally another matter, and one which we cannot predicate. The law of supply and demand is, however, in the end which will settle this question.

Generally speaking, this year's crop is good and will please the manufacturers, which of course does not exclude that there will be some poorer tobacco likewise.

Sales in Havana.

Sales in Havana during the last two weeks totalled 2,914 bales, or divided represented: 1,789 Vuelta Abajo, 474 Partido and 651 bales of Remedios.

Buyers were: Americans, 796; exporters to Europe, 204; shippers to South America, 358, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 1,556 bales.

Receipts of Tobacco from the Country Were:

	For three weeks ending June 20, 1913.		Since January 1, 1913.
Vuelta Abajo	20,262	bales	47,651	bales
Semi Vuelta	2,989	"	6,489	"
Partido	1,119	"	2,682	"
Remedios	1,726	"	4,433	"
Oriente	141	"	1,017	"
Total	26,237	"	Total 62,272	"

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana during the two weeks ending June 14 were: To all ports of the United States, 3,231; to Bremen and Hamburg, 196; to the Canary Islands, 8; to South America, 438 bales, thus making a total of 3,873 bales.

Leaf Buyers That Come and Go.

To Europe, via New York: Charles Berndes and Mrs. Berndes.

Cigars.

As we are still in the dull season, business naturally has been very quiet in most of our factories, and only the very largest ones state that they are working as well as ever Our Union of Manufacturers of Cigars and Cigarettes of the Island of Cuba named a committee to wait upon our different Secretaries of State, the Treasury and of Commerce, to try and urge them to make a commencement with the several reciprocities planned, by bringing the so-called Modus Vivendi with Spain to a successful close. This latter treaty had been held up by the former Secretary of State for some unknown reason, although Spain had been ready to meet us in our demands, and all the different economic societies in this island had reported favorably upon this treaty, with only a few trifling additions, to the Spanish text. As there was nothing in this treaty that would prejudice the reciprocity with the United States, surely the latter country could not have raised any objection to the making of same. The different secretaries have promised to study this question seriously, and to lend their aid in making the Modus Vivendi a ruling fact before long. Our manufacturers need this treaty in order to have a larger output for their dark colored cigars.

Don Teodoro Garbade has been lately in the Vuelta Abajo for a couple of weeks, which stay has resulted in the buying of about 5,000 bales from the choicest lowland sections of San Juan y Martinez, Rio Hondo and Ovas. These places usually produce the cream of the Vuelta Abajo crop. Among the vegas from San Juan y Martinez were the following renowned ones, viz.: Manuel Valle, Mene, Perico Rodriguez, and La Luisa, the last one, however, from Rio Seco. Don Teodoro states that the 1913 crop of the Vuelta is light in quality, but of more life than in 1912, and of a higher aroma. We congratulate Messrs. H. N. Upmann & Co upon their splendid acquisition, as it will make their famous H. Upmann cigars even better than last year.

We have heard that nearly all the factories have already some orders pending for Germany, as soon as the new cigars could be made from the present crop.

Besides H. Upmann there are Romeo y Julieta, Partagas; Henry Clay and Block & Co., Ltd, Castañeda, Sol and Elite, which are working well at present.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Solaun Hermanos sold 500 bales of the new Vuelta Abajo during the last two weeks to their various customers.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co were buyers of 400 bales of leaf for their Partagas cigarette factory. They also had bought largely in the Vuelta Abajo direct from the farmers a number of select vegas for their Partagas cigar factory.

H. Upmann & Co. also bought in our local market 283 bales of various kinds of leaf for export.

Ernest Ellinger & Co. were sellers of 130 bales of leaf to local buyers.

Romeo y Julieta were buyers, besides their many purchases of choice vegas in the Vuelta Abajo, of a very excellent vega of 200 bales of Vuelta Abajo from a local leaf dealer.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez sold 105 bales of leaf to their customers during the last two weeks. They have secured a number of prime vegas in all tobacco-growing districts.

José C. Puente & Co. turned over 105 bales of new leaf from their holdings.

The principal shippers for Germany during the last two weeks were: Gutierrez & Diehl, 65; Adolfo Moeller, 52, and J. F. Berndes & Co., 21 bales of leaf.

I. Kaffenburgh & Sons sold 40, and Herrera, Calmet & Co. 38 bales of new Remedios during the past fortnight.

Muñiz Hermanos have received already 300 bales from their famous Montezuelo packing, which they are making every year, and which is particularly choice this time.

Lewis Cantor came here principally to inspect the escogidas he is making here, but a day before he left he went to buy some cigars from the Belinda factory, and when there he saw a new vega from the Vuelta Abajo, part of which had just come in from the country. Out of curiosity he made a cigar from it, and he declared that he had never smoked a cigar of such an exquisite aroma, and so early in the month of June.

H. H. Strater, besides his legitimate Manicaragua escogida in La Moza, has also opened a packing at San Antonio de las Vueltas, in the Santa Clara province. He has only secured the choicest vegas in this neighborhood.

Nuñez & Co. have bought the building 81 Reina Street.

There were only five shippers over 200 bales of leaf during the past fortnight, viz.: Maximilian Stern, 672; Monroe Commercial Co., 383; Virgilio Suarez, 304; Diego Montero, 303, and I. Bernheim & Son, 247 bales.

Los Angeles

J. J. Gans Bros. Take Over the "Mark Hopkins" Cigar—Beck & Co. Pushing "La Mazella"—Business Conditions Progress Nicely

LOS ANGELES, June 22.

BUSINESS in Los Angeles is keeping up to the mark. Very few complaints are heard from the retailer, and jobbers, without exceptions, are working their shipping departments overtime to fill orders promptly.

J. J. Gans Bros. have just made arrangements to handle the "Mark Hopkins" cigars, manufactured by Wm. Tegge, Detroit, Mich. This braud is very popular in this territory, and it is predicted that Gans Brothers, with their organized force of salesmen, sales will fall very little below the five million mark the first year on this cigar. Robert Gans is in the San Joaquin Valley territory, and is at present sending "Mark Hopkins" orders. This firm has also arranged to handle the "Naida" cigarettes, manufactured by H. Bohls, of San Francisco, Cal. This cigarette is union made and will go to the trade at $9.25 per thousand, less three per cent. The factory is making one of the strongest campaigns on this cigarette ever attempted in this market. The campaign will cover a period of twelve months.

L. Weel, Jr., representing the Geo. W. Walker Cigar Co., has just arrived from his Arizona trip. He found business conditions very satisfactory in his territory.

Anthony Schwamm, one of the most popular cigar men in California, just returned from Bakersfield, including the oil-field district, and, through his energies he has succeeded in placing the "Rose de Valle" cigar in practically every cigar store which he called on during his eight-day stay there. This brand is handled by the Beck Cigar Co., successors to the Geo. Walker Cigar Co., of Los Angeles.

Ed Marshall is doing some wonderful work on the "La Mazzella" cigar, manufactured by Sig. C. Mayer & Co., of Philadelphia, Pa. This new cigar has been in this market for but a short while, but due to the support given it by Marshall and the sales force of Beck & Co., it is destined to become a five-cent leader in a short time.

The "Luxelo" cigar is having a splendid run at Samuels Brothers' store at 221 West Fourth Street. Mr. Samuels says he considers this cigar to be one of the best five-cent sellers he has in stock. He says further, he has numerous customers who buy this cigar by the box, and will not have any other cigar.

The "Picadura Import" cigar, manufactured by L. Newburger & Bro., of Cincinnati, O., has taken a strong hold in the Southern California territory. The cigar is being very well placed due to the energies of Morris Burke, representative of L. Newburger & Bro. for this territory. The Klauber-Wangenheim Co. handles this cigar here.

Morris Burke is doing some remarkable work with the assistance of the Klauber-Wangenheim Company's salesmen, on two of the most popular five-cent cigars ever placed on the market, the "Luxello" cigar, made by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, and the "Picadura Import," made by L. Newburger & Bro., of Cincinnati, O. The above-named cigars are thoroughly distributed about Southern California, there being hardly a drug store, cigar store or general merchandise store not having some of these cigars on hand all the time, the demand being very heavy and constant.

"Post Dispatch" cigars have been holding their own. The Klauber-Wangenheim Co. reports a shortage in the above-named brand. They are constantly awaiting shipments to fill back orders at once.

J. F. Bonhaus, of Southern California, representative of the Klauber-Wangenheim Co., has just returned from Santa Barbara.

Marc A. Brunner, representative of E. Regensburg & Sons, has been calling on the Klingenstein Co. and is well pleased the way the "Americas" and "Admiration" cigars are selling.

Milo Adams, of the Surbrug Co., is calling on the Klingenstein Co., distributors of "Milo," "Arabs" and several others of Mr. Adams' line.

The Klingenstein Co. is reporting an enormous increase on Eisenlohr's "Cinco" cigar, which brand has always been a strong favorite here.

Geo. J. Yocum left a few days ago for Chico, Cal. Reports from that place state that "Y-B" and "Spana-Cuba" cigars are big sellers there.

The Klingenstein Co. is placing a new brand, called "Trade-Mark," having the Klingenstein Co.'s trade-mark on the box. The cigar is made by S. Fernandez & Co., Tampa, Fla. The Klingenstein Co. has put up some elegant enamel signs in front of their store, advertising "Cinco," "Spana-Cuba" and "Y-B" cigars. Also a very attractive awning has been placed here, denoting and calling attention to headquarters for the above-named cigars. They are placing an attractive "La Preferencia" glass sign at their place of busines.

The Klauber-Wangenheim Co. has been kept very busy on all their leading lines and their shipping department has been kept on the jump in order to get shipments off promptly.

C. E. Means, who represents the Melachrino Co. in this territory, is about again after a siege of several weeks with the mumps. He reports his lines are moving rapidly everywhere. Dealers who thought they were "loading" on the recent deal, find their stocks are melting away before the deal is fairly off. The quality of "Melachrino" cigarettes is constantly making new friends as well as holding the old.

Harry Rinaldo has just recently completed a campaign on the "Mi-Rey" cigar. The smokers of Los Angeles are now appreciating the high quality of the "Mi-Rey" cigar, and sales are increasing in big leaps. This cigar is handled by the A. B. Greenwald Cigar Co., of Los Angeles, Cal.

Cameron C. Trau, manager of Haas-Baruch cigar department, informs me that the "San. Felice" cigar is holding its own with the rest of them. At the present time Haas-Baruch & Co. are putting on a campaign on "Charles Denby," their new 5-cent cigar. "Lovera," their clear Havana line, is wonderfully increasing daily, due to the efforts expended on the part of Ike Weintworth, representing the Jose Lovera Cigar Co. He is doing some fine work on the above-named cigar.

Deaths in the Trade

John Middleton, well-known tobacco grower of Melrose, Hartford, Conn., died at his home in that place a short time ago. Mr. Middleton, who was 73 years of age, is survived by a widow, a son and a daughter.

Following an illness of several months, Philip Benz, well known in cigar manufacturing circles of New Brunswick, N. J., died at his home in that city about a fortnight ago. Mr. Benz leaves a widow and three children.

Waller Scot, head of the Byrd Street Tobacco Storage Warehouse, Richmond, Va., and prominent in business circles of this city, died suddenly recently, following a hemorrhage of the brain. A widow and four children, two of whom are grown, survive.

Edward Alschuler, a former cigar dealer of Ottawa, Ill., died in a hospital at Montclair, N. J. He was stricken with paralysis while visiting his daughter in Montclair. Mr. Alschuler was 60 years old, and had been in the retail cigar trade for more than a quarter century.

Getting Something for Nothing

WHEN a person gets something for nothing, said something usually contains a joke or has a string attached to it. For instance, a certain preacher received from a wholesale grocery house an offer to provide his church with song books free of any charge. It was explained that there would be a few ads in the front and back of the books, but that these ads would not be offensive to the members of the congregation, since the books were being secured for nothing. The preacher gave the order and the books arrived. He found the ads to be mildly worded and decided to use the books. He explained from the pulpit how the books had been secured, and announced that they would sing No. 174. Imagine the people's surprise, when on reaching the second verse, they found themselves singing, "Hark, the Heavenly angels sing, John's pills are just the thing; Angelic voice, meek and mild—two for men and one for child."—Broken Bow Republican.

JOBBERS & DISTRIBUTORS DEPARTMENT

Elgin Wholesaler Sells Out Tobacco Business

M. P. Hansen, wholesale cigar and tobacco dealer at Elgin, Ill., has disposed of his stock and business to Mr. Van Buren, of Chicago, who will take over the business shortly. The new owner has leased the store at 103 Grove Street, Elgin, and will move the business there. It is understood that Mr. Hansen will continue the cigar and candy end of his business, retiring only from the tobacco and cigarette end.

Buffalo Wholesalers Expand

To provide room for their rapidly growing business, Link & Co., wholesale tobacconists, have just moved into larger quarters in the building at 182-84 Ellicott Street, Buffalo, N. Y., which is located directly across the way from their former quarters and provides four times the amount of floor space. A new salesman has also been added to their force—John C. Collins, formerly with the American Tobacco Co.

Ruy Lopez Gains in Denver

At Denver, Col., the Winter Cigar Co. is meeting with much success in introducing the "Ruy Lopez" cigars, made by the Ruy Lopez factory at Key West. This clear Havana brand seems to have struck the fancy of the best smokers in Denver, and the box trade is growing tremendously.

"44" Sales Manager in Chicago

M. A. Funk, sales manager of the "44" Cigar Co., has just been in Chicago, directing the sales work on "44" and "Adlon" cigars which are distributed in that territory by the Henry Horner Co. Mr. Funk has been assisted in his work by a crew of 12 specialty salesmen who have shown very good results.

What the Distributors Are Doing

From Manager I. M. Cohen, of the National Grocery Co.'s cigar department, Seattle, Wash., it is learned that he is half a million cigars behind on his orders for "San Felice," which is made by the Deisel-Wemmer Co., Lima, O.

Sig. Sichel & Co., Portland, Ore., are hearing good reports from their salesmen on the "New Bachelor" cigar, T. J. Dunn & Co.; also on the "La Britano" cigars, S. R. Moss Cigar Co.

An aggressive and quite successful campaign is being conducted on behalf of the "El Wadora" and the "Rey Oma" (Sig. C. Mayer & Co., Philadelphia) by Franklin McVeagh & Co., wholesale grocers, Chicago.

Smith Bros. Co., New Orleans, distributors of "Havana Ribbon," Bayuk Bros., are much encouraged with the increase of business on this brand in this territory.

"Don Antonio" cigars, made by H. Anton Bock & Co., New York, have just been taken on by W. S. Conrad & Co., St. Paul, who will feature the finest sizes of this brand.

The Fisher Cigar Co., Minneapolis, has been featuring with much success the "Flor de Jeitles" (Jeitles & Blumenthal, Philadelphia).

Frank G. Stockdale, of Sandusky, O., has completed arrangements to engage in the wholesale cigar and tobacco trade in that city.

Charles N. Krohn & Co., Cincinnati, O., are now distributing the "Salome" cigar, made by Heinemann Bros., Baltimore.

Sternberg & Sons, Memphis, Tenn., jobbers, have recently taken on the "Optimo" (A. Santaella Y. Ca.), for the States of Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana, Tennessee, Alabama, Oklahoma and a section in Texas. R. F. Donovan has been doing missionary work on behalf of the new account.

F. D. Crawford, Ohio representative for the "44" Cigar Co., Philadelphia, has just spent a week with the Bender Woodward Co., Sandusky, O., distributors of this brand, assisting them in extending the sales of this brand in that territory.

C. J. Manning, the newly appointed agent for Krinsky cigarettes in Buffalo, N. Y., reports that the "Fifth Avenue" and "Egyptian" brands are selling fast in his territory.

Damage to the extent of several thousand dollars resulted from fire which a short time ago visited the second floor of the Tracy Bros.' cigar store, 1417 Douglas Street, Omaha, Neb., where their wholesale storeroom is located.

Alton Mercantile Co., of Enid, Okla., has been conducting a successful campaign on the "44" and "Adlon" cigars, made by the "44" Cigar Co., Philadelphia. M. Zander, factory representative, has been assisting in the work.

Zade Metzler, of Metzler Bros., Dallas, Tex., left New York on the 29th ult., after a ten-days' stay in the market. His firm are prominent distributors in their territory, and are exclusive handlers of John W. Merriam & Co.'s "Baron de Kalbs" and "De Luxe." They also specialize in Havana brands and high-class goods.

William Bercovich, who recently severed his connection with the Bercovich Company, Sacramento, Cal., has started in the jobbing business under the title of the Capitol Tobacco Co., being located 908 Sixth Street. A line of cigars, cigarettes and tobaccos in its entirety will be carried.

The cigar factory of H. M. Brown, located on the third floor of the Syndicate Block, Rockland, Me., has removed into the store in the A. K. Spear Block, next to the American Express Company's office, 297 Main Street, and has been fitted up in first-class shape.

Base Ball Team from Cuesta-Rey Cigar Factory, Tampa

They Can Play As Well As They Make Cigars—Which Is Going Some!

THEY are having hot times down in Tampa, those cigar maker baseball enthusiasts. A number of the leading cigar factories have organized teams to contest for the city championship, and at last reports the Cuesta-Rey boys, shown in the picture above, were in the lead. A. L. Cuesta, Jr., is the team manager and an enthusiastic rooter for his players, while Edgar J. Stachelberg is just as enthusiastic in rooting for the Sanchez Haya nine. Other factories represented in the Tampa Cigar League are the Tampa-Cuba, Phillies and others. The Cuesta-Rey team, shown in the accompanying illustration, comprises the following:

Tampa

TAMPA, June 26.

THE expected lull in business which should be on us in full force at this time seems a trifle delayed here, and the factories generally are busier today than for may Junes past. The shipments for the month will prove this beyond question.

Vice-President E. J. Stachelberg, of Sanchez & Haya factory, arrived home last week from an extended trip which ended with a few days' stay in New York. Mr. Stachelberg says that their business was never in healthier shape in its entire career.

J. Pendas, manager of Moreda y Ca. factory at Key West, was in Tampa last week in consultation with the owners of the business.

Edward Wodiska, of Corrall, Wodiska y Ca., has been in Memphis during the past few days, and is expected here shortly. Mr. Phillips, factory manager, states that 1913 will prove the banner year on "Julia Marlowe" sales.

Jerome Regensburg, of E. Regensburg & Sons, says that they have no complaints whatever on general business conditions. The firm are doing a tremendous business on the popular brands they make.

S. Fernandez & Co., who make the "Admiration" brand, are getting some very heavy orders from the Pacific Coast. In Los Angeles the Klingenstein Co., who distribute both the Regensburg "Americans" and Fernandez "Admirations" have sent through some very fine orders.

Much disappointment is expressed here over the failure at Washington to hold up the ruling which makes Jacksonville the central collecting point of the State, under a re-organization plan of the last administration. In considering the internal revenue gathered from our Tampa manufacturers as contrasted with the sum taken from Jacksonville, this seems a ridiculous proposition, but the Federal authorities now in power seem unable to change it, and the new regime is effective on July first.

Tampa still continues to be a favorite convention city, opening its gates to-day to the Florida Press Association, who remain here for three days. They will not want for smokes, as our manufacturers have donated several thousand of the best cigars made here.

A. L. Cuesta, Jr., son of the head of the Cuesta-Rey factory, has been widely congratulated on the fine baseball team he has put together to represent their factory. Mr. A. L. Cuesta, Sr., returned a few days ago from Havana.

Eli Witt is off on a trip for both health and business. He will do some resting up in North Carolina and fishing as well.

Jorge Leon, head of San Martin, Leon & Co., is at present in Havana for a short stay. They are doing big on their "El Baiche" brand.

Frank R. Diaz, of V. Guerra, Diaz & Co., is back from his recent trip to Havana, where he secured some fine lots of tobacco, which will go into "La Megas." The quality and style of these goods have made them invincible with many of the best dealers in the country.

Salvador Rodriguez, of "Charles the Great," leaves in a few days for a visit to New York.

Keeping Out The Wind

Willie was a smart boy and ambitious. His job was a post in a local bank.

"Well, Willie," asked his uncle one day, "how are you getting on in business? I suppose you will soon be manager."

"Yes, uncle," Willie replied. "I'm already a draft clerk."

"A draft clerk! Good boy! And what are your duties?"

"I open and shut the windows accordin' to orders," said Willie, "and close the doors after people that leave 'em open."

Cleveland

Hot Weather Melts Ardor of Cleveland Window Trimmers—New "56" Cigarette Makes An Immediate Hit—New Store Opening

CLEVELAND, O., June 27.

THE summer trade is holding its own despite the unusually hot spell that has held forth for the past several weeks. The only complaint is among the boys who have to put in their time changing window displays, and they are complaining bitterly of the heat and the result is the extremely poor displays in the majority of the down town stores.

A new cigarette has sprung up over night and has won a high position among the cigarette smokers in this section. The dealers have never seen a cigarette take as quickly. It is called "56" and is made by Cado Company, Inc., New York. Willis Andruss is the salesman putting the work on in this section.

Oscar B. Fairbanks, one of the bachelors in the Joseph T. Snyder organization in Cleveland, is to leave that select circle the middle of next week. If Oscar is as good a manager of a home as he is of the East Fourth Street stand of Snyder's, he will be an ideal "hubby" and the new Mrs. Oscar B. should have no cause for complaint. The newly married couple will leave on their honeymoon and be gone until the middle of July.

Val. G. Keogh is expected in Cleveland in the next few weeks and will put in a campaign on the brands manufactured by the John W. Merriam Co.

Louis Klein, of the Louis Klein Cigar Co., reports business very good and all his stores are showing a nice increase over the same period last year.

George Bassett is bringing many new faces to his store by his novel way of advertising, and the result is that his business is running way ahead of his fondest expectations.

F. P. Shields returned from a trip through Pennsylvania and is very jubilant over the big increase in sales on "Saramitas."

J. C. Leverance, who is working the West, is showing the biggest business of his career on the "Saramita" brands.

Bert Smith, of the Shields-Wertheim Co., will spend the Fourth in Cleveland, after a six-months' campaign on the "Saramita" brands through the Northwest and Middle West.

Billy Blashke, one of Shields-Wertheim's city men, is sojourning up the lakes for a week or ten days.

L. B. Shields, the grand old man of the cigar game, does not seem to mind the heat. The only kick he has is that the factory don't fill his orders for "Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives" fast enough.

Robert C. Heaney, of the Joseph T. Snyder Cigar Co., reports the biggest Saturday this concern has enjoyed here since its opening, due to the fact that they gave a reproduction of the much talked of "September Morn" picture to each customer purchasing a box of cigars.

Mr. Sanborn, of the Pyle & Allen Co., reports business as being exceedingly good for this time of the year, both in their retail and wholesale business.

The many friends of Mr. Adolph Haas, manager of Pyle & Allen's Hippodrome stand, regret to hear of his recent operation and all wish him a speedy recovery.

Pyle & Allen have taken on a new 6-cent cigar called "Eli Yale," named after the founder of Yale College. This brand is taking ahold nicely and is winning many steady customers.

Dave Blum, whose store is located at 823 Euclid Avenue, has just opened store No. 2 in the Moreland Hotel. This stand should be a winner, as it is in the heart of the new retail district just east of East Ninth Street.

JERRY.

The cigar factory of Joseph Rothman, Sherman Street, Pittsburgh, Pa., was recently completely destroyed by fire, the loss entailed being reported as about $1500.

The Swisher Cigar Factory, Bethesda, O., are much encouraged over the way business is going on. Mr. Orrison, formerly manager of the Bethesda Cigar Co.'s plant, is head of the new company, and will act as manager at least for one year.

Cigar pouches and retainers of every description made from paper, are a specialty with the Dittgen Company, of Cincinnati, which for many years has been a favored source of supply for some of the leading cigar manufacturers and wholesalers using these useful novelties to advertise their brands.

Brooklyn Retailers Hold Enthusiastic Meeting

ONE of the largest attended and most interesting meetings ever held by the Brooklyn branch of the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association of America, was held Tuesday evening, June 24, in that city. President Nicholas Ehrlich read a spicy communication from the secretary of the Committee on Industrial Advancement of the Brooklyn League, which was formed to boom Brooklyn trade, both in manufacturing and retailing. Mr. Ehrlich also read a letter of endorsement from Mitchell May, Secretary of State of New York.

Other speakers were Robert E. Lane, United States representative for the Partagas factory; Judge Jacob Stahl and Attorney Henry H. Hunter, counsel for the Association. Oscar S. Veit, on behalf of the Salesmen's Association, delivered an interesting address pledging the salesmen's support to the Association in its fight against monopolies.

The keynote of the evening was struck by President Ehrlich in his address on present conditions in the tobacco trade, who contended that the dissolution of the American Tobacco Co. was farcical and resulted in conditions worse than ever. He presented a number of interesting statistics showing that since the dissolution wholesale prices had gone down, thereby since the dissolution wholesale prices on cigarettes had increased and retail prices had gone down, thereby inflicting heavy losses upon dealers who handle this class of product.

Cost of Frenchman's Smoke

THE figures of the revenue derived by the state from the sale of tobacco in France for the year 1912 have just been published, and are interesting as showing the remarkable increase in consumption and revenue over those of 1911.

In the form of pipe tobacco, cigarettes and cigars, 86,200,000 pounds of tobacco were consumed last year, which has supplemented the funds of the treasury by $107,500,000.

As compared with the figures for 1911, this represents an increase of 2,800,000 pounds of tobacco in the three forms mentioned, while the revenue has been augmented by $5,000,000. There seems every indication that the figures for the present year will again show an enormous increase.

First Prosecution Under Pa. Cigarette Law

police officer in the state of North Carolina upon knowledge or information that any minor under the age of seventeen years is or has been smoking any cigarettes, to inquire of any such minor the names of the person or persons who sold or gave such cigarette or aided and abetted any person or persons in giving or selling any cigarettes or the substance from which such cigarettes were made; and upon receiving such information the officers shall have a warrant issued.

Jersey Health Board to Prosecute

BURLINGTON, N. J., June 30.

Wholesale and retail cigar dealers of New Jersey have received notice from the State Board of Health that the anti-cigarette law, which for many years has been a dead letter, is to be rigidly enforced, and that heavy penalties will be imposed upon violators. The Board of Health has also issued an important ruling which will make it unnecessary for the W. C. T. U. and other organizations fighting the use of cigarettes by minors, that it will be unnecessary for them to get evidence to start prosecution of delinquent cigarette dealers. The State Board of Health will put out detectives to gather evidence and prosecute the suits.

Detroit

United Cigar Manufacturers Lease Building To Be Used By Best & Russell Co., Their Distributors—Other Trade News of General Interest

DETROIT, MICH., June 24, 1913.

ANNOUNCEMENT is just made by Fred Postal, proprietor of the Griswold Hotel, that he will erect a 16-story hotel, corner of Wayne and Lafayette Avenues, work to start in the fall. This is, indeed, good news. With the new Statler Hotel, Detroit will then be amply provided to accommodate the increasing visitors and tourists to this city.

A thirty-year lease has been taken on the building at the corner of Lafayette and Michigan Avenues by the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company of New York, and when the present leases expire, which will not be for three years yet, the place will be altered, and Best & Russell Co., of Chicago, distributors of the leading brands made by this factory, will occupy the main floor with a cigar store, the upper floors being rented for other purposes. Best & Russell have one stand here already in operation. The lease started June 1st with a yearly rental of about $16,000, increasing after a certain number of years. If suitable terms can be arranged with the present tenant of the ground floor, the United will not wait until the lease runs out, but will commence remodelling at once. The building is triangular in shape and faces three streets, Michigan, Lafayette and Griswold, and is one of the leading street car centers in the city.

A new cigar stand has been opened at 228 Randolph Street by Rube Walters, who for a great many years managed the cigar department at the Wayne Hotel. Everything about the place is snappy and modern in every respect, and it looks as if Mr. Walters picked a good spot. In the better grade of cigars, Mr. Walters is handling "Romeo and Juliet," "Partagas," "Don Antonio," "El Sidelo," "Webster," "Henry the Fourth," "Bull Dog," "Baron de Kalb," "Cortez," "Mi Rey," "Cuesta-Rey," "Charles the Eighth," "Solace," "La Integridad" and "Corina." In the 5-cent grades, "Cinco," "San Felice" and "John Ruskin." The opening took place June 16th.

Mr. Walters' place at the Wayne has been filled by Mr. Louis Lipman, who assisted him for many years.

Many prominent men in the tobacco industry were visitors in Detroit during June; L. B. McKittrick, vice-president of the Melachrino cigarette company; Robert E. Lane, representative in the United States for the "Partagas" cigar, who says the year 1913 will show a phenomenal increase on this brand; A. N. Ackerman, of Pendas y Alvarez, who is more than pleased with the splendid representation which the "Webster" cigar has in Detroit; George Meggs, of Sanchez y Haya; Sam Ganz, president of Rothenberg & Schloss, of Kansas City; Charles Cameron, of the Waldorf-Astoria Segar Co., and Marcelina Perez, of the Marcelina Perez Co., makers of the "Tuval" cigar.

"La Mega" cigar is one of the leaders in Tampa-made cigars being featured by the M. A. LaFond Co. in all of its branches, and is becoming popular with the trade.

When Mr. Lane was here he received a large order from Lee & Cady on the "Partagas" cigar, who anticipate a bumper business on this brand for the coming holiday trade.

Commodore M. B. Mills, of the Banner Cigar Co., is on a short cruise with his yacht in Lake Huron and Lake St. Claire.

Harry Elsey, who runs the cigar stand at the Downey House in Lansing, was in Detroit a number of times during June. Mr. Elsey was formerly connected with the Hotel Ponchartrain cigar stand.

The following cigar men participated in the Board of Commerce lake trip which left Detroit on June 12th and returned the 16th: Burt Johnson, of the G. and R. McMillan Co.; A. C. Dietsche, Joe Muer, of the Swift Cigar Co., and Carl H. Garrison, of the Banner Cigar Co. Mr. Garrison was one of the leading lights on the trip, being on the Executive Committee and the Commissary Committee. Close to 500 of Detroit's most representative business men went along.

Battle Creek has been invaded with a cigar store on Jefferson Street by B. Cleenewerk & Son, who now operate four retail stores in Kalamazoo. The new store is absolutely "up to snuff" and is well located.

Albert Worch, of the Wayne Cigar Co., who returned a week ago from an extended trip to the Western part of the country, speaks encouragingly of conditions in the West, and believes the West will enjoy great prosperity the balance of the year owing to the big crop outlook. Regarding his own business, Mr. Worch states that his factory is so busy turning out Niles & Moser "Hand-Made," Pyle & Allen's "Trade-Mark" and their own brand, "S. and W.," that he is unable to take on any more accounts or open any new territory. Three hundred cigar makers were added during June, and more will be placed from week to week. Charles Spietz, of the company, leaves on a two-weeks' motor trip through the East on July 6th.

Jacob Mazer, of the Mazer Cigar Co., will return by the first of July from a ten-days' trip to Kansas City, St. Louis and other cities in the Middle West, where his firm has a number of very profitable accounts. D. I. Olive, Western representative of the Mazer Cigar Co., will accompany him.

The Central Cigar Co. is making a feature of the "Admiration" cigar manufactured by S. Fernandez & Co., Tampa, Fla.

Lee & Cady report that they simply cannot get enough "Cinco" and "San Felice" cigars. Both of these brands are very strong in every part of Michigan.

Gilbert Smith, of the Harry W. Watson Co., has succeeded in placing the "Tungsten" cigar in nearly all of the leading stores throughout the city, and the past week has seen a number of very attractive window displays on this brand. The Tungsten is made by Jeitles & Blumenthal, Ltd., Philadelphia, who also make the "Flor de Jeitles" cigar, featured so strongly by the E. M. Harris Co.

Grand Rapids will be a very busy place for the next few months, owing to the furniture exhibitions. The town is crowded and will be for many weeks to come with buyers from all over the world. The cigar stores anticipate a rushing business. The new Pantlind Hotel in course of construction will not be finished before 1915.

The "Stratford" cigar is becoming very much in favor at the Mel Soper cigar store. A peculiar incident about this cigar is that Mr. Soper was never solicited on putting in this brand, but selected it from an advertisement in THE TOBACCO WORLD, showing proof conclusive that trade journal advertising does pay directly and indirectly. As is well known, the El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Co., of Philadelphia, make the "Stratford."

Mrs. Isaac Goldberg, of Detroit, has returned from a visit to Kalamazoo, where she was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Lester Solomon.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Lieberman, of Detroit, sailed for Europe, to be gone for several months. Mr. Lieberman is president of the John P. Lieberman Co., wholesale and retail tobacconists.

"Sandy" Stuart, of the Superior Cigar Co., is back from his Western trip.

Ben Block, of the Philip Morris Cigarette Co., is in town for a few days. Mr. Block says that this cigarette is doing wonderfully. Philip Morris cigarettes were used exclusively at the banquet of the Michigan Bankers' Association, given at the Michigan Agricultural College in Lansing in June.

E. F. Jackson, of the Jackson Cigar Co., has left for a three weeks' trip through the East in the interests of the "Bel-Mo" cigar.

John Jasperre and Joseph Stegehuis are the owners of the Princess Juliana Cigar Co., of Grand Rapids, with quarters at 1623 Grandville Avenue, which recently filed papers with the county clerk.

The Baker Drug Co., of Battle Creek, recently installed new humidor show cases and wall cases for keeping cigars and tobacco in the proper condition. They have added very largely to the line, and now carry a very complete assortment of domestic and clear Havana cigars, tobacco, pipes and cigarettes. They make a specialty of offering special prices on Saturday and Monday of each week. "San Felice" sell for 7 for 25 cents, and 10-cent cigars go at 3 for 25 cents.

Oscar Rosenberger, of the San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Co., has returned from a ten-days' business trip.

Payette & Walsh have started an extensive campaign on "Tom Keene" cigars.

Burns & Johnson, 20 Monroe Avenue, are enjoying a fine trade. Both boys are very popular and have a host of acquaintances here.

"Havana Ribbon" cigars (Bayuk Bros., Philadelphia) have been featured quite strongly of late by a number of the down-town dealers.

AL U. THORNBURG.

Cigar Lighters That Really Work

Pocket cigar lighters have become more than a fad—they are a necessity not only for the smoker, but for every retail cigar store that wishes to keep his stock up-to-date. There are two varieties of cigar lighters—the kind that work and the kind that work only once in a while. The "Paragon" lighters, made by the Art Metal Works, Newark, N. J., are the kind that not only light but light every time. They have no wheels, wicks, springs or intricate mechanism to become out of order, but strike like a match on the bottom of the box. Paragons are quick sellers and the only come-backs they bring are satisfied users demanding more. They are excellent little novelties for advertising purposes as well as big profit-makers in a retail store.

A report from an American consular officer in Canada states that tobacco is chiefly used in his district for chewing and pipe smoking, plugs being preferred for both purposes. A list of merchants to whom American tobacco manufacturers might profitably sell tobacco direct may be obtained from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

The Metropolitan Tobacco Company, of New York City, has increased its capital from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000.

Schedules of Martin J. Condon, former president of the United States Snuff Co., and a director in the Carnegie Trust Co., New York, filed in the United States Circuit Court, showed liabilities of $8,975,123.99 and assets of $413,899 to meet unsecured claims. Andrew Carnegie has a claim of $2,100,000 as a secured creditor.

Cincinnati

Trade Fair Despite Local Labor Troubles—Cigar Manufacturers Busy—Wallace Fritz Married

CINCINNATI, O., June 25.

WITH 10,000 garment workers and several thousand ice-makers on strike, this has been an eventful week in Cincinnati labor circles. So far the strike has had little appreciable effect upon business in general, except to cause uneasiness among other manufacturers that the spirit of unrest may spread to their lines of industry, but this fear is not felt among cigar and tobacco makers, whose workers have been kept steadily employed and are making better wages than they have in many years. Nearly every cigar factory in the city is running at full capacity, and could use more hands if they could get them.

Among the wholesale and retail tobacco trade, business is reported fair, although it is feared that if the present strikes are long drawn out that business will show more than the usual summer dullness.

Manager Hirschberger, of L. Newburger & Bro., states that his factory is running at top-notch speed in an effort to keep up with orders on "Picadura Import," their great 5-cent leader. Their new 10-cent brand, "Premosa," is taking hold in a very encouraging fashion, and will shortly be pushed into new markets. Charles Hazen, of Binghamton, N. Y., eastern sales representative, was at the factory last week.

Wallace Fritz, of Fritz Bros., cigar manufacturers, was married on June 21st to Miss Laura Gilfus, the ceremony being performed at the bride's home by the Rev. Mr. Lee. Leonard Schreiber acted as groomsman and a sister of the bride attended her. Mr. and Mrs. Fritz are spending their honeymoon in Yellowstone Park, and will return to live in this city about September 1st.

Bejachis' stores are featuring several 10-cent brands of cigars made by the G. H. P. Cigar Co., Philadelphia.

Dan A. Wolf, distributor for the "Bold" cigars (Bobrow Bros., Philadelphia), states that they are taking hold in this market at a very lively rate.

The Krummel Tobacco Co., which is the latest addition to the ranks of Cincinnati's tobacco manufacturers, are building up an increasing demand for their leader, "Worthy Scrap."

Straus Bros. & Co. recently had a very attractive display of Regensburg cigars, for which they are local distributors.

"Salome" cigars were given an attractive window trim this week in Krohn's tobacco shop.

J. H. Lucke & Co. are hard pressed to keep up with orders for "Lucke's Rolls." They could use many more stogie makers than they are able to hire.

Rohde & Co. are putting out a new 5-cent cigar, a 5½-inch invincible shape, called the "Nan." It is an extra high quality piece of goods sold to retailers who are given the exclusive selling rights in each city. Duplicate orders from towns where it has been introduced indicate that the "Nan" may soon become a strong running mate of the "Lygia," which has made their factory famous.

"El Symphonie" cigars, made by the Mendelsohn Co., Inc., successors to E. A. Kline Co., Cleveland, are being featured strongly in this market by the George A. Voige Cigar Co. Mr. Voige is enthusiastic over the duplicating qualities of this brand, and is giving it a good boost.

"City Club," the new sensational seller, made by the Burley Tobacco Co., Louisville, seems to have made a universal hit with Cincinnati smokers. The numerous window displays on this brand, together with the effective trade journal advertising that the manufacturers are doing, have combined to interest many progressive retailers in featuring this brand.

A special campaign on "Tuxedo" has been inaugurated here this week under the direction of A. A. Ruen. For a few days a solid bronze watch fob was given away with each 10-cent tin of "Tuxedo" tobacco. The premium idea proved quite popular.

Ernest Dubrul, of Miller, Dubrul & Peters, manufacturers of cigar makers' supplies, who has been in South America on a business trip, is expected to return late in July. CINCY.

George Brown has purchased the Shuckrow cigar store on East Main Street, Danville, Ill. The title under which the store will be operated is the American Cigar Store.

Frank Shaffer, cigar dealer of Millville, N. J., has opened a store at Sea Isle City.

The cigar and tobacco establishment owned by W. J. Dennis, 41 Commercial Street, Portland, Me., was burglarized recently, and a quantity of cigars, cigarettes and tobacco stolen. This is the second robbery suffered by Mr. Dennis, as his store at Commercial and Park Streets was entered about six weeks ago.

Pittsburgh

All Branches of Tobacco Trade Doing Satisfactorily—"56" New Brand of Cigarettes Being Well Distributed—"Dry Slitz" Campaign On

PITTSBURGH, PA., June 26.

EVERY branch of the tobacco trade from the stogie factories to the retail counters is in quite satisfactory shape—this despite the fact that general business conditions in the steel belt are not up to normal, and an air of uncertainty pervades other manufacturing trades. Without exception, every large stogie factory is busy, and the universal cry is for "more hands." There has been a marked scarcity of stogie makers here for the last six months, due to the increased demand for skilled work people. Every factory is training new hands as fast as they can secure them, but the supply is insufficient to keep the production up to the demand.

L. Goldsmit Bro. & Co. are conducting a very aggressive and successful campaign locally and at other points on their "Dry Slitz" stogies. The demand in Pittsburgh has grown by leaps and bounds since they began their advertising campaign. M. Lesser was in Johnstown this week directing a "Dry Slitz" sales campaign, and returned much gratified by the result.

A new brand of high quality cigarettes, "56," made by the Cado Company, of New York, is being introduced to the select smokers here through the energetic salesmanship of W. A. Andruss. Already the discriminating smokers are beginning to come back for them at such stores as Reymer & Bros., C. J. Moye & Co., C. A. Gibbs Co., Spuhler's, as well as the prominent hotels and clubs. "56" has made a hit.

Shipley Massingham Drug Co. are meeting with splendid results in distributing the "A. J. Cassatt" 10-cent brand, and "Coiner," 5-cent cigars (Baum-Jaffe Co.) in this market. The "Cassatt" seems to please Pittsburgh smokers to a "T," as is indicated by the duplicate orders received almost daily from the retail stores.

The "Bold," that fat nickel cigar made by Bobrow Bros., Philadelphia, is going big at a number of live retail stands. Since C. J. Moye & Co. took on the distribution of this popular seller in the smoke belt they have more than tripled their business on it.

Leo J. Spuhler, the "Stogie King," who also deals in novelties, has added another line of novelties—a third daughter, which Mrs. Stork left at the Spuhler home last week. No, he has not triplets—just one bouncing baby girl who has arrived to keep the other two Miss Spuhlers company.

The Tampa-Cuba Cigar Co., of Tampa, has just added 60 druggists to their distribution chain in this territory. Fred Haas is the local salesman who has been whooping up things hereabouts.

Edward Donovan, formerly active in local cigar trade, is now representing a gas mantle manufacturer.

F. W. Knehneisen, of the local "Melachrino" staff of cigarette boosters, returned this week from a six-week's hunt for business.

"Portuondos," made by Juan F. Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Co., Philadelphia, were attractively displayed in the Seventh Avenue Hotel stand last week by Manager Fleischauer.

G. H. Schmunck, of the Pittsburgh Stogie and Cigar Co., attended commencement exercises at the State Normal School, Slippery Rock, Pa., this week, when his daughter was graduated.

The Bock-Stauffer Co., successors to the manufacturing and wholesale business of R. and W. Jenkinson, have taken hold of things in a very aggressive manner. They are featuring "Yaras," "Red Labels" and other Jenkinson brands with much success. When interviewed by THE WORLD, Manager Charles Bock radiated optimism. All the boys are out for business, and they're getting it, too.

At the Union-American Cigar Co.'s factory there is ample evidence that business is steadily climbing on their leading brands of stogies and cigars.

W. D. Sharpe, of the Duquesne Cigar Co., has returned from an Eastern trip. Among the points visited were New York and Atlantic City. DUQUESNE.

A fire occurred in the cigar establishment of Frank Vuola, 47 Canal Street, Waterbury, Conn., recently, and destroyed a large amount of leaf tobacco and about $1000 cigars. It is believed that the fire was of incendiary origin.

The Klenniworth Cigar Co., of Kalamazoo, is comfortably located in their new quarters in the Central National Bank Building on North Jefferson Street, Battle Creek, Mich. This company operates stores in a number of cities throughout Southern Michigan, including four stores in Kalamazoo, in which city their factory is located. The fixtures for the new store are said to be the finest in Battle Creek, the showcase alone requiring an outlay of between $2000 and $3000.

Lancaster Factories Busy—S. R. Moss Off to Europe

LANCASTER, PA., June 26.

THE larger cigar factories in and around Lancaster have had their hands full within the past fortnight to keep up with orders.

While this is particularly true of the Lancaster factories, the same condition applies generally to outlying manufacturing centres.

S. R. Moss, head of the S. R. Moss Cigar Co., of Lancaster, Pa., will leave in a few days for New York, from whence he will sail for a two months' trip to Europe. Mr. Moss hs been in ill-health for a long time, and he expects that his trip abroad will prove most beneficial. He says that their business on "Flor de Moss" and "El Mosico" continues with unabated strength from all quarters.

H. B. Hess, president of the A. B. Hess Cigar Co., of Lancaster, has done some sterling work this session for his constituents whom he represents in the State Assembly at Harrisburg. Mr. Hess is a mighty busy citizen, but finds time in addition to his other duties to act as a director of the Union Trust Co., of Lancaster, and president of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association.

Captain J. B. Goldberg, well known in leaf trade, visited New York recently on business.

According to the report just completed by J. Aldus Herr, president of the Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association, not more than half the usual acreage of tobacco has yet been planted. However, the warm weather which has prevailed for the past ten days has expedited planting, and farmers are everywhere getting busy, although they are greatly handicapped by a shortage of tobacco plants.

An interesting social event was the marriage of Miss Rose Moss, niece of S. R. Moss, the cigar manufacturer, who became the bride of Lee Goldsmith, of Harrisburg. The ceremony was performed in the Duke St. Temple by Dr. Rosenthal. The cup from which the bride drank was the same as was used by her grandmother, Mrs. Moss, on a similar occasion, and also upon the celebration of her golden wedding anniversary. Lester R. Moss officiated as master of ceremonies, and his wife as matron of honor. Miss Fanny Ryder was maid of honor. Albert Herschler, of Harrisburg, acted as best man, and the ushers were Meyer Goldsmith, of New York; Sigmund I. Moss, of this city; Milton Hirsch, of Newark, N. J.; Harry Lowengard, of Harrisburg. The bride was given away by her uncle, S. R. Moss. A reception at the Harmonie Club followed the ceremony. About one hundred guests were present. Mr. and Mrs. Goldsmith have gone on a wedding trip to the Thousand Isles and the Great Lakes.

A large tobacco dryer for the re-handling of all grades of tobacco, having a capacity of 50,000 pounds, has been installed by the Meads Tobacco Co., of Red Lion.

S. M. Ottinger, of Mitchell & Ottinger, leaf dealers and packers, made a flying trip to New York in the past week on business.

An effort has been made by Battle Creek, Mich., cigar manufacturers to obtain a number of union cigar makers in this section. So far as is known, none of this class of labor has been induced to go West.

Experimenting on Tobacco Fertilizers at Red Lion

YORK, PA., June 25.

NOTHING of startling interest has developed since our last report on the cigar industry in this locality, although it may be truthfully said that all the larger factories are busy and look optimistically to the future. Skilled hands are still very scarce.

To secure a good burn for York County grown tobacco, nine different mixture of fertilizers were used last week at Red Lion for the first planting of tobacco at the State Experiment Station. H. P. Kraybill, of State College Experiment Station, and Otto Olsen, of the United States Station at Ephrata, Lancaster County, have charge of the tests. They planted the one acre of the station on the farm of H. L. Stine, one-half mile from Red Lion, with Pennsylvania seed leaf plants, grown in Lancaster County. The plants were set and the watering was done by hand.

Tilden Stoneback has succeeded Elder Harmer as superintendent of the cigar factory of the Hanover Cigar Co. Mr. Harmer has moved his family to York, and Mr. Stoneback has brought his family here from Perkasie, Pa., to occupy the house vacated by Mr. Harmer.

About 40 employes of the E. E. Sechrist cigar factory attended the excursion at Pen Mar on Saturday, June 22.

A picnic outing was held by the employes of Charles Houshold-er's cigar factory, Red Lion, on June 20, at Lakeview Park.

Reports from Lower Chanceford Township state that there has been a considerable falling off in the acreage of tobacco planting this season, owing to the shortage of tobacco plants. Many of the farmers have turned to tomato raising.

John H. Hayes and Isaac E. Pierce have purchased the cigar and tobacco store formerly conducted by Walter R. Wade on North Main Street, Hartford, Conn.

How "Stratford" Are Being Advertised on Signboards Along Railroad Between Philadelphia and Atlantic City

What "Gus" Says About The "Stratford"

AN original advertising scheme that has proved a result bringer, has been a series of nine little cards enclosed in plain envelopes which the El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Co. have been mailing to wholesalers, retailers and consumers, advertising their "Stratford" cigars. These cards bear the quotations from "Gus," and whoever "Gus" is, he is a clever chap. Some of his wittiest sayings are:

"Yesterday is past, today is before you. Don't let this day pass without smoking a 'Stratford' Havana cigar."

"A fine compliment to your good judgment is your dealer's smile when he hands you a 'Stratford' Havana cigar. Watch him."

"Liked best by most people and the most particular people. Havana 'Stratford' cigars. Have you tried them yet?"

"'30 minutes in Paradise,' will be your opinion after you have smoked a 'Stratford' Havana cigar."

"Did you get out of bed on the wrong side this morning? Smoke a 'Stratford' Havana cigar. It will restore your good humor."

Strike in Pollack Stogie Factory

WHEELING, W. VA., June 25.

DEMANDING an increase of 50 cents per thousand on stogies, 1,000 stogie makers and other employes of the new big stogie factory of the Augustus Pollack Estate, in this city, are on strike.

This is the first serious labor trouble which has occurred at the Pollack factories since the death of the late founder of the institution, Augustus Pollack, who was very friendly to the stogie makers' union, and had lent much encouragement and financial support during his early days.

In fact, the Pollack factory was regarded as one of the strongest supporters of the union, and has always used a union label on its goods. Since the death of the founder, his daughter, Miss Augusta Pollack, has been running the factory. It is believed that some compromise whereby work will shortly be resumed at the factory will be arrived at.

L. F. O'Brien and Fred Kinney have purchased the Moose Cigar Store, 82 North Cherry Street, Galesburg, Ill.

Recent inspection by a Federal revenue tax collector, revealed that Ralph M. Davis, of Guthrie, Okla., controls the largest cigar manufacturing plant in that state. The report shows that his employees number more than those of any other factory and his output is greater.

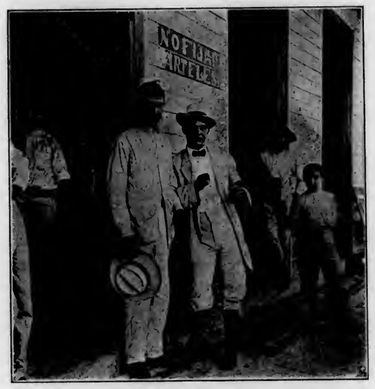
Charles L. Steffens expects to open a new retail stand in the McQuat Building, 16 East Washington Street, Indianapolis, early in August.

S. D. Pierson, Indianapolis distributor for A. S. Valentine & Son's goods, is featuring the "Broadwall" 5-cent cigar, made by this factory, in his retail stands.



Abe Haas On the Job

THE snapshot portrait herewith was taken by Mr. Sydney Rothschild, the well-known Havana commission merchant, upon a revent visit to Abe Haas, at his farm, Las Vueltas, Santa Clara Province. Mr. Haas is seen in the portrait with a Panama hat on, and he is accompanied by his tobacco buyer, Senor S. R. Naranjo.

It is a far cry from Broadway to Las Vueltas, and the hosts of friends in New York who remember Mr. Haas when connected with the Lopez cigar factory in New York City would be delighted to see him as he directs his big packing interests down in Cuba in the remote part of Santa Clara Province.

Mr. Haas' constant American friend on his farm is a big cat, and very few of the buyers ever have the opportunity of accepting his abundant hospitality, though his doors are always wide open. Once a year he makes a trip North to New York, and when arrayed in his evening clothes and seated in one of the brilliant cafes, the contrast with his make-up in the picture shown is remarkable.

San Francisco

Retail Cigar Dealers to Elect Officers—William Bercovich, Formerly of Bercovich Co., Opens New Jobbing House in Sacramento

SAN FRANCISCO, June 20, 1913.

THE warm season has struck California, causing some decrease in business at certain points, though on the whole the increase at other places, the summer-resort trade, etc., keeps the volume about even. Retail stores in the valley towns are selling about as many cigars as ever, and some of them more, but only a few of the larger shops are equipped to keep large stocks in good condition during the hot, dry weather, and the majority are accordingly buying in small lots. The down-town stands in the city are rather quiet, as business men are getting away for vacation, but in the smaller outlying business districts a good business is being done. With the progress of new buildings, the number of places available for cigar stands is increasing, but the rental asked for desirable locations does not seem to be perceptibly lower.

The annual election of officers of the San Francisco Retail Cigar Dealers' Association was held June 25th, and the great majority of dealers took a lively interest in the affair, the experience of the last year having shown them what can be accomplished by sticking together under competent leadership. No intimation was given out in advance as to who would guide the destinies of the association for the ensuing year, some of the present officers feeling that it is time for some one else to take up the burden.

M. A. Gunst & Co. are preparing to make telling use of the vacation idea in their display campaign, beginning the first of the week. Two displays have been planned, one consisting entirely of pipes and tobacco, with accessories strongly suggestive of the vacation spirit, and the other featuring cigars, etc., in small packages convenient for traveling. Milton Esberg, of M. A. Gunst & Co., has been in Southern California a few days this week.

One seldom takes satisfaction in missing a train, but Emil Judell, of H. L. Judell & Co., is thanking his stars that he missed connections for a trip to Napa the other day. The car which he would have taken was in a collision, in which 13 people were killed and 35 injured.

The distribution of Watt cigars was aided somewhat last Sunday by some person who broke into the store of H. L. Judell & Co., and walked off with a package of a thousand "Watts" which had been put up for delivery Monday morning. Unfortunately the party failed to leave his address, so it will be impossible to send a bill—much less collect. Nothing else about the store was disturbed, though some damage was done in breaking open the door. The goods were taken in broad daylight, that part of town being practically deserted on Sundays. Mr. Graf, traveling for H. L. Judell & Co., is sending in some good orders from the Bakersfield district, and Charles Kohlberg has taken up the work in the counties across the Bay.

William Bercovich, formerly a member of the Bercovich Company of this city, who recently returned from a long vacation in the north, is getting back to work again, having started a new jobbing house at Sacramento, under the name of the Capitol Tobacco Company. He will have a number of lines under his own brand, but will handle a very comprehensive variety of other lines, confining himself strictly to the jobbing trade in Sacramento and vicinity. His store is at 908 Sixth Street.

Mark Jacobs, who has been boosting for Ramado cigarettes of the National Tobacco Products Company, is just leaving for a visit in the East.

A. Lovera, of Tampa, is visiting San Francisco this week.

H. H. Manley, representing the American Cigar Company, has just returned from his Northern trip. He reports a very active business on his goods in all parts of the Coast.

The Tobacco Company of California opened for business the first of the week in its new building at South Park and Second Streets.

C. W. McCormick, representing the Webster cigar, is visiting H. Bercovich, the local distributor, this week.

D. Black, the well-known local cigar display specialist, has been suffering from appendicitis, and was operated on several days ago.

Kurt Hosaeus, of the La Prueba factory of Manila, has left on his way to the East and Germany, after spending some time with the Edw. Wolf Company.

Ehrman Bros. & Co. state that the sale of their Havana Ribbon line is constantly growing as its merit becomes more widely known. Goods are beginning to arrive in the new 5-cent brand, El Roi-Tan, and the first large shipment has been sold out in advance, though they will not be distributed until July 1st. It has been necessary to wire a duplicate order in this line. Ehrman Bros. & Co. state that they will soon place on the market a new 5-cent cigar of superior quality under the brand of "Class." They report a rapid increase in "Optimo" sales, owing to the superior quality of the new tobacco which is now being used in them. Their lines of Manila goods are holding their own, and they have just received a large shipment from the Isabella factory of the new size, known as "Officials."

Ed Goodman, the well-known retail cigar man of Market and Davis Streets, was married June 21st, and has gone South for his honeymoon. The bride was Miss Alma Son, whose father, the late A. A. Son, was a well known jobber of pipes and novelties.

I. I. Pollak, who operates the cigar stand in the Merchants' Exchange building, who was kept away from business since the first of the year by eye trouble, has made a good recovery, and is now back at work.

Arthur Meyer, Coast representative of Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, is now calling on the trade in Oregon and Washington, but will leave in a few days for New York.

D. Frankel, of Frankel, Gerdts & Co., the local manufacturers of Havana cigars, is back from an extended outing much improved in health. On his return Mr. Gerdts left for an automobile tour north of the Bay.

The matter of the cigar and tobacco concession of the Panama-Pacific Exposition is receiving some attention from the local trade at present, and will probably be arranged for in the near future. Efforts will be made to see that goods of some real merit are offered for sale on the Exposition grounds.

W. I. Pixley got away a few days ago on his automobile trip through the South in the interest of Krinsky cigarettes and Dill's tobacco, expecting to be on the road constantly for several months.

Nestors' Will Pack Ispahan Rugs

IN keeping with the present day demand on the part of the consumer for a novelty to be packed with cigarettes, the Nestor-Gianaclis Co., owned by M. Melachrino & Co., will place on the market in a few days, packages of ten "Royal Nestor" cigarettes, in which are included a Fourth Century Royal Persian silk rug. This rug is as exact reproduction of the famous old Ispahan carpets which are only to be found in the palaces of royalty and the homes of the wealthy. These rugs will be offered in some sixty designs, and the wonderful silk sheen and the exquisite coloring far exceed any similar souvenir now before the trade. R. A. Ellis, of the Melachrino Company, says that they have adopted these souvenir rugs as gifts with "Nestors," only after much thought, and they are determined that they will be of such intrinsic merit that "Nestor" smokers will prize them as highly as they do the quality of this famous cigarette.

Russian Women as Smokes

RUSSIA is the only country in the world where women smoke cigarettes in public without attracting attention," said R. E. Dennison, who formerly was in the consular service in that country.

"It is customary for Russian ladies to go into restaurants or confectionery stores in the afternoon, and while enjoying a cup of chocolate to puff a cigarette. Nothing is thought of it and it does not attract notice. But Russia is the greatest cigarette smoking country in the world. More cigarettes are consumed there in a year than in several other European countries combined. Turkey is popularly believed to be the greatest cigarette country, but it is not in it with Russia. Women do not smoke cigarettes in Turkey.

"In Germany cigarette smoking in public is prohibited among boys attending schools, not by law, but by the rules of the schools and universities, and severe punishment is meted out for a violation of the rule."

Western Cigar Box Men Elect Officers

At a recent meeting of the Western Cigar Box Manufacturers' Association, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, C. F. Koklauner, Cedarburg; first vice-president, A. G. Wiedmann, Kansas City; second vice-president, J. P. Van Vick, Duluth; third vice-president, S. G. J. Kingston, London, Ont.; secretary-treasurer, E. H. Defenbaugh, Chicago; member of executive committee, F. H. Parker, Milwaukee; member of board of directors, J. Schwartzburg, Milwaukee.

Burrit Gets Fine Rochester Stand

Clyde Burrit has purchased the Hub Cigar Store on Eighteenth Street, Rochester, N. Y., which was opened several years ago by E. Franklin Brewster, Jr. Mr. Burrit was formerly local manager for the Joseph T. Snyder store.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Leaf Trade Generally Sluggish, With Only Occassional Spurts—Conditions Favorable to Growers in Many Sections

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY, June 25.

SLUGGISHNESS in general has marked the leaf tobacco trade during the past fortnight. The dull monotony of routine trade has been broken somewhat by the insistent cry for good wrapper leaf, with Connecticut broad leaf still very scarce. Sumatra is in lively demand, and supplies on hand here are being reduced rapidly. However, the recent purchases by American dealers and manufacturers at the Amsterdam inscriptions dissipate all fears of famine, although prices are somewhat fancy, in keeping with the high quality. Further additions to American supplies will be made at the fall inscriptions. The holdings of good Havana leaf in New York are being increased weekly by fresh importations. Consequently, old stock is being pushed out to make room for the new. Remedios packings are beginning to reach Havana.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.

UP and down the leaf district, one finds signs of activity in spite of the hot weather. Philadelphia cigar manufacturers as a whole are busy to-day, and have been busy for many weeks. Naturally this has a stimulating effect on local leaf markets. There is still much complaint over the scarcity of Connecticut and Havana seed. There are reported quite a few good sales in 1911 Pennsylvania.

LANCASTER, June 24.

CONDITIONS in the leaf tobacco market have improved during the last week, there being an especially strong demand for 1911 stock. One dealer reports a sale of 1500 cases to the United Cigar Manufacturers' Co. The prices on the 1911 stock range from 14c. to 15½c. per pound.

H. H. Books, a hotel proprietor of Campbelltown, has just purchased the Moses Rauch farm of 104 acres at a price said to be $150 an acre. If the yield is as large as is anticipated, Mr. Books will engage in tobacco planting on a much larger scale.

Morris Levy, of Lancaster, has purchased from Jacob Becker, of Manheim, a tract of ground, 68x250 feet, upon which will be built a tobacco warehouse.

The demand for all varieties of wrapper tobacco still continues, as well as for binder stock. Filler stock is also in good demand.

The tobacco growers of Lancaster County have experienced considerable difficulty in setting out new plants, largely due to unfavorable weather conditions, which, combined with scarcity of plants, has done much to retard work along this line.

The prices quoted range from $2.50 to $4.00 per thousand, and some growers are considering plans for the raising of crops other than tobacco unless prices are reduced within the next week or ten days.

A meeting of tobacco growers has been set for August 9th at Williamson Park, at which time prominent tobacco men will address the growers and show the advantages to be obtained by working together and in harmony.

Through the efforts of A. B. Hess, president of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association, a resolution to revive the graduated tobacco tax which was in force many years ago, was defeated. The tax was suggested as a means to raise money for permanent road improvements. In a speech Mr. Hess explained how the old tax worked a hardship upon all manufacturers while it benefited the larger ones. Mr. Hess represents Lancaster in the State Legislature, and is ever on the lookout to prevent additional burdens being placed upon the cigar and tobacco industry.

The ban on 1909 packing is gradually being lifted, and the warehouses believe that this stock will soon be in good demand. A sale of 1600 cases of 1911 tobacco is reported to Morris Levy and a sale of 350 cases to Frank C. Musser.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, WIS., June 20.

THE new tobacco crop is now going into the fields under about as favorable conditions as is often experienced in the state.

The soil is in such fine physical condition, charged with plenty of moisture, that there ought to be no trouble in securing a fine stand, barring the work of cut worms which up to this time have been quite troublesome. Warm weather has brought along the plant beds so rapidly of late that growers find the work of transplanting crowding upon them and all available help is putting in long hours in the tobacco fields. It begins to look that the end of the month will see the crop practically out.

It is no longer a secret that quite a little of the 1912 forced sweat Wisconsin is being all the time fed the market to meet the demands of a short binder supply and the new leaf is giving very general satisfaction to manufacturers and commanding good prices as well.

The shipments out of storage since last report reach 350 cases to all points from this market.—Reporter.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, CONN., June 24.

TOBACCO growers in this section have been considerably handicapped during the past fortnight by their inability to secure a sufficient number of plants to meet their requirements. Much difficulty is being experienced by the presence of cut worms, which, in some instances, are found directly on top of the ground awaiting the setting of the plants. A number of growers in the vicinity of East Hartford have treated the soil to a mixture of bran and Paris green, and a number of fields which have been treated with this preparation appear to be doing well.

The frost which visited the tobacco growing section earlier in the month did not damage the young plants as much as was at first feared.

There is a well defined rumor that considerable acreage will be utilized for shade grown tobacco, but rumor cannot be confirmed at this writing.

The warehouses have about closed for the season, and the consensus of opinion is that the year has been a profitable one to all concerned.

KENTUCKY.

LEXINGTON, KY., June 24.

TOBACCO growers throughout Central Kentucky recently suffered a severe loss by a terrific wind, rain and hail storm which swept over that portion of the State.

It is freely predicted that in several sections of Kentucky the acreage devoted to tobacco raising will decrease almost 50%. Especially is this true in the vicinity of Sebree, where the prices obtained were considerably less than was anticipated, and owing to the distance from the principal markets and warehouses, the cost of shipping reduced profits to a minimum. The long-continued drought in this section has also had a discouraging effect upon the growers.

Night-riders have warned a large number of growers that the raising of tobacco will subject them to a monetary loss and persecution of a more serious nature.

A tobacco bed of 12 acres, located near Morganfield, was destroyed by these night-marauders, and a warning posted that the raising of tobacco in that particular locality would not be permitted.

The tobacco market of Clarksville remains strong, especially on good leaf, which brought as high as $14.40, and close to 800 hogsheads were disposed of during the last week.

The tobacco warehouses of Cincinnati recently inaugurated a new rule which provides for auction sales four days of each week instead of two as heretofore. The opinion of warehouse men and brokers is unanimous in that the new ruling will have a tendency to strengthen the market price, even though there is not a large volume of business accomplished.

CONTROLLING THE TOBACCO HORNWORM.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 24.

Growers of dark tobacco in Kentucky and Tennessee have a serious problem in the ever-present tobacco hornworms which are great chewers of green tobacco. When labor was plentiful and cheap, "hand worming" was an economical and efficient way to combat the pest. For several years labor in these tobacco-growing districts has become scarce and also inefficient, so growers have been forced to resort to insecticides. Naturally, Paris green was tried, and found to be the safest and most efficient of any on the market, but there has always been complaint of frequent and serious burning of tobacco as a result of its use.

For five years employees of the Department of Agriculture have been conducting investigations looking for a safe and effective insecticide, and have determined that di-plumbic arsenate of lead meets all requirements.

A thorough application of this insecticide will kill practically every hornworm within two or three days after being applied, and will continue for several days to kill the young worms that hatch, without any injury to the plant. Arsenate of lead costs more than Paris green, and if the comparative cost were the only question, it would be useless to recommend the former; but the first cost is only a secondary consideration. The object is to kill the worms and not injure the plants, and the certainty of this compensates for the extra cost of the arsenate of lead. Arsenate of lead must be mixed with a carrier and applied with a dust gun. Finely sifted freshly burned wood ashes make the best carrier, and at least a bulk equal to the insecticide should be used. The best guns are those with a fan diameter of eight inches, with an auxiliary dust chamber.

Apply the mixture when the dew is on the plants and there is no breeze, and make the application thorough.

Do not wait too long. The first application should be made when the worms become too numerous to be kept off by the hand picking that is usually done while hoeing, suckering, or topping, and a second and even a third application may be necessary.

Heard Among Leaf Men

The Imperial Tobacco Co. is building at South Boston, Mass., what is said to be the largest leaf tobacco stemmery in all the country. The building will cover an acre and one-tenth of ground, and will cost $100,000 for the building alone, to say nothing of the fixtures, machinery, etc.

A supplemental certificate of incorporation was granted recently to the W. A. Brown Tobacco Co., Inc., Martinsville, Va., reducing the minimum from $65,000 to $55,000.

Moritz Neuberger, of the Griffin-Neuberger Tobacco Co., sailed for Germany, accompanied by his family, to spend the summer.

H. S. Loewenthal, of S. Loewenthal & Sons, 131 Maiden Lane, reports excellent June sales on their "Clover Farm" shade-grown tobacco, and says that the crop for this year is being rapidly booked up. This is one of the liveliest jobbing houses in the trade, and always has something on hand to interest an alert buyer.

The Hodge Tobacco Co., of Kentucky, have purchased the pool tobacco crop of Princeton and Hopkins Counties at a price said to have averaged 6 cents per pound. Two and one quarter million pounds are involved in the deal. Deliveries will be made as soon as the season permits. It is stated that the poolers lost money by delaying the sales, having been offered 6½ cents per pound last winter.

Teodoro Perez Visits New York

Teodoro Perez, senior member of Teodoro Perez & Co., arrived in New York a few days ago for his annual visit to local headquarters. Mr. Perez says that the crop outlook in Cuba is better than it has been for a number of years. Vuelta abajo and semi-vuelta crops are especially promising. Partidos growers, says Mr. Perez, are making excellent progress in the cultivation of wrappers, and the growers who use both cheesecloth shade and palm leaf shade are getting tobacco which is much higher than was expected.

The bugaboo talk of tobacco which will not burn is of little importance, adds Mr. Perez, owing to the fact that buyers are fully informed as to the districts where bad burning tobacco grows, and will have none of it. Mr. Perez will remain in New York for a month

Charged With Misbranding Cigars

Following the complaint of J. O. Bolton, of Theodore, Ala., Louis Morningstar, who claims to be a cigar salesman, and to be well known in Mobile, Ala., was arrested recently, on the charge of selling misbranded cigars made in Pennsylvania. Morningstar stated that the cigars which he sold to Bolton were bought in good faith. He was released on $250 bonds, pending a preliminary examination.

Duys' Record Purchases of Sumatra

H. Duys & Co., the progressive Sumatra house, are breaking records this year both in buying at the inscriptions in Holland, and in selling at their New York office. Their purchases of new Sumatra and Java tobaccos show the record-breaking total of 6700 bales, and their sales for the first six months of this year are 4500 bales. This firm prides itself on adding new accounts weekly, and it is a well-known fact that "once a customer of the house of Duys, always a customer."

Among their latest purchases are 676 bales of Deli My/AB, and 500 bales of JH/Deli, Amst Deli Co. and SST Co. brands, which tobaccos were purchased at the seventh and eighth inscriptions.

Canadian Tobacco Prosperous Despite the Times

The recent annual meeting of the Tuckett Tobacco Co., Ltd., Montreal, Que., disclosed the fact that, despite the reports of a slowing up in trade, due to the tightness of money, the company's business for the first two months of the present year reveals substantial gains over the same period of a year ago. Following is a list of the officers as re-elected: J. W. Lamoreaux, president; H. B. Whitton, vice-president; Colonel Hon. J. S. Henrdrie, C. S. Wilcox, Charles Meredith, C. B. Gordon, H. S. Holt, Howard S. Ambrose, Llewellyn Meredith, E. H. Ambrose, J. M. Mackie, and S. C. Wewburn, secretary-treasurer.

Restrained From Imitating Tobacco

An injunction has been issued by Vice-Chancellor Lewis restraining Samuel Fischer & Co., of Trenton, N. J., from manufacturing or selling two brands of tobacco whose trade labels are almost identical with the labels of "Kassan" and "Tisza," originated and manufactured by H. Rippen, Perth Amboy, N. J.

Mendelsohn Company Very Busy

Late reports from Cleveland are to the effect that the Mendelsohn Company are rushed to their fullest capacity on the two brands, "Rigoletto" and "El Symphonie," and have put on during the past week 25 additional cigar makers, with room for about 50 more, if they could get the skilled help which they demand. They have orders on their books at present for a million cigars and are making strenuous efforts to keep up.

Denied Use of Old Firm's Title

A permanent injunction has been issued by Judge Fulton at Newark, O., restraining Harry Swisher, cigar manufacturer, from using the firm name of Swisher Bros. The latter firm dissolved partnership a few months ago, John Swisher continuing the business. Harry Swisher having taken another brother into partnership, and is now erecting a large factory, contemplated using the firm name of Swisher Bros., which title is now denied him.

Cigar Industry in Manila

THE total number of cigars made in Philippine factories during the fiscal year, 1912, was 284,918,845," said Captain William J. Platek, in a recent interview. "Of the total output, 109,924,014 were consumed in the islands, 104,476,781 were exported to countries other than the United States, and 70,518,050 were shipped to the United States.

"There were also 4,404,929,808 Philippine cigarettes manufactured in 1912, of which all but 35,776,760 were consumed in the islands.

"Philippine tobacco has been exported to Spain for 150 years, and its use gradually extended from Spain to Belgium, France, England, Turkey, Egypt, China and Japan, and now to the United States. Philippine tobacco is much favored in Eastern Asia, particularly in Japan, where Manila cigars, bringing an average price equal to 15 cents in United States currency, are displayed everywhere, and this in spite of the fact that the Japanese Government maintains a tobacco monopoly.

"There are about 25,000 cigar makers in the city of Manila, and these men as well as the women engaged in the cigar factories are subject to examination for disease by the inspectors of the Bureau of Health. This bureau also exercises supervision over the buildings in which cigars are manufactured, thus insuring healthy operators and sanitary surroundings.

"But governmental activity manifested in the determination to insure hygienic conditions and proper environments for cigar manufacture is not restricted to the efforts of inspectors employed by the department of sanitation. Practical tobacco men with scientific knowledge aid in the matter of seed selection and give instruction in cultivating, curing and marketing. The Bureau of Agriculture is much interested in improving the quality of Philippine leaf. The importance of the work done in this direction is attested by the growing demand and the increased value of Philippine tobacco. It is not enough to say that as good a leaf can be and is produced in the Philippines as anywhere—we hope to make it better."

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 102 South Twelfth Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

☞ Positively no responsibility assumed for errors, duplications or any controversies which might arise. We will not under any circumstances act in a legal capacity in cases concerning disputed titles. We maintain a bureau of records only.

TENNESSEE LEAF MARKET.

CLARKSVILLE, June 18.

THE past week was void of any interest in the loose tobacco market and only a few loads of nondescripts were received and most of that was sold from the wagons, thus demonstrating that the loose floor trade is about completed.

The reports from the country show that there is still a considerable quantity of tobacco that has been pledged to the association yet hanging in the barn. The farmers had another busy week, preparing land for planting, and in some sections three would be a considerable acreage set, should a season come. But there is still a complaint of a scarcity of plants and no hills for setting have been made. The protracted dry spell, with the aid of insects, have put many beds entirely out of business and offers to buy plants are freely made. There seems to be a prevailing idea now that the acreage will fall far below what was anticipated.

An announcement has been sent to the trade that Samuel Fisher, of Storm, Fisher & Co., New York, will continue the business of this concern in the same manner as before, Julius Lehman having retired from the business.

Tobacco growers were heavy losers in a terrific wind, rain and hail storm which swept over Central Kentucky June 1. Several persons were killed and damage amounting to thousands of dollars was done to crops, live stock and buildings. In some places large areas in which tobacco plants had been set out were entirely cleaned out.

The Cuesta, Rey & Co. lines of cigars, made by Cuesta, Rey & Co., Tampa, have been taken on for distribution in the Boston market by the wholesale house of McGreenery & Manning, of that city.

The American Tobacco Company

NEW YORK

To the Cigar Jobbers and Distributors in the United States

If you want to make your business profitable and get the desirable light colors which the trade demands, and to enable your cigar manufacturers to give you a better quality cigar for the money insist that they give you a good cigar covered with an American Sumatra Wrapper.

The manufacturer is not able to pay $1.85 per pound duty on imported tobacco and build as good a cigar as those which are covered with American Sumatra Tobacco, on which no duty is paid.

Skilled labor is high, Binders are high, good Fillers are high, everything pertaining to cigar manufacture is high, but the difference in the cost of wrappers, will enable the manufacturer to give you a finer article for your customer and more profits for you.

The Florida-Georgia wrapper is not a substitute. It is the

STANDARD MONEY-MAKING WRAPPER OF THE HOUR

Over 20,000 bales used last year by the leading cigar manufacturers in this country proves it.

Increased use year after year shows that progressive manufacturers realize the quality of the Florida-Georgia wrapper.

WHICH WOULD YOU RATHER BE—PREJUDICED OR PROSPEROUS? IT'S UP TO YOU.

"Not a cigar, but the cigar," has often been said of the "PEALE," our nickel leader. That's because we continually aim to improve the mild Havana blend.

And the "man who knows" (the ultimate consumer), has discovered it. That's the reason he's been demanding it for ten years.

Short talks to Dealers

It is just as essential to use good cigarettes in order to build up a substantial cigarette business as to use good building material for a home. With you have a good, dependable foundation. Good, because the mild, mellow Turkish flavor of Fatimas is the flavor most desired by cigarette smokers. Dependable, because our process of manufacture insures the same uniform quality in each cigarette in every package.

And to increase the already enormous sale of Fatimas and to make it easy for you to build up a big, substantial trade with them, we are advertising them very heavily during 1913. More Fatima cigarettes are sold than any other brand in this country.

In fact, the 1913 Fatima advertising campaign will be one of the very biggest ever known for cigarettes.

And back of every ad—every cigarette and every dealer—stands the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

40 MICHIGAN DEALERS ARRESTED; WILL TRY TO KILL CIGARETTE LAW

Test Case Will Be Made to Have Rigid Act Declared Unconstitutional—Statement From Attorney

(Special Despatch to The Tobacco World.)

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 10.

AS the result of the arrest of forty local dealers charged with violation of the anti-cigarette law, an effort is now being made to have this law declared unconstitutional. A test case will be made in the arrest of Harold B. Nye, who is charged with violation of the law. Mr. Nye has retained two capable attorneys, H. Monroe Dunham and Stuart Knappen, who are determined to carry the case to the highest courts in order to have it declared unconstitutional.

Speaking of the case, Attorney Dunham, in a statement to "The Tobacco World," said:

"Act No. 226, of the Public Acts of 1909, was known as our Anti-cigarette Law, and the title of the act is as follows:

"'An act to prohibit the manufacture, sale or use of adulterated cigarettes and prohibiting the use of cigarettes by minors.'

"Section one of this act relates to the sale of adulterated cigarettes and is not in controversy.

"'Any person within this state who sells, gives or in any manner furnishes any cigarettes in any form to any person under twenty-one years of age shall be punished, etc.'

"It is the claim of Mr. Nye that the title of the act is not broad enough to cover the offence charged in section two of the act. Also that section two of the act is not germane to the general purposes expressed in the title. Reading section two of this act you will see that cigarettes furnished or sold to a minor for the use of a third person would be a violation of the law, although the title of the

CUT PRICE IMPORTED CIGAR WAR WAGING HOT IN THIS CITY

Riker-Hegeman and United Stores Slash on Havana Goods, and Mahn Reduces to 17½ Cents—Cigarettes and Tobacco Affected Too

THE cut price war on imported perfecto cigars which has been raging for some time in Boston and New York, as the result of the competition between the Riker-Hegeman Drug Stores and the United Cigar Stores Co., has spread to Philadelphia, and is not only confined to imported cigars, but is also affecting a number of the popular brands of cigarettes.

When the Riker-Hegeman Co. opened their first store in Philadelphia, at 1332 Chestnut Street, several weeks ago, they immediately proceeded to do a side show business in the cigar and cigarette department by featuring it apparently as strong as their legitimate drug supply department. In fact, from the way the goods were displayed in the windows, and advertised, the average Philadelphian was led to believe that another cigar store, and not a drug shop, had opened for business. A second store of this chain is about to be opened on Market Street near Thirteenth Street, and the same policy of cut prices on cigars will be followed there.

In order to meet the cutting on imported cigars, which affected all of the leading 25-cent brands, the United Cigar Stores Co. immediately announced their goods at 18 cents. These were the only stores to meet the cut-price figures, until Godfrey S. Mahn last week came out with a startling announcement that he had cut all his 25-cent imported perfectos to 17½ cents, thereby going the price cutters ½-cent better, and starting a back fire which promises to disturb the local market considerably. It is the first time in the history of the Mahn business that he has ever cut imported cigars to such a low figure.

How long any importer can keep selling cigars at cost or less, remains to be seen. In fact, a number of other

Por Larranaga Factory Reorganized

Havana, Cuba, July 7.

THE Por Larrañaga factory has undergone a change in directorship. Don Eustaquio Alonso is now the president of the company, Don Antonio Rivero is the vice-president, Don Ricardo Rivero the secretary, and Don José Fernandez Capillin the treasurer. By the addition of Don Eustaquio Alonso and Don José Fernandez Capillin, who for the past 12 years were actively connected with the Partagas factory, the Por Larrañaga Co. has acquired two very valuable gentlemen, the former as a thorough organizer, and the latter as one of our best judges of leaf tobacco, who knows how to blend different vegas from the Vuelta Abajo, and what kind of wrappers each of the markets requires. With the fine crop of Vuelta Abajo this year, there is no doubt that the Por Larrañaga cigars will be not alone distributed, but also be called for and smoked by all connoisseurs.

The factory has secured a sufficiently large stock of the cream of this year's Vuelta Abajo vegas, so as to guarantee the smokers the same even, mild, but aromatic cigars for a long time ahead.

Pithy Paragraphs of the Late News

Strikers Get Two Stretchers Full of Coin.—In a parade of 1500 stogie strikers and their sympathizers at Pittsburgh, July 12, 500 girls and women carried banners and flags. Two white stretchers were carried, into which spectators threw money to help the cause.

Eightieth Store of Riker-Hegeman.—The eightieth retail drug and cigar store of the Riker-Hegeman Co. was opened in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., last week. Cut prices in cigars, cigarettes and tobacco proclaimed its advent.

And Now It's Navajo Blankets.—Miniature Navajo Indian blankets, 5½ x 8½ inches, were given away in Philadelphia last week with each 5-cent pack of "Sovereign" cigarettes, in which also were packed two coupons redeemable for ½ cent each. The supply of blankets was soon exhausted.

Only 100 Difference But It Hurt.—Alleging that the title "No. 208" was an infringement upon their "108" brand of cigars, Goldsmith, Silver & Co., cigar manufacturers, of Portland, Me., have brought suit against Llewellyn W. Savage, of Bangor, who was pushing the brand "No. 208." Plaintiffs state their brand is being injured by the similarity of the titles.

Snuff Factory Removed.—The snuff factory formerly operated at Yorklyn, near West Chester, Pa., by the American Tobacco Co.'s interests, has been shut down and will be moved to Kentucky.

STOGIE MAKERS' STRIKE SPREADS IN PITTSBURGH

Nearly 2500 Out as Result of Lockout and Fight for Higher Wages—Only Hill District Affected So Far

(Special Despatch to The Tobacco World.)

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 12.

THERE are 2500 stogie makers now idle in the Pittsburgh district as the result of a strike and lockout. So far the only factories affected are the smaller ones in the Hill district, but it is feared the trouble may spread to other factories in other sections.

On June 28 the workers in the Industrial Cigar Co. and the Penn Cigar Co. struck for a wage increase per day of 15 cents. It was planned by Tobacco Workers' Industrial Union, Local 101, in which the stogie workers are organized, to make this strike the first step in a fight for wage increases in all the factories of the city.

Anticipating such a move, the manufacturers' association held a meeting and declared a lockout, which became effective on July 3, in the following factories: Enelow Cigar Co., Miller Street; J. Miller, Crawford Street; Levine Bros., Fulton Street; J. Reichman, Clark Street; Webster Stogie Co., Trent Street; Wetzel Co., Marion Street; Standard Cigar Co., Enoch Street; Shipero Co., Cliff Street.

The union answered the ultimatum of the bosses with a call for a general strike, accompanied with the announcement that instead of a wage increase per day of 15 cents they would accept nothing less than 35 cents.

The stogie manufacturers say cost of material and manufacturing will not allow them to continue business, as the workers are demanding an increase of 94 cents on three-for-five and $1.32 on two-for-five stogies. They will store what little stock they have and will resume business later. It is almost impossible to secure filler and wrapper tobacco, except at prohibitive prices. A long drawnout battle is expected.

2600 Bales of Sumatra for United States

At the Amsterdam inscription July 11, 1200 bales were taken for the American market. Among the purchasers were F. & E. Cranz, 150 bales; G. Falk & Bros., 521 bales; S. At the Amsterdam Sumatra inscription held July 4, about 1400 bales were bought by American houses at high prices. Among the buyers were: Cullman Bros., 418 bales; E. Rosenwald & Bro., 411; S. Rossin & Sons, 206; A. Blumlein & Co., 110; F. & E. Cranz, 105; Joseph Hirsch & Son, 96, and A. Cohn & Co., 69.

Proposes Tax to Help Tobacco Growers

At the hearings before the Congressional Tobacco Commission, in Washington last week, a novel proposition was made by James Dixon, Commonwealth Attorney for the State of Kentucky, who suggested that in order to protect the tobacco growers against unfair methods of big buyers, and also to prevent friction among themselves, the government should levy a tax of from 15 cents to 20 cents per pound, to be paid by the buyer. After deducting the expense of collecting same, the government should return this tax to the farmer, thereby insuring a living to the growers.

NEW TOBACCO LABOR REGULATIONS IN PENNA.

Commissioner Jackson Announces That He Will Rigidly Enforce New and Old Acts Affecting Workers

A STATEMENT summarizing the labors laws of Pennsylvania now in existence and the new provisions passed at the recent session of the State Legislature, has just been issued by John Price Jackson, the newly appointed Commissioner of Labor and Industry, whose duties include those of Chief Factory Inspector, an office wiped out by the creation of this new department. There are several new regulations affecting cigar and tobacco manufacture.

A skeleton of the summary follows:

Minors under 14 may not be employed in any establishment.

Minors under 16 may not be employed in or about establishments for the manufacture or preparation of white lead, red lead, paints, phosphorus, phosphorus matches, poisonous acids, or for the manufacture or stripping of tobacco or cigars, except where special permission has been granted by the Commissioner of Labor and Industry.

Minors under 18 may not be employed in hazardous occupations.

Minors under 18 may not be employed unless they can read and write the English language intelligently and are physically qualified for their work.

Boys under 16 may not be employed in any establishment more than ten hours a day, except to make a shorter work day (not holiday) for one day in the week, and not more than 58 hours in any week.

After November 1, 1913, no females may be employed more than six days or 54 hours in any one week.

No females under 21 may be employed between 9 P. M. and 6 A. M., except telephone operators over 18 years of age.

No female may be employed in any manufacturing establishment between 10 P. M. and 6 A. M., except as managers, superintendents, clerks and stenographers.

No minor between 14 and 16 may be employed in any establishment unless the employer procures and keeps on file an employment certificate. Employers are required to return certificates to children who leave their employment.

After November 1, 1913, every employer of females shall post conspicuously in at least one of the rooms where such female is employed a schedule of the hours of labor of every female, containing her name, daily and weekly hours and time of commencing and stopping work and meal hours; also printed abstract of the woman's employment law.

In every establishment where both males and females are employed suitable toilets, wash and dressing rooms shall be provided. After November 1, 1913, toilets for females shall be provided in the ratio of one to every 25 females employed. Suitable seats shall be provided for all women employes and use thereof permitted when they are not necessarily engaged in active duties.

No person engaging in the manufacture or sale of wearing apparel, cigars or cigarettes shall contract for their manufacture in whole or in part by any persons in any kitchen, living room or bedroom, except where the persons so engaging are members of the immediate family of the persons residing in such rooms.

Fight Over New Snuff Law

Grand Forks, N. D., July 8.

A newly enacted law forbidding the sale of snuff in this state, has resulted in a clash between the Pure Food Department and the snuff manufacturers and it is likely that a long drawn out legal battle will result. Pure Food Commissioner Ladd has discovered that since the anti-snuff law has gone into effect, that snuff manufacturers have introduced a substitute which they claim can be sold in spite of the law. So the Pure Food Department is determined to prevent the sale of the substitute and legal action will be brought.

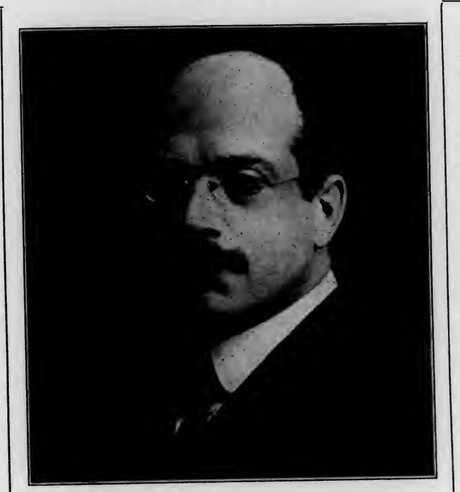
A. T. Co. Warehouse in Macedonia Destroyed

The American Tobacco Co.'s warehouse at Seres, Macedonia, was destroyed by the Bulgarians, July 13, when they pillaged the town. The American Tobacco Co. denies that the loss is $1,000,000, although so reported. Losses, however, are heavy. The invaders destroyed a lot of tobacco belonging to the German and Austrian companies, and the American Tobacco Co. No advices of the losses have reached the company at 111 Fifth Avenue as yet.

MEN WHO MADE GOOD

SIDELIGHTS ON INTERESTING TRADE PERSONALITIES

FOREIGNERS visiting the United States have often remarked that one of the most noteworthy things of commercial America is the varied types of men who head our great industrial projects. In one instance, we find a dashing, brilliant man almost dominating a great enterprise by sheer physical strength, and in another quarter, in a similar enterprise, we find a modest, calculating man quietly handling the reins and accomplishing things without being anywhere near the spotlight. Both types, however, are equally effective in their sphere.



Fred Hirschhorn

Fred Hirschhorn, the recently elected president of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Co., is strictly a member of the latter named class.

It took a Jac Wertheim, with his genius for organization, to create the great United Company, and when his work was completed it was fit that his mantle should fall upon the shoulders of Fred Hirschhorn, for this man today is the directing head of a corporation which in all its branches produces annually something like five hundred million cigars.

Such a business needs at the helm a man who is essentially a factory man, and a manufacturer in the broadest sense, and it was the knowledge of the peculiar abilities of Mr. Hirschhorn in this direction that led the directors of the United Company to place him in the presidency when Mr. Wertheim retired.

Fred Hirschhorn, not Frederick, is described by those who know him best, as a man without frills, and also as possessed of a wonderfully logical and farseeing brain. He plans today, said an intimate friend, for achievements five years hence, and the plans are carried out to the letter. During the evolution of them the uninitiated look on with wonderment, but Hirschhorn, silent and watchful, is content to know that his judgment has not played him any tricks.

It is this quality which has placed him, at 42 years of age, at the head of this great business, and those who know him best, feel sure that his career is just opening for him.

Mr. Hirschhorn is a born New Yorker, and has been a cigar man all his life. He was one of the members of the firm of Hirschhorn, Mack & Co., which went into the United Cigar Manufacturers' Co. when it was first organized, and upon the retirement of his brother, Charles Hirschhorn, and Marc H. Mack from their positions as officers of the corporation several years ago, he was elected vice-president of the company, and from that position elevated to the presidency last spring.

Like all men who are thinkers, Mr. Hirschhorn loves the water, and his one pet hobby aside from cigars is yachting. He is a member of the Brooklyn Yacht Club and has owned several fine boats at various times. "The Evelyn," a splendid 135-footer, now flies his pennant, and is well known in all waters about New York.

He has a beautiful summer home at Byram Shore, Conn., and frequently in making the trip up the Sound, some of the important policies of the company which he now directs, are thoughtfully and carefully mapped out, with nothing to disturb save the rippling of the waters as the swift craft glides on.

The love of the sea teaches big things, and Fred Hirschhorn has been an apt pupil.

D. D. Cady is now located in his new cigar store at 823 Riverside, Spokane, Wash., same having been recently altered and redecorated.

Big Turkish Tobacco Crop in California

The harvesting of Turkish tobacco has been started by a syndicate of Greeks who leased a hundred acres of land in the Bullard Farms, near Fresno, Cal. According to all indications, the tobacco is of high quality and will net a gross return of probably $200 per acre.

L. M. Umstead, tobacco expert of the Exeter demonstration farm of the American Tobacco Co., estimates the tobacco crop of this year at 500,000 pounds.

Turkish tobacco is grown in only two places in the United States—California and Texas. Fresno and Tulare counties are the only places in California where it is grown to any extent. Reports state that the California Turkish tobacco crop in 1909 was 7000 pounds; in 1910, 15,000 pounds; in 1911, 45,000 pounds, and in 1912, 150,000 pounds.

To Test Washington Coupon Law

Criminal information has been filed in Seattle, Wash., by Prosecuting Attorney John F. Murphy, charging F. S. Pitney, manager of the United Cigar Stores, with furnishing stamp coupons without a license. The charge is made under the new anti-coupon law, enacted at the last legislature. This will be made a test case.

PROBLEMS of the RETAILER

How to Land That Vacation Trade

THE retail tobacconist who grumbles because many of his regular customers have gone away for the summer, and he is losing their trade, temporarily, at least, has only himself to blame. There is a way not only to keep this regular trade but to build it up.

A man away on his vacation, if he smokes at all, is likely to consume double the amount of his usual daily amount of cigars, cigarettes and tobacco, so that the dealer, who loses touch with him, is not only out the normal amount of sales, but often double this amount.

In the first place, the retailer, if he be located in a town, where the habit of going away for the summer or part of it is prevalent—and in what town in this country does this not prevail?—ought to anticipate the vacationist's absence by dressing his windows and placing signs calling the attention of the customer to the necessity of stocking up on his favorite brands before leaving. The average man, once he finds a favorite brand of tobacco or cigars, is likely to lay in a good supply before leaving, if he be properly reminded of this.

However, few tourists care to carry enough of their favorites with them to anticipate from two to four weeks' consumption; therefore, it is up to the dealer to see that he gets the duplicate business when the vacationist's supply is exhausted. In order to get this duplicate business, we would suggest the retailer furnishing self-addressed postal cards to the best prospective customers so that they can re-order by mail.

As an inducement to them to send in their orders, the dealer should with profit offer to ship all goods free by Parcel Post.

We know that this scheme has been worked successfully by many enterprising dealers, and if you have not tried it now is the time to get busy, as the vacation season is now in full tide.

Selling Retail Windows for Display

THE experiment recently tried in Chicago by a syndicate which secured contracts for six hundred druggists in that city to sell their windows for the display of cigars, candy and other nationally advertised goods, at an average rate of $7 per window each week, is being watched with considerable interest by the cigar trade.

A Lancaster, Pa., cigar manufacturer recently used five hundred windows under this scheme for the display of his cigars, and it is claimed by the window trimmers that 300,000 10-cent cigars and 100,000 5-cent cigars from this factory were sold through these window displays during the five weeks of the display. These brands thereby obtained a hold in the Chicago market which would ordinarily take months and sometimes years to achieve.

The syndicate operates its scheme somewhat as follows: First the druggist pays $10 to join the syndicate and in return he receives a fixed price for every week in which the syndicate displays are made in his window—this price being 75 per cent. of the amount paid by the manufacturer to the syndicate. The manufacturer buys a certain number of windows just as he would place an order for a given number of billboards of a certain size. He also pays for his windows in about the same way as he does for the billboards; that is, the best windows go at from $12 to $15 per week, while those in stores located in outer sections of the city cost from $3 to $5 per week. The average cost for the six hundred windows offered by this syndicate is $7.

Commenting upon this proposition, the "Novelty News," of Chicago, makes the following observations:

"Most of the big national manufacturers and distributors have looked upon this scheme with a considerable amount of distrust because of the precedence it sets in the matter of securing dealers' co-operation. Manufacturers of articles which retail at a small price and who have distribution in all sections of the country would find it a considerable burden, they claim, to be called upon to pay such prices for securing displays in their dealers' windows. Then, again, they figure that should the plan be developed to a considerable extent it would result in the big manufacturers bidding a little bit higher for the windows and in this way practically monopolizing the dealers' windows through the year.

"The merchant who sells his window for a display of this sort is bound to carry at least a small stock of the article offered, as the display of the goods in his window is sure to produce a certain proportion of demand for that particular product. It is pointed out by the window display syndicate that this increase in sales entirely overshadows the charge made for the windows and gives the manufacturer a distribution in a given territory without the usual expense for introducing his product to the retail trade by means of salesmen. We understand that the window display syndicate undertakes to secure introductory offers in each one of the six hundred drug stores with which it has a contract for the use of their windows.

"The manufacturers answer this argument with a declaration that they already secure this increase in sales through the former method of offering the dealer a complete window trim for his window and which the dealer was asked to install without charge to the manufacturer.

"The outcome of the window display syndicate proposition will be watched with interest by the national distributing manufacturers and upon the results secured by the syndicate will no doubt largely depend the shaping of the plans of these manufacturers for their future dealer advertising work."

Personality Behind the Counter

ARTHUR J. GILES, secretary of the Federation of Grocers of the United Kingdom, says:

"In a single store the personality of the man counts for more than most anything else. Go into a store, look it over and then look at the proprietor. If he has the right personality he will get and hold trade year after year.

"I am convinced that wherever you find an efficient grocer, a man who knows his business and who is enterprising, no chain store can live next door to him. The grocer who knows his business and who so serves his customers that they won't go elsewhere will never be driven out by chain stores."

The same deduction applies with equal force to the retail cigar store, where, if anywhere, the personality of the man behind the counter can either make or break a business.

RETAIL KINKLES

Catchy Schemes Used Successfully By Thinking Men To Improve, Enlarge and Popularize Their Business . . .

Cigars displayed in open boxes on top of the show cases offer a constant source of temptation to the light-fingered gentry, who cannot resist an opportunity to help themselves to anything they happen to see lying around loose. It is not only the chronic crook, however, who is tempted, but many customers whom the world regards above suspicion have been known to yield to kleptomania when they see cigars or stogies unprotected.

How to Stop Snatchers Robbing Your Counter.

Ask any retailer who makes it a practice to keep opened boxes on the counter, how many cigars are stolen in the course of a year, and the answer would astound you. Thousands of dollars are lost each year through this loophole.

How are you going to stop it?

I know of a big dealer in Baltimore who, finding that his profits were being eaten up by counter-snatchers, awoke one day to a bright idea, which has solved the problem as far as his store is concerned. He has installed a small mirror over each of his cash registers, so that when the clerk turns his back to ring up the sale he can keep his eye on the entire counter and hold the suspicious customer constantly under surveillance. Of course, the clerks learn to know their trade, whom to watch and whom to ignore, but once they spot a suspicious hand, they can watch him without being noticed. This scheme, the proprietor says, has almost completely eliminated thefts.

Try it!

More than 500 attractive Japanese matting rugs, 3 feet by 5 feet, were distributed July 2 and 3 at four retail stores of Joseph Way, in Philadelphia, as premiums with each purchase of $2.50 in cigars, pipes or smokers' articles.

Real Rugs Given Away With Each $2.50 of Cigars.

Preceding the premium days, advertisements, announcing the gifts, appeared in local newspapers, and as a result the sales in the Way stores leaped up. This is the first time that rugs were actually given away by a cigar dealer in Philadelphia, and the novelty as well as utility of the premium attracted unusual attention.

During the week previous the Way stores gave away college and school pennants with each purchase of 50 cents. Several thousand pennants were disposed of.

Burt Johnson, manager of the cigar department at the G. & R. McMillan store, Detroit, is working out a novel scheme that is producing considerable new business. He recently purchased 100 office humidors, with the wording "Burt Johnson Office System" printed on the front.

Installs Humidors in Offices to Get Box Trade

One of them is being placed with each prominent business man in the downtown office buildings with the understanding, of course, that they patronize Burt for their cigars. The humidor is simply loaned to them while they are customers. Each humidor has a capacity for 100 cigars.

Al Neff, assistant to Mr. Johnson, has been canvassing the leading offices and has placed the entire hundred, with the result that the department is now having a much larger trade. The initial cost of the humidors is quite heavy, but they will soon pay for themselves, if 100 new customers can be added to the list.

A Chicago retailer, who conducts several stands, whose business began to show signs of falling off when several of the United price-cutting stores opened nearby, evolved a scheme of holding his old customers and attracting new ones, without resorting to price slashing.

How This Dealer Beats the Coupon Game

The coupon habit had been so strongly developed by his competitors that this clever dealer resolved to take advantage of the trend and go along. But he went along in his own way and this is how he worked it.

With each cash purchase he gives a coupon, showing on the face of it the amount of the transaction. Each coupon bears the date of sale stamped indelibly and plainly to prevent forgery. At the end of each month he places in his window a sign announcing that all coupons bearing a certain date will be redeemed in cash for their full face value. The date selected is picked usually for a day when the sales were not so heavy, thereby keeping down the cash needed for redemption.

Every man, and particularly the average smoker, has the gambling instinct developed to some degree, and this scheme appeals mighty strong to this side of his nature. He is glad to take a chance of getting his day's smokes for nothing.

The redemption of the coupons does not require as much cash as you might think. Many coupons, bearing the lucky date, are lost, and not a few are never turned in for redemption. The dealer states that the coupons redeemed average about 5 per cent. of the number issued. He says he has found the scheme a successful business builder.

A veteran retailer of the Middle West states that while it is a mooted question whether cigars sell better by placing them on display, pipes must be shown and arranged alluringly to be properly sold. "It is a queer fact, but nevertheless true," he goes on, "that no matter how many pipes a smoker may own he will add another to his collection if his eye happens to light on one that strikes his fancy. He buys his pipes the way he buys his neckties, not so much because he needs them as because their style attracts him. And to be attracted by them he must be led to look at them either in the window or in the showcase where they can be shown publicly to arrest and fix his sub-conscious critical attention. I have made many experiments in my pipe department and I have always found the most profitable ones to be elaborate displays of high-grade lines and exclusive designs."

Must Display Pipes to Sell Them Says This Dealer

A sanitary drinking cup with each 10-cent package of "Union Leader" is being given away by many retailers handling this brand of smoking tobacco.

Trade Stimulators That Work Well

A pipe with a capacity for 28 ounces of tobacco at one filling has been exhibited as a window attraction by the Hartman Cigar Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Don't, on any account, begrudge the number of cubic feet of gas you distribute over your windows. A well-lighted window is the candle around which human moths will be attracted.

Safety razor free with one dollar purchases was a recent stunt at the Short stores in St. Paul. At a later sale $2 and $3 calabash pipes were sold at $1.

AN old-time tobacconist whose store is located directly opposite a gilded moving picture theatre in Philadelphia complained to me last week that the "movies" were hurting his business. This seemed strange to me, for it was my impression that wherever crowds congregate, the transient trade in cigars, cigarettes and tobacco was benefited.

"You're wrong," said he, "at least so far as I have observed from my own experience. Ever since that 'movie' across the street opened last spring, I've noticed a falling off in trade among my younger customers. These fellows, many of whom are just above the legal age, prefer to spend their dimes and nickels taking their sisters and sweethearts to the pictures, and as many of them have little spending money, it goes to the 'movies' instead of to me."

This is a new line of competition. When it is considered that patrons of the "movies" in this country spent 6,380,000,000 nickels, or $319,000,000, last year, and that these shows had a grand total of 3,600,000,000 paid admissions, the immensity of this new amusement branch can be realized. It is also stated that over $80,000,000 is invested in the moving picture industry, that more than 200,000 persons are employed and that 10,000,000 feet of picture films are produced weekly.

Some competition, eh?

My friend B. F. Alexander, who is now handling the Fernandez y Garcia and Diaz y Garcia lines in the United States and Canada, celebrated the twenty-third anniversary of his wedding on June 24 last, and those friends who were not present at the formal function were not forgotten, for Mr. Alexander sent down to his factories and had both of them turn out a special anniversary cigar for him.

The Fernandez y Garcia factory sent up to New York special boxes of ten extra large size beauties, each box labeled "Alexander" shape and each lid bearing the anniversary dates, 1890-1913; and the same compliment was extended by the Diaz y Garcia factory. It's almost needless to say that the cigars were superb, and the friends who received them lucky and appreciative.

I was among the chosen, and I sure appreciated them.

At the last meeting of the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association, held in New York, my old friend, Ike Ochs, president of the Independent Cigar and Tobacco Salesmen's Association, gave a striking illustration of the effect of the coupon system now prevalent in the United Cigar Stores. He said:

"A few days ago a Swedish servant girl came into my store to get some cigars—not for herself, of course, but for the man of the house in whose apartment she was employed. They were having a card party. This girl couldn't speak English, but she had a piece of paper on which was written the name of the brand of cigars handled by the trust, three for twenty cents—one dollar's worth. I tried to explain that I did not have the cigar desired and offered a better brand, three for a quarter, at the reduced price of three for twenty cents. The girl did not understand, so I wrote a note to the man and took the dollar.

"My profit on that sale was exactly twenty-five cents, which was enough; to the United Cigar Stores Company the other sale would have netted a profit of sixty cents. And yet, in less than five minutes the servant returned to the store with the cigars, which she dumped on the counter and said the one word—'tickets.' It was the only English word she knew. There was nothing for me to do but to give her back the dollar."

"When a man drops a piece of meat on the floor," declares the Lathrop "Optimist," disgustedly, "no matter how clean the floor may be, he will either give it a kick or pick it up and lay it aside. He will never eat it. But let him drop his plug of tobacco on the street, no matter how dirty the street may be, and he will pick it up, give it a careless swipe on his coat sleeve, and then take a big chew from it with a keener relish than ever. This is the kind of vitrified brick man is." "Well, what of it?" asks the Nevada "Post." "Don't he spit it all out again? The cat can eat the meat. She don't want the tobacco. Let the poor man chew it."

I was riding in a trolley car the other day when I looked up and saw this sign, staring me in the face: "Smoking permitted on the rear longitudinal seats while the windows are open." Do you catch the high-falutin verbiage? I wondered whether the average smoker really understood it, and I immediately asked one of my neighbors what it meant, who replied "search me." You see the trolley cars in which it appears are of the convertible type, having aisle seats and two seats running lengthwise at either end.

No—it was not in Boston; it was in dear old Baltimore!

The announcement that an Italian tobacco monopoly will in September begin the manufacture and sale of cigarettes "without nicotine" at three cents apiece, will be received in this country by the tobacco trade with a smile. We have heard of the horseless carriage, smokeless powder and wireless telephones, all of which have become common, but we have yet to see the fellow who can take the "Nic" out of "Nicotine" and still have something worth smoking.

An interesting tale is told in connection with Frederick C. Vollmer, whose death occurred at Chambersburg, Pa., recently. Engaged in the cigar and tobacco business when a young man, he became imbued with the idea that not only the use of tobacco was wrong, but its sale also. He therefore deposited his entire stock of cigars and tobacco into an alley alongside his store, which at that time was located on East Market Street, and thereafter would have nothing to do with the business. If it is true the good die young, Vollmer beat the game. He was over sixty when death claimed him.

Manufacturers' Control of Retail Prices

The recent opinion handed down by the Supreme Court of the United States in regard to the right of the manufacturer of a patented or trade-marked article to control its price, once it has left his hands, undoubtedly will be read with much interest by the cigar manufacturers who have for years been making a conscientious effort—and not without success—to maintain the retail selling prices of their cigars and to curb the disastrous work of price-cutters.

The latest opinion rendered by the Supreme Court in the case of the manufacturers of "Sanatogen" against a retail drug store in Washington, D. C., was to the effect that when a manufacturer sells his product outright to the retailer, he thereby loses all privileges accruing to him under the Patents and Trade Mark Rights and therefore cannot control the retail price at which the article is sold to third parties.

The decision of the Supreme Court of the United States on this case is of special interest because of its direct connection between the action that is now pending by the Department of Justice against the Kellogg Toasted Corn Flake Co. The latter has been selling its products on a restricted price basis and when sued by the Department of Justice under the Sherman Law, complaining that the refusal of the Kellogg Toasted Corn Flake Co. to sell to "price cutters" was in restraint of trade, the Kellogg people answered that it had a right to control the re-sale of its product under the patent it held for the cartons in which the corn flakes were put out.

The decision on the Kellogg case will be awaited with deep interest by all manufacturers of tobacco products, since it more directly than in any other case before the Supreme Court, outlines the position of the manufacturer who refuses to sell price cutters.

It seems strange to us that the cigar or cigarette manufacturer who spends thousands upon thousands of dollars each year to exploit his products, can have no legal protection from the price cutters. Many manufacturers of cigars have succeeded in choking off disastrous cut-price campaigns by refusing to sell to the price cutters. In most instances this policy has proved efficacious, although, in many cases, the price cutters continue to get the goods they desire by indirect routes and have gone merrily on.

A scheme recently tried out by the Waterman Fountain Pen Co. to control the retail price, might be put into effect in the cigar trade. The Waterman Company secures from the dealer a contract for a certain consignment of pens, for which the dealer pays the regular price, but the Waterman Company agrees to buy back the pens at any time they choose at the original price. Hence when they find a retailer cutting the price, they can step in and take the goods away from him. Cigars, however, are quite different from fountain pens, since the longer they are kept in stock and not properly cared for, the less valuable they become, and manufacturers who would seek to buy them back under this scheme would likely find that their goods had deteriorated.

If the Waterman scheme were carried out in the cigar trade, manufacturers desiring to control the retail prices would be compelled largely to eliminate the jobber and deal direct with the retailer, using the jobber only as a distributing agent to appoint sub-agents signed up according to the contract with the cigar manufacturer.

Time for the Smokers to Strike Back

It seems to be the fashion nowadays, among reformers everywhere, to impose harassing restrictions upon the smoker and tax him with inconveniences suffered in patience by no other class of people under this nation's free flag. If these reforms are permitted to extend, they will crowd the smoker off the earth and it is high time that not only the consumer, but the retail and wholesale tobacco trade, unite to curb them.

We agree heartily with the following comments of the "New York World," which, speaking editorially, says:

"There are a great many smokers, most of them men, some of them women. They pay a large part of the $70,000,000 of internal revenue that is derived from tobacco and a considerable portion of the $300,000,000 of customs. In many cases they are taxed otherwise. Speaking generally, we should say that they are desirable citizens.

"Everybody wants their money, but because a few take offense at their smoke and because smokers as a rule are well-mannered philosophers, regardful of the feelings of others, they find their personal rights or tastes more and more restricted.

"Persons in a position to forbid smoking evidently need to be warned against yielding too readily to the demands of people whose obsession is limited to a small number. Smokers may never get together and carry their flaming cigars, pipes and cigarettes into Africa, but if they should they would make some of the present-day rules and regulations look foolish in the extreme."

VALENTINE FACTORY MERGED WITH T. J. DUNN & CO.

Pioneer Pennsylvania Cigar Firm Joins With Big New York Company—Individuality, Name and Organization of Old Firm to Be Retained.

OFFICIAL announcement comes from T. J. Dunn & Co., of New York, that dating from July 1st the business of A. S. Valentine & Son, Philadelphia, had been amalgamated with theirs.

In discussing the matter, Theodore Werner, of T. J. Dunn & Co., stated to a "World" man that Roy Valentine, of A. S. Valentine & Son, had been in New York on July 8th, and that every detail of the transfer had then been completed.

The individual business of A. S. Valentine & Son will not be affected for the present by the consolidation. Roy Valentine will continue as he has since the death of his father, to absolutely manage the business, and the travelling force, brands and manufacturing department of the company will remain intact. Mr. Valentine becomes a stockholder of the Dunn Co. and the managing officer in the Valentine branch.

The merging of these two interests brings together two very prominent factors in the cigar trade. The Valentine business was founded by A. S. Valentine 65 years ago and has been one of the most successful in Pennsylvania. Upon the death of the founder of the business Mr. George Valentine assumed charge and remained in active charge until his death, which occurred less than a year ago.

For 15 years Roy Valentine has been actively connected with the business and is well qualified to continue its management. The leading brands which have made this factory famous are the "Betsy Ross," "Broadwall," five cent cigars, and their "Paul Jones," "Tirador," "Flor de Valentine," ten cent cigars, as well as a number of other popular selling brands. They maintain their principal factory in Philadelphia and a big branch at Womelsdorf, Pa., and their annual production is estimated at 25,000,000 cigars.

The firm of T. J. Dunn & Co. is one of the best known in the trade, and its progress has been one of continuous expansion. Ten years ago Theodore Werner & Co. and T. J. Dunn & Co. were merged under the Dunn name and later McCoy & Co., of New York, and Victor Thorsch & Co. were absorbed, and last year the old established business of Heyman Bros. & Lowenstein was also taken over.

The acquisition of the control of the Valentine factory cannot fail to strengthen the Dunn organization as well as bring to the Valentine business greater opportunities for its expansion. The leading brand which has made the Dunn factory famous is their "New Bachelor" cigar, which is one of the best selling nickel cigars on the market.

Dalton's to Feature New Brand

M. J. Dalton & Co. are about to put on the market an exceptionally fine ten cent Havana cigar which bears the euphonious title, "Golden Robe." It is manufactured by Kras & Co., of Baltimore, and is gotten out with a golden label that is both distinctive and attractive. Manager Taylor believes that this new brand will make a big hit in the Philadelphia market, in which territory they will have the sole distribution of it.

Free Deal on New Cut "Central Union"

A free deal on "Central Union" smoking tobacco, manufactured by the United States Tobacco Company, Richmond, Va., has stimulated the sale of these goods in several territories. Beginning July 1, a 5-cent package of the "New Cut" grade of "Central Union" was given free with each dozen cut plug "Central Union," in foil, when bought by the carton. Addison Fowler, sales manager of the Philadelphia district, states that the trade are taking to the proposition in active style. The free deal is subject to withdrawal without notice.

New Philadelphia Factory

A new cigar factory has been opened at Fourth and Vine Streets, Philadelphia, by L. P. Kimmig and C. S. Robinson, under the name Kimmig & Robinson. Mr. Kimmig is a son of L. P. Kimmig, the well-known leaf tobacco dealer, and Mr. Robinson has not been previously connected with the cigar trade. They have engaged Samuel Baltalje to have charge of the factory.

M. C. Vanaman, who for many years had a fine retail cigar stand on Juniper Street, above Market, has been compelled to move because the building was being razed. He has moved to 54 North Thirteenth Street, which is a good location close as possible to his stand. "La Famosa" cigars, made by E. Kleiner & Co., New York, are being featured with much success at the new store.

In the Quaker City

Fred Freuh, an old-time tobacconist, has just opened a high-class retail stand at 103 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, where he is featuring a number of prominent local brands, including "Bold" and "Cinco."

L. M. Walters, the hustling representative of the "Bold" factory, has just completed a successful Western trip and has started over Southern territory, making his principal stop at Norfolk, Va.

W. R. Taylor, of the M. J. Dalton Co., states that the summer trade on their leading brands has been exceptionally brisk, especially on "Lozano" and "Cortez" cigars and their 5-cent "Wizard" and "Don Marino."

Hillier & Thomas are introducing a new 5-cent cigar, called the "H. & T." perfecto. A number of big orders in Middle Western territory have already been obtained on this brand and, although the production is limited on account of the factory facilities, it will be pushed aggressively in Western and Middle Western territory. It is an exceptionally fine nickel cigar.

J. G. Atherholt has been featuring "Charles the Great" cigars in all sizes at his stand, 111 South Broad Street, with much success. The Atherholt stand is located in the district where smokers are particularly fond of a cigar that has the class of this brand, and as a result he has built up a big box trade. A recently installed plate glass sign proclaims the merits of this famous Rodriguez brand to the passers-by.

The Augustinez Cigar Co. has moved its factory and retail store to 22 North Eleventh Street, from their old location at 16 North Third Street, Philadelphia.

Harry Bremmer, of L. Bremmer Sons, leaf tobacco dealers, Philadelphia, is spending his vacation in the mountains. He has not been in good health for some time and hopes to recuperate.

Among the traveling salesmen seen in Philadelphia during the past week were: Hi Hammer, of Corral Wodiska y Ca, Tampa, who was headed home to Cleveland, after a successful trip Down East; Sidney Cahn, representing the Regensburg lines; Mr. Lederer, of Oppenheimer & Co., and Mr. Manheimer, of Kaufman Bros. & Bondy, both of the latter being pipe salesmen.

Clifford R. Daily, president and general manager of the Pure Gold Tobacco Co., Greeneville, Tenn., has been in Philadelphia the past week on business. He states that the sale of "Pure Gold" is increasing quite satisfactorily and adds that he is now planning an aggressive campaign to push his remarkable seller in several new territories. On the Pacific Coast "Pure Gold" has proved the sensation of the granulated tobacco market.

FIRST PENNA. GAINED 7,000,000 CIGARS IN JUNE

Biggest Production for the Past Month in Many Years—Cigarettes, Too, Show Heavy Gain

The biggest production of cigars for the month of June in many years is shown by the latest revenue returns from the First District of Pennsylvania. An increase of more than 7,000,000 over last June is sufficient evidence that the factories have been exceptionally busy. In June, 1912, there was a decrease of more than 5000 cigars compared with the same month in 1911, when the production was 63,566,000. The June figures follow:

	June, 1913.	June, 1912.	Increase.
Cigars	69,016,000	61,929,000	7,087,000
Little Cigars	12,050,000	19,424,000	*7,374,000
Cigarettes	10,056,000	9,218,000	838,000
Tobacco, lbs.	102,476	98,631	3,845

New Distributors for "Havana Ribbons"

FRANK D. PATTON, Illinois representative for Bayuk Bros. Co., has recently placed "Havana Ribbons" with Franklin MacVeagh & Co. for Chicago, and looks for a large distribution in the Windy City. Mr. Patton has inaugurated an aggressive selling and advertising campaign, securing the service of expert men.

Lyle T. Shacklett has recently interested the Thompson-Jones Co., of Memphis, Tenn., in "Havana Ribbons," giving them entire control of the brand in that territory. Mr. Shacklett is very enthusiastic over his new connection, believing that the distributors will build up an immense sale in Memphis and vicinity.

American Tobacco Co. to Distribute "Monopol" Brands

Beginning July 1, the products of the Monopol Tobacco Works are now distributed to the trade through the American Tobacco Co. exclusively, and through this company to the jobbing customers. The Monopol Tobacco Co. is a subsidiary for the American Tobacco Co. and for 20 years has maintained its separate and distinct sales organization. Existing price lists and discounts of the Monopol's brands of cigarettes will be continued for the present.

Percy Lorie, Western salesman, and George van Miller, Middle Western salesman, are visiting the factory of A. S. Valentine & Son, Philadelphia, this week.

Bayuk Brothers Company are having their looked for increase on "Havana Ribbons" for July, and from present indications this month promises to be one of the largest in point of sales ever experienced. Reports from the various territories are exceptionally bright for the balance of the year, as all of their men report "Havana Ribbons" showing a steady increase in popularity and repeating to the entire satisfaction of the jobbers. The firm has been badly handicapped all year in securing sufficient production, but have recently increased their facilities for a larger output.

REORGANIZATION OF GEO. L. STORM & CO.

Reorganization of George L. Storm & Co.—Henry Esberg Becomes President—Aggressive Campaign on the "Owl" Planned

REORGANIZATION of the firm of George L. Storm & Co. has been brought about by the election of Henry Esberg as president, H. B. Lyons as vice-president and J. J. French as secretary and treasurer. Mr. Esberg, as is well known, is vice-president of the United Cigar Manufacturers Co., for which corporation the Storm Co. are distributors.

An active and vigorous campaign on hand-made "Owl" cigars will be pushed in all parts of the country, especially on the Pacific Coast, where M. A. Gunst & Co. are the distributors.

Mr. Esberg has been in New York for some time making numerous changes in various departments of the Storm business.

Sargeant Stock Leads to Suit

ON July 9 James B. Regan, proprietor of the Knickerbocker Hotel, New York, brought suit against Allston Sargeant, 1135 Broadway, to recover $4,000, which Mr. Regan alleges he invested in the cumulative stock of the Sargeant Cigar Co. in February, 1910, at Mr. Sargeant's solicitation.

Regan claims that Sargeant told him the stock would advance fifty points per share within four months, and that if it did not, he would pay him back the money with interest at Regan's demand. The stock did not advance and Regan wants his money.

Sure thing stock tips often miss fire.

Mr. Lucey Goes Abroad

F. S. Lucey, of Philip Morris & Co., Ltd., sailed from New York on the "Campania" July 9th for his annual visit to the London headquarters.

Mr. Lucey plans to return home on the "Mauretania," which is scheduled to arrive in New York on August 29th. During his absence C. H. Subcliffe, assistant treasurer of the New York company, is in charge of the West Brooklyn headquarters, and he advises us that the sale of Philip Morris cigarettes is breaking all records this year, and that it seems almost impossible for them to accumulate any stock for instant deliveries.

Mr. Lucey arranged his trip so that he would get back in time to attend the next outing of the Philip Morris Birthday Club, which is scheduled for Saturday, August 30th.

Nicolas de Cardenas, one of the owners of the "Castaneda" factory, of Havana, and who was in New York for some weeks undergoing special medical treatment, had so far progressed towards recovery that he sailed for his home in Havana on the 5th inst.

B. F. Alexander Headed for Canada

THE "Moro Castle" on her last trip brought up from Havana nearly 20,000 of the various grades of clear Havanas, made by Fernandez y Garcia, consigned to their United States and Canadian representative, B. F. Alexander, whose New York headquarters are located at 206-208 Broadway. These are strictly sample goods, and indicate somewhat the extensive manner in which Mr. Alexander is planning to distribute the output of this fine old Cuban factory.

The New York quarters are on the fourth floor of the building at the southeast corner of Broadway and Fulton Street, handy to the tobacco district, and a fine humidor has been installed for the proper display and keep of samples. The Fernandez y Garcia output includes the "La Flor de A. Fernandez Garcia," "Las Perlas" and "Gioconda" brands, which have always been largely handled by Messrs. Park & Tilford, G. S. Nicholas & Co. and S. S. Pearce, Boston. These houses will, of course, distribute the lines as heretofore.

Mr. Alexander also represents the Sucesores de Juan Lopez factory, of Havana, a favorite brand of which, "Flor de Juan Lopez," is exclusively distributed in the United States by Godfrey S. Mahn, of Philadelphia and New York.

On July 16, Mr. Alexander leaves New York with his family for the Delaware Water Gap, and after locating them there for the summer, he will make an extended trip, reaching up into Canada, his first stop, however, being Philadelphia.

New Cigar Factory for New York

A new cigar manufacturing enterprise is about to be launched in New York City by A. Baer, formerly manager of the H. Anton Bock & Co. cigar factory, and prior to that formerly associated with Samuel I. Davis & Co., who has formed a partnership with Leon and Lucian Schwab. As yet, definite plans as to the location of the factory have not been announced. The Schwabs have not been directly connected with the cigar business other than through the conduct of several important restaurants and cafes. The firm has been incorporated with $100,000 capital under the title Schwab Bros. & Baer.

Riker-Hegeman Add Another

The Riker-Hegeman Co. has just leased another store in New York for seven years from October 1, at 3 East Forty-second Street. With a cigar stand installed therein the corners of Forty-second Street and Fifth Avenue will be well taken care of as far as smokers are concerned. Schulte's are now in the northeast corner, just adjoining the new Riker site; the United have the southeast corner, and the Gunst store at 1 West Forty-second Street, on the northwest corner. Possibly someone may get a concession in the new public library, which unfortunately occupies the southwest corner.

New York City Items

The United Cigar Manufacturers' Co., of New York, has declared its usual quarterly dividend of 10 per cent.

Ernest Eckes, who for the past twelve years has been connected with the cigar factory of H. Anton Bock & Co., New York, has succeeded A. Baer as manager, who resigned recently to go into business for himself.

Harry Roberts, of J. W. Roberts & Son, Tampa, expects to arrive in New York next week.

Al Corn, representing S. H. Furgatch y Ca, reached New York this week, after a long trip to the Pacific Coast. Mr. Furgatch states that the summer business is showing up much better than they expected.

S. Rothschild, head of Montevierno & Co., 1408-1410 Avenue A, New York, who specialize on the "El Rayo" brand of Havana cigars, returned home on July 4 from the first long trip he has made in many months. Mr. Rothschild's health broke down over a year ago, but he is now rapidly regaining his old vigor and strength, and reported an excellent line of orders all the way out to Lincoln, Neb.

Charles Landau, United States and Canadian representative of the H. Upmann Factory, Havana, has just completed a quick trip to Montreal, Canada, to look after the development of his business in that territory.

The engagement of Henry Frieder, of the cigar manufacturing firm of S. Frieder & Sons, New York and Cincinnati, to Miss Pauline Frieder, of New York City, has been formally announced. At a reception recently held in the Hotel Bonray, New York, Mr. Frieder and his prospective bride were recipients of many congratulations.

Fernando Gato, the oldest son of E. H. Gato, who has been in Havana during the past winter, has not been enjoying the best of health, and expects to come North shortly and take a recuperation trip to the mountains. E. H. Gato and his son, Thomas, have been in New York for several weeks now. A. C. Lemlein, the firm's New York manager, says their volume of business has been well maintained and would warrant no complaint whatever.

More than 100 United Cigar Store employes went to the annual outing at the Norwich Club, Rocky Point, near Providence, July 6. E. R. Steinecker, vice-president of the company, and R. B. Pearson, general manager, were the hosts. J. Murray, of Pittsfield, and F. A. Legg, of Boston, starred in the athletic events—Murray winning the 100-yard dash and the potato race, while Legg got the sack race and three-legged race. Providence won the tug of war. The single men beat the married men at baseball, and then everybody forgot the contests in a regular old-style clam bake.

Whelan Yacht vs. German Battleship

Cable dispatches from Kiel, Germany, under date of the 10th instant, state that the fine steel yacht "Cassandra," belonging to George J. Whelan, of the United Cigar Stores Co., had been in collision with the German battleship "Stettin" on that date, and that both vessels had been materially damaged, but fortunately no one had been injured on either craft. Mr. Whelan has been cruising in the North Sea.

HILL vs. WHELAN ON THE PROPOSED TARIFF

American Tobacco Co. and United Cigar Stores Heads Disagree as to Effect on Business

George J. Whelan, president of the United Cigar Stores Co., and Percival S. Hill, president of the American Tobacco Co., were discussing business and tariff conditions in America at the Savoy Hotel tonight.

"If the Underwood bill is passed by September 1," said Mr. Whelan, "my opinion is that things will go ahead." Mr. Hill disagreed. He said: "My opinion is that the moment the tariff bill is passed mills throughout America will be idle and thousands of workmen on the streets."

Mr. Whelan replied: "I don't agree with you. My idea is that anything is better than the uncertainty which has clouded business interests for the last few months. If we only get something definite we know the conditions we have to meet. I'm a protectionist and always will be, but we must have something definite one way or the other so that people can place orders."

Mr. Hill repeated the affirmation that thousands of idle American workmen and idle mills would follow the passing of the tariff bill, adding: "It may take five months after the bill becomes a law to realize this, but it is sure."

"I agree on that point," Mr. Whelan replied, "but my argument is it is better to know the worst and get it over than be left in doubt."

Salvador Rodriguez in New York

Salvador Rodriguez, head of the "Charles the Great" factory of Tampa, arrived in New York on Thursday last, and expects to remain North till the latter part of August.

Mr. Rodriguez spent two weeks in Havana during May, and stated that the crop outlook on the island was excellent, the only drawback being a tendency toward demanding high prices, which conditions in general would not warrant. He seemed to feel that the average price this season will be about the same as last year.

Fernando Rodriguez, who is in charge of the selling end of the "Charles the Great" factory, left New York on the 12th inst. and will remain in Tampa for some weeks.

Ruling as to Export Tobacco Products

Commissioner of Internal Revenue Osborn has ruled that in the exportation by parcel post of tobacco, snuff, cigarettes, the inspection of such articles and the affixing of export stamps will not be required in cases where the tax involved does not exceed $10.

A Krinsky Salesman Who Has Made Good

David Lavin, the hustling Chicago representative of the I. B. Krinsky cigarette factory of Brooklyn, has been making remarkable progress in introducing "Fifth Avenue" and other Krinsky cigarettes in the Western markets. He's a 12-hour-a-day worker who never tires preaching the cigarette gospel.

Denver Wholesale House's Fine Catalogue

THE Struby-Estabrook Co., Denver, Col., have just issued their Twenty-eighth Annual Catalogue, which is done up in a handsome colored cover and features in the cigar department the following well-known brands of cigars: Seidenberg's "El Roi Tan"; "Rocky Ford" cigars, made by the Union-American Cigar Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., and such other well-known brands as "La Sinceridad," "La Verdad," "Hoffman House," "Little Minister," "Flor de Moss," and others. In the tobacco department, "Epicure," "Central Union" and "Shag," all made by the United States Tobacco Co., are strongly featured. Cigarettes and pipes, too, are given splendid publicity. Preceding the main body of the catalogue, are photographs of leading salesmen of the firm, including W. H. Lemmon, city cigar salesman for Denver, and C. E. Hoban, who represents the cigar department in the country districts.

The catalogue is a worthy specimen of high art printing and is arranged most conveniently for the use of the retailers dealing with this house.

Illinois Jobber Places Big Tobacco Order

WHAT is said to have been the largest shipment of tobacco ever purchased by a Springfield firm, was that ordered recently from Schmidt Bros. Tobacco Co., of Milwaukee, Wis., by The Illinois Tobacco Co., 208-10 North Fourth Street, Springfield, Ill., the deal being carried through by J. A. McCabe, of the former company. The order was for a half carload of "Union Miner" scrap chewing and smoking tobacco.

Ice Bound in Alaska

A post card, received in New York a few days ago, from M. Matheson, Alaska representative for Kelly, Douglass & Co., Ltd., the Vancouver wholesalers, was dated at White Horse, Yukon, on May 27, and stated that the writer had arrived there the day previous, but that the ice was so firm in the river that there was no prospect of getting up to Dawson City for a week at least. Mr. Matheson in addition to his other goods has with him a full line of Diaz y Garcia's Havana cigars, in which his firm specializes in Vancouver.

Brewster Gets "Reynaldo" for Rochester

F. P. BREWSTER has just taken on the "Reynaldo" cigars, made by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, and will be distributor of this brand in Rochester, N. Y. Assisted by W. J. Clauser, factory representative, the Brewster forces have begun a campaign to put the "Reynaldo" on the map of Rochester, and reports received in Philadelphia show that they have started off with every promise of success.

Pushing the "Lord Macauley" in Baltimore

Frank Nichols, who has recently expanded his jobbing business at Baltimore, with his headquarters at Baltimore and Light Streets, is having much success in the introduction of the "Lord Macauley" cigar, made by E. Kleiner & Co., New York. This brand is being placed in many of the leading stands and the duplicate business convinces Mr. Nichols that the "Macauley" has struck the fancy of Baltimore smokers. The various brands of the Ruy Lopez factory are being featured at the Nichols retail stand.

"Havana Ribbons" In Buffalo

Link & Co., Buffalo, N. Y., distributors, have just taken on the "Havana Ribbon," made by Bayuk Bros., Philadelphia. The account was placed by Dave Achenbach, who believes that there is a fine opportunity for the "Ribbons" in Buffalo, backed by the strong selling organization of Link & Co.

What the "44" Men Are Doing

M. A. Funk, sales manager for the "44" Cigar Co., has about completed a successful campaign on "44" and "Adlon" for the Henry Horner Co., Chicago distributors of these brands of popular cigars.

W. H. Nicholson is now working with jobbers through the western part of West Virginia and reports an exceptionally large business.

Tillman Funk, who has been ill for several weeks, has now returned to business and is having a very successful campaign at Sumter.

James F. Cormany is working with the Milwaukee distributors, Peckarsky Bros., and reports a very active business on "44's." In fact, all the "44" factories are working full and the business for the past six months has far exceeded the corresponding six months for 1912.

Smith Bros.' Creditors Refuse 50 Per Cent.

Latest advices from New Orleans, La., in reference to the failure of Smith Bros. Co., large wholesalers of groceries, cigars and tobaccos, state that liabilities will be approximately $2,000,000. The firm's offer to settle on a basis of 50 per cent. has been refused by the majority of creditors, and as a result the business may be offered for sale in its entirety to the highest bidder. Among the causes leading to the failure was the loss of big sums in coffee speculation.

Jobbing Trade Notes

At Columbus, Ga., the firm of O'Halloran & Bishop Co. has been incorporated with $100,000 capital to engage in the manufacture and sale of cigars, cigarettes and tobaccos by A. J. O'Halloran, W. D. O'Halloran and J. W. Bishop.

Schwabacher Bros. & Co., Inc., announce that they retired from Spokane, Wash., with their branch house on July 1. Their line of cigars will be handled from the Seattle house by their outside salesman, Mr. Cohn.

Mason, Ehrman & Co. received a shipment of 37,500 "La Mega" cigars at their Portland, Ore., store from the Tampa factory of V. Guerra Diaz & Co. This brand is having a tremendous sale in the Northwestern territory.

Brewster, Gordon & Co., Rochester, N. Y., have just taken on the "Flor de Jeitles," five cent cigar, made by Jeitles & Blumenthal & Co., Ltd., Philadelphia, and are planning an active campaign on this brand.

An order for 10,000 "Charles the Great" cigars has been placed by S. C. Rich, Portland, Ore., with Charles H. Krubel, Western representative for Salvador Rodriguez factory.

Max Breuer, 305 Market Street, Wilmington, Del., local distributor for the "Bold" cigar, Bobrow Bros., Philadelphia, is pushing this brand with much success in Delaware territory. The duplicate orders, which he has been sending in to the Philadelphia factory, show that the brand has taken hold through Mr. Breuer's efforts.

H. Kenyon, Wilmington, Del., distributor of the "44" and "Havana Ribbon," and "Coiner" cigars, all well-known Philadelphia-made brands, reports growing business on all of them.

To deal in liquors, tobaccos, etc., the Puritan Wine Co. was recently incorporated at Cincinnati, O., with a capital of $2500, William R. Watson, C. N. Fiscus, E. M. Golding, L. H. Stade and C. F. Taplin being named as the incorporators.

The Tullerton-Warfield Co., of Sioux City, Ia., who have just recently taken on the distribution of the "Reynaldo" cigar of Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, Philadelphia, are pushing this brand with much success in Western Iowa and South Dakota. W. H. Orr, factory representative, with headquarters in Chicago, has been in Sioux City, directing the campaign.

F. D. Crawford, Middle Western representative of the "44" Cigar Co., is conducting an active introductory campaign on "44" cigars for the Wayne Tobacco Co., Fort Wayne, Ind.

W. W. Cowan is the latest addition to the sales forces of the "44" Cigar Co., of Philadelphia. He will represent the factory on the Pacific Coast.

COUNTER CHARGES MADE IN BURLEY FIGHT

Lexington Man Says Outside Interests Inspire Effort to Reorganize Company—Le Bus Rallies His Forces

Lexington, Ky., July 10.

COUNTER-CHARGES, growing out of the effort of outside interests to reorganize the Burley Tobacco Co., were made today by J. D. Clark, who for many years has been prominently connected with the Burley Society, and who is now manager of the Lexington warehouse of the Burley Tobacco Co.

His statement in part follows:

"A meeting of 1909 poolers, who are opposed to the present management of the Burley Tobacco Company, was held in Lexington on June 26, to form an organization to elect a new management. The purpose of the meeting, as reported, was to get proxies of stockholders of the Burley Tobacco Co. The committee to control those proxies is composed of the following gentlemen: J. L. Vest, a lawyer, who controls $12 worth of stock from his 1909 pooled tobacco; J. W. Glover, chairman of the committee, a buyer for the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company; Mark Hendricks, of Fleming County, who helped make the purchase for the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Company in 1910 that destroyed the pool of that year; Lee McGraw, of Scott County, who absolutely refused to sell any of his tobacco last year in houses controlled by the Burley Tobacco Co., and Bowen Hendy, of Franklin County. The meeting was called, advertised and gotten together by J. W. Glover, the buyer for the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co."

In response to the call of President Clarence LeBus, of the Burley Tobacco Society and the Burley Tobacco Co., for a meeting of the members of the district boards for the pool of 1909 and the ten-year pool which was opened in 1911, 113 men, 30 of whom were from Lexington and Fayette County, attended a meeting in the courthouse here July 1. The sentiment was for resistance to the attacks that have been made upon the officials of the Burley organizations and the effort to dissolve the Burley Tobacco Co.

At the conclusion of the several speeches that were made the following was adopted:

"It is the sense of this meeting that a committee of five, J. C. Hughes, Scott Brown, William Robb, J. R. Ramey and O. C. Chapman, be appointed and directed to prepare ways and means to protect the Burley Tobacco Company from the attacks that threaten its dissolution and to keep it in the hands of and under the control of the tobacco growers rather than the enemies of the growers.

"This committee shall report back to the District Board of the Burley Tobacco Society at a meeting to be held when the committee is ready to report."

Inspired by the recent decision of the Court of Appeals that the poolers in the Burley Society, and not the directors of the society, should vote the stock of the Burley Tobacco Co., a campaign, with Congressman J. Campbell Cantrill as one of the leaders, was started against the present management and officers of the society at a meeting of 62 prominent representatives of the poolers in 12 counties of the Burley tobacco district.

As a result of their deliberations a committee of five, with headquarters in Lexington, was appointed to receive proxies of stockholders of the Burley Tobacco Co., and promote a general campaign for the procuring of these proxies to oust the present board of directors of the Burley Tobacco Co. at an election set for October 7, such date of election having been designated by the Kenton Circuit Court, whose decision was recently upheld by the Court of Appeals.

Deaths in the Trade

Death of Isaac Hamburger

AFTER a brief illness, Isaac Hamburger, the venerable tobacconist, died at his summer home, in Far Rockaway, on Tuesday morning, July 8, aged 85 years.

Mr. Hamburger came to America from Germany when he was twenty years old, and after a brief experience as a cigar manufacturer, engaged in the wholesale leaf tobacco business and importing Havana tobacco until his retirement from business five years ago, the firm now being Hamburger Bros. & Co., 228 Pearl Street, New York, and including his two sons, Messrs. S. Hamburger and B. Hamburger.

The deceased was a fine citizen in the broadest sense. He served his adopted country during the Civil War as a member of the Sixth Regiment, New York Volunteers and was always interested in the Grand Army of the Republic.

He was one of the oldest members of King Solomon Lodge, F. A. and A. M., and had served as Grand Master of the Free Sons of Israel for a quarter of a century. He was an active spirit in the congregation of the B'nai B'rith Association.

Mr. Hamburger had been married for 55 years, and is survived by his widow and five children.

The funeral took place on the 11th instant from his Manhattan residence, 5 West 120th Street.

William A. Stickney Dead

WILLIAM A. STICKNEY, one of the pioneer tobacco merchants of St. Louis, Mo., and founder of the William A. Stickney Cigar Co., which was recently absorbed by Niles & Moser Cigar Co. and Rothenberg & Schloss, died at his home here July 4 at the age of sixty-nine years. At the funeral, which took place July 6, the honorary pallbearers were E. S. Pierce, Henry Elliott, O. H. Peckham, Warwick Hough, George L. Edwards, H. F. Knight, D. G. Cook, F. G. Seward, J. D. Filley, Saunders Norvell, Charles Whitelaw, J. H. Farish, Murray Carleton, Charles W. Scudder and W. B. Homer.

He first embarked in the tobacco business on Lower Broadway, New York. After accumulating a few hundred dollars he went West and settled in St. Louis in 1872, when he started the cigar company which still bears his name.

Until last year, when his sons took command, he was active in business. The Stickney Company had branch houses in Kansas City and Denver.

His health began failing about ten months ago. He is survived by his wife, three sons, Stuart G., Albert Taylor and William Arthur, and by his daughter, Miss Mildred Lemoine Stickney.

He was a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, the Business Men's League, Civic League and the St. Louis, Mercantile and Country Clubs.

Recent Deaths

James C. Dobler, a pioneer cigar merchant of Lancaster, Pa., died at the age of 77 years, in that city.

Jos. Neubrik, who for the last ten years had charge of the pipe department of the United Cigar Stores Co., died at his home in New York last week at the age of 35 years. Mr. Neubrik was formerly connected with William Demuth & Co., and was regarded as an expert on pipes.

When the will of John Hart, formerly of Hart & Murphy, cigar manufacturers, St. Paul, Minn., was admitted to probate recently, it was learned that his estate was valued at $175,000, two-thirds of the property being left to Mrs. Hart during her lifetime, and the remaining third going to Miss Catherine Hart.

Philip Morris Birthday Club

One of the real unique institutions of the Philip Morris & Co. business is the Birthday Club, the functions of which are chronicled from time to time.

Several years ago the leading associates of the company in New York inaugurated a practice of celebrating their various birthdays by giving a private dinner on their natal days. Finally, F. S. Lucey, the directing head, suggested the formation of the Philip Morris Birthday Club, and now instead of having individual dinners, the twenty-five members who compose the club contribute monthly dues of a small amount, and hold five unique functions during the year, two balls usually during the winter, and three outings during the warm weather.

The first outing of the club this summer embraced a trip to Atlantic City; on Sunday, June 29th, the second was held, which took the form of an auto trip to Mt. Beacon, up the Hudson, and a gorgeous dinner at the Mt. Beacon Hotel.

The next outing of the club is dated for August 30th, and will take place at Patchogue, L. I.

The officers of the club include, F. S. Lucey, president; W. R. Littell, secretary, and N. B. Haskins, treasurer, but the members make it a cardinal point to see that little or no money is kept in the treasury, and Mr. Haskins' duties are light.

The board of directors who are responsible for the various functions are: C. H. Sutcliffe, David Hefter, W. W. Wagstaff and E. M. Robins.

The club gave a special farewell dinner to their president, Mr. Lucey, on Monday, July 7th, at the New York Athletic Club, prior to his departure for Europe.

Retail Bulletins

H. J. Brink, of the firm of Lee & Brink, who conduct a cigar store at Eugene, Ore., will in future have full control of the business.

A state charter was a short time ago issued to the Lackawanna Cigar Co., of Scranton, Pa., with a capital stock of $10,000.

The cigar store known as Brad's Smokum, San Bernardino, Cal., and until recently conducted by R. F. Bradley, has passed into the hands of W. M. Billingsley, of Los Angeles, who will assume active management August 1.

Frank A. Kline, who conducts a cigar store at Catskill, N. Y., is now located in his new quarters on Main Street.

M. D. Bartlett, Glen Falls, N. Y., has just opened a first-class cigar stand in the vestibule of the new insurance building in that city.

Armless Man is Quite Handy in Running Cigar Shop Alone

Pete's Cigar Store

PROBABLY the only retail cigar dealer in the United States and perhaps in the world, who alone conducts a store successfully with only one arm and no hands, is I. L. Bosch, of Richwood, W. Va. In these days, when some retailers are prone to blame their downfall on the handicaps of business, competitive and financial, they could learn a lesson from this plucky and successful retailer, who has made good despite physical handicaps which would discourage the average man.

Bosch conducts a place known as "Pete's Cigar Store," which is the smallest smoke shop in that town, being only 8 feet 9 inches and the depth 28. But in that little emporium Bosch is king, and he demonstrates daily that without any clerk and without any hands he can give the quickest service in the town.

About five years ago, while working on a log road, Bosch lost his left arm and part of his right. Finding that he could no longer follow his old occupation, he opened up a cigar store and soon had all the town coming to him, for he kept a stock of cigars, which for variety and quality was unusual for a town the size of Richwood. His pleasing personality behind the counter, and the deft way with which he rigged up a contrivance to wait on the trade, won the sympathy and support of his customers.

He had made a device which he attached to his right arm, whereby he could make change, wait on his customers, ring up the cash register, sweep his floors, lock and unlock the door, write with pen, pencil or typewriter and, in fact, do all the necessary work without assistance, and as well as the average clerk could do it with two hands.

A glance over the stock carried in Pete's store, reveals that he is a good judge of brands, for he has some of the most popular 5 and 10-cent sellers in the country. Among them are such well-known brands as "Cinco," "San Felice," "Havana Ribbon," "Bold," "Discriminator," "Five of Harts," "Tom Keene," "El Dallo," "Bank Note," "Owl," "William Penn," "Robert Burns," "La Azora," "Don Antonio," and other equally as well-known brands.

Mr. Bosch is always on the lookout for new brands, which his trade demand, he does not hesitate to stock up on them when he finds that they sell. In addition to his cigars he carries a big line of popular smoking tobaccos and cigarettes, rounding out a stock which is complete in every respect.

Anti-Trust Meeting of German Tobacconists

At a big anti-trust meeting held in Mannheim recently, it was mentioned that five cigarette factories in Germany had joined the trust and that an eye ought to be kept on Messrs. A. Batschari, of Baden-Baden. Attention was called to the American advertising devices of the Jasmatzi Company, particularly to their coupon system. In order to get a gold watch for nothing a smoker had to smoke 100 cigarettes daily for four years. Another speaker pointed out that the fight against the trust was a necessity to preserve the middle class and the existence of small retailers. In Germany German firms still complain of the pushing ways of the Anglo-American Tobacco Trust. An anti-trust association has been formed by tobacco, cigar and cigarette dealers, with headquarters at Dresden.

Bock-Stauffer Co. Gets Charter

Formal incorporation of the Bock-Stauffer Co., Pittsburgh, has been accomplished under a Pennsylvania charter calling for $100,000 capitalization. The following officers have been elected: President, Chas. Bock; vice-president, U. H. Stauffer; secretary, F. C. Sauer. They have purchased the cigar jobbing and stogie manufacturing end of the R. & W. Jenkinson Co., also titles and good will of the following well-known brands: "Duquesne Boquet," Key West clear Havana cigars, and the "Duquesne Club," 5-cent cigar. In stogies, "Red Label," three for five, and "Exception" and "Jenkinson's Best," in two for five. They are now employing union workmen in their factories and have ads in all papers for 100 additional workmen.

The Value of Well-Lighted Windows

Written for The Tobacco World by AL. U. THORNBURG

LET there be light, and let there be lots of it.

There are dark days ahead for the man in business who neglects to flood his display windows with the glow of incandescents.

The foregoing may not fall with pleasure on the ears of all tobacconists who read, for in these piping days of the high cost of living—within one's income—the suggestion that more money be spent to attract trade does not always meet with favor.

Yet competition has decreed in most lines of business that the man who does not put forth every effort within his means to attract and hold a clientele has started on the long slide that bumps up, at the bottom, against the referee in bankruptcy. And one of the chief aids of getting more patronage and holding it is advertising, not alone through the papers, but by means of properly lighted windows.

Various are the stories that have been printed about the American invasion of England. American publishers opened the ideas of the Britons by their enterprise after taking over staid old English journals that had been in the rut for years. Our automobile men have astonished England, Germany and even France by the manner in which they have usurped territory and disposed of American-made cars. Yet none of these stories of Yankee push startled the business men across the sea more than did the American merchant who opened a store in London and adopted the modern idea of window dressing and window lighting. The sedate Londoners thought the height of lavishness had been reached with the elaborate display of goods in the windows during the daytime, but when the American invader turned on a flood of light in his windows, kept it ablaze all night, night after night, they set him down as a man whose enthusiasm had run away with his sense of money balance.

But events proved the Britons were wrong. The English bargain hunter is just as keen as the bargain hunter of any other nation and he appreciates it just as much as any one else when the shopkeeper takes pains to arouse his attention to goods. The patrons of the shops in London began to talk of the brilliantly lighted windows, the show places attracted more and more comment, and the American business man had the not unpleasant experience of seeing the coin of the empire come jingling into his strong box.

It used to be the habit of the English shopkeeper to close up his store like a safe at night, draw his shades and practically board up his windows after a day's work was done. But if you have been over there since the American invasion, you will note that fewer of them are following the old method, and more of them have trailed after the pattern set by the Yankee who was not afraid to burn up perfectly good money with electricity when he knew that it would all come back and bring company.

In journeys through various parts of our own country during the last several years, I have been astonished at the growth of the idea that the well-lighted window is one of the chief assets of the merchant, no matter what his line may be. I think it cannot be denied that anything that serves to catch the eye of the buying public, arrest the attention and serve to create a group of persons around a window, is decidedly an asset.

This is exactly what the generous use of light has done, is still doing and will continue to do. Walk down the main artery of your business district on an evening after the stores have closed and note where the pedestrians halt before the business houses. Do they stop and peer into the window that is entirely dark, or into the one which is casting but a dim flow of light? Even the blind man who sells pencils at the corner can tell you they don't.

But let a spacious, well-trimmed window that it bathed in the glow from a liberal allotment of electric lamps catch the eye of the passer-by and he will stop, edge closer to the display and devote his attention to what is being shown. You have got him part way into your store; he sees, perhaps, something that interests him, and he makes a mental note of what he has observed. Possibly this same passer-by, in the hurry of his travels to and fro during the day has passed the store more than once, with no time to stop and with other matters on his mind. But this night has found him not so burdened with cares and with his wife or other feminine company he has halted before your window long enough to make him and the woman embryo patrons of your store.

This is not written with an eye to business. The author is not selling electricity, Tungstens nor fancy lighting devices. But the layman, sometimes, is quicker to note what is in the minds of other laymen than is the man who is catering to their wants. If it can be set down here and made plain to the merchant that the patron appreciates lighted windows, that he trades where he has seen goods displayed to advantage at night, this article will have accomplished its purpose.

Is It Coming to This?

The lengths to which the coupon system is carried is the subject of a humorous skit in "Puck," which publishes the following:

Testimonial for the popular cigarette of fifty years from now. Gentlemen:

I have taken three boxes of your Egyptian pills and the house is nearly furnished—that is, we have nearly all the furniture. We need a thousand more pink coupons in order to get the house. I want to say that I think one gets more for his 10 cents in purchasing a package of pills that he can get from any of the other small boxes—I mean the four-foot-square boxes, misses' size; although it is only fair to admit that Turkish Koffinalias are running you close. You must confess the idea of enclosing souvenir bedspreads was a brilliant one and is drawing trade. . . . What we raved over was the folding dinning-room table. I am sure many nice people will smoke themselves to death for this beautiful inducement. The trouble was we got two of them, and we wanted a Morris chair. Would it be asking too much of you to put a line of first-class children's clothing in the cigarette packages soon? Clothing is so expensive, and since 1930 we have not kept any cash on hand—always putting our money right into cigarettes and drawing our necessities through the really, I must say, generous premiums. Oh, yes, there is another thing: In unpacking one of the boxes we found that the cigarettes had been crushed between the electric stove and the volume of Browning's poems. Would you kindly replace them at your earliest convenience?—without sending duplicate premiums, of course. We would hardly ask that.

The Watson Co. to Distribute "Van Dycks"

The Harry W. Watson Co., of Detroit and Flint, Mich., have made arrangements with M. A. Gunst & Co. to handle the "Van Dyck" cigar in Michigan, and to do all the distributing from their Detroit branch. The deal was consummated by Nate Shapero.

Fernando Gato, of the E. H. Gato Co., Tampa, is expected in New York, July 20.

Purely Personal

Fred R. Hoisington, president of the Cayey Caguas Tobacco Co., New York and Porto Rica, is taking a brief rest cruising on his yacht "Savarona" off the coast of Maine.

William Wemmer, vice-president of the Deisel-Wemmer Cigar Co., Lima, O., has returned from a pleasant visit to Germany and other European points.

Charles Straus, of the firm of Henry Straus, the well-known tobacconist, of Cincinnati, O., is now in Hamburg, Germany, having recently sailed from the United States. This is the twelfth tour of Europe made by Mr. Straus, and that in thirteen years.

Sigmund Haas, president of Haas Bros., cigar manufacturers, of Cincinnati, O., has returned home from a trip around the world. He was accompanied by his wife, and left Cincinnati last February.

Edward R. Singleton, who is well known to the cigar trade of the country, has just assumed charge of the sales department of Andres Diaz & Co., cigar manufacturers of Tampa, Fla., and is making plans to extend the sale of the "Flor de Scott," one of the best-known brands made by this factory. Mr. Singleton is a salesman of unusually wide acquaintance and admitted talent.

Harry Bendheim, of the Metropolitan Tobacco Co., is en route to Europe, having sailed from New York July 8 on the "Kron Princessen Cecile."

C. C. Dula, president of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., came on from St. Louis last week to visit the New York offices of the company.

Leonard A. Cohn has resigned as vice-president of the American Sumatra Tobacco Co., and hereafter will devote his time exclusively to the management of the leaf-importing and packing business of A. Cohn & Co., in which he has long been interested.

E. F. Bullard, who has been in charge of the American Tobacco Co.'s advertising department for some years, has tendered his resignation. As yet he has not announced his plans for the future.

The McHie-Scotten Tobacco Co., Detroit, Mich., are enclosing a 5-ticket certificate for dealers with each dozen of their brands of smoking, fine cut and scrap tobaccos. Ten of these certificates are redeemable for a safety razor or a hammer.

E. Kleiner & Co. Enjoy Big Increase

KLEINER & CO., New York, believe that either a business must go ahead constantly or get lost in the strife of competition, and they are strictly in the go-ahead class. During the present year each month has shown them a gain of at least 20 per cent., and in some months nearly 50 per cent., in the output of their excellent brands—"La Famosa," the 5-cent grade, and "Lord Macauley," their well-known 10-cent cigar.

Emil Kleiner, the energetic head of the firm, is an indefatigable worker and rare, indeed, is the place he visits where he fails to land an order. In Pittsburgh, the first part of the month, he opened up several new and interesting accounts; and this week he is headed for Maine, where "La Famosas" are especially popular, and they know their money's worth Down East, too.

The firm has been much complimented by leading dealers on their fine display racks for "Lord Macaulays," which they recently brought out. With the handsome placque in the centre, and the five arms, each to hold a box of "Lord Macaulays," these expensive racks help dress any store in which they are placed. The accompanying photograph will give some idea of how elaborate these racks are.

Cut-Price War in Philadelphia

local importers, such at M. J. Dalton & Co., and Yahn & McDonnell, have refused to meet the new market prices and are maintaining their prices at 25 cents retail.

The signs in the Mahn stores state that no purchase of over fifty cigars to one customer will be allowed, and that the sales are for cash only. The brands affected by the price-cutting war include, "Rey del Mundo," "Manuel Lopez," "La Corona," "Romeo," "Castaneda," "Carolinas," "Upmann" and "Beck."

Although the United Cigar Stores have met the drug store's price of 18 cents, these are not the only prices they are meeting, as they are offering 25-cent cigarettes, from 16 cents to 18 cents and 15-cent cigarettes at from 9 cents to 11 cents, depending upon the brands. All purchasers are also given coupons. Smoking tobaccos, too, are affected similarly.

This is the most serious price-cutting war which has developed in Philadelphia for many a day. In view of the fact that the participants are the sufferers and the public is the gainer, it is predicted that the present prices cannot last very long unless the stores wish to remain in business to exchange dollar for dollar with the public without profit.

Bayard M. Smith, in charge of the local Riker-Hegeman cigar department, states that his company has no intention of restoring the regular prices.

Tampa

Increase in Internal Revenue Reflects Growth of Cigar Business—New Collector of Customs Appointed

Tampa, Fla., July 12.

THE healthy condition of Tampa's cigar manufacturing industry is indicated in the latest internal revenue report for the fiscal year ending June 30, which shows that there was collected in this city for the year beginning July, 1912, and ending June, 1913, $877,630.05 as against $834,613.80. The biggest increases were in the months of July, October, November, February, May and June. The total increase for the year was $43,016.25.

The appointment of J. D. Calhoun, a Tampa Democrat, to the position of Chief Deputy Collector of Customs of this port, has been announced, and he will take charge as soon as he qualifies for the position. The appointment of F. J. Cushing, of this city, as Deputy Collector at Key West, has aroused considerable protest in the latter city. Under the latest regulations issued by the Treasury Department, all entries of imports reaching Tampa in bond will be liquidated here instead of at Jacksonville, as was at first announced.

Local manufacturers interested in the passage of provisions regulating the manufacture of cigars in bond, have been pleased to know that the United States Senate Committee have approved the idea, and that the measure is likely to be passed at this session. The scheme has been indorsed by the Clear Havana Manufacturers' Association and the local Board of Trade.

Jerome Regensburg, in charge of the Regensburg factory here, has gone to New York for a little vacation, and also to consult with the New York offices of the factory. He will be gone several weeks.

Edward Wodiska, of Coral Wodiska & Co., arrived in Tampa last week to visit the factory and make plans for the handling of the increasing business on their popular brand, "Julia Marlowe."

A. L. Cuesta, of the Cuesta-Rey Co., accompanied by Jose Escalante, is now in Havana and will sail from that port July 19, for Spain. This is Mr. Escalante's first visit to his native home, Spain, in 10 years and he expects to tour Europe before returning.

At Miami, Fla., the firm of cigar manufacturers, Johnson & Wells, has been dissolved and two members of the firm, Charles W. Johnson and Joseph Wells, will engage in manufacture independently.

Emil Berger, secretary and general manager, and Emilio Pons, treasurer of the Tampa-Cuba Cigar Co., are in Havana on a tobacco-buying expedition.

Dealers to Test Michigan Cigarette Law

act states that the act is to prohibit the use of cigarettes by minors. We also claim that the title of this act is not broad enough to cover section two.

"The offence charged in this act is a misdemeanor, triable when the violation is within the city of Grand Rapids, Michigan, in the police court of this city, and at the time that the first trial was set, June 24, 1913, a motion was made by me to quash the complaint and warrant for the reasons above stated, and the proposition was argued and is set for the eighteenth of July for decision by the police judge, and all of the other prosecutions are to stand until this one case is decided. If the respondent is held for trial and a conviction had, then this case will be appealed to the Circuit Court for the County of Kent, and if he is again convicted and the law held constitutional by the circuit judge, the case will then be carried to the Supreme Court of the State of Michigan, where the constitutionality of the act will be determined by that body."

RUDYARD KIPLING

"There's Peace in a Larranaga"

Years agone in far off India's sunny clime, Britain's master poet, Rudyard Kipling, sang the praises of POR LARRANAGA in immortal strain.

We know that our product is worthy of the tribute of this genius.

POR LARRANAGA Cigars have been made since 1834 according to only one standard —Manufactured by three generations of the same family.

The finest Vuelta Abajo tobacco which the island of Cuba produces is the only tobacco which can enter our factory.

As a result our cigars are the accepted standard of luxury and merit in every part of the civilized world.

HAVANA, July 7.

AT last it seems that the tide is beginning to turn from the low ebb to the flood one, and that hereafter we may confidently look to an improvement all around. Sales of tobacco have more than doubled during the last two weeks, and while this is not saying much, it is a beginning in the right direction. In the country active buying has been going on, only restricted by a scarcity of loanable funds from our banks. The latter nevertheless have managed to get some gold from France to the extent of one and one-half million of dollars, and as there is a better demand for our sugar from the American refiners, with prices slightly advancing, the outlook in this direction is also improving.

That our leaf dealers and packers have been obliged to move the tobacco crop with their own resources, is perhaps after all a benefit to them, as in this manner they are more independent in their future dealings with the buyers.

Reasoning according to these conditions, and also taking into consideration, that the crop after all seems to have been grossly exaggerated again this year, it looks as if the market will be fully sustained upon the basis of the ruling prices, and rather is more liable to advance in the future than to go down. The United States cannot do without our leaf, as there are no substitutes to take its place, and the question is only whether she will need a larger or smaller quantity for the coming year. As long as the leaf in general is fine in quality, manufacturers are more liable to stock up, owing to the uncertainty of future crops. Stocks of Havana tobacco in the United States are not large, on the contrary, thanks to the long pursued policy of buying only from hand to mouth, we feel convinced that they are rather scant.

If the vegueros have obtained high prices for their crops, they appear to be justified by the demand of the various buyers, which were competing for the good vegas in a lively fashion. The yield in the packings of Vuelta Abajo and Partido in wrappers have been disappointing, as far as light, clean colors are concerned. Only the shade-grown vegas have produced them in both sections.

Packing in the Santa Clara Province has become general, since the first of this month, and it is now claimed, that the bulk of the crop has been either sold by the farmers, or that the latter are packing themselves. Estimates of Remedios crop now vary from 150,000 to 175,000 bales. We have heard that some vegueros shall have sold their packed tobacco as high as $70 for first capaduras, $60 for seconds and $40 for thirds, and 8a, per bale. If the shrinkage and the expenses in bringing the bales from the country to our market are added, it can be readily seen that prices are bound to be higher than last year. It is possible that perhaps some packers, in order to lower the cost prices, will not make the escogida so scrupulous and mix some of the seconds with the first capaduras, and in the same manner put some leaves, that in reality belong into the third grade, with the secouds, etc. Of course, in this manner the prices apparently will be lower. These are little tricks of the trade, well known to the experienced buyer, and have been practiced before.

Recent Leaf Sales.

Sales during the last fortnight amounted to 7,035 bales of all kinds of leaf, or split up into: Vuelta Abajo, 4,634; Partido, 1,256, and Remedios, 1,145 bales.

Buyers were: American, 1,416; exporters to Europe, 1,319; shippers to South America, 341, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 3,959 bales.

Receipts of Tobacco From the Country Were:

	For the two weeks ending July 4, 1913.		Since January 1, 1913.
Vuelta Abajo,	24,072	bales.	71,723	bales.
Semi Vuelta,	2,473	"	8,662	"
Partido,	1,131	"	3,813	"
Remedios,	3,489	"	7,022	"
Oriente,	64	"	1,081	"
Total,	31,229	"	93,501	"

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana, during the two weeks ending June 28, were:

To all ports of the United States,	4,661	bales.
To Bremen and Hamburg,	814	"
To London, England,	5	"
To Buenos Aires, Montevideo and Valparaiso,	341	"
Total,	5,821	"

Expected to Arrive—From New York, per steamship "Havana," July 9: Joseph Mendelsohn, accompanied by his son, Harry Mendelsohn, of Mendelsohn, Bornemann & Co.; Vincent Planco, of Ruy, Suarez & Co.; Ernst Ellinger, of Ernst Ellinger & Co.; Fred Davis, of Samuel I. Davis & Co.

With the Cigar Factories.

The month of June has turned out after all to be somewhat better than we dared to hope after the bad month of May, as we have exceeded our exports by a trifle over one million cigars, as compared with last year.

	Cigars.
Exports of June 1 to June 30, 1913 from Havana,	12,906,444
Exports of June 1 to June 30, 1912, from Havana,	11,778,538
Increase of exports during the month of June, 1913,	1,127,906

The result for the six months in both years now stands as follows, viz.:

	Cigars.
Exports from Havana, January 1 to June 30, 1913,	85,599,750
Exports from Havana, January 1 to January 30, 1912,	78,957,514
Increase during the first six months of 1913,	6,642,236

During the month of June the following 11 countries show these increases in cigars: France, 464,925; Great Britain, 308,261; the United States, 223,182; Chile, 157,942; Germany, 114,239; Peru, 76,600; Portugal, 52,350; Gibraltar, 36,265; Austria, 30,140; Australia, 28,607; Canada, 20,527.

The following four countries have shown these decreases in cigars during the same time: Argentine Republic, 166,840; Italy, 128,800; Uruguay, 52,497; Dutch West Indies, 32,300.

Romeo y Julieta is working phenomenally strong at this season of the year.

H. Upmann & Co. also report good business, notwithstanding the dull season.

Partagas is doing fine work and has no reason to complain of dull times.

L. Stuart Houston is well satisfied with the success he achieved on his flying trip to Europe, in the interest of Henry Clay and Bock & Co., Ltd.

Castañeda is ahead on its order slate, as compared with last year.

"Sol" is doing good work, even in the dull season, and confidently is looking ahead for an improvement in business, as soon as the new tobacco could be worked.

The "Flor del Fumar" factory continues to be favored with high-priced "Regalia" orders from the United States, England and Germany. What might be lacking in quantity is fully made up in the value of the cigars shipped.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

The principal sellers of leaf tobacco during the past fortnight were: Hernandez & Alvarez, 1,200; Aixala & Co., 684; Camejo & La Paz, 610; Candido Obeso, 600; José Menendez, 294; H. H. Strater, 214; Gutierrez & Diehl, 200; José C. Puente & Co., 250; Gonzalez & Benitez, 200; Herrera, Calmet & Co., 155; Diaz, Herrera & Co., 150, and Bienes, Diaz & Co., 100 bales.

The principal leaf buyers were: Maximilian Stern, 1,534; Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co., 794; H. Upmann & Co., 612; Celestino Vega & Co., 572; J. F. Berndes & Co., 493; Emil Wedeles, 300; Celestino Corral, 250; Por Larrañaga, 212; Romeo y Julieta, 200; C. E. Beck & Co., 150; Rodriguez, Menendez & Co., 150, and Adolfo Moeller, 140 bales.

There were 10 shippers above 200 bales from the port of Havana during the past fortnight, viz.: J. Bernheim & Son, 788; Virgilio Suarez, 589; Garcia & Co., 495; J. F. Berndes & Co., 493; Maximilian Stern, 406; Menendez & Co., 394; Manuel Suarez, 314; M. A. Suarez & Co., 264; Diego Montero, 256, and I. Kaffenburgh & Sons, 233 bales.

Ernst Ellinger & Co. are receiving a good deal of leaf from the Vuelta Abajo. Although they have their buyers out in the Santa Clara Province, we understand that they have not yet purchased anything at the ruling high figures.

Gutierrez & Diehl have bought the very best vegas of Remedios for their packings in the Santa Clara Province, and still they have only secured one-third of what they would have purchased, if the prices had been more moderate. In the Vuelta Abajo they are making two fine escogidas in Montezuelo and La Esperanza, of the choicest leaf grown in those districts.

Walter Sutter & Co. have made their maiden purchase for account of their customers.

The firm of H. Upmann & Co. had issued a circular, under date of the first of July, giving notice that Herr Heinrich Runken had retired from the firm (he has since left with his family, on the 5th inst., by the German steamship "Prinz Joachim," for Bremen), and that Messrs. Albert Upmann and Hermann Luettich had been authorized to sign the firm name by power of attorney.

Bank Failure Does Not Affect Business In General—Stogie Strike Causes Uneasiness—Wholesale and Retail Cigar Trade Good

PITTSBURGH, PA., July 10.

TWO events of paramount importance occupy the mind of the Pittsburgh trade at this moment—the failure of the First-Second National Bank and the strike of 2,500 stogie makers. The bank failure, although attracting much attention, has not affected business in general, and as far as the tobacco trade is concerned, it is a closed incident. The stogie strike, treated elsewhere in "The Tobacco World," is causing considerable uneasiness among the big manufacturers, who fear that it will spread.

Retail business in Pittsburgh for the last two weeks has been very good, especially last week, owing to the Welsh Eistedfodd.

W. L. McLain has opened a new stand at Forbes and Boquet Street, one square from Forbes' Field. He has a full line of cigars and stogies.

Production of tobacco products in the Twenty-third Pennsylvania District for June:

	1913	1912	Increase
Cigars, No..	31,730,790	31,405,940	333,850
Small Cigars, No..	8,740	9,600	1,160
Cigarettes, No.,	4,200	....	4,200
Snuff, pounds,	535	478	D 143
Tobacco, pounds,	10,241	8,275	1,966

The stogie factory of M. Surperior, 48 Miller Street, suffered $3,000 damage by fire last week.

F. W. Ashner, of L. Goldsmit Bros. & Co., is doing great business on "Dry Shitz" stogies.

G. D. Gifford, second vice-president of Surbrug Co., was here for a few days, looking after business on "Milo" cigarettes.

C. M. Pleasents, of the Havana-American Co., was in the city for a few days, working on "El Principe de Gales" cigars. Business satisfactory, is his report.

C. F. Lee, formerly with C. A. Gibbs & Co., who now has charge of the Nixon Cafe stand, carries a full line of the well-known cigars and a good line of cigarettes.

Mr. Herrington, manager of the J. T. Snyder cigar stores, was transferred to Rochester, N. Y. Mr. Anderson, who was formerly with Snyder in Pittsburgh, but sent to Detroit, is now back in Pittsburgh, having charge of the Snyder stores. Wm. Goetz, formerly with the R. & W. Jenkinson Co., in the Oliver Building, is assistant to Mr. Anderson in the Snyder stores.

Preston Herbert, vice-president and general manager of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Co., was in Pittsburgh last week, interviewing jobbers.

E. F. Baron, manager of Siller-Narten-Barnes Co., spent the Fourth at the Coast.

The "City Club" crew of the Burley Tobacco Co., in charge of C. S. Buck, has been getting life-members for "City Club" (the pride of our factory), in Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania. Numerous attractive "City Club" window displays have adorned the best stores, and consumers and merchants are enthusiastic from quality and selling standpoint. Mr. I. Ginsburg, local representative, is assisting in this work of proving to dealers that "City Club" is the twentieth century wonder in smoking tobaccos, and both have made numerous friends.

J. E. Detweiler, of C. A. Gibbs & Co., is doing very nicely on "Tuval," made by Marcelino Perez & Co., of New York. Also sells lots of imported cigars and stogies.

Mr. Marcelino Perez, of Marcelino Perez & Co., manufacturers of the "Tuval," was in the city for a few days, and is well pleased with business on that brand.

J. A. Dyson has opened a new cigar stand in the old Baltimore & Ohio Ticket Office, in the McClure Block, Wheeling, W. Va. He gave carnations to the ladies and cigars to the gentlemen on the opening day. He carries a full line of imported and domestic cigars. Mr. Dyson has been in this block for 24 years.

Mr. R. Thompson, of the W. J. Gilmore Drug Co., reports being oversold on "El Verso" cigars and at the present writing has none in stock. Also have a large sale on "Girard" cigars, made by A. Roig & Langsdorf, Philadelphia.

The Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stand had a big week on account of having two delegations of the Welsh singers at their hotel.

T. V. Wilkinson, the "Zubelda" man, is doing some very good advertising on this brand, and also interviewing consumers with samples of this delightful cigarette. "Zubeldas" are showing up nicely in Pittsburgh, and the new college rug is making quite a hit.

J. M. Goodman, with Phillip Morris & Co., New York, reports large sales on their cigarettes.

L. K. Black, representative of the B. F. Stauffer Co., of West Virginia, was in town last week. Says business was very good in West Virginia and Ohio.

Fred W. Bailey, representing the M. Perez Co., New York and Key West, was in Pittsburgh for two weeks, selling "Pinzon" with their representative here, the Haworth & Dewhurst Co. They placed the "Pinzon" in Hamel's and Antler Hotel.

J. E. Beck, of the Bachia Cigar Co., just arrived in Pittsburgh last week from a trip to the West. Had lots of business on that brand.

H. V. Merriman, of the Bock-Stauffer Co., who calls on their downtown trade, is selling lots of "Webster" and "Van Dyck" clear Havana cigars. Also selling many of their stogies, which are now made by union labor.

Jos. Ferst, of M. Stachelberg & Co., was in Pittsburgh for three days, calling on the trade for A. Reuben & Co.

H. J. Harper, of M. Melachrino & Co., just arrived from Erie. Reports business is very good on their brands. Mr. Harper has a few downtown window displays.

Milwaukee

Leading Distributors All Busy On Popular Line—Wright Drug Co. Gives Interesting Demonstration

MILWAUKEE, WIS., July 9.

BUSINESS with the local wholesalers and retailers has been quite good, some firms reporting an increase in the amount of business over previous years.

The Western Cigar Box Manufacturers' Association held their meeting in this city the latter part of June and elected officers.

The cigar box factory of J. Schwartzburg, Sixth and North Avenue, this city, suffered its second fire loss within a year a few weeks ago, when the plant was damaged to the extent of about $8,000.

Milwaukee retailers report a satisfactory business on all their popular lines, with cigars still holding the first place.

Steve Surman, manager of the Cuba Rica cigar store, is enjoying his usual volume of business. He has re-purchased this store from the Cuba Rica Co. The "Ruy Lopez" is being again featured with a window display.

The Wright Drug Co. are all enjoying a good business. Last month they featured in their windows the "Lovita," their private brand, with a demonstration of how it is made. Since then the cigarmaker has been working in other windows about town with a consequence of some increase of business. At present Wrights are displaying the "Jose Villa."

Fay Lewis & Bros. Co. report a very good business, both wholesale and retail. The "Harvester," their private brand, continues to move very well, while the "Tom Moore," "Webster," "El Sidelo" and "Savarona," all show an increase over last year. The Fay Lewis Co. have succeeded in closing the contract for the exclusive cigar privilege in the new Wisconsin Hotel, which will be opened to the traveling public about October 1. The new hotel is the largest in the city, and this stand should prove a very profitable one. Harry Lewis is spending a few days in Rockford, Ill., on a business trip.

Leo Abraham & Co. continue to enjoy a good business at all retail stores, while their wholesale business, especially in the city, shows a steady increase. This speaks well for Mr. Chapman, the jovial city salesman. At the Third Street store business continues good. The "Jose Lovera," "Charter," and other well-known brands are moving very good. The front of the store was recently remodeled, the windows being set back to conform with the city ordinance, which prohibits extending beyond the building line. Eddie McKercher has been entertaining the folks from home (Des Moines), during the past week.

The "Cinco" cigar, made by Eisenlohr Brothers, Philadelphia, is being featured with a window display at the Goldsmith Pharmacy. According to the A. S. Goodrich Co., business on this cigar continues very good. The "Equity" and "San Felice" are also moving well.

A. O. Meister continues to do a good business, the above-named cigars still being prime favorites at his establishment.

C. G. Polzin has engaged in the cigar business at Marion, Wis.

Neil Shanahan has disposed of his cigar factory at Delavan, Wis., to Charles Russ.

O. A. KROMPAS.

Booker Plant Moved to Richmond, Va.

The Booker Tobacco Co., the recently acquired branch of the Tobacco Products Corporation, have closed down their plant at Lynchburg, Va., and are moving it to Richmond, where they will have larger facilities.

That Lynchburg's interests will not suffer by the removal of the Booker business to Richmond is known on good authority, for another company has already been formed to operate the plant along the lines of the old company or on a larger scale.

Back of the new concern will be ample capital, it is stated, while experienced tobacconists will be at the head of it.

San Francisco

Retailers Elect Officers and Provide Salary for Secretary—Trade Good—Manila Sales Picking Up

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.

AT the annual meeting of the San Francisco Retail Cigar Dealers' Association, this week, most of the old officers were re-elected.

The new list is as follows: Dan P. Carter, president; Robert E. Donahue, first vice-president; A. A. Knox, second vice-president; Fred M. Prince, recording secretary and treasurer; James Byrne, financial secretary, and Ralph Dreisbach, sergeant-at-arms. The executive committee consists of Mark Cohn, Dan B. Dwyer, John C. Connor and J. B. Martin; and the board of trustees of E. Van Straaten, W. R. Dreisbach and W. H. Hambleton. The yearly reports of the officers were received and approved. Routine business was attended to; and, finally, it was decided by a unanimous vote to provide the secretary with a salary to begin with July 1. The sitting committee of the association is now issuing cards for the quarter beginning July 1 to the cigar salesmen.

Notwithstanding the two holidays and the hottest weather of the season, the retail business for the week has been good for the season. While a good many San Francisco people took advantage of the holidays to leave town, there were a good many outside people in town, and altogether the sales were fairly large. The wholesale trade has been light, with only a portion of the salesmen out after trade and these not working their hardest. A considerable portion of the wholesale end of the trade is taking advantage of the vacation privileges just at present.

E. E. Whiting, traveling representative of Reiss Bros., reached the coast last week, and, after spending a few days in Los Angeles, came on north to this city. He will spend about a week showing his pipe samples to the trade, and will then turn eastward again, going back over the central route. He found the trade in the West in good condition.

J. H. James, the veteran cigar and tobacco dealer, of Porterville, Cal., who has been in business in that city for more than a quarter of a century, has retired. He has sold a part interest in the business and has turned the remaining interest over to his son, E. W. James. The firm will hereafter be known as McFarland Bros. & James.

B. H. Pendleton, head of Horn & Co., leading cigar and tobacco jobbers of this city, has returned from a three weeks' stay in the East, where he spent most of his time at various factories. William Hoffman, traveling salesman for Horn & Co., got back from a trip through the San Joaquin Valley just before the holiday. He found business good in most places, notwithstanding the dry winter and short crops.

The general idea is that the Manila end of the cigar business on the Coast is mending very perceptibly, and that the market as a whole is in a better condition to absorb Manila goods than for some time. Most of the San Francisco jobbers and importers are now selling about all they can get, and are usually anxious for the new shipments as they arrive. In the meantime the cigars are coming through in better shape than they did for a while. Advices from the Philippines are not very reassuring as to the factories, which are said to be very hard hit by a combination of money tightness and heavy losses on the spring shipments to "The States."

Vice-president Herbert, of Philip Morris & Co., was in San Francisco for a short time last week.

Harry Welsh, one of the outside men of the Edward Wolf Co., is making a run through Nevada, where the general indications continue favorable for a revival of mining interest. Some of the newer camps are very prosperous.

Emil Judell, of H. L. Judell & Co., who recently missed being in the fatal train wreck near Vallejo, in which 13 people were killed, by a change of plans at the last moment, is now trying his luck in the northeast section of California. This section of the country has been very hard hit financially by the stagnation in the wool market, due in part to tariff uncertainty; but Mr. Judell hopes to pull out a considerable amount of business nevertheless. This section, though a little off the beaten track, is a great grazing region and is usually a good district for the cigar travelers.

H. H. Manley, Western representative of the American Cigar Co., has been keeping on the go pretty constantly for some time. Having completed his tour through the North he has gone South for a two weeks' campaign, chiefly in Los Angeles. He is expected back within a few days, for a brief stay.

Milton Esberg, Pacific Coast manager for M. A. Gunst & Co., returned last week from San Diego and Los Angeles. While in the latter city Mr. Esberg attended the meetings of the California Celebrations Committee, an organization which will devote its energies to bringing various national and other conventions to California during the next two years. Both San Francisco and San Diego are to have expositions in 1915 in honor of the opening of the Panama-Pacific Canal, and it is desired to get as many conventions and similar gatherings as possible booked for the California cities between now and 1915. Mr. Esberg was elected vice-president of the committee.

M. A. Gunst & Co. are making a great hit with their special vacation displays in the windows of leading stores of the house. The pipe and smokers' outfit business of the last few weeks has been unusually large.

"Luxellos" on the Coast

Edward Wolf is expecting a visit from R. M. Ellis, of the Tobacco Products Company, of New York. While here Mr. Ellis will do a little work in the interest of the "Nestor" cigarettes.

M. N. de Lang, of the "La Prueba" cigar factory, of Manila, P. I., writes Edward Wolf that he has reached the Islands in first-class shape. He writes that the "La Prueba" people have had a good season, though he hears that some of the Manila factories are in bad shape for want of ready cash.

Tillman & Bendel, wholesale grocers and tobacconists, are now getting in results from the heavy newspaper advertising given their Sanchez & Haya line during the last few months.

The Little Havana Store at Lompoc, Cal., has been sold to C. P. Litten, of that place.

Slump On Cincinnati Brakes

Cincinnati, O., July 5.

A slump in the local tobacco market has appeared. Although bidders were very anxious a few weeks ago to get hold of good offerings of burley and other types of tobacco, only three sales were reported today and these at prices which were not encouraging to the sellers.

7,000,000 Cigarettes a Day at Durham

The Blackwell branch of the American Tobacco Co. at Durham, N. C., have opened a cigarette manufacturing branch which will have a daily capacity of 7,000,000 cigarettes. They intend to concentrate on one or two brands at first, but eventually will be making a number of popular selling goods.

A new retail store has been opened by David Herman at 519 Jackson Street, Milwaukee, Wis., where the following brands are featured: "Regensburg," "Henry the Fourth," "Bank Note," "San Felice," "Tom Keene," "Cinco" and others.

A. T. Co. Shows Record Sales

The American Tobacco Co., for six months ending June 30, showed the biggest sales on the brands retained since the disintegration for any six months in the history of the company. Officials say that a gain appeared to be general in all departments.

The Wall Street "Journal" says:

"The American Tobacco Co. is not feeling the big loss in its cigarette business that prevailed during the early part of the year, when the four large tobacco companies were fighting each other so vigorously. It is said by the insiders that the heads of the companies have finally come to realize that the radical cutting of prices could not go on without destroying absolutely all possibility of profit for the cigarette manufacturers.

"On one brand of smoking tobacco the American Tobacco Co. last year, for the first six months, showed a loss of $200,000. This year, for the same period, it has been able to show a profit of $300,000, a difference of $500,000."

Detroit

Watson Co. Become Sole Distributors for "Van Dyck" Cigars in Michigan—Claude Howell Takes Over Selling End of Swift Cigar Co.—What the Dealers Are Doing

DETROIT, MICH., July 8.

RETAILERS look for the cigar business to slacken up a bit during the months of July and August, owing to so many people going on vacations, although there will be plenty of box trade for those dealers who make a specialty of that feature of the business. E. M. Harris, Burt Johnson and the Hotel Ponchartrain are daily receiving orders from customers from all parts of the country, where their Detroit patrons are summering.

The Harry W. Watson Co. have arranged to become sale distributors of the "Van Dyck" cigar in Michigan.

The Watson cigar stand at the Café Grand, on Woodward Avenue, has been having a very attractive display of "Tungsten" cigars, made by Jeitles & Blumenthal, Ltd., Philadelphia. In the centre of the window was a big Tungsten lamp, of the largest size, and surrounding it were boxes of "Tungsten" cigars. At night it shows very conspicuously.

Eugene Watson, president of the Harry W. Watson Co., and who resides in Flint, gave $100 to the fund being collected in that city, with which to erect a Y. M. C. A. building.

Charles J. Spietz, of the Wayne Cigar Co., is sadly disappointed in not being able to make an auto trip East, which he had planned. At the last minute some of the gentlemen in the party backed out for obvious reasons, so Mr. Spietz abandoned the tour and instead will take a boat trip, having left Detroit on one of the big boats on July 7, to be gone for several weeks.

Albert Worch, of the Wayne Cigar Co., reports that he has so many orders ahead that he cannot take on any more accounts this year.

The Plainfield Country Club, near Grand Rapids, opened its doors for the first time on June 29, although the formal opening will not occur until July 15. Joseph E. Bureau is house manager. A nice line of cigars is carried, among them the "Aploma," which was placed through Jackson Kelly, who made a special visit for that purpose.

Clifton L. Corpening, former manager of the Post Tavern, at Battle Creek, and who has been succeeded by Mr. Montgomery, formerly of the Hotel Planters in Chicago, has left on an automobile trip to Northern Michigan, and will later tour into North Carolina, where Mr. Corpening formerly lived.

A. L. Barr and E. M. Drew have opened the Washington Avenue Pharmacy, at 30 North Washington Street, Battle Creek, and are carrying a good assortment of cigars.

Saul Solomon, of Solomon & Son, James J. O'Meara, and E. M. Lawn, cigar dealers in Kalamazoo, participated in the trade-promotion trip of the jobbers and wholesalers of that city on July 9 and 10, to South Haven, Mich.

J. J. Arneth, proprietor, has opened a drug store in Iron River, Mich., and has put in a case of cigars. Carnations were distributed free on the opening day.

Otto J. Saichek, special representative of the American Tobacco Co., has completed his work in the Upper Peninsula on "Lucky Strike" tobacco, in connection with which the company has been giving a daffydil scarf pin free with each 10-cent can, thus creating a big sale.

Joe Carlisle, of the Santealla Co., is in Mount Clemens for a few weeks accompanied by his daughter. He is taking the famous sulphur baths, for which that city is noted.

Willis Andruss, after spending a week in Detroit, left for Ohio, where he will push "56" cigarettes. While here he placed them in many of the leading retail stores.

Archie Hiscotte is enjoying a good trade on the "Sir Rahmas" cigar, which he represents in this territory and is continuously landing new accounts.

Robert Ellis has finished a campaign on the "Tom Keene" cigar, which was highly successful. This cigar is handled in Detroit by Payette, Walsh & Co., and is their leader.

Herbert Weil, of the San Telmo Cigar Mfg. Co., is back from an extended tour to Nova Scotia and a cruise down the St. Lawrence River, accompanied by his wife.

Oscar Rosenberger, president of the San Telmo Cigar Mfg. Co., has sailed for Europe to be gone for about two months. He will stay most of the time in Germany, the home of his birth.

John P. Hemmeter, manufacturer of Hemmeter's "Champion" cigar, will go abroad the middle of August, and make a similar trip to that of last year, touring from one city to the other, returning home in September.

The Lillies Cigar Co., the Spietz & Worch Co., and the San Telmo Cigar Mfg. Co., closed their plants on June 30 and did not reopen them until Monday, July 7. This gave all of the employes a week's vacation.

The brand of H. Upmann & Co. is growing very popular in Detroit, particularly among the motorists, it being one of the leaders at the Hotel Ponchartrain stand.

F. S. McAllister, the popular city salesman of John T. Woodhouse & Co., has a summer cottage at Pine Lake, an hour's ride by trolley from Detroit, and every week has some of the employes of the company out to spend a day or two.

The Ambos Cigar Co. has relinquished its store at 33 Lafayette Avenue, their lease having expired, and has opened a branch at Grand River Avenue, near Trumbull Avenue, the main downtown store being at 123 Wayne Street, which they opened two months ago. The Lafayette Street store was one of the best known in the city and one of the oldest. A theatre will be built on the property.

O'Brien & Co. had a very good display recently on a new 5-cent cigar, "O'Brien's Tropics," made by Krause & Co., of Baltimore. Mr. Heineman received his first shipment of 5,000 and placed as many as possible in his window with an attractive card, bearing this advertisement: "In offering O'Brien & Co.'s 'Tropic,' the latest addition to our cigar line, we beg to state that its existence at the price offered is due to the concessions made in the new tariff schedule, providing a rate on certain forms of tobacco heretofore not granted the American manufacturer. We present this cigar with great confidence for your approval." Mr. Heineman says that inside of one week the entire allotment was sold out, and he wired for a duplicate order.

Frank Forrest will shortly have in operation a confectionery and soda fountain stand in the lobby of the Dime Savings Bank Building, the largest office structure in Detroit. Mr. Forrest will put a young lady in charge of the same while he continues with the E. M. Harris Co. cigar store.

Miss Sullivan, formerly at the cigar stand of the Hotel Tuller, is in charge of the lobby branch of the Soper Segar Co., which was opened a few weeks ago. She reports business to be very satisfactory and looks for a big improvement when all of the offices are occupied and the entire building completed.

After a brief trip to Canada, Richard Casey, Michigan agent for "Melachrino" cigarettes, is on the job again.

Edward Lichtig, city representative for Philip Morris cigarettes, took his annual vacation on July 7 for two weeks. Part of the time he will spend in Cleveland and other points in Ohio.

The Demendor Cigar Mfg. Co., of Detroit, has been incorporated to engage in the manufacturing business. P. R. Brown and J. B. Ryno comprise the firm.

The Swift Cigar Co., makers of the "Swift" 10-cent cigar, have turned over the entire selling end of the business to Claude Howell, wholesale tobacconist of Detroit. This means that Mr. Howell will push it not only in Michigan, as he has in the past, but in every one of the 48 States. Mr. Howell has had phenomenal success with the "Swift" cigar and made it so popular that the factory couldn't turn them out fast enough. A new addition is being built in the rear of the present factory on Gratiot Avenue, and when completed Mr. Muer, the proprietor, will add many more cigarmakers, so as to keep pace with the new business which Mr. Howell expects to work up for him.

Mr. Howell is also distributor for the "New Bachellor" cigar and just increased his regular order by asking for an additional 20,000 per week. Mr. Howell has appointed Chester Barry as advertising agent, who will be in charge of all outside advertising and window displays. Before long Mr. Howell hopes to have his business arranged so that he will be able to have salesmen in every part of the country.

E. S. Moser, of the firm of Niles & Moser, Kansas City jobbers, has been spending the past ten days at the summer home of George Meigs (who is the United States representative for Sanchez y Haya), at the St. Clair Flats, better known as "The Venice of America." Mr. Moser thoroughly enjoyed the visit and said that the Flats showed him something new in the way of summering, even if he was from the State of "Bull Moose" and "Show Me."

While walking from the depot in Marshall, Mich., to his summer home in that city, Edwin C. Way, president of the Scotten-Dillon Tobacco Co., of Detroit, became seriously ill and had to be carried to his home. Mr. Way has been in poor health for many months and went to Marshall to remain the balance of the summer.

Charles Holt will manage the Snyder cigar store at 117 Woodward Avenue, and Arthur Klotz that of the stand at Churchill's. Mr. Anderson, who has been general manager of the Snyder stores since their opening in this city, has left for Pittsburgh in the interest of Mr. Snyder's stores there.

Burt Johnson spent July 9 at Grosse Isle, Mich., where he went accompanied by 150 other members of the Rotary Club. Mr. Johnson represents the retail cigar industry in the club, and says he gets much good from it, not only socially, but from a business standpoint.

Tom Banagan, of the Banagan Cigar Co., of Hartford, Conn., was in town this week. Likewise Mr. W. R. Campbell, salesman for "Rameses" cigarettes.

Heinie Kuhn, representative in Clevland for "Melachrino" cigarettes, is rapidly recovering from his recent accident and hopes to be back in his allotted territory within the next few weeks. Meanwhile he is confined to his home in Detroit.

Mr. Penner, traveling representative for E. Rosenwald & Bro., during a ten days' stay in Detroit secured some very nice orders for Sumatra tobacco for his company.

Paul Lindner, of P. Lorillard & Co., is in town.

AL. U. THORNBURG.

Pennsylvania

NINTH DISTRICT FACTORIES SHOW BIG GAIN

Gain of More Than 7,000,000 Cigars for June—What the Makers Are Doing

LANCASTER, PA., July 10.

THE general prosperous condition for the cigar manufacturers in the Ninth Pennsylvania Revenue District is indicated by the latest revenue returns, which show that for the month of June 73,326,360 cigars were made in this district, as against 66,232,400 cigars in June, 1912. This includes cigars of all descriptions and shows a net gain in production of 7,093,960. A surprising gain, in view of the fact that some of the factories in this district have been known to have been slack and the gains in most instances have come from the large factories, those in Lancaster and York centres.

The opening of July finds the cigar business in fairly good shape and manufacturers will be more than contented if they can keep up the good June records. Usually about the first of July comes a slump, but up to the present writing this slump has not yet appeared.

Witte & Schleger, cigar manufacturers, have dissolved through the retirement of Mr. Schleger and the assumption of his interest by his partner, Mr. Witte, who will continue the business.

The condition of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Ryder, who were injured in an automobile accident on the Philadelphia turnpike last week, is reported today as not serious, although they were badly bruised and shaken up.

William Toomey, proprietor of the Dover Cigar Factory, is erecting an addition to his factory, 20 by 25 feet, and when this is completed he expects to increase the number of his hands.

J. W. Brenneman, factory at Millersville, reports an increasing demand for his leading nickel cigar, "Our Principal," which is enjoying a big sale, not only in Pennsylvania, but in other markets where it has been introduced.

E. M. Cohn & Co., well-known leaf dealers, entertained a number of their friends at a dinner in their warehouse recently.

S. R. Moss, cigar manufacturer, and wife, sailed July 5 from New York for a tour of Europe.

Many New Factories Opening Near York

YORK, PA., July 12.

THE cigar industry throughout this section of the Ninth District has shown up exceptionally well during the past month. Revenue reports, particularly from the factories in and around York, show that no part of the district has been busier than the factories in this section, and that the production has leaped forward at a surprising rate. Additional cigarmakers have been put on and more are being added as fast as they can be employed. The rush of orders at the box factories indicate the general prosperity in cigar manufacturing.

During June six new factories were licensed in this city and vicinity. Employment will be given to 65 hands, 40 of whom will be employed by the International Cigar Co., of Wrightsville. Ten factories, giving employment to 86 hands, were opened during the month of May. The following are the factories and the number of hands employed in each, opened during the past month:

Belvidere Cigar Co., rear 249 South George Street, 5 hands; George C. Rudy, Wrightsville, No. 1, 2 hands; Smith Cigar Co., Red Lion, 5 hands; Daniel F. Urey, Felton, No. 2, 3 hands; Walton Cigar Co., York, 10 hands; International Cigar Co., Wrightsville, No. 1, 40 hands.

Such factories as the C. H. Plitt Cigar Co., who are enjoying big business on their "20th Century" and "Liar" brands, report that they have all their benches filled and could use more hands.

Celestino Costello is also busy filling orders on the "Barrister" brand.

The Rupin Factory, at Akron, is advertising for more hands.

After Reading Revenue Violators

READING, PA., July 11.

INTERNATIONAL Revenue Collector Fred W. Cranston threw a scare into a number of cigar retailers and manufacturers here this week, by conducting an investigation into alleged violators of the internal revenue laws.

It is stated that many dealers in this city are violating the laws in the matter of cigar stamps. The law requires that when a box of cigars has been broken the stamp thereon must be immediately destroyed. Many have apparently complied with this in their own estimation, but in this the revenue inspectors differ. The latter claim that the stamp is not destroyed by opening a box or by merely lightly scratching the stamp. The orders are that the destruction must be complete.

Seven members were elected to the Cigarmakers' Union, Local No. 236, at a meeting of the members held at the Labor Lyceum.

Local cigar factories, including Yocum's, Fleck's, Spatz and others, are all reported busy. Retail trade is exceptionally good, considering the season.

Baltimore

Trade in All Branches Good—"Savaronas" and "Reynaldos" Being Featured—A New Kraus Brand Brought Out

BALTIMORE, MD., July 9.

EVERY branch of the tobacco trade, from the manufacturer down to the retailer, is enjoying good business in this locality, and this, in spite of the fact that usually there is a falling off in the retail trade after July 4. The usual mid-summer lull, however, has not arrived, but the retailers know that it will come once the vacation seekers start hoarding trains out of Baltimore. In the meantime nobody has a kick.

A tour of the leading factories shows that all the benches are filled and more hands could be used. In their new building at Gay and Preston Streets, Wertheimer Brothers are now comfortably settled, and have increased manufacturing facilities already in full swing. This factory has been aptly called the "El Dallo" factory, after the brand of cigars which have made the manufacturers famous within the last 12 months.

The Manchester Cigar Co.'s new building on Frederick Street, which will be a six-story structure, is being pushed rapidly, and they expect to occupy it early in the fall. R. N. Paris, son of the proprietor, has just returned from a quick trip through the Middle West, during which he found very satisfactory reports on the sale of their several brands of small cigars.

Lilly, Dungan & Co., are featuring in a special showcase a fresh shipment of the new crop of "Savarona" cigars, just received from Cayey Caguas Tobacco Co. The goods show off to splendid advantage and are pronounced to be the finest ever turned out by this well-known Porto Rican factory.

"Reynaldo" cigars, made by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, are having a remarkable sale in all the first-class retail stores, hotels, restaurants and drug stores throughout the city. Lilly, Dungan & Co. report that it keeps them hustling to get the goods in fast enough to supply the demand.

Arthur Rosenberg, manager of William Deiches & Co.'s Washington branch, was married to Miss Alma Gundersheimer in this city last week.

Hi Hammer, representing the Corral Wodiska factory, of Tampa, made a flying visit to the trade here this week, and then left for his home in Cleveland.

Henry Kraus, of Kraus & Co., stopped off in Philadelphia this week, on his way home. The Kraus factory is exceedingly busy now on all of their leading brands and have just put out a new Havana cigar under an exceptionally attractive and distinctive label bearing the title "Golden Robe." It promises to be a big seller, and has already been placed in the hands of a number of big distributors throughout the country.

The Cigar Machine Corporation, who manufacture a bunching and cigar-wrapping machine, have made a number of new improvements to their machinery and expect to put the improved machine on the market very shortly. They contemplate opening a demonstrating plant in Philadelphia, and in several other cities.

Heineman Bros. are pushing their new nickel cigar, "H. B.," into many new markets.

The "Stratford" cigar, made by the El Draco Cigar Mfg. Co., Philadelphia, and distributed in this city by Hooper, McGaw & Co., is having a steady sale among the best trade in this city. At the Hotel Emerson the "Stratford" is one of the best sellers.

BALTO.

Salesmen covering the Oklahoma territory of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. recently gathered together at McAlester, Okla., and from thence departed for the head office at Winston-Salem, N. C., for the purpose of receiving instructions to further extend the sales of the company.

The American Cigar Co. a short time ago declared a dividend of 1½ per cent. on its common stock, payable August 1 to stockholders of record July 15.

Recent reports are to the effect that the Swisher Cigar Co., of Newark, have leased buildings at Jackson, O., which they intend to use as a cigar factory, just so soon as the new buildings are remodeled and equipped. The new plant will provide facilities for about 200 hands.

Tracey Brothers, 1415 Douglas Street, Omaha, Neb., who recently suffered a considerable fire loss, have purchased the entire stock and fixtures formerly used by Moritz Meyer at 1314 Farnam Street. The building occupied by Mr. Meyer is to be demolished, and the deal with Tracey Brothers was quickly made.

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 102 South Twelfth Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

☞ Positively no responsibility assumed for errors, duplications or any controversies which might arise. We will not under any circumstances act in a legal capacity in cases concerning disputed titles. We maintain a bureau of records only.

New Chain of Retail Stores in Northwest

Henry M. Prince, one of Tacoma's most prominent retail cigar dealers, and Fred Newman, formerly with M. A. Gunst & Co., in Spokane, Wash., have combined to increase the capitalization of the Prince Cigar Co. to $200,000 for the purpose of opening a string of twenty-five new stores throughout the Northwest. They will operate only in territory not occupied by the United Cigar Stores Co.

RETAIL BULLETINS

Everett H. Wright has purchased from Emmit Lee the cigar store located at 408 French Street, Wilmington, Del.

Max Sandler, proprietor of the cigar store at Pratt and Trumbull Streets, Hartford, Conn., has just opened a branch store at 553 Main Street, that city.

Thomas Timbo has opened a cigar store in the McVey Building, on North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

Interest on the Cincinnati burley tobacco auction breaks last week centered in the first appearance of W. T. Spalding as a full-fledged auctioneer. Young Spalding, who is the son of R. Y. Spalding, for many years proprietor of the old Planters' Tobacco Warehouse, and at the present time chief auctioneer for the Globe and Bodmann tobacco warehouses, is probably the youngest man who has ever taken up this line of work in the tobacco trade.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Demand for Wrapper Leaf Continues Feature of Cigar Market—New Sumatra Being Tested—Domestic Growing Conditions Favorable

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY, July 10.

FOLLOWING a lull in the leaf market incident to the national holiday, which extended from July 3 to 6, there have been signs of renewed activity this week among the big factors in Water Street. Most of the interests centered on wrapper leaf, and the new Sumatra importations have been moving out at a lively rate. Opinions vary as to the yield of the new Sumatra, but the concensus of opinion seems to be that the yield will be higher than last year's, although the colors are not running as uniform in most of the importations. There has been a very active sale of Florida shade-grown wrappers, and the stock on this class of wrappers is being rapidly reduced. Havana importers, who have recently visited Cuba, report that the high prices now being asked for the 1913 crop are almost prohibitive, and little buying will be done at the present figures. The importations of Havana into New York within the last fortnight have been quite heavy, and all the old goods have been moving out of the warehouses quite briskly.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, July 12.

ALTHOUGH the past two weeks have found most of the Philadelphia cigar manufacturers quite busy, there have been signs of a slackening up in orders, which have caused some of the manufacturers to curtail their working forces. Upon the whole, however, there has been no cause to complain, either among the cigar manufacturers or the leaf dealers. The demand for good wrappers either in Connecticut, Florida, or Sumatra, continues unabated, and the stock of Florida shade-grown on hand in this market is being depleted. The sale of 1909-1911 Pennsylvania is reported to be picking up by some of the local dealers.

Hipple Brothers, L. J. Haeusermann & Sons, Lewis Bremmer's Sons, Loeb-Nunez Tobacco Co., Benjamin Labe & Sons, and other prominent Third Street dealers, report improvement in business since the "Fourth." Havana leaf is moving with activity in some quarters, and the new Sumatra seems to be giving general satisfaction.

YORK, July 10.

The principal item of interest in leaf tobacco circles is the steady demand for Sumatra and domestic shade-grown wrapper stock. The large manufacturers are contracting for this class of goods as rapidly as it is placed in the market, and the increased cigar output has grown until it looks as if the demand for Sumatra would exceed the supply, and the consumption of domestic shade-grown wrapper stock will probably exceed all previous records.

The demand for filler still continues firm, a number of the packers falling back on their 1909 crop, which has been held as reserve stock. Seconds and binders have also been cleared wherever possible to make room for the stock which will have first call shortly.

The storms of last week did some damage in the outlying districts, several tobacco sheds in the vicinity of Shenk's Ferry being blown over, while a shed belonging to Michael Dietz was completely destroyed. Daniel FFry, near Stoner's Station, also suffered the demolition of a tobacco shed.

The McGuigan Cigar Co., Red Lion, according to report, recently purchased 50,000 pounds of tobacco, which is probably the largest transaction which occurred during the past fortnight.

LANCASTER, July 9.

Conditions in the local leaf market are still quiet, though there have been a few sales of 1909 and 1911 crop. The growers have felt the scarcity and high prices for plants, and a number of farmers have planted other crops, believing more money can be made than in raising tobacco.

The weather of the past few days has been ideal for tobacco growing, and plants already set have shown a marked improvement, though those set before the frost show the greater increase. Cutworms have appeared in greater numbers than usual in several parts of the county, and growers were prompt to take the necessary steps to prevent any considerable damage.

Practically all the growers will have finished planting by the 10th or 15th of the month and with the recent rains conditions are favorable for the plants securing a good start to withstand a summer drought.

The packers have little to report, their operations recently being confined to jobbing operations, but reports received from the 1912 crop indicate that the sweating is progressing without any more than the usual amount of rot.

The storm of last week did some damage to the young plants, but an examination of the beds early this week developed the fact that the loss was not anything like what was feared on Saturday and Sunday.

Outlying sections reported a barn or two destroyed, but the clear weather permitted the packers to move the crops to other places, and it is believed there will be comparatively little loss from this source.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, July 7.

THE tobacco planting season in this section is just about being finished, having been delayed by the heat wave which swept through this section of the country late last month and continued for nearly two weeks. Many of the fields which were planted here in the heated term and were burned out by the scorching sun are now being replanted. When the growers found that they could not fight the weather, they desisted in their efforts until the heat wave was broken, and now that the cooler weather has arrived they are getting busy to finish the planting. Local markets are reported entirely bare of any transactions worthy of note on old leaf. Shipments out of storage last week were less than 300 cases. From Stoughton come reports that much damage is being done among growing tobacco by cutworms, which the growers are fighting desperately. Sampling in a moderate way has begun at Janesville, but it is yet too early for any results. Four hundred cases were shipped out of storage at that point last week.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, July 10.

CONDITIONS have been quite favorable for the growers in the Connecticut Valley during the past two weeks, and as a result the new crop is in an excellent condition. Tobacco under cloth is growing rapidly and the plants are all in a flourishing condition. Some of the early set tobacco has been hoed out the second time. From Feeding Hills comes the report that the Cuba-Connecticut Tobacco Co. are making preparations to erect a new building on the foundation of their barn, which was destroyed last August. The new building, which will be used for storage purposes, will be two stories high and 100 by 40 feet in dimensions. The same company has also broken ground in the Shoemaker-Lane section to erect a big tobacco shed, replacing one destroyed by fire last May.

Reports from Granby as to the new crop are quite optimistic. At Springfield, Mass., reports are that the 1913 tobacco crop has been entirely transplanted. Timely rains have improved the conditions of the growing plants.

KENTUCKY.

LOUISVILLE, July 8.

THE burley tobacco crop in Central Kentucky and throughout the burley belt, is now all in the ground. About 85 per cent. of the crop was planted before the recent rains, which arrived in time to help along the growing. As to the prospects of the 1913 crop nothing definite can now be stated, although it is believed that it will not be any larger and probably not as large as 1912. Tobacco farmers in the burley section have planted much seed of the colory type tobacco, because of the strong and rapidly growing demand for this class of burley. The yield of this class is never very heavy. From Carlisle County come reports that the tobacco crop in that section promises to be unusually light, some farmers having planted only one-fourth of the normal acreage.

At Henderson it is stated that the threats of the night riders will considerably decrease the acreage of tobacco in Webster, Union and Henderson Counties.

From Southern Ohio, burley district, come reports that, although the acreage is practically the same as last year, the drought which has prevailed during June made some of the growers pessimistic as to the outlook, and they will be well pleased if they can get out a crop as big as 1912. There is practically no burley in the hands of growers in that section, the available supply having long since passed to the breaks of Cincinnati and Louisville.

Two purchasing agents, representing the French government, recently visited the Baltimore market and then went to Ohio and Kentucky, placing large orders for all types of tobacco to be used by the French monopoly.

Washington Tobacco Crop Report

IN the report up to July 1, which was issued by the Department of Agriculture on July 9, the following figures were given out as official concerning the 1913 tobacco crop of all kinds in the United States: Acreage, 1,144,350; condition, 82.8 per cent.; yield, 80.9 per cent.; production (estimated), 926,000,000 pounds.

Heard Among Leaf Men

The suit of 30,000 members of the Burley Tobacco Society, demanding distribution of $550,000, the proceeds of the 1906-1907 pool, has attracted considerable attention throughout Kentucky. The suit was instituted by W. H. Metcalfe and C. L. Griffith, tobacco growers, acting on behalf of themselves and other members of the society.

Cable advices from Jacob Labe attending the Sumatra inscription at Rotterdam, June 28, state that he purchased 100 bales on that date for Benjamin Labe & Sons, importers and packers, Philadelphia.

Articles of incorporation were filed by the Independent Tobacco Warehouse, which will start a new tobacco sales warehouse in Lexington, Ky. Capital, $80,000. J. Waller Rodes, Jr., R. L. Stivers, L. M. Land, W. F. Land, of Lexington, and Charles Connor, of Paris.

A large shipment of leaf tobacco, consisting of 831 hogsheads and weighing 1,118,732 pounds, was carried to Liverpool from Pensacola, Fla., on the Spanish steamship "Vivina," which cleared July 1. The tobacco is valued at $100,685.

At a meeting of the warehousemen of the section south of the Pee Dee River, held in Florence, S. C., Saturday, all markets except Lamar were represented: Mayesville, Darlington, Timmonsville, Olanta, Manning, Kingstree, Lake City, Johnsonville, Hemmingway and Florence. It was decided to open the markets on July 10 for the reception of tobacco. It was also determined to continue to oppose in every way the selling of tobacco on the farms, whereby the farmer loses the difference between what his tobacco will bring on the market, where it is finally sold, and what he received from the man who will put it on the market.

The Warrenton Tobacco Company, North Carolina, lost $60,000 in the burning of its warehouse with 20,000 pounds of tobacco.

For the purpose of operating a warehouse for the purchase and sale of leaf tobacco, the Planters' Warehouse Co., of Henderson, Vance County, N. C., was recently incorporated with a capital stock of $50,000. Wm. B. Daniel, Oscar S. Faulkner, S. H. Satterwhite, James A. Kelly and C. J. Smith, of Henderson, are named as the incorporators.

The new addition to the Bloch Bros. Tobacco Factory, Wheeling, W. Va., the "Home of Mail Pouch," is now completed and will shortly be occupied. The building is very spacious and is five stories in height. New machinery is to be installed and it is reported that the working force, also, will be increased.

Blazing the Trail

"If a man can write a better book, preach a better sermon or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, though he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door." But if he can make a better cigar, he'll wait a long time to attract the trade unless he advertises. Quality, backed with publicity, will blaze the trail more quickly. And he'll find the most profitable publicity in "The World."

Non-Poisonous Match Law Now in Effect

ACCORDING to the new Federal regulations, which became effective July 1, all match manufacturers in the United States are prohibited the use of any poisonous substance in the manufacture of matches. The new regulations do not as yet affect the jobber and retailer of matches, who can continue to dispose of their present stocks of the old-style matches for an indefinite period, but as fast as these goods are exhausted, the new type of domestic non-poisonous matches will take their places.

The new law affects only the tips of the matches. Manufacturers are taking steps to use in many cases sulphur only, and eliminating the poisonous chemicals previously used, which were dangerous alike to the workmen employed in the match industry and to the consumer.

Calabash Pipes Displace Farmer's Corncobs

The corncob pipe, long a favorite with the farmer, is being displaced by the calabash. A Kansas Congressman says that he received over 100 letters this year from admiring constituents urging that instead of the generally useless collection of garden seeds which the Congressman had been sending each year to these constituents, would he please confine his seed remembrance to the African calabash gourd? All the Kansas Congressmen have had the same sort of requests, and several of them have had to ask other Congressmen who had no calabash gourd applicants in their constituency to lend them some gourd seeds.

The Kansas farmers are staunch believers in growing the things they use as much as possible. So they are growing their own calabash gourd for pipe-smoking. The seeds are planted in warm, moist places, and are allowed to spread over the ground and not trained on a trellis or over a fence. Letting the vines run on the ground will allow the gourd to turn into the proper pipe shape naturally, and they do not need bending when green and being placed in a broad mold to give them the proper shape. Standing the gourd on end just a few days after the flower has dropped off will bend it around just the right angle.

Some use meerschaum bowls inside the gourd, but most of the Kansas farmers who grow their own pipes use plaster of paris bowls, cast in the gourd, or they make the bowls out of asbestos powder; the thin asbestos paper used in wrapping theam pipes.

False Tobacco Cures Should Be Stopped

The Minneapolis "Tribune" refuses, among other classes of objectional advertising, the advertisement of so-called tobacco cures, believing as a general proposition, that the stuff sold contains dangerous drugs. Anent this subject of tobacco cures, and the advertisement of a doctor who guaranteed to cure any one of the tobacco habit in four weeks for $10, a writer in an exchange says:

"Nobody wants to be cured of the tobacco habit. Persons with almost every other habit take a notion now and then to quit, but men who smoke and chew glory in the fact. They may be tortured with all the fleshly ills that man is heir to, but tobacco is a solace to their woes rather than an aggravation. I have known a number of doctors who undertook to uproot the tobacco evil. Every last one of them went broke, as he deserved to do, and to get on his feet again he finally had to turn his attention to some habit or disease that people really wanted to get rid of."—Exchange.

A novel innovation recently introduced by Peter E. Morrow, at Yonkers, N. Y., was the free offering of a genuine French briar pipe with each 50-cent humidor jar of "Tuxedo" tobacco.

To the Cigar Jobbers and Distributors in the United States

If you want to make your business profitable and get the desirable light colors which the trade demands, and to enable your cigar manufacturers to give you a better quality cigar for the money insist that they give you a good cigar covered with an American Sumatra Wrapper.

The manufacturer is not able to pay $1.85 per pound duty on imported tobacco and build as good a cigar as those which are covered with American Sumatra Tobacco, on which no duty is paid.

Skilled labor is high, Binders are high, good Fillers are high, everything pertaining to cigar manufacture is high, but the difference in the cost of wrappers, will enable the manufacturer to give you a finer article for your customer and more profits for you.

The Florida-Georgia wrapper is not a substitute. It is the

STANDARD MONEY-MAKING WRAPPER OF THE HOUR

Over 20,000 bales used last year by the leading cigar manufacturers in this country proves it.

Increased use year after year shows that progressive manufacturers realize the quality of the Florida-Georgia wrapper.

They use it in preference to Sumatra, strictly on its merit, regardless of cost.

WHICH WOULD YOU RATHER BE—PREJUDICED OR PROSPEROUS? IT'S UP TO YOU.

USE

STANDARD PURE TOBACCO BINDERS

-and SAVE 100% and more

The U.S. Government Patents issued February 6th, 1912, shows authoritatively that the STANDARD PURE TOBACCO BINDER is manufactured ONLY of tobacco stems, cuttings, and scraps, scientifically produced by an intricate process which results in a soft, pliable, clean, sweet Tobacco Binder of exceptional quality has directed that this binder be entered as "tobacco in process of manufacture."

It is pure and neutral and contains nothing in its manufacture but the product of a Tobacco Leaf.

A Most Remarkable Tobacco Proposition

Manufacturers of low-priced Cigars who are using Tobacco Binders costing about $1.00 per thousand for the cheapest grown binders will welcome this new invention. Preliminary tests in the factories of a half dozen prominent manufacturers of low-priced Cigars have demonstrated that there is a saving of 100% and more from the use of STANDARD PURE TOBACCO BINDERS. It takes but two pounds of these Binders to cover 1000 Cigars as against six or seven pounds of regular grown binders. Thus the former costs at least two-thirds less than the latter, and there is an additional saving in the elimination of WASTE, CASING, STRIPPING, CUTTING and LABOR.

500 binders to the pound at 20c the pound, ready to use after lying for about 24 hours in damp cuttings.

Six Standard Sizes and Two Stogie sizes.

No Casing.
No Stripping.
No Cutting.
No Waste.

Use Standard Pure Tobacco Binders and save LABOR TIME and MONEY

A Uniform Burn

The Standard Pure Tobacco Binder causes the Cigar to burn perfectly to a clear white ash, even if the wrapper is not a free burner.

A Unit Blend

The Standard Pure Tobacco Binder absorbs the flavor of the filler and wrapper, thus neutralizing the taste and causing a Unit Blend.

Saves You Over 100%

Every manufacturer of low-priced Cigars will eventually use the Standard Binder at one-third the cost of ordinary Grown Binders. Thus a big initial saving, plus the elimination of additional labor, time, space, casing, stripping, and waste; an accumulative saving of over 100%.

Proof on Demand

Just say that you are interested, mention sizes and quantity that you might use and we will forward at once sufficient samples for any tests to which you may wish to put our STANDARD PURE TOBACCO BINDERS. We send samples prepaid, absolutely FREE with the obligation entirely on us.

WORLD TOBACCO CO. OF ENGLAND

British Business Will Have an Added Huge Competitor—Mr. Whelan Not Accessible

SOME months ago, George J. Whelan, who founded the United Cigar Stores Company of America, and to whose genius for organization much of the credit of the success of that vast concern must be given, announced in a public interview that he believed the city of London was a splendid field for a similar enterprise.

Since his retirement from the presidency of the United Cigar Stores Company of America, Mr. Whelan has spent practically all of his time abroad, cruising sometimes on his yacht, but evidently planning to carry out the thought which he expressed long since.

Cable advices from London, under date of July 23, stated that The World Tobacco Co., Ltd., had applied for a charter under the laws of Great Britain with an authorized capital of 500,000 pounds sterling, which company, it was surmised, would organize a system of branch stores along the lines of the United in this country. Mr. Whelan's name was mentioned as being interested.

The officials of the United Cigar Stores Co. in New York, when interviewed, professed entire ignorance of the British concern and stated that they had received no advices as to what the plans of the World Company were. Later, it was announced that the new concern was an offspring of the Tobacco Products Corporation of America, and had been organized to compete with the British-American Tobacco Company and the Imperial Tobacco Company of Great Britain in both the wholesale and retail business.

As detailed in the WORLD some time ago, when the Tobacco Products Co. opened their cigarette factory in Canada, it was understood that they had been offered for purchase one of the leading chain-store companies now operating in London, but that negotiations fell through.

This new move would indicate, apparently, that the company intend to build up their own business in the British Metropolis and not attempt to remodel a business already organized.

A cable to the WORLD from our London correspondent under date of July 30, states that he was unable to locate Mr. Whelan in London, and that the articles of incorporation were impounded at Somerset House, and would not be made public for some time.

F. Stober Locates in Reading

THE cigar manufacturing industry of Reading, Pa., has received a notable addition in that F. Stober, who operates one of the most important factories in Middle Western Pennsylvania, at Warren, has decided to locate a plant in Reading, Pa.

During the past month Mr. Stober leased the Riegel Building, at Front and Washington Streets, Reading, Pa., and mechanics are now busy placing an additional story thereon and remodelling the premises for manufacturing purposes.

Mr. Stober's goods are very popular in Warren and vicinity and he frequently seats as high as 150 cigarmakers. He is opening the factory at Reading with 50 cigarmakers, and if his accessibility to the leaf tobacco centres and labor market proves successful, he will eventually concentrate his entire plant in Reading. He will open up about the middle of August.

NO RECEIVER FOR BURLEY TOBACCO CO.

Officers Defend Themselves Successfully—"City Club" Proves a Success—Election Next October

COVINGTON, KY., July 28.

AFTER a long drawn out suit in the Circuit Court at Covington, Ky., Judge Harbeson handed down a decision on the twenty-seventh instant refusing to appoint a receiver for the Burley Tobacco Co. on application of certain contesting stockholders. The evidence before the court showed that while the Burley Company had recently been spending thousands of dollars in developing their business, especially the "City Club" brand of smoking tobacco, that the corporation was thoroughly solvent and a receiver seemed unnecessary.

The "City Club" brand is now one of the principal outputs of the Louisville factory, due to their advertising, according to the testimony of the manager of that plant.

With this proceeding out of the way, the company can now go ahead and fulfil the mandate of the Kentucky Court of Appeals in the re-election of officers, the present board having been declared as illegally holding office by the court.

Park & Tilford Buy "Mi Favorita" Factory

As indicated last March, Park & Tilford have finally closed the deal for the purchase of the "Mi Favorita" cigar factory at Key West, and are now exclusive owners both of this brand and the plant in which it is produced. This deal has been pending for several months and was finally consummated during Mr. A. W. Arnold's recent visit to New York, who, it is understood, is president of the holding company as well as the factory manager. The offices of the factory will be located in Park & Tilford's new wholesale warehouse, 529 West Forty-second Street, New York.

Mr. Arnold has been for years with the factory and no changes will be made in the conduct of the business, for the present at least.

Balkan War Has Not Cut Off Turkish Tobacco

In regard to any possible deficiency of Turkish tobacco as a result of the Balkan War, D. B. Muratti, managing director of Messrs. B. Muratti, Sons & Co., of London, said recently that any number of inquiries reached him as to the possible shortage and consequent increase of prices. He said:

"I have just returned from my annual visit to Turkey—visiting tobacco centres, extending for three months. I can state authoritatively that there is no danger of any shortage. I traveled over the most important plantations just before the commencement of the war, and from information since received from my various managers in the Turkish growing districts I do not think any substantial damage has been done to the fields, the military movements have been so rapid.

"This year's crop in Cavalla and Xanthi is from 30 per cent. to 35 per cent. less than the previous year's crop it is true, owing to some of the peasants having planted rather late, and also owing to the heavy rains, and the quality, although still passable, is not so good as last year. But as regards Samsoun and Bafra the 1912 crop is about the same amount as the previous year, and, so far as I can see, there are prospects of the quality being good."

Is Enjoyment of Tobacco an Optical Illusion?

Physician Doubts Whether Tobacco Has Really an Odor or Distinctive Flavor—Questions the Cultivated Taste

A PHYSICIAN who has been an inveterate smoker has discovered—or, at least he has the evidence of his senses which inclines him to the belief that he has discovered that tobacco is tasteless and scentless, and that the pleasure of smoking is both an optical and a physical illusion.

What he says about tobacco refers to tobacco when used by a smoker. All smokers agree that the tobacco or the smoke has flavor and sweet odor if it is good. They say also that there are as many flavors and colors as there are different kinds of tobacco. This physician points out in an article published in the "Canadian Tobacco Journal," that there must be a mistake here, as frequently there will be a violent dispute between veteran smokers as to the grade and character of a particular cigar or a given brand of tobacco. To one it will be the essence of purity and a delight, and to the other burned cabbage and quite as obnoxious.

The doctor raises a question about the cultivated taste and wonders if it is not pure assumption.

"Why is it," he inquired, "that an inveterate pipe smoker will break a cigar up and smoke it in his pipe in preference to smoking the cigar as it is? That kind of a smoker will tell you that he gets nothing out of the cigar. The cigar has lost its flavor for him. The railroad track laborer smokes a heavy, juicy plug tobacco that more refined pipe smokers would find gagging if they tried it. The track laborer drinks it in after his evening meal, when he has the spirit to contemplate it, as if it were the breath of heaven. No doubt it has all the fragrance to him that a 50-cent cigar has to the smoker who smokes 50-cent cigars.

"I have known men who had the 50-cent cigar habit—not one particular brand, but a number graded at that price. Now, to these men a perfecto was only tolerable, and the two for a quarter, which are the best that most of us can afford to buy, except on state occasions, were simply not tobacco at all, but merely some bad-smelling weed.

"Take the case of the men who smoke two for a quarter cigars, and the accepted makes of pipe tobacco, and don't he find that anything below that grade is a nuisance? Not one of us can smoke a 5-center with any degree of pleasure, but if the 5-center happens to be not a real 5-center, but an imitation of a 10 or 15-center, we can sometimes enjoy it, we get the flavor we are after, or we think we do, and thereby the comfort.

"Non-smokers may smell smoke, and they may distinguish tobacco smoke from other kinds of smoke, since scarcely any smoke is odorless, but I am quite sure that what they smell is not at all the same soothing fragrance as that which comes to the nostrils of the smoker. It may be so in varying degrees as the non-smoker becomes sensitive to smoke by continued exposure to it, but never, I'm satisfied, does the non-smoker get the bouquet as the smoker gets it; and I doubt that the non-smoker who never smoked gets it without some of the disagreeable tobacco smell with it.

"What I say of the smell in doubting its existence refers to the smell that comes with the smoke and which is the balm of Gilead to the smoker. It pleases his nostrils and his mouth and his throat and gives him a sense of well-being because it seems sweet, fragrant, and wholesome. These are the essential oils of the leaf that are burning up, and from them in the process of distillation he gets his illusions, primarily, and I believe he gets secondary illusions within himself when his sensory nerves become so abnormal that they react to impressions that come to them as smoke is drawn in or visually blown out.

"The most experienced smoker may light a cigar and carefully cap it so that he will not be able to see the fire, or he may light a pipe, with a cover on it and drop the cover down so that he cannot see the fire. Then let him go into a dark closet, where there is not a suggestion of light, and within two minutes, I should say, he will not be able to say positively that either his cigar or his pipe is lit, though he may puff continuously from the time that he enters the closet. Not being able to see the smoke, he will not be able to taste it or smell it. His impressions will be precisely the same as if he pulled on an empty pipe or an unlit cigar.

"I swore off smoking once for two weeks, and for years prior to that time I had been an inveterate smoker. In that two weeks I never slept, much at first to my astonishment. The reason, of course, was very simple. I had accustomed my nerves to a treatment, and without this treatment I did not act normally. Being accustomed to receive either stimulation or suppression from tobacco or the fumes of it they were in a state of vigil when deprived of it. This observation caused me to stop smoking for three years. When I began again I was surprised to find that the taste of tobacco was only a memory to me. All kinds of tobacco were alike, and like so much dried leaves. I got nothing whatever out of the smoke except, possibly, the suggestion of raw tobacco, just as it might taste to chew. I can't say that I got any odor of it that was anything near as grateful to my senses as it was when I was a first-class smoker in training. I tried all kinds of pipe tobacco, and before my appetite came back I had experimented with all kinds of cigars. After a while, in a few weeks, I guess, any kind of tobacco that was generally considered good and almost any kind of a cigar seemed good to me, but within that few weeks none was any good. It was just tobacco as it grows in the fields without any subtle charm.

"I am again a non-smoker. It is two years since I smoked habitually and I have experimented several times within the period, only to find that the tobacco had lost its seductive power over me. I like the thought of it, but I dislike the taste of it, after the first few puffs. The first few puffs seem promising of the freshness and the fragrance of old, but after that it is no more to me than burned wood, except for the pungency of the raw tobacco taste, which is rather repugnant to the senses of all persons, except those who chew tobacco or use snuff.

"In the early use of tobacco, when he is acquiring the habit, it must come to his recollection that the aroma was different then from whatever it has been since he has developed the habit. To some beginners, as it is with me now, tobacco was tasteless and odorless, in the same sense of having anything like perfume, while others have told me that their first cigar smelled like heavy or bad cologne to them. This satisfies me that it is all an illusion, largely an optical illusion and largely a sensual illusion. I mean that there is nothing inherent in the tobacco that is productive of a pleasurable sensation, as there is in food."

JOBBERS & DISTRIBUTORS DEPARTMENT

HEMMETER CIGAR CO. REORGANIZE

Capitalized at One Million Dollars—Officers Elected

(Special to The Tobacco World.)

DETROIT, July 26.

THE Hemmeter Cigar Co., of Detroit, Mich., has reorganized its business to meet the conditions arising from a remarkable growth, which has been phenomenal since the plant was moved here from Saginaw, Mich., in 1897. The company has just capitalized at $1,000,000, 25 per cent. of which is preferred stock. The officers of the new company are: John P. Hemmeter, president and general manager; Byron J. Trembley, first vice-president and superintendent; Herbert S. Hemmeter, second vice-president; Fred Hemmeter, treasurer and assistant manager; Percival A. Barnard, secretary and auditor.

Henry J. Zegers, well-known South Chicago cigar jobber, is pushing with much success the "La Saramita" cigars, made by Shields-Wertheim Co., Cleveland, O.

New Franklin McVeagh Manager

E. B. YOUNG has just been appointed manager of the cigar and tobacco department of Franklin McVeagh & Co. He has engaged Oscar Frank, formerly with Sprague, Warner & Co., and lately with the Havana-American Cigar Co. as a city salesman, and turned over a big route to him.

The McVeagh house will institute a big campaign on "Havana Ribbon" and "Diamond Crown" in 5-cent goods, and also push a line of "First Consul" cigars of P. Pohalski & Co. They have recently been appointed local distributors of Bayuk Brothers' "Havana Ribbon" cigars, and manager Young is already getting this brand in many new places and good display most everywhere.

L. Poinsette, of the well-known jobbing house of Oberholz & Poinsette, Kansas City, reached New York on the fourteenth instant. His firm are the accredited distributors of E. H. Gato's "1871" cigars in their territory.

Wholesale Grocers in Convention

THE members of the Southern Wholesale Grocers' Association held one of the most successful conventions in their history at Charlotte, N. C., on July 16, 17 and 18, and accomplished much that should prove of benefit in honorable and able merchandising in the South.

The annual banquet was held on the evening of July 17, over which M. C. Mayer presided, and on Saturday, the 19th inst., the members of the association went to Reidsville, N. C., in a special train as guests of the American Tobacco Co. to inspect the big tobacco plants located there. J. H. McLaurin was re-elected president of the association and stated that the recent Government investigation of the association had proven that the organization had nothing to fear as far as their legitimate dealings were concerned.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Drug Co., the cigar department of which is managed by Mr. Rohrman, has just taken on the distribution of "Romado" cigarettes, made by the Tobacco Products Co., of New York. The "P. W. D." cigar, a private 5-cent brand sold in local drug stores, is enjoying a big demand.

"Barking Dog" in Distant Points

It is now nearly twenty-five years since Godfrey S. Mahn introduced to the trade their brand of smoking tobacco known as "Barking Dog," and for three years past, Martin J. Sheridan, of the firm, who looks after the New York end, has been reawakening interest in the brand by his advertising bull dog parading Broadway,—pipe in mouth, and blanketed with "Barking Dog Never Bites."

Recently the firm have been doing some judicious advertising and have been gratified in receiving orders during the past few days from Constantinople, Turkey, and Regina, Saskatchewan and many other points.

Their Philadelphia headquarters are at Eleventh and Chestnut Streets, and in New York at 1169 Broadway.

Label of Klingenstein Co.'s "Trade Mark" Cigar

The Klingenstein Company's "Trade-Mark"

THE Klingenstein Company, the big Los Angeles distributors, whose headquarters are at 109 North Los Angeles Street, have been creating a sensation recently on the Pacific Coast in the distribution which they have obtained on the 5-cent brand of "Trade Mark."

These goods are made by S. Fernandez & Co., of Tampa, which concern, as is well known, is owned by the sterling old house of Regensburg, and for a 5-cent smoke, they have gripped the consumers of the Pacific Coast like as in a vise.

We reproduce here a half-tone of the "Trade Mark" label which but faintly indicates the attractive manner in which the goods are packed. The labels are red, white and gold, heavily embossed, and the package is a delight to the eye.

THE subject of a woman smoking seems to be an ever new one in furnishing the daily press and space writers with stuff.

Women have smoked cigarettes for years and like them, and this applies to all grades of society alike, so that the quicker this fact is admitted, to my mind, the better it will be for a long-suffering public.

The next question is, how long before women will bridge the gap and become inveterate smokers of cigars as well as cigarettes, Many of the female cigarmakers get their daily allowance of smokes and use them steadily, equally with the men, and to my positive knowledge, two or three leading actresses in the United States quite prefer a puff of a fragrant Havana to that of a cigarette.

My good friend, Connie Ediss, who was for many years the belle of the Gaiety in London, enjoyed her cigar equally with any of her male friends, and did not hesitate to light a weed whenever she felt disposed, no matter who was present.

Recent reports are to the effect that the up-to-date women of London are discarding the cigarettes for pipes and cigars. In line with this "advancement," a Piccadilly tobacconist has placed a pipe on the market which is called the Belgique. It is made especially for use by women, being made of wood, and retailing at one dollar. Pipes, however, are not in as great demand as cigars, which are long and thin and cost fifty cents apiece.

Lord Lonsdale, who is an old friend of costermongers in general, was recently sauntering along the line of "pearl kings" at the Olympia Horse Show offering his famous cigars (long and very black) to the drivers and tentatively to the women with them, and was obviously taken aback when a staid matron took the cigar, bit the end and accepted a light from one of three hurrying men.

I guess in future he will be a trifle more careful in handing out his choice weeds to the fishwives.

Here's one from San Francisco that suggests an idea for promoting sales: On July 19, John Orin, who has a daily routine of ups and downs in a 'Frisco elevator which he runs for a living, went to a Market-Street retail shop and bought a lot of "two for five" cigars of the stogie family. He pulled one of the smokes from the package and in biting off the end his teeth encountered a rock-like substance. Orin thought for an instant he had bitten on a bit of Pennsylvania coal, but investigation showed that the little stranger in his cigar was a well-cut ½ carat diamond.

He is convinced now that cheap cigars are the only ones which suit his taste, but incidentally he is worrying lest some little maid who was employed in the factory from which his cigars came is mourning the loss of her engagement ring.

I don't think it would be a bad idea to pack a loose diamond or so in every ten thousand stogies and advertise the fact broadcast.

Apropos of the new anti-cigarette law which prohibits the sale or gift of cigarettes or papers to minors, I recall an incident that occurred some months ago, when an early morning train landed me in a city several hours before the cigar stores had opened for the day.

After an all night session in the smoker my stock of smokes was completely exhausted, and I began looking for some place where these could be had by purchase.

After several fruitless trips to locked doors, a bright, wide-awake "newsie" approached with the usual salutation of "morning paper, sir."

Noticing the strings from a bag of "makings" dangling from his pocket as he turned, I agreed to purchase the bag or any part of it that the owner would part with.

He looked his disgust for a "man" who was too mean to contribute enough for one "pill" and generously offered the bag.

I searched every pocket for the papers, but there was none, and casually approaching my benefactor I remarked that my stock of papers seemed to have gone the road of my smokes.

From the bottom of an unused pocket the papers were produced, and I started rolling the cigarette, anticipating the pleasure of a long hale, when it dawned on me that I had thrown away my empty matchbox just before leaving the train.

Business was beginning to brisk up, and the embryo salesman was getting nervous and had just started away on a run for a sale when I called him back with a polite request for a match.

I was subjected to as thorough an inspection as ever occurred in my life, and after accepting the proffered match was dismissed with, "Gee, mister, you ain't got nothin' but the appetite."

Commissioner of Public Safety Hicken, Duluth, Minn., is strictly on the job where the sale of cigarettes is concerned. No more will cigarettes be sold by dealers who are unable to produce their licenses and which can be obtained only upon the payment of $25. Recently, about a dozen and a half stores selling cigarettes without a license were visited, and were ordered to secure a license or run the risk of being prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

It seems that a number of dealers began selling cigarettes as soon as they learned that their application had been granted by the City Council, not waiting until they had received the license which was required to be placed in a conspicuous place, according to law.

Commissioner Hicken expects that a warning will be sufficient. If not, a duty lies upon the authorities to bring prosecution for violation of the Westlake law. As the provisions of the Westlake law have been moulded into an ordinance, arrests can be made under it and trials had without a jury.

The Tobacco World's Registration Bureau

DURING the past week, in the first mail of the day, our Registration Bureau received applications from three different concerns for the use of the word "Denali" as a title for cigars.

Our records were searched carefully, and it was ascertained that the title, as far as we could know, was available for one of them. It so happened that one of the applicants was a lithographic concern which advertised in the TOBACCO WORLD, another was a New York firm of cigar manufacturers, and the third a cigar box manufacturer. The title was allotted to the first application, which was opened without discrimination whatsoever, and this brings us to the point which we desire to make, i. e., that the TOBACCO WORLD Registration Bureau is not run for the individual benefit of any one customer, either large or small.

Our office receives on an average forty or more applications per day for titles, and during the past month the percentage of titles which we felt might be safely certified, as far as our records were concerned, was about six out of a hundred.

When it is considered that the charge of our bureau is twenty-seven cents for a search and one dollar for a registration, the trade can quickly appreciate the fact that if we were conducting this bureau for profit only, it would be run along loose lines and we would be only too glad to issue certificates for titles which were questionable. As a matter of fact, the chief complaint from our thousands of customers is that we are too strict in disallowing titles.

In numerous instances we have turned back titles which had been registered many years ago by firms long since out of business, and after a careful search by the firm presently interested in obtaining the title, and report by them that no trace of either firm or title could be found, we have re-registered at the applicant's own risk, and such fact is carefully set out by the certificate.

It must be remembered by everyone, however, that no registration bureau can guarantee the validity of any claim for a title, except as a record of priority of actual use as a name for a certain brand of cigars, cigarettes or tobacco. The United States registration is along the same lines, with the added difficulty that cigar manufacturers, except in rare cases, have long since given up paying the large government fees for registration at Washington, and confined their registrations to the bureaus run by the trade press.

No registration certificate is a guarantee to the holder that the brand is protected against possible attack, for any little cigarmaker who can prove to a court's satisfaction that he has legitimately made and sold a brand of cigars prior to the date upon which another manufacturer commenced to use his brand name, can stop the sale of the latter's cigars and obtain an accounting, and this irrespective of the fact that the first manufacturer might not have ever registered his brand in any bureau, and that the firm who commenced making the brand later might hold letters patent from Washington or certificates from all the bureaus.

It is, however, a good trade custom that manufacturers should have a record made of the brands they intend to use, and these records should be handled by a bureau which is unbiased, fearless and not run for any manufacturer's especial benefit.

During the regime of the present management of our bureau this has been our rigid policy, and it will be maintained.

Samuel Addison Wolf.

With the most profound sorrow, we announce the death to the trade of Samuel Addison Wolf, who has been the acting editor and advertising manager of the TOBACCO WORLD since it came under the present ownership some four years ago.

Mr. Wolf was born in Shamokin, Pa., 33 years ago, and came from the finest Pennsylvania Dutch stock of that section. He early evinced a remarkable aptitude for newspaper work and journalism and when but 18 years of age was city editor of the leading Shamokin daily paper. He came to Philadelphia about 15 years ago and quickly secured a position on the Philadelphia "North American."

He soon became news editor of the "North American" and for five years occupied the position as head of the copy desk, resigning to accept a position with the "American Carpet and Upholstery Journal," Philadelphia, the publishers of which eventually bought the TOBACCO WORLD.

Since his advent in the tobacco field, Mr. Wolf has won to himself a host of friends who recognized in him a man essentially clean, thoroughly independent and remarkably able.

His truthfulness and straightforwardness were qualities which the veriest stranger immediately recognized and respected.

Mr. Wolf died from an acute attack of appendicitis, following an operation at the Chestnut Hill Hospital on Friday, July 25. He lingered until last Sunday, but the physicians saw at once after the operation that the case was hopeless.

He is survived by a widow, who was Miss Eva Nagel, talented artist, and two children, a son of five and an infant girl one month old.

The interment took place at his old home in Shamokin on July 29, after funeral services in Philadelphia.

S. Loewenthal & Sons Lease Big Quarters

DURING the past fortnight S. Loewenthal & Sons, the leaf tobacco importers and packers, have concluded the long-time lease on the big building at 123 Maiden Lane, which gives them the option of occupying it at their pleasure between now and May 1, next.

It is the firm's intention to give up their extra building at 190 Pearl Street and also their present quarters at 131 Maiden Lane, and concentrate their entire affairs in the new quarters.

Mechanics already have started work at 123, and when renovations and alterations are concluded the firm believes that they will have one of the handsomest and best equipped tobacco warehouses in the country.

The first floor will be devoted to a reception room and sample room for buyers, as well as beautiful private offices and counting rooms, and the five other stories will give them extraordinarily good accommodations for storage purposes. The building extends through to a small street in the rear, and in this way they will have the very best kind of shipping facilities.

Harry Loewenthal, of the firm, stated to a "World" man that their business had grown to such proportions that more room was absolutely imperative, if they wanted to handle their business properly, and this move has been the result. He further added that they were getting the most glowing reports from their big plantation in Quincy, Fla., where the much liked "Clover Leaf," Florida shade-grown, is raised.

Simon Batt & Co.'s New Location

DURING the past fortnight the offices and factory of S. Batt & Co. were removed from their old location on Canal Street to splendid quarters, 469-71 Broome Street, at the corner of Greene Street, and two short blocks west of Broadway.

Here the firm have leased four stories and basement, including the fine store floor, and the big bulk windows on two sides are all labeled to indicate the home of the "La Verdad" brand.

Handsome private offices have been fitted up for the members of the firm, the Messrs. Goldberg and Jess R. Batt, and the counting room and shipping departments are all that could be desired.

On Friday, July 18, after everything was shipshape in the new quarters, the factory foreman called the members of the firm upstairs and amid loud demonstrations of regard presented the firm with a superb big floral horseshoe with "Success" interwoven in pink and red roses. This beautiful piece has been on display for ten days past, and indicates to visitors that the bosses stand well with their employees at the Batt factory.

On Saturday, July 26, the employees of the firm held a big outing down at the Boulevard Hotel, on Long Island, which proved a huge success. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Goldberg and Mr. Jess Batt were the special guests of honor.

This late move of S. Batt & Co. disposes of all rumors that the firm would open a factory in Tampa. They looked into the matter and abandoned the idea.

United Cigar Stores to Dispense Soda

One of the most interesting announcements of the past fortnight comes from the United Cigar Stores Co. to the effect that they are going to install soda fountains in many of their stores in New York and Brooklyn.

The plans for the new United store at Broadway and Liberty Street provide for a magnificent soda fountain, and judging from the extraordinary business done by the fountain in Riker-Hegeman's store, a few steps away, as well as in Huyler's store close by, a big volume of business is guaranteed.

This move on the part of the United led to a rumor that they had bought the various soda stands belonging to the company known as Snow's Fountains, Inc., 120 Pearl Street, New York, but this is denied by both parties in interest.

The United Company have a big store at 35 Broad Street, and it is reported that a fine fountain will go in there at once. In other stores in New York, particularly the Davis & Klein branches, periodicals, stationery and novelties are now handled, and with soda fountains installed another interesting phase of tobacco merchandising is promised.

It is not a novelty for the United Company to sell soda water, for most of their Southern stores include fountains; in Jacksonville, Fla., for instance, their first store at Bay and Hogan Streets has a splendid fountain and does a big business. The same applies to Atlanta, Montgomery and other points, and the success of these has led to the venture in New York City.

H. Duys & Co. Get 7000 Bales

At the tenth Sumatra inscription of this year, the firm of H. Duys & Co., 170 Water Street, were again prominent among the buyers and the lots secured by them, amounting to about 300 bales, brought their total purchases of Sumatra up to the proud figure of 7000 bales. The lots, too, they assure us, were choice and secured at prices which will enable them to offer tempting lots to American cigar manufacturers.

"Fifty-six" Cigarettes Booming

MANAGER APPLETON, of the Cado Co., Inc., has had little time to think of a vacation during the past month, owing to the avalanche of orders which have been coming in from all sections on their now splendidly established brand of "Fifty-six" cigarettes. Their salesmen are all alert, high-class men, and are putting a gold mine of enthusiasm back of this brand.

The Cado Company have a carton which they have dubbed the "Silent Salesman," which is an ornament to any sales case, and shows one box of plain and one box of cork cigarettes, which has done much to stimulate sales after the goods have been stocked.

Montevierno & Co. have been having a nice run recently on their new size of "El Rayo" clear Havana, which they call the demi-tasse. The goods are finely adapted for a short smoke and are as sweet as a nut.

New York City Items

The many friends of Charles A. Stroude, New York manager for Berriman Bros., 1170 Broadway, the Tampa manufacturers, will be glad to learn that Mr. Stroude is convalescing at his home in Orange, N. J., after a siege of three months' illness, which started with an attack of pneumonia. Mr. M. W. Berriman, of the firm, has been actively engaged all summer at their New York office during Mr. Stroude's absence, and for the first time in years has been thus far unable to join his family who are up in Canada for the heated spell.

A. V. Jockel, vice-president of Ruy Lopez y Ca., upon his return from Key West says that their factory is running most satisfactorily with more men seated than for a long time. Business very satisfactory.

Fred R. Hoisington, president of the Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Co., spent the month of July with his family on his own little island, at North Isleboro, Me. Mr. Hoisington is enthusiastic over two things, "Savarona" cigars and his yacht "Priscilla." During his absence, Mr. Townsend, of the company, who recently returned from Omaha, was in charge of the Water Street headquarters.

Julius Lichtenstein, president of the American Sumatra Tobacco Co., returned last Saturday from his regular summer stay in Quincy, Fla., where their vast plantations are located. Recent reports from the district are altogether satisfactory, both as to quantity and quality of the crop which is now rapidly maturing. Mr. Lichtenstein will remain South about three weeks.

The regular quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent. on the common stock has been declared by the United Cigar Stores Co., and will be paid August 15, to stock of record August 12.

"Ess-en-cee"—New Cigarette

H. R. Kundhart, Osgood Hungerford, Henry Carpenter and Derby Crandall, are the officers of a new corporation, Ess-en-cee, Inc., which will shortly place on the market a new high-grade cigarette, to be manufactured at 27 East Forty-fifth Street. The company will put out a 25-cent package and Mr. Crandall will be the head of the sales force and Mr. Kundhart will be president.

Since the retirement from the Partagas factory, Habana, of E. Alonso, the work formerly handled by him has been assumed directly by Jose Fernandez, of the firm, or "Marquilla" as he is known to his intimate friends, assisted by his nephew, Jose Moran. This young man spent some time in New York two years ago and is well acquainted with New York ideas as gleaned from Robert E. Lane, their alert sales agent.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

WANTED—Experienced cigar manufacturer to locate factory in the livest city of 60,000 in the Middle West. No four-flushers need apply. Standard Binders Should Answer the Question

Invention of New Binder—Reduce Cost to One-third of Present Figures—Free Smoking Assured—Six Sizes Offered

In their first announcement to the trade on page 11 of this issue the Tobacco Production Co. of New Milford, Conn., direct attention to their recently patented cigar binders, which should merit the careful investigation of every cigar manufacturer.

The difficulties experienced by our manufacturers in years gone by of obtaining suitable binders are too well known to need recounting, and during the past ten years this question of binders has kept many of our most alert makers in constant worriment. It is admitted on all sides that recent crops have shown little yields of binders, and the average price on these has been steadily ascending.

The New Milford concern have now ready to market a binder made under patented processes of tobacco stems and cuttings exclusively, which they are prepared to guarantee will meet every possible demand in this important line. Their binders will make a perfect blend with any wrapper or filler, and the use of them is calculated to save thousands of dollars.

The new binders were invented by Adolph Moonelis, an expert New York tobacco man, who long since saw the difficulties in this line and set to work to overcome them.

After years of work he obtained his patents in February, 1912, and the Tobacco Production Co. was organized to make and market the new binders, with Mr. Moonelis as general manager.

The patent binders have been named the "Standard" binders and can be secured in six sizes, to accommodate a range of thirty sizes of cigars.

The goods are priced at 20 cents per pound, 500 binders to the pound, and when it is considered that ordinary leaf binders run considerably higher than $1 per thousand, while "Standard" binders can be had for 40 cents per thousand, the immediate saving in cost of manufacture is instantly apparent.

The goods are now ready for immediate delivery in 10 case lots, 200 pounds to the case, at the stated price of 20 cents per pound f. o. b. New Milford, Conn., and manufacturers who are interested can receive samples and every detail upon application.

Details of the method of manufacturing "Standard" binders are given in the following excerpts from the patents granted Mr. Moonelis:

"Tobacco fiber is one of the few vegetable materials which can be smoked. All vegetable fibers differ from each other somewhat in composition, but there is apparently something about the composition of tobacco fiber which renders it possible to smoke it.

"In the present invention a product of higher grade is obtained by the use of certain expedients. In manufacturing this binder all the soluble ingredients of the tobacco stems are removed and the binder procured is substantially pure tobacco. The fiber is of the quality occurring in the leaf. They are next treated with an extract obtained from higher grade tobacco by the use of distilled water.

"Such an extract made from a higher grade of tobacco by the aid of distilled water and incorporated into the cellulose give a product which, for the smoker's purpose, is nearly of as high grade as the original tobacco from which the extract was made. In other words, by extracting stems with distilled water and then reincorporating with a distilled water extract of high grade tobacco, a high grade tobacco substitute is obtained even where the stems are of low grade."

Death of Frederick A. Whelan, Vice-President of the United Cigars Stores Co.

FREDERICK A. WHELAN, the youngest of the seven Whelan brothers and vice-president of the United Cigar Stores Co., died early Sunday morning at his home in Mt. Vernon, N. Y., after a three weeks' illness. Mr. Whelan had been a sufferer, more or less, for some months from diabetes and a complication of maladies. The deceased was born in Syracuse, N. Y., in 1867, and was the youngest brother of George J. Whelan, the founder of the United chain stores. Although unlike all of his other brothers, he was not, originally, in the tobacco business.

As a youngster he was educated in the architectural profession and early gave promise of more than ordinary ability in his chosen line of work. Probably the most important contributions along this line were his plans and decorations for several of the buildings of the Pan-American Exposition.

When George Whelan came to New York his brother Frederick abandoned the practice of architecture in Syracuse and joined the forces of the United Company as the head of their architectural and real estate departments. To him belongs the credit for developing the idea of securing the choicest corners possible in New York City and elsewhere and then from his knowledge as an architect, re-arranging the space so that the cigar store could occupy a minimum, and the balance could be rented to great advantage.

Frederick Whelan was also the designer of the "United Shield" which the company has always utilized for its trade mark and which is to be found on every store which they operate.

He was a member of the Aldine Club of New York City, the Lotus Club and the Salamagundi Club, as well as the American Institute of Architecture. Mr. Whelan lost his wife several years ago, and is survived by a young daughter, seven years of age, in addition to his brothers, C. A. Whelan, now president of the United Cigar Stores Co., George A. Whelan, the founder of the company, and John F. Whelan, the treasurer. George J. Whelan is at present in Europe cruising in his yacht.

The funeral services took place from Mr. Whelan's late residence in Mt. Vernon, N. Y., at 9 A. M., on Tuesday, July 29.

Levi Spear

Levi Spear, the veteran leaf tobacco man, died suddenly at his office in New York on Saturday, July 26, in his sixty-ninth year.

Mr. Spear was head of the leaf tobacco firm of L. Spear & Son. He left his home, 605 West 111th Street, on Saturday morning, apparently in good health, and succumbed suddenly in his office on Water Street a few hours later to an attack of heart disease.

Funeral services were held at Machpelah Cemetery Chapel, Fresh Pond Crematory, on Monday, July 28, at 11 A. M. Mr. Spear was a retiring high-class member of the trade, thoroughly respected by all who knew him.

T. E. Vincent, a well-known tobacconist of Statesville, N. C., died while seated at the supper table recently, at the age of 63 years. Deceased was a member of the firm of Adams, Pawell & Co., having been engaged in the tobacco business for eighteen years. He is survived by a widow and one son.

Tampa

Output Shows Eleven Million Gain for Six Months—San Martin & Leon Move to Powell Factory—Meanderings of Trade Notables

TAMPA, July 26.

THERE is little of moment to report from here other than that our factories appear to be working a larger number of cigarmakers than usual for the midsummer season. The output of cigars seems to have crept up probably 10 per cent more than the average of this time last year, with indications that the increase will be maintained.

Charles Bush, the representative of the P. Lorillard Tobacco Co., with headquarters here, tells me that he is going away tonight for a four-weeks' trip to take him through Texas as far as Albuquerque, New Mexico.

San Martin & Leon have concluded the purchase of the modern Leopold Powell factory on Howard Avenue, in West Tampa, and on Monday next will desert their old place in Ybor City, where they have made such a signal success of the "El Briche," "La Flor de San Martin y Leon" and "Hoya de Cuba" brands and become one of the West Tampa colonies. The new factory has 200 feet frontage; the building is three stories and basement, and they can seat nearly 250 cigarmakers.

This is one of the livest firms in Tampa, headed by Jorge Leon, who is the president and general manager, and Charles J. Castillo, vice-president and sales manager.

Jose Escalante sailed from Havana on July 19 for a visit to his home in Spain. Mr. Escalante was accompanied by A. L. Cuesta.

Harry Roberts is up in New York City making his annual summer trip to the North. Their business is reported excellent.

R. L. Tatum, the district manager for the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., is expected in Tampa next week.

Bert Goodale, who represents the A. T. Co. in Southern Florida, got in today from a short business trip.

Mort Regensburg, of the Rengensburg factory, is expected to arrive in Tampa on Monday, while his brother Jerome is at present in New York City. They have had a splendid run of July orders on their Americans and tell me that their "Admiration" brand, made by S. Fernandez & Co., shows wonderful strides.

Fernando Rodriguez, of the Charles the Great factory, has been here for ten days now and expects to remain until the latter part of the month.

Our output for the first six months of this year in cigars shows splendid increase over last year, estimated at something like 11,000,000 for the six months, the figures being as follows:

Up to July 19, 1913, 28,849 cases of cigars had been shipped out of this city since the first of January, or a total of 144,245,000 cigars at 5000 to a case, the average usually taken.

In spite of a lonesome wail now and then that this is a dull season this number is considerably larger than for the same time in 1912. For the same period that year 26,610 cases or a total of 133,050,000 cigars had been shipped.

PERFECTO.

W. A. Robbins has opened a cigar store and billiard room in Albany, Ore., which is considered to be the finest equipped business of its kind in the Willamette Valley.

The floor is of white tile, with the name Robbins neatly inlaid with red tile. The woodwork is of mahogany finish, while the cases are of solid mahogany of the latest improved type of humidor.

Funeral of A. N. Brady

The body of A. N. Brady, the capitalist who was largely interested in the American Tobacco Co. and for some years an officer and director in the corporation, is expected to reach New York today on the S. S. "Baltic."

Funeral services will be held in the Church of the Immaculate Conception at Albany on Saturday next, and the burial in St. Anges Cemetery.

Mr. Brady, while interested to a great extent in scores of public service enterprises, specially favored the tobacco business and is quoted as saying that the largest part of his wealth came from this industry.

He died in London last week, and a dispatch from there states that the British Government will levy a death tax of almost one million dollars on the deceased's holdings in the British-American Tobacco Co., which is an English corporation.

Sanchez & Haya Baseball Team

Sanchez & Haya Team Win Deciding Game.

THE portrait above is that of the baseball team which represented the Sanchez & Haya factory in the cigar league of Tampa and who won the memorable game on July 14 against the crack team of Cuesta-Rey, who were reputed to be the best team in the city. Vice-president E. J. Stachelberg, of the Sanchez & Haya factory, gave a complimentary dinner to the winning team the night of the game at the Grand Orient Restaurant, at which Mr. Stachelberg presided and Mr. A. Torres, of the firm, assisted in entertaining.

Tommy Vaiden, the crack pitcher for Sanchez-Haya, held the Cuesta-Rey team runless throughout the entire contest, the final score being 2 to 0. Twenty-five hundred people witnessed the game and at its conclusion the citizens of Ybor City, where the S. & H. factory is located, hardly deigned to speak to any residents in West Tampa.

Tobacco Men in Curious Accident

George L. Harris, sales manager for the P. Lorillard Tobacco Co., and an assistant, W. M. Solomon, Jr., were the victims recently of a peculiar accident which occurred at the yards of the Seaboard Air Line, Tampa, Fla. As Harris and Solomon were coming from the wholesale department of Eli Witt on Whiting Street, a switch engine came along stopping right in front of them, and immediately proceeding to empty the contents of the steampot, which consisted of about a ton of coal dust, upon the unfortunate victims.

The interests of Joseph Moses in the Court Cigar Store, located on North Main Street, Springfield, O., have been taken over by Mr. L. W. Wean, the senior partner of the firm, who has been in the cigar business for twenty years, nineteen of which have been spent at the stand which he now occupies.

ODDS AND ENDS IN RETAILDOM

Dana Lavertu, Lewiston, Me., recently opened a cigar store in that place.

James Woodward, who for the past four years has been the manager of the Post Tavern Cigar Stand, Battle Creek, Mich., recently resigned from that position to take a prolonged vacation.

The cigar manufacturing business of Adam Hofferbert, Peoria, Ill., has been taken over by George Kickler and Alfred Deikman, who recently moved the factory into the Spoonhoff Building on North Fourth Street.

George Kickler and Alfred Dickman, who recently purchased the Adam Hofferbert cigar manufactory, Pekin, Ill., have moved to the Spoonhoff Building on North Fourth Street.

In addition to a first-class stock of cigars, tobacco, etc., Messrs. Harry Wallace and Joseph Baldwin will carry a complete supply of smokers' accessories in the carrying on of the Mead tobacco and cigar business, located at No. 5 Park Street, Glens Falls, N. Y., and which was recently taken over by them.

John R. Kelly, Nyack, N. Y., is the new owner of the cigar store formerly conducted by John E. Brechbiel of that place.

R. A. Gorley, Smyrna, Del., having taken over the complete stock of the Broadway Store, Main Street, Smyrna, Del., has installed his father, James Gorley, of Paterson, N. J., as manager of the cigar and tobacco end of the business.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, July 25.

WHEN we stated in our last review of the market that the tide was beginning to turn and that we were at last marching towards the flood tide of business, we were not mistaken in our assertion, as it will be readily seen in looking at the number of bales sold. We beg to state, however, that this time we have taken the reports of three weeks, which our readers will remember happens once in three months.

The impulse to the accelerated movement came, as usual, from the heavy purchases made by the buyer of the American Tobacco Co., who had come to the conclusion that the time was ripe to select the best vegas from the different districts, where tobacco is grown, and after having scoured the country, he turned his attention to our local market. Naturally owing to the big quantity of leaf required by the big concerns, it stands to reason that the buyer must be better informed about the actual size of the crop of our island, as well as about the condition, and where the best leaf is grown. Under these circumstances it can be taken for a fact that when the buyer is operating upon a large scale that he considers it to be the best policy to wait no longer, and start the ball rolling. The A. T. Co. has one big advantage that it is never cramped for money, even when the money market is described as being tight. Nevertheless there is one comfort for the independent manufacturers, and which is, that after all with all the power at its command, it cannot monopolize the entire crop of the island of Cuba. Some 12 years ago it paid for the experience, in trying to buy up the Remedios crop, or at least in purchasing more than its wants at the time for its factories, and having found out that it did not pay, it has never since that time repeated this experiment. At that time, however, the present buyer was not in charge of this important department, and as we stated before, it had to pay for gaining its experience. Nowadays it is simply a question of business policy to select the right time when to lay in the needed supplies for the year.

Owing to the misleading reports of the big and good crop all over our island, many manufacturers were under the belief that there would be no hurry in stocking up this year, and that on the contrary by waiting they would be able perhaps to do better, but we know that some of our local manufacturers were not misled, and they had looked out right from the beginning to provide themselves in time, by picking the best vegas in the country. We fear, however, that some of the American manufacturers of clear Havana cigars may rue the day that they neglected to come here earlier in the season, and provided themselves when they were advised by their commission merchants to come here, and not wait until later in the fall. Of course, this does not mean to say that they may not find enough leaf, but they may have to take what others had rejected in the beginning, and perhaps pay prices higher than the early buyers. The old story of the cry of wolf, etc., seems not to have lost any of its early lesson, and people prefer to gather their own experience themselves, even if they have to pay for it. The greatest trouble in sight this year may be the question of wrappers, and the buyer of the A. T. Co. has given special attention to the securing of this particular grade of the leaf, by gathering all he could, being perfectly willing to pay the asking prices, and in several cases buying the whole output of good escogidas in the Partido district, for future delivery.

Fillers from the lowland section of the Vuelta Abajo are beginning to dwindle, as the demand has been keen, although of the highlands there is still a fair supply on hand. The light part of the Semi Vuelta district has been bought up to a large extent, also the Puntillas by the German exporters at advancing prices.

Remedios in town has been rather neglected, excepting the loose leaves, which the cigarette factories are anxious to secure, paying full figures for same, although there seems to be some demand for Germany of the so-called 8a. In the country prices appear to be soaring, as we were assured by one leaf dealer, that an escogida and a vega, together amounting to 800 bales of Zaza del Medio had been sold to the trust at $54 for first capaduras, $44 for second capaduras and $24 for thirds, 8a and Manchados, per qq. If the freights, shrinkage and other expenses are added to these figures, the cost will be at least $10 per qq. higher than last year to the manufacturer. The following figures are circulated here to indicate the very strong position of our market, as regards Remedios leaf, viz.: Taking for a basis that the total crop should not amount over 150,000 bales, two-thirds of this quantity will be needed by the American houses established here for supplying the American Cigar Co., the United Cigar Manufacturers and the chief factories in Boston, St. Louis and some Canadian ones, also including the home demand (which last year was calculated at 30,000 bales, thus leaving only 50,000 bales of all classes, or dividing them by one-half only 25,000 bales of first and second capaduras. It is also claimed that perhaps 30 per cent. of the crop is of an inferior nature, so the real good part of the crop may consist of only perhaps 18,000 bales of 1a and 2a. We cannot vouch for the correctness of this statement, but if it should only come approximately within the above range, then prices are bound to be advanced by the buyers, not by the sellers, which latter deplore the unfortunate high prices in the interest of their American friends. Nearly all of our leaf dealers were in hopes of buying later on at lower figures, but they were themselves mistaken, as an unexpected factor occurred in the shape of speculators right in the Santa Clara province, that bought at higher figures from the farmers, and selected the goods themselves, thus forcing our regular packers to follow them. These speculators consisted of country merchants that kept stores, dentists, apothecaries, in fact anybody who might have some cash to spare. According to one party at least 20,000 bales were bought and handled in this manner, and besides there have to be added the number of vegueros that refused to accept the offers made to them and that made their own packings. For this reason the great majority of our leaf dealers and packers hardly have bought one-half of their regular number of bales, which they were in the habit of handling each year. The worst thing is now that the speculators in the country have seemed to have had a better inkling of the smallness of the crop, and that they can turn over their goods with a profit. Under these circumstances the principal question this fall will be not how little the cigar manufacturers may need to tide them over until next year, but how much they might be able to find in our open market this fall or winter.

Sales from June 30 to July 19 totaled 22,328 bales, which divided, represented: Vuelta Abajo, 11,766; Partido, 8681, and Remedios, 1881 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 6357; exporters to Europe, 2158; shippers to South America, 1145, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 12,668 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco, from the port of Havana, during the same time were: To all ports of the United States, 9893; to all ports of Europe, excepting Spain, 1162; to Spain, 500; to port Limon, 15; to all ports of South America (Buenos Aires, Montevideo and Valparaiso), 1145, thus making a total of 12,715 bales.

Receipts of Tobacco from the Country.

For the two weeks ending July 17, 1913.			Since January 1, 1913.
Vuelta Abajo	27,330	bales.	99,053	bales.
Semi Vuelta	2,706	"	11,668	"
Partido	1,622	"	5,435	"
Remedios	10,274	"	18,196	"
Oriente	27	"	1,108	"
Total	41,959	"	135,460	"

To avoid any questions, as far as the receipts of Partido leaf are concerned, we beg to repeat that the receipts from the country as put down above, constitute only the ones by railroad, while perhaps more than the same quantity arrives here by carts drawn by mules or by electric conveyances, and which we are in the habit of adding only at the end of the year.

Since last Monday, July 21, there has been a strike declared in the escogidas in the town of Santa Clara, and which possibly might spread to other villages. The selectors are asking for higher wages. It is to be hoped that the same may be settled shortly in an amicable manner by making mutual concessions.

LEAF BUYERS THAT COME AND GO.

Arrivals.

Cigars.

Business in our cigar factories, although we are still in the dull season, appears to be picking up, and the outlook for the future is certainly more cheerful unless something unforeseen should interfere to disturb the gradual upward march. We have a very fine Vuelta Abajo crop that will please the smokers, and as far as the still unsettled tariff is concerned in the United States, it must come to an end shortly, and then with good crops, there is no reason why the push and the known enterprise will not soon set the ball rolling with renewed vigor. Trade with England has kept up in a good fashion, notwithstanding that this is not the season for the Britishers to buy heavily of our cigars. Germany is expected to purchase heavier this year, as the cigars will suit them. Australia and South America, as well as Canada, appear to increase their calls, judging by the orders on hand.

Romeo y Julieta shows no letting up in its activity, as new orders are constantly taking the place of the finished ones.

Partagas is fully occupied in executing good, substantial regalia orders for England and South America and the trade with the United States is in normal shape.

H. Upmann & Co. are working steadily, and while having nothing of any special interest to report, they are well satisfied with the conditions at the moment.

Henry Clay & Bock & Co. report that their principal factories are working as strong as formerly.

Castaneda received some nice orders from England, Australia and South America, the latter of high-priced sizes.

Sol is quite satisfied with the present amount of orders on hand for Sol and La Devesa de Murias.

Por Larranaga is actively engaged in preparing for the coming demand on the new crop cigars, and Don Eustaquio Alonso is getting ready to visit his old-time friends, who in the meantime have sent him some complimentary orders of quite some magnitude as a starter, so this in connection with the former calls keeps the factory busy.

The Flor del Fumar factory of Felipe Rodriguez & Co. never seems to lack orders for regalia sizes, as this is one of the specialties of this factory.

Buying and Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

There were 12 of the principal sellers during the last three weeks and of which five disposed over 1000 bales each, viz.: Diaz, Herrera & Co., 1850; Aixala & Co., 1796; Muniz Hermanos, 1689; Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez, 1610, and F. Rocha & Co., 1243. The names of the seven others are: Gonzalez & Benitez, 950; Camejo & La Paz, 985; Jose C. Puente & Co., 560; M. A. Suarez & Co., 350; Jose Menendez, 278; I. Kaffenburgh & Sons, 177, and Herrera, Calmet & Co., 175 bales. Of course, there are more sellers, but the list would be too long to name them all.

The principal buyer that overshadows them all was Mr. Maximilian Stern, who registered 9568 bales of all kinds of leaf.

We also mention the following 14 principal buyers, leaving out only a few that did not wish the amount of bales known that they had purchased: Samuel Suarez for account of his customers, 1500 bales; Celestino Vega, additional, 1117; Jose Escalante & Co., 1000; J. F. Berndes & Co., 843; H. Upmann & Co. (for export), 540; B. Spector, 500; Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, 487; Por Larranaga, 300; Gutierrez & Diehl (for export), 215; C. F. Beck & Co., 250; Walter Sutter & Co., 200; Behrens & Co., 200; Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co., 200, and Adolfo Moeller, 139 bales.

The following are the 10 shippers above 300 bales during the last three weeks, viz.: Maximilian Stern, 2521; J. Bernheim & Son, 1687; Menendez & Co., 761; H. Upmann & Co., 709; J. F. Berndes & Co., 509; M. A. Suarez & Co., 472; Leslie Pantin, 392; Manuel Suarez, 365; Virgilio Suarez, 319, and Allones, Ltd., 317 bales.

Ernst Ellinger & Co. have bought the famous vega "El Mamey" from the lowland section of the Vuelta Abajo.

Fred Davis is still here, although, we learn, that he has bought already some extra choice vegas from the Vuelta Abajo, and is still on the hunt for more.

B. Spector, we understand, was lucky in securing one very choice vega from San Juan y Martinez, where according to common consent this year the very finest tobacco had grown.

Germany this year has shown very little inclination to invest in Remedios tobacco, probably on account of the high prices, but the Puntilla styles seem to have found a better market there. We heard that the house of J. F. Berndes & Co. shall have purchased and contracted for the bulk of these styles to arrive.

Mr. Joseph Mendelsohn did not sail after all, as at the last moment he had changed his mind, but his son, Harry Mendelsohn, arrived here on the 9th inst., leaving again on the 19th idem. He expressed himself very much pleased with his treatment here, after an absence of so many years, and was very well satisfied with the purchases he had made for his firm of Mendelsohn, Bornemann & Co.

Vincent Planco secured some very choice lots of Vuelta Abajo for his firm of Ruy, Suarez & Co., of New York.

Angel L. Cuesta left with his son by the steamship Ipiranga on the 19th inst., as happy as a boy, for his native home in Spain, expecting to do some camping out in the woods and mountains of Asturias, etc.

Don Francisco Arango left by the French liner, La Navarre, on the 15th inst., after having been absent from his home for 37 years, bound for Coruna and Santander. He also intends to take the baths at Vichy for a term.

ORETANIV.

Fine Opportunity for Manufacturer

An advertisement will be found elsewhere from one of the best established commercial clubs in the Middle West, inviting manufacturers to locate their cigar plants in that city. The secretary of the board advises us that he does not believe that there is such a good opening in the United States for the right parties, and he can pledge his support of as good a bunch of business men as can be found anywhere.

QUINCY

The Florida Shade-Grown Crop Gives Big Promise—Buyers Have Absorbed Almost All Lots—Quality Great and Prices Way Up

(Exclusive to the Tobacco World.)

QUINCY, FLA., July 27.

THE crop of 1913, sun- and shade-grown tobaccos in Gadsden County, Fla., and Decatur County, Ga., is admitted to be the finest ever raised in these sections, and is moving at very remunerative figures, which are said to be satisfactory both to the buyer and the growers.

There are quite a number of buyers in the field now, and with the exception of a few scattering crops, almost the entire output of sun and shade tobaccos has been bought up.

The crop, while not an extraordinarily large one, is light in color, beautifully shaded, of fine texture and a good burner almost throughout, and should give the utmost satisfaction to manufacturers.

President Julius Lichtenstein, of the American Sumatra Tobacco Co., has been here for ten days past, and said that they have one of the finest crops they have ever yet produced, and that their big warehouses will be filled with a quality and quantity of tobacco which is bound to create a sensation.

Buyers report that the tobacco is selling here at the highest price since 1907, but the short crop and its superior quality seem to warrant these figures unlike other years.

The Clover Leaf Farm of S. Loewenthal & Sons, New York, has produced a most excellent crop and promises to furnish them with some very attractive lots when they move into their new warehouse in Manhattan.

The principal buyers in the field this season are the Max Wedeles Tobacco Co., Barlow-Corry Co., Florida Tobacco Commission Co., J. & O. Altschul Tobacco Co., United Cigar Mfrs. Co., P. Lorillard Co., American Cigar Co., F. M. Arguimbau, Friedman Tobacco Co., Southern Sumatra Co., Mehl Tobacco Co. and Effangee Tobacco Co.

The delivery of both sun and shade crops has been under way about ten days now, and buyers express themselves as greatly pleased with the satisfactory conditions and general good quality. It is probable that the entire crop will be delivered and settled for within the next thirty days.

Just as he was about to check his plunder in the parcel room of the Western Maryland R. R. Station, Baltimore, Md., recently, Joseph Bolosofsky, alias Joseph Bell, of Chicago, was arrested on the charge of having stolen 15,000 cigarettes from the cellar of William Deiches & Co., wholesale tobacco dealers of that city. Bolosofsky confessed to the theft and was held for the action of the grand jury. Upon investigation it was found that over 30,000 cigars and cigarettes had been taken, including some of the best stock in the place.

PHILADELPHIA.

Henry Riesenberg Joins Bobrow Brothers

ANNOUNCEMENT is just made that Henry Riesenberg has closed his connection with Rosenthal Brothers, the New York manufacturers of "R.-B." cigars, and will assume charge of the Western territory for Bobrow Brothers, Philadelphia, manufacturers of the "Bold," 5-cent cigar, and the "Discriminator," 10-cent line.

Mr. Riesenberg is one of the best known cigar men in the West, having covered the territory for many years, and his clientele and friends in that section include a list of names of which any man might be proud. His former connection with the H. Fendrich factory, of Evansville, Ind., did much to popularize the "Charles Denby" and "Diamond Joe" cigars, which came out of Evansville.

Like all successful men, Mr. Riesenberg has found time to interest himself in public-spirited movements, of both a local and national character, and at his home in Indianapolis he is recognized as a citizen of sterling worth. He has taken a prominent part in Indiana waterways improvements, and is at this time president of the Indiana Waterways Association. He is also associated with the Indiana Conservation Commission and chairman of that important body, as well as a trustee of the Indiana Industrial Home for Blind Men and Women.

Mr. Riesenberg is a keen student of the vital subject of the tariff, and his deductions and suggestions along this line have met with national recognition. So much so, that he is credited as being a sponsor for the Tariff Commission idea in the United States and directly instrumental in the creation of the Tariff Board, appointed by ex-President Taft. He is an ardent enthusiast on the subject of conservation of natural resources of the United States and has made many timely speeches in support of this movement.

Mr. Riesenberg was a close friend of ex-President Roosevelt and was one of the five private citizens interested in conservation, who met the President to suggest ideas along this line. He stated his views forcibly to President Roosevelt, and several of his ideas have since been embodied in national legislation.

During the month of August, Mr. Riesenberg will take a much-needed vacation, and on September 1, he will gird on his armor and go forth for his new house.

Mr. Riesenberg will not take on any proposition which he does not believe, and he has dubbed the "Bold" cigars "the greatest of nickel smokes." It will not be long before they believe as he does in the Middle West, and the distribution of "Bold" cigars and "Discriminators" promises to be very heavy.

One Stogie Remained

ON Sunday, July 27, burglars entered the cigar shop of L. Brandriff, on East Mulberry Street, Millville, N. J., and cleaned the establishment out completely, leaving behind them only one lone Pittsburgh stogie on the counter to indicate what the stock had formerly been. It is evident that the thieves were frightened during their getaway, for cigars and tobacco littered the payment in front of the store, which goods had evidently been dropped while the burglars were in flight.

The robbery was most remarkable from the fact that the Brandriff store is in the heart of the city of Millville, and the front of it is lit by two big arc-lights.

Philadelphia Notes

I. L. Bosch, the popular cigar retailer of Richwood, W. Va., accompanied by his wife, was in Philadelphia during the past week and paid his respects at the office of "The Tobacco World."

Mr. Bosch was on his way to his old home in Upper Pennsylvania for a brief vacation trip.

The tobacco jobbers of Philadelphia evidently consider that the coming fall will be a big one in the use of imported Sumatra tobacco, and one salesman for a leading importing house, tells us that he has disposed of over two hundred bales of choice Sumatra in this market during the past 30 days.

The old cigar stand located at 1728 North Broad Street, recently occupied by the C. L. Martin Co., has been unhoused, owing to alterations to the Grand Opera House before it can be reopened. C. L. Martin Co. conducted a first-class cigar store in the old structure and made good for themselves, but owing to the alterations were bought out by the new lessors. They vacated within forty-eight hours after the deal had been satisfactorily closed. The C. L. Martin Co. will still carry on business at their old stand at 1303 Columbia Avenue, where they carry one of the largest and best assortment of cigars, tobacco and pipes on the entire avenue. C. L. Martin is always on deck, ready to greet you with a smile, ready to give good advice, and willing to submit his goods for a close inspection and trial.

M. A. Funk, the popular secretary and sales manager of the "44" Cigar Co., Philadelphia, is now on a trip to Tennessee, lending much valuable assistance to the company's distributors in that territory. He reports big business on the "44," repeat orders being received in large quantities.

Philadelphia Notes

About the "44" Cigar Co.'s Hustlers

A recent addition to the increased sales force of the "44" Cigar Co. is Chas. F. Clark, who is working under the direction of their Southern representative, Tillman Funk, in South Carolina.

F. D. Crawford continues his work with distributors in Fort Wayne, Ind. Campaign thus far has been far beyond expectations.

W. H. Nicholson's addition, W. M. Charles, is having a very successful campaign in Virginia.

Mr. Zander and son, G. W. Zander, working in Texas, are forwarding many repeating orders and report "44's" business active among the distributors in the state.

A recent addition to the sales force, Frank Stanton, is now on a trip by automobile through the suburban districts and is having a very successful advertising campaign.

W. B. Le Couver, missionary man, for representative F. D. Crawford, continues a very successful campaign in New York State, opening up some new accounts. "44" business in New York State continues most healthy.

W. G. Kitselman is doing very active and successful work in Indiana under the direction of F. D. Crawford.

Victor Lopez, who has done much to popularize the "La Mega" cigars of V. Guerra, Diaz & Co., was in Philadelphia last week, and gathered in a bunch of really noteworthy mid-summer orders.

J. Durban Acker, manager of the Chestnut Street store of Finley Acker & Co., who has been away for six weeks past, owing to an affected leg, is expected to return from Eagles Mere, Pa., within ten days.

Among the prominent trade representatives in Philadelphia during the past few days was Theodore Werner, president of the T. J. Dunn Co., who spent two days here, with headquarters at the recently acquired Valentine factory.

Robert E. Lane, American and Canadian representative for the "Partagas" factory, with his perennial smile and good humor, called on the trade in one of the hottest days we have had this summer and managed to dig up a few good orders.

Bobrow Bros., manufacturers of "Bold" cigars, have acquired the premises 125 South Second Street, to assist them temporarily in getting out the ever-increasing demand for "Bold" cigars.

The new building is a five-story and basement structure, capable of accommodating about 500 hands. With these increased facilities, Bobrow Bros. will be able to get their output up to one million cigars and over per week. This will make a third of the Bobrow factory, which in the course of a few years will be thrown into one building, the description of which appeared in this paper some few weeks ago.

George Becker, of the Lopez Hermanos force, Charley Weiss and R. M. Ellis, have also been in the city during the past few days.

The Acme Cigar Co., Detroit, Mich., was recently incorporated with a capital of $5000.

More Millions for British-American Tobacco

London, July 31, 1913.

AT a meeting of the board of directors held her today, a resolution was passed to increase the capital stock of the British-American Tobacco Co., from $55,000,000 to $72,500,000.

The directors were authorized to issue 500,000 shares, common stock five pounds a share, 100,000 of which shares are to be placed upon the market within the next year; thus giving the company a working capital of $2,500,000 additional for this coming twelve months.

This is a second big increase of the capital stock of the British-American Tobacco Co. within six months, and it all indicates that the fight for the control of the rich British market is more strenuous than ever.

Emil Kleiner, of E. Kleiner & Co., has just returned from his vacation in the White Mountains, and leaves in a few days for an extended trip out as far as St. Louis. He expects to be absent nearly a month garnering the first orders for fall on their widely distributed "Famosa" and "Lord Macauley" brands.

Schwab Bros. & Baer Locate

THIS recently organized firm has leased a big loft at 217 East Twenty-fourth Street, and promise to be ready with their line by September 1st. Messrs. Samuel Schwab, head of the house, and J. Fernandez, formerly of H. Anton Bock & Co., who has been engaged by the new firm as their factory superintendent and selector, will sail on the third for Havana to purchase tobacco, while August Baer, of the firm, will have charge of the remodelling of the offices and factory in their newly acquired plant.

The J. G. Johnson Cigar Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., have secured a lease on the property at 342 Monroe Ave., and will occupy these premises as a cigar store and billiard room as soon as alterations are completed.

The Smith-Davis Cigar Co., Little Rock, Ark., recently filed articles of incorporation with a paid capital of $20,000. C. A. Just, E. Ross Smith and John Davis are the incorporators.

R. A. Johnson recently opened a cigar factory at Canton, Ill., and is concentrating his efforts on "Johnson's Sure Delight."

The Tufts cigar and stationery store, located at Second and Front Streets, Selma, Cal., was destroyed by fire recently. The loss is estimated at $5000, partly covered by insurance.

Frank Lucas, a grocer and confectioner, located in Chisholm, Minn., was recently found guilty of selling tobacco to minors, and was fined $10 and costs.

Recent reports are to the effect that the net earnings of the Melachrino Company showed an increase of 50 per cent. over the largest previous earnings for any month in the history of the company. The Tobacco Products Corporation are the sole owners of the stock of the Melachrino Company.

Cleveland

Grand Circuit Races Helped Retailers—Scarcity of Labor Continues—Many Prominents on Vacations

CLEVELAND, O., July 26.

GRAND CIRCUIT races stimulated the July trade. It brought many strangers into the city who left a nice little bundle of greenbacks with our many retailers. The July business has been unusually good with the manufacturers and retailers alike.

This is vacation season and the writer learns that many of the boys have taken advantage of the opportunity to get away from the hot weather that has anchored here for several weeks.

Mr. Heaney, manager of the Snyder Cigar Stores, is spending several weeks at his mother's home in Long Island.

H. Traenkle, one of the Buffalo men of the Snyder organization, is in charge of the Snyder stores here during Mr. Heaney's vacation.

Morris Eisenberg, of Eisenberg Bros., of Dayton, spent a week-end in Cleveland. He has many interesting stories to tell about the recent floods in that vicinity, and also reports business as gradually rounding into its natural shape.

Billy Blashke, of the Shields-Wertheim Co., is back on the job after a two-weeks' trip up the Lakes and claims he is glad to get back into harness again.

Louis Klein, of the Louis Klein Cigar Co., is spending a few weeks in the Catskill Mountains.

Messrs. I. Miller and Grover Mendelsohn, of the Mendelsohn Co., are back from New York, where they spent the Fourth with Mr. Mendelsohn's father.

J. C. Leverance, of the Shields-Wertheim Co., just returned home after a short fishing trip and after going around his Ohio territory, expects to return and get the balance of the fish he left.

Herbert Stace, of the Stace & Vincent Co., has left for a fishing trip through Wisconsin. Plummer Vincent, of this house, expects to take a trip through the St. Clair Flats as soon as his partner returns from his fishing trip.

Bert Smith, of the Shields-Wertheim Co., is back on the job again after a two weeks' vacation, and is sending in his usual quota of orders for "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives." Fred P. Shields has just returned from Mt. Clemens, where he spent several days with Waltzer & La Pointe, the firm's distributor in that territory. He brought back a pocket full of orders.

E. Ells is in town putting forth his best efforts on the "Pera" cigarette, and is showing nice results in placing these goods.

Grover Mendelsohn, of the Mendelsohn Co., reports trade as extremely brisk. They are way behind in filling their many orders due to the scarcity of labor. Orders are piling up on them and they are in a quandry as how to supply the demand. Their "Rigoletto" and "El Symphony" brands are winning universal favor.

Mr. J. C. Newman, of the J. C. Newman Co., has just returned from a flying trip through Michigan and brought back some big orders. Their factory is working to capacity trying to catch up with the demand for "El Batons" and "Judge Wrights." The former is handled locally by the Baer-Wolf Co. and the latter by the Weideman Co.

The Standard Drug Co. is featuring "Saramita" window displays in all their stores this week and are making some handsome windows. The retail cigar men of this concern state that "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives" are two of their biggest sellers.

I. Teitelbaum, of the I. Teitelbaum Co., just returned from a trip to the Pacific Coast with some exceedingly heavy orders. Business has been extremely good with this concern, but they, like the rest of the local concerns, are experiencing great trouble in getting help enough to supply the demands of their steadily increasing business. The main brands of this concern are "Sarzedas," "Addison" and "El Sallago," and these are being jobbed locally by the Baer-Wolf Co.

JERRY.

H. M. Vreeland, who has been for 11 years past the Chicago and Northwestern representative of the Surbrug Company, has resigned his position, effective August 1. Mr. Vreeland, it is understood, has signed a new contract for exploiting a high-grade line of cigarettes, to be placed on the market in the early fall.

Incorporate to Sell "Dabs"

THE "DABS" SALES CO., INC., have just taken out a charter with T. J. Bannon, Thomas Adam and Franklin Bien, named as incorporators. The new company has an authorized capital of $100,000 and stated that they are not yet ready to announce the purpose of this new organization.

Luyties & Co., 546 Fifth Avenue, New York, have been the sole distributors of this brand, which is a very popular club smoke, selling at 25 cents for 10.

Tobacco Trade in Washington

SEATTLE, WASH., July 22.

EVERY branch of retail trade, whether it be cigars, cigarettes, tobacco or what not, was stimulated and favorably affected by the Potlach Celebration which was held last week. Visitors numbering close to 100,000 thronged the city to witness the parade and celebration, and while not all of them smoked, probably 50 per cent. were in the cigar shops and cafes buying smokes at some time. Every retailer in the business section made a bid for the special trade by attractive window trims, which surpassed in originality and general excellence all previous efforts along this line.

From the jobbing circles the same good report is received, and business in general is active and booming.

A noticeable increase in the sale of "Pure Gold" 1-ounce granulated tobacco is reported by local retailers and jobbers. This distinctive brand, made by Pure Gold Tobacco Co., of Greenville, Tenn., has struck the fancy of Seattle smokers and is steadily growing in sales.

Rosenfeld-Rorig Co. report that "Jose Villa" cigars, recently taken on by them, are repeating phenomenally and at the present rate of growth will be one of the best sellers in its class in the Seattle territory. George Tillinghast, factory representative of Berriman Bros., has been doing effective missionary work on this brand.

Otto Ehrhart has bought out the cigar store of J. A. Gibson at First Avenue and Madison Street. Mr. Gibson has been active in the cigar trade for fifteen years, being lately president of the Seattle Retailers Association.

The Seattle Havana Cigar Co. has opened a new store on the east side of First Avenue, between Columbia and Marion Streets.

"Henry the Fourth" cigars, Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, Tampa, are being featured in many of the leading retail shops, restaurants and cafes. S. S. Florsheim, a factory representative, recently accompanied Arthur Meyer, California representative, on a business-boosting tour to this territory.

F. Lozano cigars are being displayed and featured in an effective manner by Coss-Altschuler Co. Duplicates are developing surprisingly fast.

J. G. Cohen Cigar Co. are pushing an active campaign on "El Sidelo," for which they are local distributors.

SPOKANE, WASH., July 21.

RETAILERS report a slight reaction in business, something which is not unusual for this time of the year. However, a favorable rebound is expected within the next fortnight that will restore the optimism of even the chronic kicker. There have been several important changes among the local retailers.

McDonald & Cady, of 11 South Howard Street, have dissolved, Mr. Cady moving his store to 823 Riverside and McDonald retiring.

W. W. Griffith, an active retailer, of 5 Post Street, has sold out his business to I. B. Schoen, who has been with M. A. Gunst & Co. for many years.

W. B. Kannon, who recently purchased Trodgen Bros.' stand at 202 Howard Street, reports an encouraging advance in business.

The first retail store in Tacoma has been opened by M. A. Gunst & Co. at 930 Pacific Avenue, right in the midst of the retail shopping district. The location is ideal for the development of big business.

In Oregon State

John Page, an experienced cigar man, is now in charge of the cigar stand located in the building formerly occupied by M. McAlpin, Albany, Ore. Mr. Page was formerly in charge of the cigar stand of the St. Francis Hotel, that city, where he made many friends for himself.

N. E. Richardson is now the sole proprietor of the Monogram Cigar Store, Roseburg, Ore., he a short time ago having taken over the interest of his partner, I. R. Smith.

"Pure Gold" in the Northwest

President C. R. Daily, of the Pure Gold Tobacco Co., Greeneville, Tenn., left Philadelphia a few days ago after a business trip of ten days in this city.

He was especially enthusiastic over the glowing reports which he had had from Washington and Oregon concerning the sales of "Pure Gold" smoking tobacco in that section. Mr. Daily emphasized the point that these were not boom sales, but the naturally increasing demand from "Pure Gold" smokers who had tried their product and would take no other.

Five of Seattle's Finest Cigar Stores

J. G. Pursley, Second Ave. and Seneca St. who features "El Sidelo" and other popular brands

J. A. Brewster's Stand, 810 First Ave. where "Juan de Fuca" cigars are boosted

Battersby and Smith's Store, 906 First Ave. where Sanchez and Haya's cigars are featured

How to Get a Good Photograph of Window Displays

By George J. Cowan

TO get a good picture, a few precautions are necessary, as a show window is one of the most difficult things to photograph. The following pointers by an expert on display window photography are timely. The merchant taking a photograph of his window himself can adopt these suggestions, or point them out to the man he hires to do it and so avoid disappointing results.

When forwarding photographs it is not necessary that they be mounted, although this will frequently help materially in getting the picture through to destination in good reproducible condition. Where the picture has not been mounted, it always should be sent flat, packed preferably between two sheets of corrugated board or very stiff cardboard, and then the wrapper should be marked "Photograph. Don't bend or fold."

Says this authority:

If there is a broad street before your window, or an open space, it will be almost impossible to take a picture by day; for, plant your camera where you will, it is always darker in your window than it is outside, and the opposite condition should prevail. But you can get it at night. See that your electric lights, while flooding the window, are themselves hidden from the street. If you have a good lens, from ten to thirty minutes' exposure will be enough. The size of the diaphragm is also to be considered. The smaller the diaphragm, the more time required; but the small diaphragm also gives an additional sharpness to your picture. And then, people can walk between the camera and the window without injuring the picture—provided they don't stop short. The time required is also influenced by the rapidity and make of the plate. Therefore, you have three things to consider in timing your picture—lens, plate and diaphragm.

A good time to photograph a window is early morning on a clear day; just before sunrise. The light is strong and penetrating and a good picture will usually result. Remember that the interior of your window must be light. If your window is darker than the street, the glass acts as a mirror, reflecting everything on the opposite side of the street. If the sun shines on your window and the opposite side of the street is dark, there will be no reflection of foreign objects in your picture.

By keeping these important items of information in mind, any country photographer can get a good picture of a show window. If the photographer doesn't know them, it would be well to call his attention to these facts. He may not have had experience in photographing show windows.

A method often adopted with good success is as follows: Make a cloth screen of black cambric sufficiently large to shut off all reflections when raised before the window. Fasten the two upper corners to poles, and when about to take the picture have two men or boys raise the screen just back of the camera. All reflections will be avoided and a clear picture will be the result. As it is not probable that many photographers will prepare such a screen, it is advisable for the trimmer to have one made and keep it in readiness. Flashlight pictures will not avoid reflections. You must not attempt to use the screen on windy days, however, for the wind will render it unmanageable.

There is a popular idea that the camera cannot lie, but if it cannot, it is still capable of great exaggeration, and if we photograph a plain glass decanter within a reasonable distance of a closed window, we will not get a truthful reproduction of the decanter, but a greatly exaggerated one. The reflected light-streaks on the polished surface are much more actinic than the remaining surface, and in photographing such a surface in the ordinary way, we are bound to get an over-exposure, which brings on what is technically known as "halation." Halation is the nightmare of photography.

Many persons closely identified with photography have devoted years trying to overcome this bugbear, and after a long series of experiments, it has been found that halation can best be obviated by backing the photographic plate with a sheet of chemically prepared paper, which is known in the trade as "Halation Destroyer." These destroyers are very simple to apply and are inexpensive. They are put up two dozen sheets in a package and 5 x 7 size sells at 25 cents per package. They are made in all sizes.

If the show window contains only black, white, brown, green and dark colored goods, it will only be necessary to use the destroyers back of the plate, but if various shades of blue, violet and purple appear, then it will be advisable to also use a ray filter in front or back of the lens. The action of the ray filter is to reduce the entire subject to monochrome, so that the highly actinic colors—blues, purples and violets—will not cause over-exposure. To use a popular phrase, the ray filter "holds back" or retards the highly actinic colors. The ray filter consists of a cell of glass retaining an orange yellow liquid through which the rays of light pass before reaching the sensitive plate. It will be clear that a blue ray mingling with the yellow of the filter becomes a green, and, according to the depths of the color of the filter, becomes a light or dark green. The dark green photographs like black.

Show windows should never be photographed when the sun is shining on them, all advice to the contrary notwithstanding. A dull daylight or early morning light will give better results than a bright day or when the sun is high. Where a window is illuminated by electric light, the evening is the ideal time to photograph it. If the electric lights are in full view, precautions should be taken to cover them, for if a long exposure is made, they will halate the plate. The lights can easily be hidden from view by the proper arrangement of the goods or decoration.

The best plate for window photography is the non-halation plate. You can get a good negative with the other plates, but the non-halation gives one more leeway in making the exposure and a better opportunity to correct errors in the development.

Having two emulsions, the first coating on the glass is very slow and the second very fast. So if there are any strong high lights in your display they are checked when they reach the slow emulsion, giving the darker parts of the display a chance to strike well home before you need be afraid of over-exposure.

Any class of merchandise displayed can be photographed with from five to twenty minutes' exposure, when one has a good lens that will cut good and sharp with the stop at F 7 and will take the time to focus it carefully. To get the camera in proper focus it is a good plan to look out for the show cards and faces of figures, as they are more easily defined on the ground glass at night than merchandise, and they are safe guides to go by.

Detroit

DETROIT, July 28.

AS a result of several weeks' work on the part of the Detroit detective department, 75,000 cigars, which were stolen from the freight sheds of the various local railroad companies, have been recovered. In addition, the detectives also recovered cigarettes and cigar-stand equipment. Most of the stolen goods were found at the Hotel Harrington, 46 Lafayette Avenue, when the place was raided. Also at the Detroit Armory cigar stand and at the cigar store of Blake & Cash, Fort and Clark Streets. For weeks back reports have been coming to the notice of the railroad companies and the local police department about thefts from the warehouses with inventories of the cigars taken. Among these were several special brands, prepared for individual dealers. The number of cigars recovered represents shipments by local manufacturers to customers in other cities as well as consignments shipped by outside manufacturers to local jobbers and retailers. In view of this wholesale arrest, everybody in the cigar business can breathe easier, as the thefts have caused no end of trouble to the trade. Manufacturers would insist that the goods were shipped, and yet the consignee would claim that he never received them.

An interesting sight at noon is to visit the cigar factory of Spietz & Worch, at 722 East Forest Avenue. The girls are provided with tea, coffee or milk without charge, and part of the noon hour is spent in dancing, the company paying for the music. Under the personal management of Mr. Schloss, the factory is in good running order, and is one of the leading plants in the city.

To prove that "The Tobacco World" is thoroughly read is proven by the following incident: The writer a few issues ago made an error in stating the name of a manufacturer who was making a private brand for a local dealer. The day that "The Tobacco World" was delivered by the post office a dozen different dealers 'phoned me to call attention to the mistake. So if you don't think "The Tobacco World" is read, just get something wrong, and see how quick things are stirred up.

A. Quandt, wholesale tobacconist, with his family, is spending the summer at his cottage at New Baltimore. Being only an hour's ride from Detroit, Mr. Quandt comes into the city almost daily.

A. Eisenman, of the firm of Eisenman Brothers, better known as "Doc" among the trade, is in Detroit for a few days. His brother, Walter, is also in town, combining business with pleasure.

Detroit has been the mecca of thousands of sporting men from July 16th to 23rd, owing to the annual meet of the Canadian Runners, which took place at Windsor, "across the pond." All the hotels have been crowded to overflowing. The cigar business showed a decided improvement during the days of the meet, and especially was this true at the Hotel Ponchartrain, where most of the horsemen stopped. It was nothing to sell a dozen boxes of cigars a day to them, and many individual purchases ran as high as fifty dollars from the horse owners. The next meet will be in the fall.

C. S. Sarluy, of F. & E. Cranz, is back from a trip to Cincinnati.

A. G. Lutt has been spending a few days in Detroit and left the 22nd for Rochester, N. Y., to visit his mother, and from there will go to New York and Atlantic City to spend a few weeks. Mr. Lutt represents the "Webster" cigar and did some nice business in this territory. At the opening of the New Washington Theatre, July 21, with a stock company headed by James K. Hackett, Mr. Lutt occupied a box with the mayor of the city and the police commissioner, as a guest of Miss Inez Buck, the leading lady. After the play Mr. Lutt was a guest of a big dinner party at the Hotel Griswold.

Fred Striker, proprietor of the Hof Brau on Lafayette Avenue, and very well known among the cigar salesmen all over the country, was married for the second time on July 21, and with his bride left in the evening for a two weeks' tour of Niagara Falls, Atlantic City, New York and Philadelphia.

After a two weeks' tour of Michigan in his motor car, Fred Hemmeter, of the Hemmeter Cigar Co., is back on the job.

Edward Lichtig, of the Philip Morris Co., has returned from his two weeks' vacation, which he spent in Cleveland.

John McLarty, a leading cigar dealer in Kalamazoo, Mich., is on an automobile trip with his wife and son to Buffalo, Niagara Falls and other points East. They will be back about August 20.

A billiard room and cigar store has been opened at 619 Woodward Avenue.

The San Telmo Cigar Mfg. Co. has purchased a large electric truck for making deliveries to the various railroad freight houses.

The directors of the Scotten-Dillon Co. declared the regular 2 per cent quarterly dividend on July 15, with the extra 8 per cent. The business for the first half of the year is said to be far ahead of the volume during the same period a year ago.

The leading creditors of William Layng, who kept a cigar store at 242 Woodward Avenue, are: Berdan & Co., Toledo, $12.75; Harnit & Hewitt, Toledo, $38.45; Gene Vall Cigar Co., New York, $26.55; Cadillac Cigar Co., Detroit, $67.50; J. L. Marcero Co., Detroit, $182.00; Almonte Cigar Co., Detroit, $65.00; Lloyd Stradley, $17.00; while the Harry W. Watson Co., John T. Woodhouse Co., Best & Russell, Payette-Walsh, E. L. Stahl & Co., and the Cosmus Cigar Co., all of Detroit, were also small losers.

S. C. Brady, formerly with the Miller Cigar Co., at Saginaw, has succeeded Dean Robeson as clerk at the Hotel Ponchartrain cigar stand.

The Broadway store of the Central Cigar Co., has been making an attractive display on Saturdays of the "La Resta" cigar, at five cents, made by Rothenberg & Schloss. It has proven a good seller so far.

Benjamin Cleenewerck, who operates cigar stores in Kalamazoo and Battle Creek, is spending the summer at West Lake, where he has taken one of the cottages. The attractions at this resort are fishing, boating and marshmallow roasts.

The cigar store of E. A. Upton on Grand River Avenue was recently robbed. When Mr. Upton came down in the morning he found the stock scattered all over the floor. He estimates his loss at about fifty dollars.

Ed Holzhausel has joined the cigar store of Burns & Johnson, 20 Monroe avenue, in the capacity of clerk.

Harry Lichtig, who operates the cigar departments at the Colonial and Olympia Hotels in Mount Clemens, says that there is every indication that this will be one of the most successful seasons in the history of the city. He says the cigar business is very good.

Ed Heineman, manager of the cigar department, at O'Brien & Co., recently had a very attractive display of "Seneca" cigars, which he says are very good sellers.

Thomas Hanneman, salesman, has been arrested on a charge of obtaining 20,000 cigarettes from the John T. Woodhouse Co. on a forged order. The cigarettes have been recovered.

Miss Anna Dingwall, who with her sister is associated with the Woodhouse Co., is planning a trip to Europe about the middle of August. Her sister will accompany her.

Gordon Bailey reports a very good business on "Milo" cigarettes, especially the plain end. They were recently used in connection with the banquet of the Burroughs Adding Machine Company's salesmen at the Hotel Ponchartrain.

W. R. Campbell was here recently in the interests of "Rameses" cigarettes.

S. Stuart, of the Superior Cigar Co., is back from a Western trip. Mr. Bunting, secretary of the company, plans on leaving August 9, with the Detroit delegation for the annual conclave of Knights Templars at Denver.

Jacob Mazer, of the Mazer Cigar Co., is back from a motor trip to Pittsburgh.

Visitors in town: G. B. Hirsch, of Joseph Hirsch & Son, Frank Lopez, of Garcia & Vega; L. G. Brown, of New York City; Harry Spingarn, of E. Spingarn & Co.

The Hotel Ponchartrain is showing a new packing of "Aploma" cigars, packed ten in a box called "Aploma Fads." Taking very well.

"Cado-56" cigarettes are showing a splendid improvement since Willis Andruss did his boosting in this territory.

Ben Crittenden, who now conducts a cigar store in the Library Hotel Building, has purchased the stock of Sensbaugh & Gould at 25 Grand River Avenue, that firm having gone into bankruptcy. Mr. Crittenden will continue the store under his own name. With years of experience in the cigar business and a host of good friends, the store under new management is assured of success.

Lester Wanamaker, 19 Michigan Avenue, contemplates a trip East early in August.

Charles Field, who has a "corner" on the cigar business at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., the home of the world-famous Soo Locks, is having good results from Saturday specials; the latest is to give every twentieth customer the full amount of the purchase, whether he spends five cents or a dollar, just as long as he happens to be the twentieth.

Baseball pool which has been in vogue at the cigar stand of the Berghoff Hotel, was stopped last week, and today the police raided the Cafe Grande cigar stand, where it has been going on. According to the detectives, there is only one way to win on baseball pool, and that is to conduct the pool. The city is determined to wipe out every sort of gambling in cigar stores.

France Wants Bigger Tobacco Warehouse

The Minister of Finance of France has just laid before Parliament the project of a law providing for constructing at Havre a new warehouse for tobacco in transit. The minister refers to the difficulties that the administration has experienced in turning out enough tobacco products in the factories of the Regie to meet the increased demand for consumption. The consequent development in the manufacturing industry has taxed the capacity of the storage warehouses for the finished products, and this has resulted in congestion of the transit warehouses, in which foreign tobacco in the leaf is stored prior to its distribution among the factories. This congestion has been particularly noteworthy in the transit warehouse at Havre, where supplies of American and other foreign tobacco are imported. The present transit warehouses have a capacity of 20,000,000 pounds. These buildings being separated in different quarters and without railway connections the service is much handicapped.

Pittsburgh

Midsummer Lull Is Evident—Many Trade Factors on Vacation—Numerous Visitors in Town

PITTSBURGH, PA., July 25.

BUSINESS in Pittsburgh is keeping up very nicely for this time of the year despite the fact that most of the people are away on their vacations.

Geo. Julian, of Philadelphia, is here working with a crew on "Turkish Trophies" cigarettes. With every six cartons of cigarettes they are giving a rebate of 30c. Getting nice business on the "Turkish Trophies" brand.

N. M. Hedden, of Siller-Narten & Barnes, just arrived from a trip to Erie, Meadville and Cambridge Springs. Had a very big week selling the following well-known brands: "El Roi Tan," "Robt. Burns," "Charter" and "Don Antonio."

H. Buchanan, representing the Havana-American Co., New York, was here last week in the interest of "La Preferencia" cigars. He was assisted by Mr. Arnheim, of L. Goldsmit, Bro. & Co.

J. Raubitschek, factory representative of Kraus & Co., Baltimore, has placed their brand, "La Taresa," mild Havana cigars, in all the well-known cafes and hotels in Pittsburgh. You can find them in almost every stand in the city.

The Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stands are featuring the "El Sidelo" clear Havana cigars, made by Sam. I. Davis, this week. They have a nice window display on this brand.

Mrs. Nellie Ghant, of the Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stands, is going on her vacation August 1, for two weeks' stay in Canada.

Chas. Boyle, of the Henry Hotel cigar stand, reports business is keeping up very well for July.

A. T. Aland, who has the cigar stand in the Hotel Liberty, is doing very well.

A. A. Duering, who has a cigar store on Madison Street, North Side, sold his store last week. Mr. Duering was formerly connected with the Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stands.

Benjamin S. Dripps, factory representative of I. Lewis & Co., Newark, N. J., reports big sales on "John Ruskins" and "Manilanettes." Haworth & Dewhurst are distributors for these brands.

Mr. Mayerfield, of the San Telmo Cigar Co., Detroit, Mich., was in town this week selling the "Pastora" broadleaf cigars, with the assistance of Haworth & Dewhurst, who are one of the largest wholesale grocers in Pittsburgh. Among the well-known brands they carry are "Pinzon," "Sanchez," "Plantista" in several sizes, "John Ruskins," and a full line of stogies.

J. V. Sprague, of Shipley-Massingham Co., reports big business on their brands. Selling quite a number of "Cuesta-Rey" clear Havana, and "New Bachelor," 5-cent cigars.

The Hotel Antler cigar stand is improving every day. They carry a full line of imported and domestic cigars. J. V. Quinn is in charge of this stand under the direction of Mr. Fleishauer, of the Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stands. Mr. Quinn was formerly with the United Cigar Stores Co.

C. J. Moye & Co. are having a big run on F. Garcia & Bros.' clear Havana cigars. Mr. Hamm, the downtown salesman, is also selling lots of Beggs' "Big Havanas."

C. A. Gibbs & Co. are displaying "Tuval" in thirty sizes in their windows.

George Jester and Walter Lenhart report big business in May, June and July on high-grade imported and domestic cigars. They are with Reymer Bros., Wood Street.

Howard Pell, of Reymer Bros., is spending his vacation at New York City and Atlantic City.

H. A. Schafer News Co. now carry a big line of cigars and tobaccos. They also carry a big line of stationery and news.

Mathew Levy, of R. J. Schiners Bros., New York, selling National and Pritchett cigarettes, is spending his vacation at Atlantic City and New York.

No Change in Stogie Strike

PITTSBURGH, July 28.

THE stogie strikers in Pittsburgh are still out and have not made any headway. They had another parade on Saturday, which was led by a brass band. They were collecting money with stretchers and were calling out several names of stogies, claiming they were made in "scab factories."

Because it is said she tried to induce three girl workers in the McKees Rocks plant of the Standard Cigar Co. to strike in sympathy with their sisters in the Pittsburgh factory, Rose Kleinman, 19 years old, of Pittsburgh, was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct. Yesterday morning Burgess Joseph Steele suspended sentence.

ASTONISHING FIGURES FROM MICHIGAN

150,000,000 Cigars Throughout the First Six Months of 1913—Great Increase All Along the Line

DETROIT, MICH., July 22.

The following report of the receipts of the Internal Revenue Department for the First District of Michigan shows that for the first six months of this year there were approximately 150,000,000 cigars manufactured, 90 per cent. of which were made in the city of Detroit:

Month.		Cigars.	Tobacco.	Snuff.
January.	1913	$73,114.69	$175,513.17	$686.00
	1912	64,200.92	167,537.14	823.60

	1912	76,101.04	168,847.53	648.60
June.	1913	77,288.01	193,841.99	563.28
	1912	76,854.13	164,017.50	512.80

Month.		No. of Cigars.	Pounds Tobacco.	Pounds Snuff.
January.	1913	24,371,503	2,103,912	8,575
	1912	21,400,306	2,119,218	10,295
February.	1913	23,168,560	2,129,344	6,471
	1912	21,422,956	2,055,233	7,510
March.	1913	22,526,263	1,993,708	8,945
	1912	22,052,976	2,187,838	7,890
April.	1913	24,148,080	2,328,751	7,545
	1912	23,119,943	1,849,090	7,453
May.	1913	26,624,470	2,469,301	7,815
	1912	25,377,013	2,135,594	8,107
June.	1913	25,762,670	2,423,024	7,041
	1912	25,617,710	2,050,218	6,410

By comparison with the above figures, it will be noted that May and June show an increase of over 1,000,000 cigars being manufactured this year over a year ago. The balance of the year will show even a greater increase, as all of the manufacturers are increasing their output and adding more cigarmakers as fast as they can be secured. One cigar factory alone, the Wayne Cigar Co., is making about a million cigars a week, and has only been in existence since the first of January.

New Central Cigar Box Company

On August 1 the Central Cigar Box Co. formally established their business in St. Louis, Mo., at No. 11 North Main Street. They will manufacture cigar boxes and have a well-equipped label department, also handle tools and supplies. The company is organized with $15,000 capital and their machinery has all been completed and is now in place.

Ad. Klinkenspor, a veteran in the trade, is president of the new company, and H. G. Dieckmeyer is the secretary and general manager. Both of these gentlemen have had ten years' experience in both factory and road work in their newly chosen line.

Another Cigarmaking Machine

A. C. Gruhlke, Waterloo, Ind., has invented a cigarmaking machine which he claims is far in advance of anything ever before attempted along this line. With the new machine the operator is able to have the use of both hands in handling the tobacco and placing it in the machine, and then by foot power the cigar is rolled out and one person can make more than five times as many cigars in a day as by the old way.

E. H. Shepard, formerly of the road forces of the Hoelscher Cigar Co., St. Louis, Mo., has opened an attractive retail store at Jefferson and Olive Streets, St. Louis.

San Francisco

Pacific Coast Collections Poor—R. M. Ellis, a Prominent Visitor—Edw. Wolf Co. Lease Their Retail Stand

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.

THE cigar trade in San Francisco is by no means booming, and from some accounts things might be a great deal better, even for this time of year. The greatest trouble, as for some time past, is in the matter of collections, this complaint being common to all lines and all parts of the country; and it is believed that, once the tariff and other economic questions of national scope are settled, there will be a decided improvement. From present indications this is likely to come about in the fall, when trade ordinarily livens up a bit, and there is accordingly a general feeling of optimism on the outlook for the later months of the year.

This optimism is already bringing a little benefit to the jobbing trade, as a good many men who have accumulated a little money are opening new stands, feeling that they can well afford to hang on through a few months of dull business for the rush that is bound to come later on. Of course this brings more competition in the retail trade for the time being, and it is quite possible that many dealers will have a hard pull next spring and summer; but by the fall of 1914, Exposition influence is sure to be strongly felt, and from then to the close of 1915 should be a period of great activity for everybody. Of course the opening of new stands is encouraged by the completion of many new buildings, many of which are providing excellent facilities for the cigar trade, and real estate agents are on the outlook for tenants. Under the circumstances the high rentals which are still demanded and paid are rather remarkable.

Mr. Eisenschimel, of the San Francisco office of Henry W. Peabody & Co., agents for several Manila factories, says the market has been rather overloaded of late, owing partly to the vacation season and partly to the tariff situation. Notwithstanding the slowing up of Manila business in San Francisco and the Pacific Northwest, he says, in the Middle West and Central States it is holding steady, and if anything, is on the increase for the finer sizes. The cheaper sizes, he says, such as the Londres, are on the decline, as the 2-for-5 smoker, being satisfied that there is good value even in cigars at that price and having cultivated a taste for Manila goods, is now taking up nickel propositions instead of the 2-for-5, Perfectos in place of Londres. Consumers of Manilas in general, he says, having cultivated a taste for Manila leaf, now demand the better grades, and he believes that during the coming holidays a goodly assortment of fine sizes in holiday packages will be displayed in the leading stores.

Arthur Meyer, Pacific Coast representative of Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, is back in the city after an extended Eastern trip, having visited New York and several cigar factories.

Michalitschke Bros. & Co., distributors of the "Alexander Humboldt" and "Henry IV" brands of Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, state that the latter line, which they took up only recently, is coming ahead nicely, while the "Figaro," their 5-cent brand, is catching on in great shape.

Ehrman Bros. & Co. say their "Optimo" sales are showing quite an increase, which they attribute largely to the fact that the goods now coming in look better than any they have had for the last six years.

The principal window display feature of M. A. Gunst & Co.'s stores for the last fortnight has been "Coral Key" Havana seconds, a 5-cent line which has had quite a large sale as a result of the prominence given it. There are several visitors at the Gunst headquarters at present, among them being Julius Unger, formerly of this city and now in charge of the business in the Hawaiian Islands, who is spending a month's vacation on the mainland accompanied by Mrs. Unger. Last week Mr. Mayer, representing S. M. Frank, the New York pipe manufacturer, called on the Gunst Company.

Chas. H. Knubel, representing Salvador Rodriguez and several other manufacturers on the Coast, has just returned from a three months' trip through the northern part of his territory. Northern business has been quiet, he says, but he has been working hard and getting good results. He will start out immediately on another trip. E. C. Hull, his associate, is now in Southern California, getting a fine business in Theobald & Oppenheimer's line.

R. M. Ellis, of the Tobacco Products Company, vice-president of M. Melachrino & Co., has just arrived in the city, and is preparing for a new campaign on the "Nestor" cigarettes, distributed here by the Edw. Wolf Company. It is announced that Louis Erdt, the well-known California representative of the Melachrino line, will hereafter also have general charge of the "Nestor" business in this territory.

Edw. Wolf reports a serious shortage of his "Don Antonio" line, due to the recent strike at the factory, though he hopes to get in plenty of goods before long. The Edw. Wolf Company has arranged to lease its retail stand, occupying the corner of the store, to C. Maxwell, formerly at Hyde and California Streets, who will take charge August 1.

H. H. Manley, representative of the American Cigar Co., has returned from his Southern trip and left for the North, where he will meet F. E. Johnson, vice-president of the Havana-American Co., accompanying him on a tour of the Coast. He expects to reach this city before the end of the month.

The Tobacco Company of California is now comfortably settled in its new quarters at 1 South Park, and on the afternoon of July 19 celebrated the occupation of the new establishment by a reception to the trade.

A new member of the force of H. Bercovich is Mr. Crane, formerly of the Black-Crane Co., window display experts. Mr. Crane, however, will give his attention to the selling end, though Mr. Bercovich is doing quite a bit of display and specialty work with his "Martinez-Havana" and "New Bachelor" lines.

According to frequent reports from Wm. Bercovich, his new jobbing business at Sacramento, Cal., is starting off in fine shape. He is quite enthusiastic over the outlook for Sacramento, as both the city and the surrounding country are building up very fast.

Recent visitors from Portland, Ore., were S. S. Rich, a prominent dealer, and Glenn Hart, representing Gonzalez & Sanchez, of Jacksonville, Fla.

D. Frankel, of Frankel, Gerdts & Co., is back at the local factory from his long vacation, much improved in health.

Carl Mattheas, of Chas. Mattheas & Co., agents for E. Regensburg & Son, is taking a vacation in Northern California, accompanied by Mrs. Mattheas.

"City Life"—A New 5-Cent Winner

Above is shown a reproduction of the very attractive label of the new brand of 5-cent cigars made by Marion C. Holcomb, the well-known Binghamton, N. Y., manufacturer. "City Life" is a new 4⅝ new concha-shaped cigar, made of a high-grade combination of carefully selected tobaccos and by handwork-men. No machines whatever are used in the manufacture of this cigar, and as a result it smokes freely and has the appearance of a cigar selling at more money. Mr. Holcomb takes particular pride in making his factory perfectly sanitary.

Although "City Life" has been on the general market for a short time, it has already been placed with a number of active jobbers who have been sending in duplicate orders. There is still some territory open for other jobbers who will find it to their interest to write to the factory for prices and particulars on this live proposition.

John E. Freund, who has been connected with the cigar factory of N. E. Barbian, McHenry, Ill., has taken over the cigar factory of John C. Dahl, Richmond, Ill., and will hereafter conduct the same. Mr. Freund is a first-class cigarmaker and is sure to make a success in his new venture.

The cigar manufacturing business of Mr. and Mrs. Pidwell, East Main Street, Johnstown, N. Y., has been taken over by Earl Chetwynd. Mr. Chetwynd is thoroughly competent to take hold of the business, having been associated with this line for several years.

A recent Pennsylvania incorporation was that of the King Bird Cigar Co., at Mt. Carmel.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Demand for Wrapper Leaf Continues Feature of Cigar Market—New Sumatra Being Tested—Domestic Growing Conditions Favorable

PENNSYLVANIA.

LANCASTER, PA.

Although weather conditions are about perfect, the tobacco crop exhibits an irregularity of growth that is amazing. One field may show well grown plants while an adjoining field, same soil, appears hardly to have started growing. As under the most favorable conditions the crop cannot mature until September if well advanced, the chances are good for a lot of it being caught by frost.

Trading in the local leaf market has become stagnant again, as is expected during the midsummer season. The cigar industry appears to be holding fairly well.

Reports from Chester County say that farmers there have no trouble getting help because of the number of unemployed men in Coatesville. Our farmers are not so fortunate and would be glad to get hold of some of these men.

At the July meeting of the Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association, held here, Aaron B. Landis presided in the absence of President Herr. It was reported by various members that the crops do not look as favorable as they should at this time of the year. Cut worms are not doing so very much damage. Fleas seem very plentiful. Tobacco on which Paris green was used seems to be growing nicely. Tobacco fields are being deprived the necessary attention owing to the harvesting of wheat. The annual outing of the association will be held at Williamson Park August 9.

YORK, PA.

Leaf dealers report a steady demand for Sumatra and domestic shade-grown wrapper stock. The increased cigar output has grown until it looks as if the demand for Sumatra would exceed the immediate supply, and the consumption of domestic shade-grown wrapper stock will probably exceed all previous records.

Demand for filler still continues firm, a number of the packers falling back on their 1909 crop, which has been held as reserve stock. Seconds and binders have also been cleared wherever possible to make room for the stock which will have first call shortly. Recent storms did some damage in the outlying districts, but otherwise the growing conditions remain favorable.

Examinations made of the 1912 packing of leaf dealers show about the same percentage of rot as in former years. The case sweated tobacco will be ready for sampling the latter part of August.

The McGuigan Cigar Co., Red Lion, recently purchased 50,000 pounds of tobacco, which is probably the largest transaction which occurred during the past fortnight.

To secure a good burn for York County grown tobacco, nine different mixtures of fertilizers were used in a test at Red Lion for the first planting of tobacco at the State experiment station. H. P. Kraybill, of State College, experiment station, and Otto Olsen, of the United States station at Ephrata, Lancaster County, have charge of the tests.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, WIS.

THIS has been a week of midsummer storms of unusual severity that have done considerable damage to growing crops and the tobacco crop has not escaped altogether. The floods have washed fields and drowned out more or less tobacco, while so much wet weather has allowed the weeds to get a good start on many fields which will prove troublesome hereafter. Other farm work is so delayed and pressing that we fear tobacco cultivation will be a good deal neglected, which does not speak well for the harvest. The crop, however, is making as rapid a growth as is possible under the circumstances, but too much moisture is not good for it and the general outlook might be improved.

No news of moment has developed in the market for old leaf and very little need be expected until the samples of the '12 packings are ready for inspection. Sampling has been started in a moderate way, enough to determine there will be some black rot to contend with, requiring re-handling. Shipments out of storage reach about 300 cases from this market to all points since last report.

STOUGHTON, WIS.

Where recent showers have fallen the tobacco fields have been greatly benefited, but some districts have suffered severely for want of moisture and replanting of from a half to three acres has been no unusual occurrence. Hail fell in Dane County, doing damage to the very earliest planted, which was a foot above ground. Prospects are in every way favorable for a strong growth of the weed.

CONNECTICUT.

WINDSOR, CONN.

Timely rains in the Connecticut Valley have helped growing tobacco and the farmers are optimistic now as to the harvest. The ground had become very dry and the rains arrived just at the right time.

The crop had stood the dry weather fairly well and it is only in exceptional instances that the plants began to spindle and show the bud. In the western part of Suffield the crop is looking rather better than is usual at this time of the year and the season is nearly a week ahead of the average. All through the tobacco section hereabouts the crop is making good growth. Weeds have been considerable bother to the growers this year and help has been at a premium. The large plantations have had about double the regular gangs the past week getting ahead of the weeds in the fields.

The fact that the farmers in Enfield, Conn., have increased the amount of acreage for tobacco about seven per cent. this season indicates that they anticipate another successful year for that crop. The principal trouble this season among the tobacco growers was the unexpected scarcity of plants, but they have succeeded in securing an amount that will guarantee a much larger yield next fall than ever before.

SUFFIELD, CONN.

The tobacco crop will be fully as good as last season. About 3600 acres of tobacco is being grown in the town this season; an increase of about 200 acres over last year. It is estimated that about a third of the crop will be picked or primed, as last year this kind of tobacco was in demand by the buyers. Very little tobacco is being raised this season under tents, scattered in different parts of the town, the largest grower under cloth being William S. Pinney on South Street. Several growers in different parts of the town have already sold the crop standing in the fields for prices ranging from 17 to 20 cents in the bundle.

NEW MILFORD, CONN.

The tobacco packing season in New Milford is about ended, and it is estimated that upwards of 10,000 cases have been handled here in the establishments of J. Stuart Halpine, C. F. Shoverling, W. L. Richmond, F. H. Graham, S. D. Green and John McGoldrick. The total is larger than New Milford has known for a good many years.

FLORIDA.

QUINCY, FLA.

After several years of stagnation and low prices for the famous shade-grown tobacco of Gadsden County, this season's crop, which is admitted to be the finest ever raised, is moving at very remunerative figures, which is said to be both satisfactory to buyer and producer. There are several buyers in the field and they are purchasing crops wherever the grower is ready to close the deal. A number of farmers have nearly housed their entire acreage, and where this is true it will be found that they have sold. A week more of good weather will see the entire crop in the barns and the greatest danger to the crop will have been past—that of being hit by hail. The crop, while not a large one, is of fine texture and burn and will be eagerly sought after by the manufacturer, thus giving quick returns to the packer.

Those who have been buying report that the growers are willing to accept a fair price and are not expecting nor wishing for the inflated and altogether unreasonable prices of 1906.

This year's crop is estimated as being worth from three to three and a half million dollars.

BRIGHT TOBACCO DISTRICTS.

VIRGINIA.

DANVILLE, VA.

At the annual meeting of the Danville Tobacco Association, President Cousins read a report showing that the sales for the year ended July 1, 35,919,379 pounds, a decrease of 1,345,025 compared with preceding year, but at an average price per hundred weight of $14.04, the highest average attained since 1874. Including tobaccos received here by rail by dealers, the total quantity handled on this market during the year was nearly seventy three million pounds.

The association elected Thomas S. Williamson president for the ensuing year, and W. A. Willingham, vice-president, succeeding Andrew Jamieson. Secretary and Sales Supervisor I. S. Bendall was re-elected for his thirty-first term.

PETERSBURG, VA.

This town is to made a bright tobacco market. This decision was reached by the warehousemen and others interested in the tobacco industry at the meeting of the Petersburg Tobacco Association.

Letters were read from the tobacco companies assuring the local association that buyers will be placed on the local market if the quantity of bright leaf offered justifies. The association appointed a committee consisting of W. T. Parham, J. J. Jones and W. J. Purdy to draft a circular letter to the growers of bright tobacco, urging them to send their product to the Petersburg market and assuring them that prices here will be as good as any paid anywhere in the State.

It was decided to open the market September 15 for the sales of tobacco, and that about October 15, when prices have been established, to hold a premium sale, to which all growers of tobacco will be invited and prizes offered for the largest pile of tobacco, the best handled lot of tobacco, the highest price paid for light wrappers, highest price paid for mahogany wrappers, highest price for cutters, highest price for bright fillers, highest price for dark fillers, highest price for primings, and highest price for smokers.

The Export Leaf Tobacco Company has begun operating the big factory housed in the two new buildings at Lawrence and Perry Streets. Upwards of three hundred and fifty employees were given work in the new establishment, including men and women. The force will be increased to five hundred or more.

The cigarette factory of the British-American Tobacco Company now is running full time, with full force.

KENTUCKY DISTRICT.

LOUISVILLE.

Drenching rains followed by cooler weather have resulted in the continuation of generally favorable conditions in the Burley section. Cultivation is being pushed and it is seldom that tobacco fields present a better appearance. While the prospect of a large crop is good there is no indication of an overproduction.

COMPARISON OF SALES TO DATE WITH PREVIOUS YEARS.

Sales—	1913	1912	1911
Total sales of new crop to date.....	47,466	58,242	79,484
Sales of new crop to date. Original inspection.	39,158	49,438	69,611

E. T. Robards, supervisor of tobacco sales on the Lexington market, estimates that there is a shrinkage of 1100 acres in the Burley crop in Kentucky from last year's acreage. Mr. Robards points out the fact that the 1912 crop was the smallest raised for years, with the exception of the cut-out year of 1908, when the night riders succeeded in practically eliminating the Burley crop in the Kentucky counties.

There is no Burley in growers' hands and the stocks at all save the large markets are depleted. Tobacco there held is of very inferior quality and prices should not be taken as indicative of that of even medium grades.

OWENSBORO, KY.

From an estimate of the tobacco crop now set out in the Green River district not more than 41 per cent. of an average crop has been set out up to this time, and this will probably be cut from 10 to 15 per cent. on account of prevailing dry weather in most of the districts. This was the report of the members of the board of control of the Green River Tobacco Growers' Association.

CINCINNATI.

Extremely light offerings prevailed in the local Burley tobacco market for the week ending July 12. Common grades predominated and prices were not materially changed from last week. There was a good inquiry, but the most interest centered in the better quality of red leaf and bright trashes. All tobacco possessing character or color was firm throughout the sale, and wrappery leaf brought as high as $20.50 per 100 pounds. Common red tobaccos were inclined to be slightly irregular.

Rejections for the week amounted to 29 hhds., or 15 per cent. of the aggregate offerings, clearly indicating the satisfactory trend of the market from the sellers' standpoint. Receipts at local warehouses from all points of the Burley belt during the week were 249 hhds.

THE CAROLINAS.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

The leaf tobacco markets in the Pee Dee section of South Carolina opened July 10 and the sales were marked by unusually good breaks in most of the markets. All reported good prices and high quality of weed. In all, hundreds of thousands of pounds of tobacco was sold. Kingstree reported sales of 70,000, Conway of 40,000 and Mullins, 100,000.

Florence, Johnsville, Manning and Mayesville reported very successful openings.

Prices ranged from 4 to 25 cents a pound, according to quality and kind.

Philippine Cigar Exports Gains

The figures for the exports of cigars during the period under consideration are encouraging, showing, as they do, an increase of 37 per cent. over those for the corresponding months of the preceding fiscal year; $1,605,123, as against $1,173,120. The average price also shows an upward tendency, being $16.89 per thousand, as compared with $15.17 for the fiscal year 1912. The grades exported to the United States run considerably higher. If the present rate of progress is maintained, the total exports to all countries during the whole of the present fiscal year will approach 190,000,000 in number. Exports of cigars to the United States increased during the fiscal year 1912 much more rapidly than the general exports of that commodity, since the market was recovering from the reaction that followed the expansion of 1910, and it is not easy to say exactly to what extent this rapidity of increase is likely to continue. If it does continue, even in part, the figures at the end of the current fiscal year should show a marked increase, although the total number exported to the United States is likely to continue for the present to fall considerably short of the maximum admitted duty free under the tariff of 1909. The figures for the whole of the current year may, however, possibly surpass the record of 86,500,000, or 57.7 per cent. of the duty-free maximum, set in 1910.

Java Tobacco Prices Disappointing

The prices obtained for tobacco were disappointing, says a consular report dealing with Java, owing to the depressed state of the European market. In East Java the long and severe drought affected the first crops adversely and the quality was poor. Owing, however, to welcome rains in September and October the second crops exceeded expectations, both as regards quality and quantity. In Mid-Java the crops harvested were fully 40 per cent. less than those of the previous year. Exports for the year amounted to 128,367,408 pounds, as against 108,342,176 pounds in 1911 and 79,210,752 pounds in 1910.

To the Cigar Jobbers and Distributors in the United States

If you want to make your business profitable and get the desirable light colors which the trade demands, and to enable your cigar manufacturers to give you a better quality cigar for the money insist that they give you a good cigar covered with an American Sumatra Wrapper.

The manufacturer is not able to pay $1.85 per pound duty on imported tobacco and build as good a cigar as those which are covered with American Sumatra Tobacco, on which no duty is paid.

Skilled labor is high, Binders are high, good Fillers are high, everything pertaining to cigar manufacture is high, but the difference in the cost of wrappers, will enable the manufacturer to give you a finer article for your customer and more profits for you.

The Florida-Georgia wrapper is not a substitute. It is the

STANDARD MONEY-MAKING WRAPPER OF THE HOUR

Over 20,000 bales used last year by the leading cigar manufacturers in this country proves it.

Increased use year after year shows that progressive manufacturers realize the quality of the Florida-Georgia wrapper.

They use it in preference to Sumatra, strictly on its merit, regardless of cost.

Quantity or Quality--Which?

WHEN you are considering the advisability of taking on a new cigar, Mr. Dealer, what do you take to be of most importance, quantity or quality?

If quality cuts a large part in the selection of your stock, get in touch with us. We have something in common with you, a medium-sized, hand-made, clear Havana filled, nickel cigar, which contains nothing but the best imported tobacco.

This cigar, the 20TH CENTURY, has been on the market for 28 years, sufficient proof that it has stood the test of time.

As Gold is the last word in all precious metals—even so, we consider our cigars in this industry.

Since 1834, "Por Larrañaga" cigars have been a 22-karat product in Havana.

Made exclusively of the finest Vuelta Abajo leaf, it is not surprising that the rulers of the world, and kings of finance and commerce, long since stamped "Por Larrañaga" as their chosen smoke, and will have no others.

Our factory, to-day, embraces every idea that is modern and sanitary, and our equipment is finer than ever to supply the demand for our cigars.

If your trade is select—they will want "Por Larrañagas". Tell them that they are made in the oldest independent factory in Havana.

Standard Pure Tobacco Binders have all the virtues of grown binders, because made of cuttings, scraps and stems. They insure an even burn, reducing the cigar to a clear, white ash, even if the wrapper is not a free burner.

The binder's soft, pliable, absorbent qualities mingle the flavor of filler and wrapper, effecting a unit blend.

By an intricate, patented process, the oils and juices of the high-grade leaf are all preserved.

Standard Pure Tobacco Binders contain no adulteration or artificial flavoring.

Classified by the U. S. Internal Revenue Dept. as "tobacco in process of manufacture."

U. S. Patents issued Feb. 6th, 1912, proclaim the Standard Pure Tobacco Binder to be manufactured only of tobacco stems, cuttings and scraps. Made in 6 Standard Sizes to accommodate 30 sizes of cigars; also 2 stogie sizes. Ready to use after lying for about 24 hours in damp cuttings. No Casing, Stripping, Cutting or Waste. CINCINNATI CIGAR MANUFACTURERS ULTIMATUM TO THEIR STRIKERS

Strikebreakers Defiant—Manufacturers' Union Makes Some Concessions But President Declares Strikers' Demands Would Ruin Industry

(Special Dispatch to "The Tobacco World.")

CINCINNATI, O., August 9.

UPON receiving the approval of the International Union, six hundred cigarmakers in this city struck on August 7, to force an increase in pay of $1 a thousand on both Havana and domestic cigars.

As a result, fifteen of the city's largest cigar factories are tied up, although some of the smaller plants have met the demands of the strikers. The cigar factories operating on a large scale claim that it will be impossible for them to meet the demands of the men and at the same time operate their business at a profit.

Both sides seem determined to fight to a finish, and in view of the series of labor difficulties that have occurred in this city lately, it is probable that the cigar manufacturers will receive the hearty support of manufacturers in other lines.

In an ultimatum issued to the striking cigarmakers, the Union Cigar Manufacturers' Association have threatened, that unless their terms are accepted, they will throw their shops open to any cigarmaker who desires employment. They have made certain concessions and have given the strikers until Monday, August 18th, to return to work or remove their tools.

Tobacco Sales in Holland

From Amsterdam, Consul Frank W. Mahin sends the following report of tobacco sales in Holland:

"At the tobacco sales held in Amsterdam from January 1 to July 12, this year, prices were slightly lower for Sumatra and materially lower for Borneo than last year. The quantity of Sumatra sold was nearly the same as in 1912 and that of Borneo considerably more. The total sale of Sumatra tobacco was 208,267 packages at an average price of 166 Dutch cents ($0.67) per half kilo (1.1023 pounds), against 207,822 packages at 171 Dutch cents ($0.69). The quality of the tobacco in this year's sales (the crop of 1912) was about the same as that of last year's, which was very good.

"The total sale of Borneo tobacco during the period in question was 14,321 packages at an average price of 89 Dutch cents ($0.36) per half kilo this year, against 11,300 bales in 1912 at 103 Dutch cents ($0.41). The lower price this year is due to the inferior quality in comparison with that of last year, which in its turn was poorer than the quality of the tobacco sold in 1911. The sales each year were from the crop of the preceding year."

Ed. J. Earl, manager of the Peregoy & Moore Cigar Co., at St. Joseph and Kansas City, and wife and son, and F. E. Shepard, secretary of the Peregoy & Moore Cigar Co., will spend a two weeks' vacation at their clubhouse in the Ozarks, fishing.

MILLIONS GAIN IN INTERNAL REVENUE

Uncle Sam Breaks All Records for Internal Revenue Collected During Past Fiscal Year—Over $6,000,000 From the Cigar and Cigarette Industries

(Special to "The Tobacco World.")

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 12.

MORE than unusual interest attaches to the first annual report of W. H. Osborn, who has recently taken office as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, which was made public by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo yesterday. In all departments of the Internal Revenue Bureau, the bulked gross receipts far exceed any showing of collections ever made by the Government in one year.

The year 1910-11 has held all records previously, not excluding the years of the Spanish war, when special taxes were levied, but 1912-13 overtopped that of 1910-11 by nearly $22,000,000.

The total amount collected for the past year is given at $344,424,453.85, as against $321,615,694.69 for the year 1911-12, showing a net increase of $22,808,559.16.

Of this huge sum, the manufacturers of tobacco, cigars and cigarettes paid largely increased taxes on every product.

The enormous increase in American cigarette output is best indicated by the fact that makers paid more than 26½% increased revenue taxes this year as against last.

The figures are given:

	1911-12.	1912-13.	Increase.
Coll. on cig'ts..	$14,027,031.33	$17,845,963.95	$3,818,932.62

In other words, the cigarette smokers of the country paid into the Treasury of the United States over one-twentieth of the Government's entire income from internal taxation.

The growth of the cigarette industry in the United States is one of the most amazing phases of our commercial development. Adverse legislation and repeated attacks from many quarters have helped to foster the industry. The report shows an increase of more than 6 per cent. in the revenue collected from the manufacturers of cigars weighing more than three pounds to the thousand, while panetellas and stogies apparently are losing popularity, showing a 5 per cent. decrease. The figures are:

From cigars weighing more than three pounds per thousand, $1,327,941.72 increase.

Chewing tobacco and smoking tobacco are classed together in revenue collections, so that an analysis of the alleged decrease in the amount of plug consumption is not obtainable. However, the increased revenue from both these classes of tobacco was only about 2⅝ per cent., or $846,197.88.

Where the Money Came From.

Strange to say, the banner state of the Union in point of returns is Illinois, where in the Fifth Internal Revenue District, which embraces Chicago, the collectors garnered in nearly one-tenth of the whole vast sum, this district alone yielding $34,000,994.53. Tobacco, however, played but a small part in this, the principal receipts coming from the great distilleries located in this district.

Indiana and Kentucky were next in the list, also due

OBITVARY

John C. Anderson, Son of Founder of Famous House, Dies

AFTER an illness of two years, John C. Anderson, son of John Q. Anderson, founder of the famous New York tobacco house of that name, died at his home, 575 Whitney Avenue, New Haven, Conn., on Friday, August 1. Mr. Anderson was seventy-six years old.

John Q. Anderson started in the retail cigar business, but he later branched out and at the time of his demise was one of the largest manufacturers of fine cut tobacco in this country. It was in the store of John Q. Anderson that Mary Rogers, who was mysteriously murdered in a glen along the Hudson, was employed. And it was out of the mysterious circumstances of this tragedy that Edgar Allen Poe wove a famous story, "The Mystery of Marie Roget."

The house of John Q. Anderson & Son was, for years, a landmark in downtown New York. The large metal statue of Sir Walter Raleigh, which adorned the front of the building, never failed to attract attention. The figure remained until the building was torn down in 1900.

John C. Anderson left a fortune estimated to be about $5,000,000. He is survived by one daughter.

Charles Hoffritz

AS a result of blood poisoning, Charles Hoffritz, a well-known cigar box manufacturer, of Dayton, O., succumbed to the disease on Sunday, July 27, at his residence on Zenia Avenue.

Three weeks previous to his death, Mr. Hoffritz ran a splinter through his foot. Blood poisoning developed and the member was amputated. It failed, however, to stay the ravages of the disease.

Mr. Hoffritz was born at Sweinford-am-Rhein, Germany, May 28, 1848. He came to America in 1868, locating in New York. In 1882 he moved to Cincinnati, where he was associated with the Samuel Trost Company. Leaving Cincinnati in 1886, Mr. Hoffritz removed to Dayton, where he started in the cigar box business with Louis W. Keyer. In 1896 he branched out for himself and for seventeen years has been the owner of the Hoffritz factory.

The deceased was a prominent member of the Knights of Pythias.

Mr. Hoffritz is survived by a widow, two daughters and two sons. A sister and brother residing in New York also survive him.

James B. Spurgin

JAMES B. SPURGIN, a buyer for the People's Tobacco Company, of New Orleans, dropped dead on a farm near Irvington, Ky., on July 30. The body was not identified until August 1.

Mr. Spurgin's death was caused by heat prostration. He was forty-six years old. His relatives live in Louisville, Ky.

George Cameron, Jr.

WHILE sojourning at Nauheim, Germany, George Cameron, Jr., son of George Cameron of tobacco fame, died on August 3, in his forty-eighth year.

Mr. Cameron's father was a prominent tobacco manufacturer of Virginia, and a pioneer exporter of tobacco to Australia.

George Cameron, Jr., was mayor of Petersburg, Va.; president of the principal bank of Petersburg, and was prominently identified with the British-American Tobacco Company.

H. C. Mahrt

AFTER an illness of about nine months, H. C. Mahrt, one of the oldest and most prominent cigar manufacturers of Dayton, O., died at "Ravenswood," his residence in Oakwood, on August 2.

For nearly thirty-two years Mr. Mahrt owned a cigar factory at Hickory and Brabham Streets, retiring about five years ago. Since then he has spent most of his time at "Ravenswood."

Mr. Mahrt was born in Germany and came to this country when a young man. He rapidly gained success and his friends attribute it to his splendid determination and perseverance.

Mr. Mahrt, who was fifty-six years old, is survived by a widow and five children.

Buys Out Partner's Interest

BERT ELY, of the firm of Warren & Ely, doing business at 822 Calhoun Street, Fort Wayne, Ind., has bought the interest of his partner, Frank Warren, in the tobacco and cigar business that they have been operating.

The career of this firm has been a very interesting one. Several years ago they started in business with about half a dozen boxes of cigars and today their store is the largest in the city. They own the cigar stand at the Centlivre Hotel, and only recently gave up their branch on East Main Street.

Cincinnati Cigarmakers' Strike

The resolution reads:

Whereas, The Cigarmakers' Union No. 4, of Cincinnati, made demands on us for more money per thousand, and

Whereas, At a meeting held August 4, we made them a proposition, which they did not accept; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we grant The Cigarmakers' Union No. 4, of Cincinnati, O., until 12 o'clock, August 13, 1913, to accept the following terms, namely: We grant them 50 cents more per thousand on seed work, $1 per thousand on seed and Havana work and $1 on clear Havana work, the old rules to stand as heretofore, except that where shops are putting on more men there shall be no limit, and that we recognize the packers' bill, with the exception of paying 10 cents extra on banded cigars. Failing to do so we are open from Monday, August 18, 1913, to any one who wants work, and request old employes to remove their tools from our factories, as we will not be responsible for them; also,

Resolved, That failing to adopt our proposition, the same be withdrawn, and that we insist on the old bill of prices.

THE UNION CIGAR MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION,
P. M. IBOLD,
Secretary.

In a statement recently given out by J. Adam Schmidt, president of the Cigar Manufacturers' Association, he said:

"To begin with we pay the cigarmakers from $5 to $7 a thousand more than the non-union workers receive. We pay them from $1 to $2 more than the union men receive in cities like St. Louis, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and many other places."

"The action of the cigarmakers in making their demands will surely kill the cigar industry in Cincinnati."

A meeting of the strikers is called for Saturday.

RETAIL RINKLES

Catchy Schemes Used Successfully By Thinking Men To Improve, Enlarge and Popularize Their Business

Maurice Maeterlinck scarcely expected when he wrote his dainty little "The Bluebird," that his catch phrase "We need the Bluebird for our happiness," would be adapted by the American Tobacco Co. in an advertising campaign on "Lord Salisbury" cigarettes.

"We Need 'The Bluebird' for Our Happiness"

Some genius in the cigarette department, however, looking around for ideas for retailers to distribute as souvenirs, hit upon a bluebird pin. The past few days, with "Lord Salisbury" cigarettes the American Tobacco Co. have been distributing to their customers a neat little pin in the shape of a bluebird, which they call "the lucky bluebird of happiness." Upon the card to which it is attached appears the phrase popularized by the play, "We need the Bluebird for our happiness."

These pins are also given away in return for twenty-five of the coupons packed in "Lord Salisbury" cigarettes.

In the present day of hygienics, eugenics and the like, the cigar dealer who does much business in pipes is confronted with an interesting problem which a live merchant in Rochester, N. Y., has solved as follows:

One Way to Keep Pipe Stems Sanitary

Over his attractive case of pipes he has a neatly printed sign reading like this:

TO OUR PATRONS

In selecting your pipe, we would respectfully suggest, that you do not put a number of pipes in your mouth to try them. We guarantee every pipe to draw freely, and give perfect satisfaction.

In commenting upon this, he stated that it was a notable fact that almost all reformers and students especially, were pipe smokers; and that after he had watched a customer one day place fifteen or more expensive pipes in his mouth and draw through them, he decided that it was not fair to his patrons to permit a practice like this to continue, and as a result the new sign appeared above the case. He tells us that it has attracted much favorable attention and has been appreciated by many visitors.

One of the most attractive retail shops in Philadelphia is that conducted by John Middleton at 219 Walnut Street. It is a safe surmise that but few of the passing throng fail to stop at least for a moment and take a glance in the Middleton show window.

Interesting the Pipe Smoker in Novelties

"There's a Reason."

Mr. Middleton has sized up the smoking fraternity to be strong believers in novelties, and any salesman who has a smoking novelty worthy of attention is very nearly assured a trial order if he goes in to see Mr. Middleton.

In the display window are exhibited probably sixty different devices and accessories which are dear to the heart of every smoker. Each of these is attractively mounted on cardboard with the name, use and price plainly indicated. This display occupies the extreme front of the window, on a sloping platform, and is surmounted by a special display of various cigars which the store is featuring. Everything is shown, from the patented pipe cleaner to the silver-plated cigarette-holder, and the idea has resulted in a big specialty business on novelties.

Many dealers in cigarettes often, innocently, get into trouble with the law by selling cigarettes to minors.

In those states where there are stringent laws regarding the selling of cigarettes to boys under a certain age, it is often hard for the man behind the counter to keep strictly within the legal limits. The fact that he is easygoing in the majority of cases leads minors to take advantage of the retailer and at the same time jeopardize to some extent his business. There have been various attempts made by dealers to avoid argument when the age of the consumer was in doubt, but most methods have given but mediocre results.

One Way to Handle Cigarettes and Minors

An effective way of handling the situation has been hit upon by one dealer at least. This man had a frame made just large enough to hold a copy of the cigarette law. He pasted it in the frame and whenever a boy came in to purchase some of the "pills," and the dealer felt that he was inside the age limit, he simply referred the would-be-purchaser to a copy of the law, which was hanging nearby.

It proved to be an effectual way of stopping argument and the retailer has had very little difficulty since he tried this method.

Advertising the famous old "Bull Durham" tobacco, F. Metzler, of the American Tobacco Co., has had a force of men working Battle Creek, Mich. During the past fortnight tobacco dealers all over town presented purchasers of a 5-cent bag of "Bull Durham" with serviceable fans, containing on their surface a likeness, in colors, of some famous knight of the diamond. This is probably the reason that the stunt has been called "Fans for Fans."

"Fans for Fans" Helps Summer Sales

This feature has made quite a hit in Battle Creek, and both the men and women who follow baseball in the town are making collections of those fans which hold likenesses of their favorites in the big leagues.

One of the clever novelties recently brought out by a cigarette manufacturer, is that of packing in each case of ten "Ladies' cigarettes," a dainty little tube containing a quantity of breath cachous.

An Idea for Women Patrons

The little tablets are flavored with all the daintiest ideas which a confectioner can embody in a breath sweetener, and with the package of these cigarettes in her vanity case, the lass who desires a clandestine puff in the hotel or must needs meet some one shortly thereafter, who might catch a whiff of the stolen puff, can go merrily on her way and feel sure that the little indiscretion, if such it might be termed, would not be detected.

A Broadway retailer, who has been exploiting these goods, says that it is one of the catchiest combinations which has come to his attention in some months.

The tablets are not as expensive an article as rugs to be packed in cigarettes, and many people declare them much more desirable.

Get some anti-breaths quickly.

RECENTLY returned cigar salesman tells the following story of how he extricated himself from an unpleasant situation by appealing in a clever manner to the cupidity of a Havana cab driver.

Leaving the tobacco market one rainy day, the salesman hailed a passing cab and asked to be driven to Jesus del Monte, a suburb of the city. En route, the salesman discovered that he had forgotten to put his purse in his pocket that morning. It was a long ride back to the hotel, and he was in some haste to reach his destination. He decided to continue and take his chances with the driver, retaining him if necessary to drive him back later to his hotel.

However, upon reaching his destination, an idea came to him and he as stepped out of the cab he said to the driver, "I have dropped cinco pesos in American gold on the floor of your cab, will you get down and help me hunt for it?"

It was too great a temptation for the driver, for the sentence had no sooner left the salesman's lips than the man whipped up his horse and disappeared down the highway.

It is safe to bet that the cabby will get down and help the next "fare" hunt for any money lost in his cab.

APROPOS of the cost of smoking, a rather amusing incident happened to me the other day as I was trudging over a couple of odd miles of macadam on my way to the Devon station.

The morning was fast growing hot, inhospitable motor cars whizzed by me in clouds of dust, and I, frankly, was not enjoying the jaunt. However, a fragrant Havana between my teeth, lifted, it seemed to me, some of the burden of the walk.

I plodded along on one side of the road, my mind occupied with only the one hope of getting to the station before I melted by the wayside. Just then an open wagon caught up to me, and I was startled from my thoughts by the call. "Want a lift, your feller?"

I looked up rather quickly and saw a typical farmer, well on the shady side of sixty, in an open wagon holding the reins over a horse of uncertain age. My feet, already, had grown heavy and I was glad to climb in beside the old man.

Several minutes of silence followed his encouraging "G'long Kate," and I puffed at intervals on my cigar.

Presently the farmer caught a whiff of the weed and he looked at me sharply, and I thought rather insinuatingly at the same time, as he said:

"Durned fine cigar. Betchew paid somethin' fer it."

"Oh, about a nickel." And I added, "Will you have one?" reaching in my pocket for the twin.

But before I could get it out, he replied: "No sirree, smokin' is too expensive a habit fer me. Us farmers can't afford such luxuries when the cost of livin' is so high."

I thought of what I was paying for "fresh vegetables" and wondered, but said nothing.

And then nudging me in the ribs at he watched me from the corner of his eye, he continued: "Gowan, betchew paid more like ten cents fer it. I used to smoke 'fore I was married and ye can't fool me, by jing!"

And then, rather triumphantly, "I can still tell good tobaccer."

I puffed away while he occasionally urged on our good but faltering steed down the shady road toward the station.

As we neared the railroad he turned to me and said in a sort of confidential tone: "I was a real sport 'fore Becky and I got hitched, but married life made me economize, and my smokin' was the first thing she made me cut out. I admit I was extravagant; why, young feller, I may not look it, and ye may not believe it, but forty year ago, when I used to go to town, I paid as high as a dollar for fifty cigars. They tell me that, now, Morgan and them rich guys has cigars made that cost as much at twenty-five cents apiece."

And he ended his soliloquy, "Times sure has changed and I guess the minister is right when he says the comin' generation is goin' to the dogs. I didn't believe it at first, but when young fellers like you gits to payin' ten cents fer smokes, it shows that ye ain't got no regard fer money t'all. This high cost of livin' is sure goin' to bust somebody."

I was tempted to tell him what I had already paid for the weed, but wanted him to get back to "Becky" without succumbing to the shock.

THE retiring governor of a certain state tells this story on an old colored woman, who evidently knew of his kindness of heart and of his weakness for using his pardoning power before he ceased to hold office.

An old negress gained access to him one afternoon and begged the governor to pardon her "ole man."

"Yas, sah, he is jes' an old ornery no-count cuss, no good to anybody whar he is an Ah needs him home—Ah needs him werry bad," she said, as she pleaded with the governor.

"Well, Eliza," said the governor, "what is he in jail for?"

"Why, sah, he war wanderin' about in the grocery store while the boss was a-waitin on a lady, and one little twelve-pound butt o' plug tobaccer sort-a stuck to his han' and he dun comed home with it. Yas, sah, dat war all he done—jes tooked one little butt o' tobaccer."

After a moment's thought the governor looked rather sharply at Eliza and said, "Well, Eliza, if your husband is such a good-for-nothing no-count cuss, what in the world do you want me to let him out of jail for?"

Eliza looked stumped for a moment, and then her face lighted up as she replied, "Well, sah, you see we is most all out o' plug tobaccer agin."

The Rights of the Smoker

Not content with trying to abolish it on the street cars, a strenuous crusade has been indulged in, to prevent smoking at open-air band concerts.

No one disputes the fact that some smokers are, at times inconsiderate of the rights of those who do not smoke and who, further, do not like the smell of tobacco. They carelessly blow the smoke in the faces of others, shoot lighted matches and cigarettes about indiscriminately, and without further care as to the damage their thoughtlessness may cause. And in all fairness we admit that their actions should be curbed.

Let us, for a moment, however, consider the smoker; among this constantly growing class are many working people to whom tobacco is a solace much prized. At home they have little opportunity to enjoy their cigar or pipe; the factory laws of New York prevent them from smoking at work. If they cannot smoke on the street cars or in the parks, where can they exercise this pleasure?

It must be admitted that these periodic crusades are carried on by a minority or they would make their influence felt. Meanwhile, the consumption of tobacco is steadily increasing. Segregation may mean some solution of the problem of separating the smoker and the non-smoker, but certainly nothing of any consequence is gained by attempting to interfere, promiscuously, with the pleasures of the devotees of tobacco; and especially when this class is largely made up of people who have none too many enjoyments anyway.

Asking for a consideration of the rights of others certainly means a consideration of the rights of smokers as well. Smoking in public is no longer confined to the masculine sex, and the rapid growth of cigar and cigarette smoking among the women means that their prejudice has been due in part to the fact that they were unacquainted with the pleasures to be derived from it.

National Prohibition of Tobacco

That another generation will see not only liquor under national prohibition, but tobacco as well, is an assertion that has recently been made by a Western critic. This "authority" blames the intemperate use of liquor, tobacco, and meats for the increase in chronic diseases in America.

The fact that smoking in one form or another is constantly on the increase in this country, is a sufficient reason for "pooh-poohing" any such statement. Further, it is hardly conceivable that the Government will put a ban on an industry that brings in such an enormous revenue as does the commerce in tobacco.

It is noteworthy that the insurance companies today recognize a man who smokes, with moderation, as being a risk equal with the man who does not smoke. Physicians perceive that a certain amount of tobacco can be handled by the normal system without ill effects, and it is beyond belief that people will allow a few zealous reformers to legislate their harmless pleasures away from them.

The use of tobacco is no more pernicious in its effects upon the system than the use of meats or liquors, or anything else that is indulged in to an immoderate degree.

We frequently read of cases of longevity where tobacco has been used constantly; then again we read of aged persons who have never used it. From where we sit, there appears to be but little relationship between health and the moderate use of tobacco.

The Internal Revenue Report

It seems eminently proper that the annual report of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue is receiving more attention each year at the hands of the daily press, and the trade press as well, throughout the United States.

When Secretary McAdoo gave out the official figures for the fiscal year of the Internal Revenue Department, ending June 30th, a few days ago, the preliminary report was carefully digested by every newspaper of any worth, this judging from the press clippings received, in all parts of the United States and the citizens of the country were thus enabled to learn directly from whence comes many of the millions which make the wheels of the Government revolve so easily, and enables Congress to appropriate untold millions for battleships, internal improvements, Panama canals and the like.

Perhaps it might be worth while for some of our United Dental friends and others of a similar ilk, to stop a moment in their relentless attacks on the vast tobacco industry as well as the distilling and brewing interests of the United States, and reflect on the question of how many dreadnaughts could be constructed from the revenue yielded by the painless dental institution on Fourteenth Street and Sixth Avenue, New York, and the principal thoroughfares in all our large cities.

Any industries which yield to the United States Government the stupendous sum of $340,000,000 during the past year, should be received with some consideration from the hands of its most bitter enemies, if they continue to live and enjoy the benefits to which these vast sums are put.

Chicago

Trade Conditions Good—Premiums Attract Tobacco Lovers to Many Stores

CHICAGO, ILL., August 11.

EVERYBODY that is in any way connected with the tobacco and cigar business, either directly or indirectly, is enthusiastic over business conditions at the present time. Conditions are the best ever and many dealers volunteered the information that trade during the past two weeks was as good, if not better, than any previous year at this season. The weather has been ideal for the tobacco business and manufacturers of cigarettes, tobacco and cigars have donated liberally in pushing their particular brands.

Never in the history of the Chicago trade has the smoker been enticed so much with handsome premiums to partake of the different brands of cigarettes as well as smoking tobacco. Just as Chicago was sweltering with the heat all of the loop stores as well as the residence district were placarded with notices reading: "A Baseball Fan for a Baseball Fan." Then in smaller print it notified the tobacco-loving male public that anyone purchasing a sack of Bull Durham would be presented with a baseball fan, with a picture of one of the leading stars of baseball on it.

The makers of "Egyptienne Luxuries" cigarettes came to the front last week with an attractive premium in the shape of a Lucky Bluebird Pin. This pin is a popular one with the ladies, and as the signs have been put in conspicuous places, where the ladies could easily read it, it is more than probable that many a man who has not acquired the cigarette habit will be induced to purchase a package in order to get a pin for a friend among the fair sex.

"Chris" Yde, manager for W. K. Steele, reports a good demand for "St. Denis."

The San Alto Cigar Co. is pushing their "El Continno" brand, in 10c. and 2 for 25c. sizes.

L. & I. Rubovits, the board of trade tobacconists, say that this summer and the first half of August, in particular, has been exceedingly good. All brands have been selling remarkably well, but their "Rubo," in the 10c. and two-for-a-quarter sizes, has been leading them all.

"Coronet" cigarettes are being pushed by the loop stores. Last week purchasers were offered a felt pennant with ach box. These pennants were neat affairs and stimulated sales.

The Chicago consumer of stogies is wearing a scowl these days. His favorite brand, the "Gustave Pollok," cannot be secured around the loop, and all dealers are being hounded night and day with the question, "Well, how soon is the strike going to be settled"?

The popular South Side manufacturer and dealer, Oscar Sachsel, located at 313 West Sixty-third Street, has, with the aid of new electric fixtures, redecorated his store in a most attractive manner. His popular brands, "313," "The Englewood Standard," "Havana Seconds" and "El Ciro," are being pushed with vigor by Walter Sachsel, the able manager.

to large distilling interests, while the State of New York is placed fourth. The six internal revenue districts of the Empire State with the great leaf industry of New York City, as well as the vast output of cigars and cigarettes, only yielded a trifle more than the Fifth Illinois, in figures $47,250,446.34.

Pennsylvania Fifth as a Producer.

Pittsburgh District	$12,961,124.00
Philadelphia District	10,078,808.59
Ninth District	5,239,219.96
Twelfth District	680,378.08
	$28,959,520.63

The tobacco industry in all its phases contributed to the support of the Government an increased amount of $6,199,273.15 over its yield of the last fiscal year.

It is interesting to note the report from Porto Rico, which shows a decrease in both manufactured cigars and cigarettes shipped out of the island. This amount on cigars totals $12,786.03.

On the other hand one observes an increase in the revenue on cigars from the Philippines approximating $82,612.35.

It must be apparent from these figures that the Manila product is constantly growing in favor at the expense of the Porto Rican manufactured cigar.

While there is a marked decrease in the cigars sent here from Porto Rico, there has been an increase in the amount of that island's leaf tobacco shipped to the States.

The cause of defection in the trade toward the Porto Rican manufactured cigar, is not altogether clear, but figures show that there is something radically wrong.

Receipts during fiscal years ended June 30	1912	1913	Increase	Decrease
Cigars weighing more than 3 pounds per thousand	$507,400.23	$494,614.20	.....	$12,786.03

Cigarettes weighing not more than 3 pounds per thousand,	15,191.10	8,328.95	.....	6,862.15
Total	$523,079.94	$503,643.35	.....	$19,436.59

Revenue figures from the Philippines are:

Receipts during fiscal years ended June 30	1912	1913	Increase	Decrease
Cigars weighing more than 3 pounds per thousand	$218,531.34	$301,143.69	$82,612.35	.....

Manufactured tobacco	1.96	8.00	6.04	.....
Total	$224,758.05	$319,100.64	$94,342.59	.....

The withdrawals for consumption for the last two years covering manufactured tobacco, snuff, cigars and cigarettes, on which tax was paid, shows an increase in 1913 of 3,451,762,728 pounds.

Fiscal years ended June 30	1912	1913	Increase	Decrease

The above statement of withdrawals includes on account of Porto Rico 164,871,400 cigars at $3 per thousand; 194,500 cigarettes at $3.60 per thousand, and 6,663,160 cigarettes at $1.25 per thousand. On account of Philippine products as follows: 100,381,230 cigars at $3 per thousand; 200 cigarettes at $3.60 per thousand; 14,358,584 cigarettes at $1.25 per thousand, and 100 pounds of manufactured tobacco at 8 cents per pound.

New Cigar Case Moistener

Cigar men have long realized the necessity of equipping their cases with moisteners that would make for uniformity in the condition of their product. That factor has been successfully solved in an automatic moistener recently placed on the market by a Milwaukee house.

An advantage claimed for the new invention is that it throws off moisture rapidly on dry days and works slowly on wet days. The principle upon which the moistener is constructed is a new one. It is all metal, but rust proof.

The water in the tank is drawn to the surface by means of a wick. One filling of the tank will last 10 days as the moistener is of good capacity, 16 inches long and 2¼ in diameter.

China as a Market for American Tobacco

Number of Hong Kong Cigarette Factories—Cheap Goods in Demand

CONSUL-GENERAL GEORGE E. ANDERSON, stationed at Hong Kong, China, recently sent in a very interesting resume of the tobacco and cigarette industries in Southern China.

He calls particular attention to the increasing importing of American tobacco and gives some helpful hints as to how our packers might enlarge their business in his territory.

He says:

AUGUST 1.

There has been a considerable increase in the imports of tobacco of all grades into Hongkong during the past two years and there has also been a marked increase in the export of Chinese tobacco to other countries. Imports of American tobacco have been increasing, but whether there will be further increase is considered problematical.

The tobacco-trade situation in Hongkong is peculiar, and the requirements of the market need especial care and attention from exporters. High-grade American leaf is too expensive for Chinese uses and in general does not meet the requirements of this trade. The opening for low-grade leaf is large, provided the leaf is cheap and of the particular quality needed here. While Chinese tobaccos are not high-grade leaf, as a rule, it is to be realized that the best grades of tobacco for native use in this market are Chinese tobaccos. One notable element in the situation is the strong tendency among Chinese at present to turn to Chinese as against foreign products like tobacco as a matter of sentiment in favor of home industries. Tobacco dealers in Hongkong shipping to the interior or other points report that this feeling is having a marked effect upon their trade.

Imports for Manufacture.

The tobacco business in Hongkong at present consists in the importation of tobacco from the Philippines, India, Java, Sumatra, and the Malay States and from the United States for the manufacture of cigars and cigarettes in Hongkong and in the export of Chinese tobacco to London and Hamburg for the manufacture of cigarettes there. The import trade into Hongkong consists almost entirely of second-rate to waste tobacco, chiefly of filler from the Philippines which has been discarded for the fine trade by the great Philippine factories, and of wrapper from Sumatra discarded by the high-grade trade, and various tobaccos from Java, India, and the Malay States which are not suitable for the fine trade anywhere. There is no accurate measure of this trade other than the fact that Philippine figures report the export of leaf tobacco from the islands to Hongkong in the fiscal year 1911 amounted to 373,349 pounds, valued for customs purposes at $30,507, and in the last fiscal year the export amounted to 307,165 pounds, valued in the same way at $30,404. These figures are considerably below those given by Hongkong importers.

The imports from Java, Sumatra, and other East Indian districts amount to something like 4000 bales annually and are valued at about $50,000 gold—about $10,000 from India, about $5000 from Java, about $25,000 from Sumatra and about $10,000 worth in sundry lots. The imports from the United States into China and Hongkong according to American figures reach a value of about $600,000 annually, of which probably about one-eighth passes through Hongkong. The imports of tobacco into Hongkong from China have amounted to an average of nearly $1,000,000 gold out of the $1,850,000 average exports from China for several years.

Cigars and Cigarettes.

The vast mass of the tobacco imported into Hongkong is used in local manufacture of cigars and cigarettes, although large and increasing quantities of Chinese-grown tobacco have been exported to Hamburg and London for blending in manufacturing cigarettes. The manufacture of cigarettes in Hongkong is largely for export, presenting the rather unusual situation of an industry which competes with its business rivals in the local field only with difficulty, but which competes with other rivals abroad successfully. The cigarette market in Hongkong and in China generally is dominated by the Chinese factories of the British-American Tobacco Co., which uses in its factories in China the bulk of the American tobacco exported to China.

Chinese-made cigarettes of grade and style to compete with the product of this concern's factories are made in numerous small establishments both in Hongkong and in the interior points, obtaining stocks of foreign tobacco through Hongkong. Their product is sold in considerable and at present in increasing quantities in competition with the products of the dominant interests, but a large portion, and at times the greater portion, of their product has been and is sold generally to Chinese communities abroad. Cigar manufacture is carried on in the same way with the second and waste grades of cigar tobaccos imported from the Philippines and the East Indies and the product is disposed of largely in the same way, though there is a fair and growing market for these cheap cigars locally and in parts of China near at hand. It is in this trade that the growing preference of the Chinese for native goods is particularly felt. There are, of course, almost innumerable grades and varieties of Chinese-made cigarettes. American leaf has been used for the manufacture of some of the grades designed to compete with the foreign style product of the dominant interests, and there are grades of cigarettes on this market made of practically pure American stock. On the other hand, the usual mixture is that of low-grade Chinese tobaccos with the low-grade tobaccos imported from the Philippines and the East Indies. Some American leaf is also used in blending the Chinese fine-cut tobacco used in Chinese pipes. One phase of the present situation is a growing popularity for a small native-made cigarette-cheroot composed entirely of tobacco and using some of the Sumatra waste for wrapper with some American and Philippine tobacco as filler. A very large proportion of all these products, however, is manufactured for export to various parts of the world, chiefly for the use by the Chinese residents abroad. The goods are sold largely in Singapore and the East Indies, in Australia, Canada, and to some extent in the United States.

Range of Prices—Imports.

The range of prices of all these tobaccos is surprising The standard tobacco for the native trade is Chinese leaf of fair average quality, which sells at the present time at about $35 local currency per picul, or at present exchange at the rate of 12.6 cents gold per pound. American tobacco coming into this market ranges from 8 to 25 cents gold per pound c. i. f. Hongkong. Philippine and East Indian tobaccos range from $10 to $25 local currency per picul of 133⅓ pounds, or from 3.6 cents to 9 cents gold per pound c. i. f. Hongkong. All these tobaccos are imported for native use. The amount of tobacco imported for manufacturing goods for foreigners at present is very small, all but a negligible quantity of tobaccos for Europeans and Americans being imported in the manufactured state by reason of the fact that cigar manufacture for foreigners in Hongkong has not proved a success.

Domestic Tobacco Growing.

The production of Chinese tobacco seems to be of growing importance to the tobacco world though such production varies greatly from year to year. Efforts to improve the quality of the native-grown tobacco, such as the importation of American seeds and cultivating implements and instruction by American trained experts, have not proved successful. Tobacco growing in China other than for local or personal use of the grower is in the control of comparatively few people, as the ordinary Chinese farmer has not the capital necessary to purchase the special fertilizers used in its cultivation. This fertilizer is generally waste from the peanut oil mills, the peanut cake after the oil has been expressed. The Chinese, too, as a whole, prefer their leaf of the better grades if they can afford it, though the leaf as a rule lacks flavor and requires blending for the best results.

Tobacco production in China on the whole is on the increase. In 1911 an unusually large crop was planted, but the low prices prevailing all over the world kept prices for the native leaf so low that growers lost money. In 1912 there was in consequence much less acreage and high prices were to be had both in China and for Chinese tobacco abroad. The general expectancy is that there will be an unusually large crop in China during the current season. The output of Chinese tobacco also is being affected somewhat by a special tax of about $1.15 gold on each picui (133⅓ pounds) manufactured, which is imposed in China.

The export of Chinese tobacco to London and Hamburg during the present season has been interfered with greatly by high exchange, the high value of silver in terms of gold raising the gold equivalent of the price of Chinese tobacco here over the limit of from 6 to 7 pence (12 to 14 cents gold) per pound, beyond which the European markets will not go for Chinese tobacco. For this Chinese tobacco, however, there is a strongly increased demand when exchange is favorable. For mixing purposes and in view of the low price at which the product often can be had with favorable exchange the use of Chinese tobacco abroad is greatly on the increase.

Our Consul at Harbin, North Manchuria, sends in some interesting data on the progress being made in the introduction of American cigarettes and tobacco in Manchuria during the last two or three years. Naturally, the Russian cigarette has a call in this country, and in 1912 the importations of these increased almost $200,000 over the year previous, aggregating total imports of $693,205. That the American interests were not idle, is indicated by an increase of importation of nearly $300,000 of our goods. The total imports for 1912 amounted to $429,371. The whole industry shows a total gain of nearly $500,000.

The British-American Tobacco Co. opened a branch office in Harbin at the beginning of 1912, and has been conducting a vigorous campaign with the result that its cigarettes are now sold in all parts of the district. The shipments of tobacco on the Chinese Eastern Railway increased from 4014 tons in 1911 to 5931 tons in 1912, of which 2247 and 2153 tons, respectively, represented import shipments and 978 and 2785 tons, respectively, local freight.

S. Whitecraft, of Berthound, Col., has purchased the S. H. Falk cigar store, located on Pearl Street, Boulder, Col.

STOGIE STRIKE HOLDS ON.

Number of Arrests Made—Trickery Charged—Some Maker Agree to Terms—Raising Funds to Aid Strikers

(Special to The Tobacco World.)

PITTSBURGH, August 12.

THE fifth week of the tobacco workers' strike has shown continued enthusiasm and spirit on the part of the strikers and dissension among the members of the manufacturers' association.

The strikers were refused a parade permit by Captain Walsh last Saturday. Instead they held a large open air meeting at the corner of Roberts and Center Avenues, at 8.30 P. M. The meeting was addressed by Organizer Matilda Robinovitz, J. Margolis and L. Arkin, who spoke on the strike situation and also pleaded to the audience to give the strikers their moral and financial aid. A collection was also taken for the strikers.

Another successful open air meeting was held Thursday evening at the same corner before a large crowd.

Bosses Go After Pickets.

Dave Goldberg, a striker, was arrested on a complaint by Shapiro, a stogie manufacturer of Miller Street, for picketing in front of his shop last Thursday. He was discharged Friday morning by Magistrate Louis Alpern, as Shapiro failed to appear against him.

Max. Goldhammer, a striker, was arrested last week on a warrant taken out against him by I. Livingston, a special delivery boy, who appeared before Alderman Louis Alpern on Saturday evening, August 22. Goldhammer was held under $500 bail. Livingston claimed that Goldhammer kicked him (Livingston) on the night of the riot at Roberts and Center Avenues. Alpern discharged the case against Goldhammer as Livingston failed to produce any witnesses.

Sigel, proprietor of the Webster cigar factory, Trent Street, tried to scare the pickets away from his shop on Tuesday by calling the police. The strikers, seeing what Sigel was aiming at, took seats on the steps of sympathizers across from the factory.

Boss Arrested.

Mr. Epstein, proprietor of the Model Cigar Factory, Rowley Street, was arrested on warrant taken out against him by Morris Krell, a striker, on a charge of assault and battery, at Alderman Fugassi's office. The case was sent to court and Epstein was held under $500 bail.

Stogie Manufacturers Settling.

The stogie manufacturers of the hill district, who are not members of the bosses association, are granting the new demands that appeared in "Justice." The following who have thus far yielded to their employees are: J. Lomask, C. Lomask, Edlestein, Kaufman, Mazer, L. Brown, S. Swartz, S. Kaufman, Goldsmith & Burnstein, L. Rosery, Rosenthal, F. Sakolsky, Chernoff, Barass, Miller and Berkovitz.

Boss Makes Statement.

Enelow, a member of the bosses association, made a statement to a member of the strike committee that the bosses would put up a sum of money to guarantee the strikers their jobs if they would go back to work under the old demands. The reason he gave for this is that it is the only way of breaking the contract that the bosses have with the Standard Cigar Co. He also stated that they would take away all the hands they employed in the Standard Cigar Co. so that they could get even with the Dry Slitz Co.

Boss Zasslof Uses Tricks.

Zasslof, proprietor of the Independent Cigar Factory, Miller Street, tried to use a nasty trick on Benjamin, a stogie manufacturer of the North Side. Zasslof boasted that Benjamin was making stogies for him. The union hearing this, immediately called Benjamin's shop out on strike. Benjamin pleaded with the workers that he doesn't make any stogies for the bosses of the hill district and he would also give anybody $100 if he could prove it. He went up into the hill district with a committee of the union to investigate the rumors that were afloat in regard to making scab stogies for the bosses association in his shop. They went into Zasslof's shop and Benjamin asked Zasslof if he knew him? Zasslof replied he didn't know who he was. Benjamin told Zasslof that he has a stogie factory on the North Side. Benjamin then asked Zasslof if he made stogies for him? Zasslof answered "No." This angered Benjamin, who threatened Zasslof with physical violence for trying to discredit his shop and his employees. The strikers seem to be satisfied on the action on the part of Benjamin.

President Riley and the vice-president and district secretary of the National Stogie Makers' League are in Pittsburgh and are making an investigation in the Tennebaum shop.

There were National Stogie League and I. W. W. employees working in the Tennebaum shop. While the I. W. W. members are out on strike, the members of the National Stogie Makers' League are working. The I. W. W. asked the officials of the League to take this matter up so that they could help them with their strike and they have done so.

The Relief Conference for the strikers are doing good work in the efforts of raising funds for the strikers. They made close to $200 on their picnic last Sunday. They held a moving picture show at the Victoria Theatre Wednesday night which was very successful. They have a large reserve fund on hand for the strikers and they have plans under way to hold some festivals.

Retail Notes

T. J. Anderson & Son, who operate a cigar store on West First Street, Albany, Ore., have just completed interior decorations that make this store among the finest in that city.

The opening of a new cigar store at Joliet, Ill., by the Oppenheimer Cigar Co., will make the twenty-third retail store which is under the direct management of this firm. Their headquarters are located at Saginaw, Mich.

It has been announced that Edward Hill, who conducts a cigar factory at Middletown, Conn., will shortly move his establishment to Southington, Conn.

Steve H. Surman has purchased the cigar store of the Cuba Rica Cigar Stores Co., located in the Wells Building, Milwaukee, Wis.

At a meeting of the creditors of the tobacco manufacturing firm of Robert Harris & Bro., Greensborough, N. C., it was decided to continue operations at the factory and fill all orders for the "Pride of Reidsville," a smoking tobacco that has attained considerable distribution. The factory will be under the management of Ira Humphries, of Reidsville, who was elected trustee.

L. C. Colson has opened a cigar factory on the second floor of the Redington Building, Elyria, O. Mr. Colson is a manufacturer of wide experience and has been closely allied with this branch of the trade for twenty-two years.

Tuscan—New Cigarette Concern

ARTICLES of incorporation were filed with the State Secretary on August 13, for a new cigarette company, to be known as the Tuscan Cigarette Co., Inc., of Esopus, N. Y. Those named as incorporators include Franklin Bien, well known in theatrical circles; Thomas Adam, and Robert L. Turk.

As indicated by the name, the Tuscan brand of Turkish cigarettes will be featured, and the factory will be located at Esopus, which town once became famous as the home of a presidential candidate. The new concern starts out with an authorized capital of $10,000, and their New York headquarters are at 115 Broadway.

"Lord Baltimores" in Tins

In keeping with the increasing demand for cigars packed in tins, Symons-Kraussman Co., New York, have just placed on the market two new offerings of their well-known "Flor de Baltimore" and "Washington Union Fives," packed in attractive tin cans, twenty-five to the tin. This style of packing is exceedingly popular in the Middle West just at this time, and this firm tells us that they are heavily sold up on the new packages. G. L. Symons leaves on Sunday night, the seventeenth instant, on an extended trip through the West.

Big Crop for American Sumatra Tobacco Co.

President Julius Lichtenstein, of the American Sumatra Tobacco Co., has been taking things a bit easy during the past few days, after his long trip South and his subsequent visit to the company's plantations in Connecticut.

The reports on their crops of this year are the most satisfactory which he has ever received since the organization of the company. The American Sumatra wrappers are said to be beautiful in color, free-burning and giving a splendid yield.

Another to the Long List

The Tango Tobacco Manufacturing Co. have opened offices in the Gaiety Theatre Building, Broadway and Forty-sixth Street, to market the "Tango" cigarette.

William Glenn is the moving spirit in the new concern. He states that they will open their own factory by the first of October.

"Darius" Cigarettes on Broadway

THE old retail store of Oscar Schein, Broadway and Forty-third Streets, has recently been leased by the Darius Cigarette Co., whose headquarters are in Piccadilly, London, and they have fitted the establishment up in thoroughly Oriental style to introduce their brand of cigarettes to the New York market.

The presence of a woman cigarette maker in the window and the interior furnishings of Oriental draperies, is strongly reminiscent of the methods formerly used by the Notara Bros.

W. H. Munson Resigns

SEVERAL changes have recently been made in the personnel of the officers of the Tobacco Products Corporation.

During the past week W. H. Munson, who was one of the oldest members of the firm of M. Melachrino & Co., and who became the vice-president of the Tobacco Products Corporation, when that concern absorbed the Melachrino Company, resigned his position as vice-president of the company and director of their Canadian branch, and announced his intention of making a long trip to Southern California in the hope of regaining his health. Mr. Munson's successor, George S. Merrick, has been elected secretary of the Tobacco Products Corporation, and will have charge of the Canadian branch of Melachrino's recently opened in the Dominion.

The Tobacco Products Corporation have been making some plans for an extensive advertising campaign, and have recently placed their business in the hands of the Van Cleve Company.

"Aplomos" in New Package

H. KELLEY, representative of Salomon Bros. & Stern, manufacturers of the well-known "Aplomo" cigars, reports that his house has had a tremendous run on the new packages of "Aplomos" packed ten in a box.

This offering is most attractive in every respect, being by all odds one of the neatest packages of the kind which we have seen.

When the lid is opened, the top of the tin case gives all the appearance of being lined with natural cedar; and this, added to the exterior banding, is sure to attract attention.

Mr. Kelley leaves shortly for a Western stretch.

F. S. Lucey, Philip Morris & Co., Ltd., will sail from England on August 23, expecting to arrive home in time for the outing on August 30.

Park & Tilford Pushing "Tailfer"

The "Tailfer" brand of cigars, which have been popularly introduced by Park & Tilford some time past, have reached such a volume of sales that the Crest Cigar Co., whose factory is at First Avenue and 121st Street, New York, are planning much wider extension of their business, and a few days ago added $10,000 to their working capital.

Cados in Philadelphia

Manager Robert Appleton, of the Cado Co., Inc., makers of the "56" cigarette, has been much gratified to arrange with Yahn & McDonnell, who are one of the best known distributors of high grade goods in Philadelphia to feature the "56" cigarettes in that city, and already the sales have jumped to a gratifying size. Mr. Appleton has a splendidly organized force of salesmen and he is constantly moving about among the trade to see that his men are getting results. During the past fortnight he has been in Philadelphia and Boston, and wears a smile that cannot be erased.

JOBBERS & DISTRIBUTORS DEPARTMENT

"Billy" Kuhn & George Hamlin

Lee & Cady's "Mutt & Jeff"

NEW members of the trade who visit Detroit fail to recognize the portrait herewith, of William Kuhn and George Hamlin, the big and little fellows of Lee & Cady's cigar department. "Bill" Kuhn is mighty well known over the western part of Michigan, which territory he covers for the firm, and the orders which he has been recently getting out in that district on both "Cinco" and "San Felice" are quite in keeping with the size of the chap who carries the order book.

George Hamlin, the smaller end of the team, is only little in physique, and when it comes to alertness and ability easily stands shoulder to shoulder with his side partner and friend.

New Chain Stores in Northwest

FRED NEWMAN, formerly with M. A. Gunst & Co. in Spokane, has combined with Henry M. Prince, of Tacoma, to increase the capitalization of the Prince Cigar Co. to $200,000.

They purpose opening a chain of twenty-five new stores throughout the Northwest, operating only in territory not occupied by the United Cigar Stores.

Watt & Co. Find Favor With Philadelphia Product

REPORTS from St. Paul and the Northwest state that Watt & Co., the leading distributors of St. Paul, have been having a splendid run on the "Sir Henry Irving" perfectos, which are manufactured by Jacob Langsdorf's Sons, 551 North Fifth Street, Philadelphia. Their business on this brand has grown to a most interesting point, and this, together with the "Webster" and "Tom Keene," form a trio of brands which have made many others out there envious.

President Gredwald, of Watt & Co., has recently returned to his desk after a three weeks' stay in Philadelphia, New York and the East.

No License for Exclusive Denver Dealers

THE Denver City Council has applied the theory of protective tariff to the city of Denver, regarding the licensing of cigar dealers in the city. Their application of it was to pass an ordinance exempting merchants dealing exclusively in Denver-made cigars from the annual license of $10.

Representatives of the Cigarmakers' Union appeared before the council and stated that Denver was no longer the greatest in the cigar manufacturing industry west of Chicago, and they suggested that, to benefit the local manufacturers and to aid the cigarmakers, the license be lifted from those dealers who handled exclusively Denver-made cigars.

"Reynaldos" Go Big in New York

WILLIAM LUCKETT, of Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, returned to his desk on August 14 after an extended vacation up at Madison Beach, Conn. Mr. Luckett says that his vacation was doubly enhanced in pleasure by the reports from Louis G. Smith & Co., their New York jobber and distributor, who did the banner July month in their history on the firm's "Reynaldo" cigar.

The distribution of this Philadelphia brand in New York City has been one of the most interesting phases of the Metropolitan trade since "L., L. & L." invaded Gotham territory some time ago.

Purely Personal

Percival S. Hill, president of the American Tobacco Co., was among the vacationists homeward bound on the "Imperator." He reported that he had a splendid trip. Friends say that he is looking better than in many years. Mr. Hill's trip was purely for rest and recreation.

Henry Roberts, manager of the J. W. Roberts & Son Cigar Co., of Tampa, Fla., has been a recent visitor in Cincinnati. Mr. Roberts, who is an enthusiastic golfer, put business before pleasure at the expense of being eliminated from competition for the Bryan Trophy, which was competed for during his absence, at the Tampa golf links.

Gerson Brown, president of the J. B. Moos Co., of Cincinnati, has been spending his vacation in Atlantic City.

PHILADELPHIA.

E. M. Walter Back From Vacation

After a pleasant vacation in Atlantic City, L. M. Walter, Eastern representative of Bobrow Bros., manufacturers of the popular "Bold" and "Discriminator" brands, will again journey forth to look after the interests of the fast growing lines. An extensive trip covering New Jersey, New York, Northern Pennsylvania, Ohio, W. Virginia, Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia and Delaware, has been planned for this aggressive salesman.

Benjamin Lipschutz, who is spending his vacation at Wildwood, N. J., is also enjoying the company of his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Max Lipschutz, and his grandson, Bertram Lipschutz.

A recent visitor to the Philadelphia office of the "44" Cigar Co. was Mr. Serrer, of the firm of Ehrbar & Serrer, of Cleveland, O.

E. G. Dunlap, for a number of years connected with Arguelles, Lopez & Co., is making his initial trip through the Middle West in the interest of Lopez, Hermanos & Co. His many friends in the trade wish him well with his new connection.

Joe Wertheim, representing E. M. Schwartz & Co., was a recent visitor to the Quaker City.

R. M. Yahn, of Yahn & McDonnell, Fifteenth and Chestnut Streets, is spending the month of August in Maine. M. J. McDonnell, of the same firm, will leave September 1 for a month's vacation at Georgian Bay and other points of interest along the Canadian frontier.

J. V. Flanigan closed some attractive business for the "Por Larrañaga" factory during a recent stay in this city.

Speed S. Goodloe Co., Twelfth and Cuthbert Streets, are meeting with remarkable success in introducing their new "Finks Factory Smokers," a 5-cent line of smokes, which were recently placed on the local market. Business continues good on their "Goodloe" brand, the distribution exceeding their anticipation for the summer months.

S. M. Frank, of S. M. Frank & Co., pipe manufacturers, called on the local trade recently.

Nemises Cigarette Co. Start

Featuring their product with silk and white pine tips, the Nemises Cigarette Co., which has recently opened at 128 South American Street, reports a nicely growing business with club and individual trade.

The firm is composed of C. A. Pusey and W. G. Brewton. Both young men are hustlers and increased business shows the results of their hard digging.

M. J. Dalton Co. reports counter trade as being quiet, but that their leaders, "Lozano" and "Cortez" brands, are going big with the seashore trade.

E. Kleiner, of E. Kleiner & Co., visited the local trade this week and closed some attractive business on "La Famosa" cigars, manufactured by this firm.

Harry Lewis, of Fay Lewis & Bros. Co., who are Western distributors of the "Masterpiece" cigars for Jeitles & Blumenthal, paid a visit to the manufacturers last week.

Standard Pure Tobacco Binders

CLAIMS amount to but little unless backed by the goods themselves, and in this connection, our office has been very much interested in receiving from the Tobacco Production Co., of New Milford, Conn., a sample of their patented Standard Pure Tobacco Binders.

We took these binders to a skilful manufacturer of cigars in Philadelphia and had him make up cigars, utilizing the Standard binders in his process of manufacture.

Like thousands of others, the manufacturer expressed himself as skeptical when the binders were first brought to his attention, but he stated unqualifiedly that they worked up splendidly and should prove a boon to hundreds of makers who have had long years of trouble in obtaining suitable binders for certain grades.

The editor of "The Tobacco World" handed out three of these cigars, in which the standard binder had been used, to three different smokers whose opinions were valuable, without giving them any intimation but that the cigars were clear Havana through and through. The verdict of each of the smokers was that the cigar smoked sweet and clean and that they were utterly unable to detect any difference between the goods made with the standard binder and a sample of the same cigar smoked afterward, made with a very high-priced binder.

Developing The Cigar Clerk

Written for The Tobacco World by AL. U. THORNBURG

THE other day, in conversation with one of Detroit's leading cigar dealers, the writer was asked: "Say, do you know where I can get a good, live cigar clerk?" Well, I stopped to think for a minute and said: "No, I really don't." As a matter of fact, good cigar clerks are a very scarce article right now; I don't know when they have been more scarce. Some one has said that the reason more young men don't stay behind cigar store counters is that there isn't enough in it, and that the proprietors can't afford to pay very much for that class of help. However, I disagree with that statement.

It is my contention that a cigar clerk can be made a valuable asset to any cigar store, and that in such capacity he can justly bring greater revenue to the store and in turn increase his own weekly recompense; all this, of course, providing he is given the proper co-operation from the proprietor. I believe that the reason more good cigar clerks are not developed is due to a lack of co-operation on the part of the owners themselves. Many of them have an idea that all you have to do is to hire a young man at $10, $12 or $15, or even $20 a week, and that ends it; they never get together with their clerks and talk over matters and help the clerk improve in his work. That alone is wrong.

Did you ever know of a department store, or a big corporation of any kind, that didn't get the salesmen together once or twice a month and take up matters that would make them better salesmen, show them ways of overcoming obstacles, and how to increase their sales? Why can't the same thing apply between the cigar proprietor and his clerks? The principle is the same whether it's a big business or a small one. Many proprietors make the mistake of seeing how cheap they can hire a man, instead of discriminating and paying a few dollars more when they think the man has the "makings" of a successful clerk.

I say that there are just as big opportunities for the cigar clerk as there are in the average line of business for young men. In fact, I don't know of any business where a salesman can make friends and develop a personality, as there is in the cigar line and for the young man behind the counter. How often do you hear a man say: "I'm going over to So-and-So's to get a cigar; he's a good friend of mine and knows just what I smoke."

In handling clerks I have found the following rules successful in making them more valuable to themselves and also to the cigar department:

Get him acquainted with the names of the various manufacturers and the different brands they make; many times a customer will ask: "Who makes the ——— cigar?" The impression is much better when the clerk can answer him right back without having to say "Gee, I don't know, but I can look it up for you."

Get him to know the names of your customers and what they usually smoke; nothing makes a better impression upon a customer than to have the clerk address him "Good morning, Mr. So-and-So," and then show him a box of his favorite cigars.

See that the clerk is neat in his personal appearance; he doesn't necessarily have to be expensively dressed (as a rule that is out of the question on his weekly salary), but he can be neat, clean shaven, etc.

Learn him the value of being polite to customers whether they purchase or not; that "silence is golden" when it comes to an argument.

To show an enthusiasm in his work; to be willing at all times to please the customers in showing him goods, taking a message, or any one of the hundreds of little things that come up daily in a cigar store.

The trouble with the cigar clerk is that he works mechanically, simply giving a man what he asks for, while the proprietor stands idly by and does nothing to help the clerk improve his interest in the business and to recompense him when the business grows and shows an increased profit.

Get him acquainted with the cigar salesmen.

Tell him what you can about the way cigars are made and where the different ones are made; the difference between a clear Havana, a domestic and an imported cigar; what the various shapes are. Get him to know this thoroughly.

As a last suggestion, see that he reads the trade journals. I don't know of a single medium where the cigar proprietor or the clerk can get more knowledge of the business than by reading the trade journals; neither one can read too many. They all have their good points and are the cheapest investment that could be made. A man who saves a dollar or two by not subscribing towards the trade journal is cheating only himself.

Growth of Tobacco Industry in Greece

In a trade report to the Bureau of Commerce, Consul-General William H. Gale, located at Athens, Greece, calls attention to the increasing importance of the tobacco industry in that country. He says:

The tobacco-growing industry in Greece is steadily increasing in importance; the total area now under cultivation is about 48,563 acres, yielding annually about 21,375,000 pounds, valued at $1,930,000. The recent appointment of traveling experts, who periodically visit the various districts and instruct the growers in the best methods of cultivating, drying, and preparing tobacco for the market, will improve the quality and increase the production of Greek tobacco in the near future.

The exports of the 1912 crop to foreign markets were: To Egypt, 3,306,900 pounds; to Germany, 2,204,600 pounds; to Italy, 1,543,220 pounds; to Holland, 1,323,760 pounds; to the United States, 1,086,428 pounds; to Tunis, 330,690 pounds.

There was a notable increase in the value of shipments of tobacco to the United States during the past year, the declared export values being $105,895 for 1911 and $235,283 for 1912, representing an increase in value of $129,388. The grades shipped are principally light colored, aromatic leaf tobaccos for cigarette making. This tobacco is unstemmed and unsuitable for wrappers.

The prices were fully 50 per cent. higher than those of 1911, because, owing to the Balkan War, foreign buyers expected that there would be no planting this season, and therefore bought up all available supplies of Turkish and Greek tobacco. The prices paid to planters varied according to quality and description from $0.954 to $0.338 per pound.

The exportation of tobacco continues to be an important item of the foreign trade of the Patras district. The shipments go to Egypt for the manufacture of cigarettes, and also to Germany and Holland. The United States took $3,698 worth in 1911 and $3,639 worth in 1912.

The Soter Company Remove

The Soter Company, who specialize in private brands of Turkish cigarettes and feature their own "Egyptian Princess" brand, have removed from their old location on Grand Street to much more commodious quarters at 245 Canal Street, the corner of Centre Street.

Eusebe Bestrand will open a cigar store in Marquette, Mich., on Monday, August 18. The store will be located at Hewitt Avenue and Third Street, in the Donoghue Building.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, August 9, 1913.

BUSINESS during the last fortnight in our leaf market has been good, as there have been enough buyers in town to keep our dealers active in showing their holdings, and making good-sized sales. Owing to the high prices that have been paid to the farmers this year the profits are smaller; but as our packers and dealers in leaf tobacco do not belong to the quickly-get-rich class, they are content when they can get a moderate remuneration upon the amount of capital invested, as well as the amount of labor expended, and often enough hardships endured in hunting up vegas in the country, under a broiling sun, or getting soaked by tropical showers. However, every calling of business in all parts of the world has its advantages, as well as disadvantages, therefore we do not propose to dwell upon the latter.

Receipts from the country have been heavy of late, which indicates that the escogidas are working with a full head of steam, as usual at this season of the year, but do not let the readers of the TOBACCO WORLD imagine that all the bales which arrive in town are for sale. A considerable part belongs to country purchases made by our own manufacturers for their needs, or to American houses here, which have to provide for the future wants of their steady customers. On the other hand, this is a good time for the American manufacturers to come here and to take their pick from the goods that are for sale. Leaving out of question, whether the market should advance later on (in our private opinion it almost looks so, although we may be mistaken) the buyer who comes here now will find our dealers more disposed to sell part of their holdings upon very favorable terms.

The shrewd manufacturer, or dealer, ought to take advantage of such favorable circumstances, particularly as the good part of this year's crop is by no means abundant. Although generally speaking the 1913 crop is extra choice, and far superior to even last year's good growth, nevertheless there are some medium and even a few poor vegas, which naturally will not be sold until the fine vegas have disappeared from our market. The late comer can safely rely upon finding such styles, while he might find great difficulty in encountering the grades, or classes, that he might be looking for.

There is little tobacco left in the country in the hands of vegueros, it is said, none in the Santa Clara province, and also in the famous lowlands of the Vuelta Abajo. After the middle of this month the preparations for the 1914 crop will begin.

Recent Leaf Sales.

Sales during the past fortnight totaled 16,256 bales, or which divided represented: Vuelta Abajo, 7133; Partido, 5688, and Remedios, 3435 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 6108; exporters to Europe, 2734; shippers to Buenos Aires and Valparaiso, 247, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 7167 bales.

Receipts of Tobacco from the Country.

For the two weeks ending July 31, 1913.		Since January 1, 1913.
Vuelta Abajo	33,243 bales	132,206 bales
Semi Vuelta	3,114 "	14,782 "
Partido	1,403 "	6,838 "
Remedios	17,500 "	35,696 "
Oriente	99 "	1,207 "
Total	55,359 "	Total 190,819 "

Exports of leaf tobacco, from the port of Havana, during the two weeks ending August 2 were: To all ports of the United States, 5564; to Bermen, 1686; to Amsterdam, 48; to Buenos Aires, 60; to Valparaiso, 77 bales; total, 7435 bales.

The strike in the Santa Clara province has been settled by making concessions to the leaf selectors, excepting in the district of Manicaragua, where the packers have helped themselves in moving their tobacco to other points, where there was no trouble.

With the Cigar Factories.

We beg to submit the figures of the exports of cigars from the port of Havana, during the month of July of this and the preceding year, according to the official customs house records, and which are very gratifying indeed.

From July 1, 1913, to July 31, 1913	16,199,838 cigars
From July 1, 1912, to July 31, 1912	10,276,106 "
Increase in the month of July, 1913	5,923,732 "

According to countries the following ones show the principal increases during the past month, as compared with the corresponding month of last year, viz.:

Great Britain and Ireland	3,522,656 cigars
United States	852,245 "
Spain	608,675 "
Australia	358,000 "
Spanish Africa	289,052 "
Argentine Republic	205,643 "
France	102,900 "
Italy	153,500 "
Chile	187,807 "

Germany	130,040 cigars
Austria	52,700 "
Russia	45,075 "
Canary Islands	42,475 "
British Africa	38,500 "

The figures for the seven months of 1913 and 1912 now stand thus:

From January 1, 1913, to July 31, 1913	101,799,588 cigars
Increase during the first seven months of 1913	12,565,968 "

It is certainly remarkable that with all the handicaps, under which our cigar industry is laboring, high protective duties in almost all countries of the world, we have been able to obtain this result. It demonstrates once more, that if we only have a fair crop, that our cigars are wanted all over the globe, and there is nothing that can come anywhere near the aroma of the little spot in the island of Cuba, which is called the Vuelta Abajo, that produces our incomparable leaf. It is the Unicum. As the cigars exported were made chiefly from the 1912 crop, it is an indisputable fact, that the smokers have approved of the taste, aroma and burn, and as our best judges have claimed, that the 1913 crop is far superior even, in the three required conditions, we can safely bank upon a continuance of good business for the next twelve months to come. If our government in the meantime should help our cigar manufacturers by the making of reciprocity treaties, then, indeed, our at one time so flourishing industry would have reason to be truly thankful, and the small manufacturers might hope to be reimbursed for the exceedingly hard times they have gone through.

Business is active at present, and good cigarmakers are wanted to attend to the many orders on hand from all of our consuming countries.

IRREGULAR PAGINATION

Germany will show up better this month, judging by the orders on hand, although England outstrips all her competitors in calling in ever-increasing quantities for our cigars, as shown by the wonderful increase in the month of July. If the United States had progressed in the same proportion, she ought to have doubled her increase easily.

"Romeo y Julieta" continues to stand at the head of our independent factories, and the remodeling of the contiguous building, which the owners had bought some time ago, and that is nearing its completion now, is sadly needed as soon as the holiday rush of orders should accentuate itself more.

Partagas is working with good forces, having fine orders from England, Germany and the South American Republics.

H. Upmann & Co. are also very busy now in all directions. Don Teodore Garbade was unanimously elected as the president of the Union of Manufacturers of Cigars and Cigarettes of the Island of Cuba, for the coming year, at its last meeting on the 30th ulto.

Castañeda continues to be favored with excellent orders.

Henry Clay and Bock & Co., Ltd., are so busy that even the otherwise very amiable Mr. Houston begged to be excused from answering any questions, as he had no time to spare.

Don Eustaquio Alonso, the president of the Por Larrañaga factory, is going to sail from here on the 16th inst. by the steamship "Saratoga," in order to call upon the many friends he has made and kept in the United States and Canada. Por Larrañaga was the first factory that had shipped some cigars by aeroplane. Orders are coming in fine shape for the excellent cigars made by this factory.

Sol is increasing the force of its cigarmakers, owing to the steady increase in orders.

"Flor del Fumar" is growing more in demand from year to year, as testified by the increased volume of orders.

Buying and Selling, and Other Notes of Interest.

The principal sellers during the past fortnight were: Gonzalez & Benitez, 1,800 bales; Sobrinos de A. Gonzales, 1,060; Diaz, Herrera & Co., 850; F. Rocha & Co., 620; Muñiz Hermanos, 598; José C. Puente & Co., 546; M. A. Suarez & Co., 300; I. Kaffenburgh & Sons, 300; H. H. Strater, 193; José Menendez, 150; Herrera, Calmet & Co., 150, and Nuñez & Co., 104 bales.

The principal buyer was again Mr. Maximilian Stern, who closed transactions to the tune of 4,950 bales of all kinds of leaf.

Other buyers of importance were: Fred Davis, of Sam I. Davis & Co., 2,819; Matt Wengler, 1,250; H. Upmann & Co. for export, 1,200; Antonio Gutierrez, for the Gene-Vall Cigar Co., of New York, 700; Allones, Ltd., 700; J. F. Berndes & Co., 613; Bernhard Spector, 500 additionally; Romeo y Julieta, 470; Adolfo Moeller, 421; E. H. Gato Cigar Co., 300; Michaelsen & Prasse, 228; C. E. Beck & Co., 200, and Por Larrañaga, 190 bales.

Shippers above 300 bales of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana during the last fortnight were: Maximilian Stern, 1,831; J. F. Berndes & Co., 1,082; J. Bernheim & Son, 991; Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez, 582; H. Upmann & Co., 547; A. Moeller, 443; Manuel Suarez, 423; Gutierrez & Diehl, 379; Leslie Pantin, 331, and Ernst Ellinger & Co., 330 bales.

Fred Davis may leave today, as he is near of having reached the required quantity of seeing the "El Sidelo" factory in Tampa well supplied for some time to come.

Mr. Matt Wengler is still here, and continues to be busy looking for more choice Vuelta Abajo vegas, as so far he has not touched any other styles of leaf.

Mr. Sol Hamburger has not let the grass grow under his feet since his arrival, as we learned today, that he had made some large purchases already.

Mr. Mortimer Regensburg, after having inspected the Escogidas, made for his account here, is scouring our market to pick up some choice additional vegas for their famous, "The American," brand.

Jerry Windmuller, of Salvador Sanchez & Co., the makers of the well known "Dulce" cigars, and Mariano Alvarez, of A. Santaella & Co., came here from Tampa to spend a four days' vacation here, and left for their homes in Tampa without having bought any leaf.

The new firm of Schwab Bros. & Baer, as represented here by Messrs. August Baer and José Fernandez are hard at work under the guidance of our friend, Mr. Leslie Pantin, to make their selections of the best vegas of Vuelta Abajo to be had in our market.

Mr. Leslie Pantin, who had heretofore represented the former kingdom and later on the new republic of Portugal, as plain every-day Consul, has just been elevated to the dignity of Consul-General. If we live long enough, we hope, to see him yet as the future Minister of Portugal.

Walter Sutter & Co. had purchased 400 bales or account of their customers, and among which there were two famous Artemisa vegas, of Diego Cabrero, and Ciriaco Perez, better known as the Castillo vegas.

Nuñez & Co. have purchased 700 bales of choice vegas from the famous Vuelta Abajo, tierra llana section, of San Juan y Martinez, San Luis & Paso Viejo, which is now arriving from the country. They are making also some fine packing in the Santa Clara Province.

ORETANIV.

George W. Hiehle, a well-known resident of Parkersburg, W. Va., has accepted a position in the sales department of the British-American Tobacco Co., at Shanghai, China. Mr. Hiehle sailed from San Francisco on August 5, for Shanghai, where he will at once take up his new duties.

Why the "44" Cigar Co. Factory Is Busy

A RECENT addition to the missionary force of the "44" Cigar Co. in the Middle South, under W. H. Nicholson, is N. I. Rayfield.

M. A. Funk, who has been making the rounds of Eastern Pennsylvania, reports active trade in "44's" and "Adlons."

Frank B. Stanton, with the "44" advertising car, is pushing his campaign through Northern New Jersey. He writes that the popular brands of the factory are very active with the distributors.

After a short visit to his home, James F. Cormany is stirring up the trade in the "Show Me" state. His latest advices to the factory prove that "44's" are going in large quantities to the smokers in Missouri.

E. E. Crothers, assistant advertising manager, has just completed a week's campaign in Wildwood and reports an exceptionally large distribution of the leaders.

Due to the rapid growth of the business, the factory has been obliged to make extensive alterations in the stock and shipping rooms.

Government Will Protect Tobacco Growers

For the protection of the tobacco crops during the season when frost may be expected, it is announced that the United States Government is to establish six special stations in Western Wisconsin, according to official word received by Congressman Esch. It is said that these stations will be located at Viroqua, Chippewa Falls, Soldiers' Grove, Deerfield, Janesville and Edgerton.

THE CLASSY "LA FLOR DE PORTUONDO" DISPLAY IN THE MITCHELL, FLETCHER & CO., STORE

DURING the past fortnight, Mitchell, Fletcher & Co. have had their two big bulk windows at Twelfth and Chestnut Streets devoted to a display of "La Flor De Portuondo," manufactured by the Juan F. Portuondo Co., at 1110 Sansom Street.

Manager Bullock, of the store, had the display attractively arranged, featuring the "Londres Grandes" and "Chicos." Passers-by gave more than the usual glance accorded the average show window. The smoking fraternity showed their appreciation of the splendid display by boosting the sales of the cigar department considerably beyond the usual for this time of the year.

Willard W. Goldsmith, who joined the forces of Jeitles & Blumenthal about two months ago, as general sales representative for the "Flor de Jeitles," "Tunsten" and "Masterpiece" in 5-cent goods, and "Royal Peer," 10-cent brand, completed his first trip for the firm over Southern territory a short time ago and opened a number of handsome accounts.

Mr. Goldsmith is at present on his initial trip for J. & T. up through the New England territory, and has been doing very well over this difficult field.

Joseph Anderson, of Terry & Duncan, Tenth and Chestnut Streets, is spending his vacation automobiling through New Jersey. He will assist the judges in determining the most beautiful woman in the contest annually held at Asbury Park, N. J., during the carnival held in that city.

John Flanigan, of Terry & Duncan, Tenth and Chestnut Streets, will spend his vacation on the Eastern Shore of Maryland the week of August 25.

The new sanitary packing of the "El Wadora" cigar, Sig C. Mayer & Co., is being pushed heavily in Indianapolis through the Ward Bros. Drug Co., who are the local wholesalers for this brand.

Harry Boston visited the trade recently in the interest of Wm. Demuth & Co., the well-known pipe house.

Perry Centennial Helps Business—Coming Convention and Fair Sure to Boom Trade

MILWAUKEE, August 11.

BUSINESS with the local retailers has been very good during the season, especially the early part of August.

The Perry Centennial Celebration was held during the past week, and thousands of people thronged the business section day and night, which was a great help to the local retail merchants.

The coming week the American Federation of Catholic Societies will hold their convention here, which will bring many more strangers to our city, and early next month the Wisconsin State Fair will be held, all of which should have a good effect on business.

Steve H. Surman has purchased the local store of the Cuba-Rica Cigar Store Co., in the Wells Building, of which he has been manager for some time past. The business for the present continues as before. The "Ruy Lopez" is the feature in an attractive window display.

Announcement has been made that no building operations will be started for probably a year by Mr. Somers on the Plankinton site, so that the Allanson store will continue at the old stand. Business with them continues good. A display of nickel goods, including the "Owl" and "Tom Keene" cigar, is being made.

Dadd's drug store also continues in the Plankinton Block for the present. The "Plantista" is being featured in the cigar window.

The Wright Drug Co. are enjoying their usual good business. The "Robert Burns," "Jose Villa" and "Lovita" are moving very well.

Fay Lewis & Bro. Co. are doing a very good business at present, both wholesale and retail. "The Webster," "Savarona," "El Sidelo" and "Tom Moore" continuing prime favorites in the better grades, while all five-cent brands are moving nicely. Harry Lewis has just returned from a business trip to the Eastern markets.

Leo Abraham is doing a very nice businsss at his retail stores, while the wholesale department has been handicapped in filling all the orders turned in by Chapman.

The Majestic Building store has undergone remodeling, an entire new front having been put in. The Third Street store continues one of the really busy spots in town, keeping Joe Feiger, Joe Levich and Ed McKercher on the jump. The "Herr Director" is being featured on the Avenue side, while attractive bargains in pipes are displayed in the Third Street window.

Several changes and new firms have occurred in nearby cities. At Kenosha, Wis., Harry Grace, who for some years conducted a successful manufacturing business, sold out to Wm. Shrader.

Dan Hahn, also one of the best known cigarmakers of that city, sold his factory to his brother, J. J. Hahn, and will give his entire attention to his rapidly growing wholesale and retail trade. He has contracted to take the entire output of the factory from his brother, in addition to which he will put in many of the popular brands. Contracts have been let for redecorating and furnishing the retail store.

At Orfordville, Wis., Elmer Bertness purchased the cigar store of Albert Keesey.

A. H. Jasper opened a new cigar factory at Bruce, Wis.

The W. B. Stiles Cigar Co. has been incorporated at Superior, Wis., with a capital stock of $10,000. The incorporators are W. B. Stiles, Pauline Stiles and H. C. Wilcox.

At Edgerton, Wis., C. L. Culton sold his Il Insito Cigar Co. to W. G. Atwell and G. W. Blanchard. The business has been incorporated as the El Insito Cigar Co., with a capital stock of $30,000. All three above mentioned are named as the incorporators.

At Marinette, Wis., A. R. Dettman bought the cigar store and factory until recently conducted by John Zeratsky.

The cigar box factory of H. A. Schwartzburg on North Avenue, this city, was again badly damaged by fire about a week ago. This makes the third fire inside of a year. The loss is placed at about $22,000. It is understood a new concrete actory will soon be erected.

On August 12th the tobacco dealers of Rock County held their picnic at Lake Koshkonong. A bounteous dinner was served at Hoard's Hotel.

N. L. Carle, Janesville leaf dealer, has been touring the Yellowstone Park with his family. The return will be made by way of Salt Lake and Colorado Springs.

L. & N. Wertheimer, Baltimore leaf dealers, have been looking over the Wisconsin market.

O. A. KROMPAS.

L. Powell & Company's Removal

Coincident with the recent sale of their factory in Tampa, Leopold Powell & Co., have leased quarters in the big plant at 207-209 East Forty-ninth Street, and by the end of this week will be comfortably installed in the new location, having given up the lease on their offices 507 Fifth Avenue. Mr. Powell states that they will continue as heretofore to manufacture a strictly high-class brand of clear Havana cigars, featuring "Espinas" and having some of the output made in Florida.

Cleveland

Season's Business Best in Many Years—Vacations End and Trade Gets New Life—New Stores Open

CLEVELAND, O., August 11.

BUSINESS continues to be exceedingly bright in this section of the country despite the season of the year. The manufacturers are way behind in filling their orders, and the retailer is enjoying the best summer months for many many years.

Robert C. Heaney, manager of the Snyder Cigar Stores, just returned from his vacation, and looks and says he feels a thousand per cent. better. He claims that he is ready and anxious to get back into harness. Business in all their stores has shown a steady increase, and they are more than satisfied. Mr. Snyder was here the past week on a tour around the circuit of Snyder stores.

Dave Miller, formerly of the R. & W. Jenkinson Co., has connected himself with D. Blum, who is operating two stands, one at the Moreland Hotel and the other at 836 Euclid Ave. Mr. Miller is very popular among the trade and should prove a valuable asset to the D. Blum Co.

A. C. Wertheim, of the Shields-Wertheim Co., has just returned from Buffalo, where he was on a combination business and pleasure trip.

J. B. Shields, of the above-mentioned concern, left Sunday morning on a three weeks' automobile trip through the Berkshires and Adirondacks.

Business has been very good with this concern and the outlook is very bright for a big fall business.

Pyle & Allen report business very good. They have just added the cigar stand in the Berghof to their chain of cigar stands, and if the first week's business is any criterion this stand should be a great success.

The Fred Gollmar Co., with two stands in the Arcade and one in the Rathskeller, claims that they enjoyed the biggest July business in their long career in the cigar game. This is possibly due to their unceasing efforts. They change their windows twice weekly, and with their many popular brands it has proven very successful.

George Bassett, located at 826 Prospect, has an arcade all his own running between Huron Road and Prospect. This has been a big advertisement for him and a great accommodation to the many pedestrians in that locality. These people have shown their appreciation by their liberal patronage. Mr. Bassett, who has only been in this location about two months, is making lots of friends and building up one of the biggest cigar, cigarette and tobacco trades in this section of the city.

The biggest pool, billiard and bowling alley establishment in the country is being built in the Euclid Avenue Arcade. This will extend from Euclid Avenue through to Prospect Street and have three entrances, one at each end of the arcade and the third through the Euclid Arcade cigar store. It will be equipped with Brunswick-Balk fixtures, and complete in every detail.

Stace & Vincent are enjoying a nice summer business. Their billiard hall in the Alhambra Building, at East 105th Street and Euclid Avenue, is exceeding their fondest anticipations. They feature a ladies' billard room, and it is proving a great attraction.

The Unger Cigar Co., at 10521 Euclid Avenue, reports business very good and showing a steady increase.

Joe Klein, formerly in the Osborn Building, has sold out his stand there and has taken a position selling "Edgewood" tobacco. Up to date he has done exceedingly well, and his many friends wish him the utmost success in his new venture.

The Luna Park Cigar Co. gave a picnic July 29th. Free admission was provided for hundreds of people, and large crowds attended the affair in the park. Many thousands of "Tom Keene" and "American" cigars were distributed.

In town the past week were A. Kleiner, of E. Kleiner & Co, and A. J. McBlair, of Marcelino Perez & Co.

JERRY.

Duys & Co. Moving Sumatra

H. Duys & Co. report continued heavy sales on the exceptionally large lots of Sumatra which they obtained at the spring inscriptions, where it is well known their total purchases amounted to 7000 bales.

Henry M. Duys spent last Thursday in Philadelphia, and completed two good deals in the Quaker City on that day. He says that, as a matter of fact, that Philadelphia is one of the best markets for their Sumatra imports which they have on their books. The firm have not yet decided as to whom will represent them from the New York office at the remaining fall inscriptions, but it is probable that one of the brothers will sail in a short time.

Los Angeles

Business Good Despite the Vacation Period—Much Expected When Tourists Return to the City

LOS ANGELES, CAL., August 5.

BOTH retailers and wholesale cigar and tobacco dealers state that they show an increase of business this month over the corresponding month of last year. There is no doubt but what there will be a marked increase of business at the close of this month when thousands of people return from their vacation trips.

H. Beck, successor to Geo. W. Walker, of this city, says that the "La Mazella," manufactured by the Sig C. Meyer Cigar Co. of Philadelphia, Pa., is proving one of the most successful 5-cent sellers in this territory. Business, he states, has been very satisfactory, and with his organized force of salesmen, he has no trouble in getting the widest distribution of his brands.

H. Manley, manager of the American Cigar Co., Pacific Coast department, just arrived from San Francisco, and is stopping at the Alexandria Hotel. He came here to confer with Charles Smith, representative of Mr. Manley for the "Chancellor" cigar. Mr. Smith has proved a most valuable man to Mr. Manley as he is well liked by the trade. The "Chancellor" will show a record sale this year of close to three million cigars. Klauber-Wangenheim Co. are distributors of the cigar in this territory.

Glenn D. Hart, representing Gonzalez y Sanchez Co., is calling on the trade in the interest of the Gonzalez y Sanchez cigars.

Cameron Trau, manager of the cigar department of Haas-Brauch & Co., is complaining because he is not able to get enough "San Felice" cigars from the factory. He is feeling a shortage on the "San Felice" brand and is making the factory hustle to keep up with him.

One of the strongest campaigns ever worked in this section is in progress under the supervision of Joe Goldsmith, representing M. A. Newmark & Co., on the "Don Remo" cigar. Mr. Goldsmith has not overlooked one display window in this city in an effort to bring this cigar to the front.

John L. Friedmann, representative for the A. B. Greenwald Cigar Co., has just returned from a short trip with some nice orders for "Barrister" cigars. Mr. Friedmann has been connected with the A. B. Greenwald Cigar Co. for something like eight years and has enjoyed success.

J. B. Bonhaus, representative for Klauber-Wagenheim Co., Charley "Chancellor" Smith and William Levy, head of the pipe department of Klauber-Wangenheim Co., have left for Kakersfield and the adjoining oil fields. They expect to bring home orders to show that their efforts have not been for naught.

The "Luxello" cigar, manufactured by the Luckett-Luchs & Lipscomb Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., handled by the Klauber-Wangenheim Co., is experiencing a most satisfactory business. Duplicate orders are many and steady on this popular brand.

Ed Cohn, of the College Inn Cigar Store, is displaying the "Luxello" cigar. Mr. Cohn has one of the most popular cigar stores in this city, and he says that he has never handled a better 5-cent seller than the "Luxello" cigar.

The "Bachelor" cigars are holding their own with the best of them. Max Roth Cigar Co. reports that orders cannot be filled promptly for that particular cigar owing to the lack of goods. The lack is due to the fact that the factory is constantly on the jump supplying "Bachelors" for him.

Woodward-Jones & Johnston Cigar Co., this city, are showing the trade the "Vandalia" cigar, manufactured by Luckett-Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, Pa., and are putting a very nice distribution on it.

The Tobacco Dealers Association of Southern California had a very successful meeting a few nights ago. The question of abolishing dice shaking at cigar stands arose, due to the fact that City Council is trying to pass an ordinance prohibiting dice shaking at stands or drug stores. Through the never failing efforts of President Anthony Schwamm, of the association, Frank West, Morris Burke, Dave McLain and Tobe Harris, the association has succeeded in convincing the council that no harm is done in shaking dice. This is but one of the many good things the association has accomplished for the cigar trade, and whenever trouble arises which would injure the trade prospects in any way, they may be counted on to fight.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Klauber are leaving in a few days for Lake Tahoe on a four weeks' stay. Mr. Klauber is in need of such a rest, after eleven months of steady grind. In his absence F. O. Warner will have charge of the departments.

The "Post Dispatch" cigar, manufactured by Eitel-Cassebohm Co., Louisville, Ky., is proving a steady seller in the Los Angeles market and adjoining territory. Klauber-Wangenheim Co. are giving this brand a chance to make good which no other dealer could equal. Their salesmen are constantly behind the "Post Dispatch" and there is never any lack of support from them.

The "Picadura Import" cigar, manufactured by L. Newberger & Bros., of Cincinnati, O., is finding its way to the retail cigar stands in this territory and is proving a good seller. This cigar is distributed by Klauber-Wangenheim Co.

Morris Burke has just returned from a week's mountain trip and is getting ready to book orders for "Picadura Import" and "Luxello" cigars. He has been pushing them and has obtained good results.

The Morgan Cigar Co. is enjoying a nice business on the "Rey Oma" cigar manufactured by Sig. C. Meyer, of Philadelphia, Pa.

Rob Gans, of J. J. Gans Bros., reports a very satisfactory business on "Mark Hopkins," "Tom Keene" and "Lawrence Barrett" brands.

The "Cinco" cigar, made by Otto Eisenlohr & Bros., Philadelphia, Pa., is being featured in all retail cigar and drug stores in this city and territory.

Jot C. Wood, better known to the trade as "Jose Vila" Wood, is just back to the city from San Francisco, having made the trip in his advertising automobile. He pushed the "Jose Vila" with the ads on his "wagon." He is leaving in a few days with Joe Goldsmith on a trip covering the suburban towns. M. A. Newmark & Co. are distributors of this brand.

Alfred Kingsbaker, who has been representing the Klingenstein Co., is to sever connections with that firm and venture into the fruit and produce commission business. The name of the firm will be Piper-Kingsbaker Co. They have the well wishes of all the cigar trade and nothing but success is looked for from them when they get started.

The Klingenstein Co. have built a humidor which is designed exclusively for "Surbrugs," "Milo," "Dolores" and "Arab" cigarettes. It is an innovation in the line of humidors and is a means of keeping these cigarettes in perfect condition. They have also added conveniences to their immense cigar humidor so that it will now hold approximately 1,500,000 cigars at a time.

Dave Wienrich, W. H. Conners and A. Goldring are to take over the territory left vacant by the retiring of Mr. Kingsbaker from the sales force of the Klingenstein Co.

Eisenlohr's "Cinco" is increasing in the amount of sales per day. With this increase, the Klingenstein Co. feels justified in putting out some of the most attractive sings for "Cinco" that are to be seen in this part of the country. They also report a steady increase on "Preferencia" cigars, and say that this cigar is repeating wherever sold.

The Klingenstein Co. have a new delivery car. On its sides are written conspicuously the names of the "American," "E. Regensburg Sons," "Webster," "Cinco" and "Milo" cigarettes.

The Ed G. Hookstratton Cigar Co. (Inc.) hereafter will be known as the "House of Quality." Mr. Hookstratton has been connecetd with the firm for some time and a change in name was made necessary. The "House of Quality" have elegant window displays this week on "Preferencia" cigars. W. A. Pickard is secretary and general manager of the new house and much is expected of him.

RYNALDO.

Millionairess Makes Cigars

(Special to "The Tobacco World.")

CLEVELAND, O., August 11.

MRS. ROSE PASTOR STOKES, who married the wealthy New York clubman several years ago, and who together with her husband has been doing splendid work for the Socialist cause in this country, has been visiting her old home in this city for several days past and delivering lectures on Socialism.

Mrs. Stokes made an hour's visit to the factory of the London Whiff Cigar Co., on Ontario Street, where she was formerly employed for years, and to show that she had not lost her cunning, she made for the members of the firm and some of her fellow-employees, fifty cigars for souvenirs.

In speaking of her visit to the factory, Marcus Feeder, the president of the London Whiff Co., said: "She is the plain 'Rosie' she was ten years ago, when she had to make sufficient cigars daily to support her mother and seven other children. Her arrival here has been a very important event for all her former friends, to whom she has shown very beautiful traits—plainly dressed, she spoke to thousands of her admirers and was in general well received, by the public and press.

"Rosie worked for us for five years and was permitted to study up to 9 A. M. in our office every day up to the time she was called to New York to take up her new work."

A. N. Brady Worth Hundred Millions

Various estimates of the fortune of the late Anthony N. Brady are said to be as high as upwards of $100,000,000. A man said to be one of Mr. Brady's closest financial advisers is quoted as saying that the minimum value of the estate would be $75,000,000.

Mr. Brady's tobacco holdings are considered to be worth at least $31,000,000.

Key West

Reports Point to Brisk Season—Many Visitors to Havana Leaf Market—Gato Factory Very Busy

KEY WEST, FLA., August 9.

DESPITE the fact that the cigar industry is now on the last lap of the dull season, at many of the factories orders for fall deliveries have begun to come in and things in general have the earmarks of a brisk season. While some of the smaller shops have not had much summer business, most of the large concerns have been quite active.

Walter J. Lightbourne and J. Newton Curry, vice-president and office manager of the Cortez Cigar Co., are at Colorado Springs, recuperating. During their absence James H. Fort and Claude H. Roberts are in charge of the factory. "Herman Cortez," their leading brand, is going out at a lively rate in its various shapes and sizes. Each week additions are being made to their force in the cigarmaking and stripping departments.

A. J. Legg, the hustling representative of Smith, Klein & Co., the cigarists of Philadelphia, arrived in town during the month. He spent a few days visiting the factory of the Principe de Golfo Cigar Co., the goods of which his firm are heavy handlers.

Frank T. McNulty, manager of the San Carlos Cigar Co., passed through the city during the month, being en route from Cuba to factory headquarters at Fort Myers, Fla. Frank is "a jolly good fellow" and a Key West Conch, and it is needless to say that his many friends here are always glad to meet him. He reports the leaf markets in Havana as rather quiet, but that prices on good stock are sky high.

Chas. E. Gwynn, president of Gwynn & Strauss, is back from a short visit to Tampa, Fla., where he enjoyed a few days' vacation.

Norberg Thompson, of the Key West Cigar Box Co., left on the 26th inst., for a brief business trip to New York City.

The L. Martinez Tobacco Co. has applied for a license as leaf dealers. E. A. Martinez will be the manager. The firm will carry on hand a large stock of choice fillers and wrappers. This company will fill a long-felt want, and it is needless to predict success for the venture. They will handle Havana tobacco exclusively and will have offices at Guire de Melena, Cuba, and this city.

Colonel J. F. Cooper Griggs, Collector of Customs for the State of Florida, with headquarters at Jacksonville, was in the city on a tour of inspection during the month. He says that business is constantly growing at Key West, and the port is fast becoming one of the most important in the South.

A. Aurelio Torres, manager of the Principe de Golfo Cigar Co., left recently for Miami, from whence he will journey to New York. He will visit many cities on his way North, drumming up trade for his leading brand, "Principe de Golfo."

S. M. Gans, of Max. Gans & Son, the New York leaf dealers, was a caller on the local trade during the month.

Chas. R. Wolf, head of the firm of S. Wolf's Sons, left during the month on a business outing to New York City.

Among local manufacturers who have paid visits to the leaf markets of Havana during the month are: Francisco Fleitas, of S. & F. Fleitas; Jaime Pendas, of Moreda & Co.; Don Luis Martinez, of Martinez-Havana Co. All of the above have purchased stocks of leaf for their factories.

Jose Lovera, of Jose Lovera & Co., of Tampa, passed through the town this week en route to the Havana leaf markets.

The big cigar factory of the E. H. Gato Cigar Co. reminds one of a human bee-hive, there is nothing but hustle and bustle going on, and the 400 cigarmakers and about 200 strippers present a lively appearance. Large shipments of the "Bouquet de Edwardo H. Gato, 1871," yellow label, are constantly going forward to the Pacific Coast and other sections of the United States. The Gato goods enjoy an enviable reputation, as they are made of only the best qualities. Havana tobacco and the most expert of Cuban workmen are employed in their make up. James R. Curry, bookkeeper of the company, is back from a short visit to his family at Miami, Fla. Edwardo H. Gato, 3rd, and his brother Frank are back from Cuba, where they have been visiting with their grandfather, Edwardo, 1st.

Secretary Maurice Winter, of the M. Perez Co., makers of the famous "Pinlon" clear Havana cigar, who has been spending a few months in Cuba at his firm's packing houses, superintending the packings of leaf holdings, was an arrival in the city this week en route to New York.

Geo. E. Upchurch, representing the American Tobacco Co. in Florida, came to the city this week. During his stay here he will boom the "Sovereign" brand of cigarettes for his company. George is a first-class salesman, and he has many friends here who are always glad to see him.

Manuel Vega, the cigar manufacturer of Chicago, Ill., and a brother of Celestino Vega, of Tampa, Fla., spent a few days in the city this week.

Val. M. Antuono, the Tampa, Fla., cigar manufacturer, passed through the city this week, being en route from Havana to factory headquarters. He made heavy purchases during this trip to Cuba and almost the entire cargo of the steamer on which he sailed belonged to him.

Enrique Henriquez, of the Erlich Mfg. Co., of Tampa, Fla., was a visitor of the week to the city.

The E. H. Gato Cigar Co. got in 500 bales of new crop leaf this week. A large force is still being maintained by this concern and heavy shipments are going out each week to the Pacific Coast.

There is still a large demand on at the Cortez Cigar Co.'s factory for the fine sizes of their popular "Hernan Cortez" brand.

Artuoro Artolozage, the genial manager of the big "Solace" factory, of George W. Nichols & Co., will leave next week for the Havana leaf markets, where he will be joined by Harry Nichols, of this company.

Ramon Quiros (Quiros Villazon y Ca.), of Tampa, Fla., spent a few days in the city this week.

Dr. John B. Maloney, Key West's hustling president of the Board of Trade, has extended a cordial invitation to President Wilson to visit here during his September trip to Colon, Panama.

Patterson Brothers Open in Richmond

Long Honored Name Again Prominent—New Factory Just Opened—Board of Officers

FOLLOWING the announcement made in "The Tobacco World" some time ago, of the formation of the Patterson Bros. Tobacco Co., Inc., the company formally strated operation on the fifth of August in the factory building at Twenty-sixth and Main Streets.

Nearly all the members of the old original firm of R. A. Patterson Co., which was absorbed by the American Tobacco Co., are interested in the new corporation. The officers include M. C. Patterson, ex-vice-president of The American Tobacco Co., as president of the new company; James T. Patterson, vice-president; John Landstreet, vice-president; J. Stanford Hutcheson, who was formerly head of the Gordon Cigar and Cheroots Co. as vice-president and secretary, and F. D. Mason, treasurer. These gentlemen, with A. W. Patterson, L. Z. Morris and Henry Fairfax, comprise the board of directors. The firm has a cash capital of $250,000.

Their new factory has over 100,000 square feet of floor space and starts off with 250 hands, giving preference to white employees, and will turn out 10,000,000 pounds of smoking tobacco annually and 50,000,000 "Green Turtle" cheroots.

The company is planning to erect in the near future a new seven-story factory, close to the present plant.

Tobacco Hands for Albany

Due to the need for skilled labor, the Chamber of Commerce of Albany, N. Y., is planning an advertising campaign to induce laborers and their families to locate in that city.

Investigation shows that positions are open for almost 1200 people, with salaries ranging from $4 a week to $4 a day.

It is stated that when the new factory of the American Tobacco Co. opens in October it will need 500 female cigarmakers at from $9 to $15 a week, and about 300 female apprentices at $3 a week.

E. T. Coffin, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, who has been investigating labor conditions in Albany, states that the majority of employers believe that there are plenty of working girls in Albany, but that they are unreliable.

Co-operative Cigar Stores Co., Louisville, Ky. Incorporated at Columbus, O. Capital, $5,000. The incorporators are: F. A. Gesell, L. E. Dyson and Hill Spalding.

"44's" in Chicago

THROUGHOUT the Middle West the "44" cigar is being widely displayed by distributors and dealers; salesmen report heavy sales and rapid growth of this company's business in that section.

The Henry Horner Co. are distributors for these goods in Chicago and adjacent territory and have made remarkable progress with the goods.

We illustrate above a recent window display of "44" cigars in their show windows which helped along big.

Two Cigar Shops Burglarized

BURGLARS have been particularly busy in New York and vicinity recently, and have shown especial attention to cigar stores.

On the ninth they broke into the United Cigar Store on Thirty-fourth Street, near the Waldorf, and pilfered the cases.

The day before, they struck the Coney Island branch of the Metropolitan Tobacco Co., at 1521 Mermaid Avenue. Here they rolled a heavy safe to the back of the store, ripped it open and got away with about $800 in cash and several hundred dollars in checks.

Detroit

Plans for a "Home-Made Week" Settled—New Statler Hotel Started—Factories Still Rushed—Vacationists

DETROIT, MICH., August 12.

WE are hearing a lot these days about money being stringent, poor business, etc., but no one would gather this opinion were he to visit Detroit at the present time and notice the wonderful activity of its various industries. This refers also to the cigar manufacturers who are all enjoying the largest and best business since their existence.

The number of cigar manufacturers in the First District of Michigan during the month of July was 26,705,786, as compared with 25,095,880 the same month a year ago. To make these cigars 2,612,218 pounds of tobacco were used as against 2,075,822 a year ago.

John T. Woodhouse and wife (recently married a second time) returned from their honeymoon trip to Europe on August 4 after spending a few days in New York City. Mr. Woodhouse never looked better in his life. He said he thoroughly enjoyed the countries across the Atlantic, but that American soil for his every time.

A. P. Anderson, formerly with the Scotten & Dillon Tobacco Co., of Detroit, has accepted a position as traveling salesman for the Worden Grocery Co., of Grand Rapids.

Albert Worch, of the Wayne Cigar Co., of Detroit, has returned from a ten days' motor trip to Chicago. Mr. Worch said he made the trip both ways without a single puncture. That's some record.

A new 5-cent cigar under the name of "Little Dutch Masters" is being pushed in Western Michigan by the G. J. Johnson Cigar Co. It is particularly strong in Lowell, which is the former and boyhood home of Mr. Johnson.

After spending a week in Chicago with his wife, Harley Davidson is back at his job at the Hotel Cadillac cigar stand.

Archie Hiscott is now with Lloyd Stradley, agent here for the Gene-Vall Co. Archie is pushing the "Aloma" cigar. He recently resigned as salesman for the "Sir Rahmas" cigar.

The Detroit Board of Commerce is now very active in arranging plans for "Home-Made" week, which takes place in September. The merchants operating retail stores in the territory from Broadway to Washington Boulevard, and from Jefferson to Henry Streets, have donated their windows for this week and will allow manufacturers to make any sort of a display they wish to. The idea is to have as many manufacturers as possible have some part of their factory in the windows, showing same in actual operation. It is very likely that the cigar manufacturers will have a reproduction of their plants, showing the various processes of making a cigar. Those interviewed on the matter are very much in favor of making an exhibition. Herbert Weil, secretary of the San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Co., is a member of the committee on arrangements.

The store formerly conducted at 242 Woodward by William Layng, has been taken over by John Stilwell for the sum of about $300.

C. J. Morse, of Greenville, Mich., has started a retail cigar store. Mr. Morse now manufactures cigars.

Melbert Merhed succeeds James Woodward as manager of the Post Tavern cigar stand in Battle Creek. Mr. Merhed was formerly manager of this stand, having resigned several years ago. He is receiving the glad hand on all sides, and his friends are very pleased to see him "back of the counter" again.

Some people have been thinking that it was only a rumor that E. M. Statler would erect a hotel in Detroit. However, all doubts were cast aside when contractors began excavating on the property the first day of August. Mr. Statler is hoping to have the hotel completed by the first of next June. It is a positive fact that five large national conventions kept away from Detroit this year simply because they could not get proper hotel accommodations.

It has also been announced that L. W. Tuller, proprietor of the Tuller Hotel, will erect an addition to his establishment to contain 600 rooms, work to start very shortly.

Now the question comes up—will the Postal Hotel Co. erect a hotel, as it announced, at the corner of Wayne and Lafayette Streets? It looks as if they were in earnest as notice to vacate has been given the Ambos Cigar Co. at 123 Wayne Street, who recently moved into that location on a month to month lease.

On August 1 the Cleenewerck Cigar Co., of Kalamazoo, opened a branch in Battle Creek under the management of George W. Longwell, who formerly managed one of the company's stores in Kalamazoo. The Battle Creek store has been handsomely decorated in mahogany and plate glass cases installed. In addition a large scoreboard has been erected on the outside of the building for the benefit of baseball fans, and every day the store is the Mecca for all the "bugs" in town. On the opening day souvenirs were given with every purchase of 50 cents or over. The Detroit Golf Club is managed by Frank McGregor, who was formerly connected with the Hotel Ponchartrain.

L. B. McKittrick, sales manager of the Melachrino Co., was in Detroit on August 7 in the interests of the campaign to be started here on "Royal Nester" cigarettes. While in the city he made a visit to the home of Hine Kuhn, Cleveland representative for the company, who had an operation that day for tuberculosis of the ankle bone. The operation proved successful and Mr. Kuhn hopes to be back at his work in a few weeks. Mr. McKittrick called on the leading retailers and jobbers, and was accompanied by his Detroit representative, Mr. Casey.

Postal cards from Oscar Rosenberger indicate that he is having a very pleasant journey in Europe. Most of his time will be spent in different parts of Germany.

Joe Snyder ran over here the first of the month and announced that he soon hoped to open at least two more stores. Mr. Snyder was in Toledo during the celebrating of Perry's Centennial. He has seven branches in that city, all of which are doing nicely.

Eugene Beck and wife spent a few days in Detroit on their way to the western part of Michigan. Mr. Beck is touring in his automobile, and stops wherever he finds a nice inland lake, and goes fishing. Mr. Beck is with Bachia Co. and is making a pleasure as well as business trip.

Fred Davis, who resides in Pontiac, is home after an extended vacation and will again take to the road about the first week in September. Mr. Davis sells the "Pinzon" cigar.

George De Forrest, of Detroit, who sells the "El Palencia" cigar, has left for Old Orchard Beach in Maine, where he will spend the balance of the summer. He was accompanied by his wife.

Bill Gorman and Mr. Winter, with the Harned-Hewitt Co. of Toledo, were here recently in the interests of the "El Sidelo" cigar.

Ed Hasley, manager of the cigar stand in the Railway Exchange Building in Chicago, has been spending a few days in Detroit with relatives.

New cigar cases have been installed in the new grill room in the basement of the Hotel Ponchartrain. A complete line of cigars will hereafter be carried in the basement, being supplied from the main stand on the first floor.

With the opening of all three burlesque houses in Detroit, there will be the usual demand for cigars and cigarettes. Every house will be opened by the 18th.

M. A. Shaw has purchased a half interest in the Hotel Hoffman, at the corner of Woodward and Sibley Streets, and will manage it. In the fall he plans on a number of important changes and will in all probability have an addition built. Mr. Shaw was formerly manager of the Tuller Hotel and for a while managed the Griswold House. He has many friends, and is very popular among the traveling public. The Hotel Hoffman is well situated and has a nice cigar business.

Cigar and cigarette salesmen who have returned recently from the Northern summer resorts of Michigan report that these places are having an enormous business, the largest in their history, and that the sales of cigars and cigarettes are very good.

The cigar store at 116 Lincoln Avenue, Kalamazoo, was recently broken into and a considerable quantity of smoking material taken. Entrance was made by breaking a glass in the window.

Grand Rapids is having a good business on account of many state conventions which are meeting there and which will continue to do so the balance of the month. August will be the biggest month for conventions that that city has had in many years.

Kalamazoo enjoyed a very prosperous week from August 4 to 9 owing to the Grand Circuit races being held there. Over 1000 visitors were in the Celery City for this event. The meeting will follow the week of the 16th in Detroit.

On July 25, the day that Governor Ferris called out the State troops to go to the Copper Country to protect property from any possible destruction, Solomon Cohen, cigar dealer in Jackson, recalled to mind that it was 40 years ago that very day when he was a member of the State Militia that he was called to the same part of the world and for exactly the same purpose. At that time, John J. Bagley, of Detroit, and founder of the Bagley Tobacco Co. was Governor of the State.

The Hemmeter Cigar Co., of Detroit, is the only cigar factory in the city capitalized at a million dollars. It is reported that the Hemmeter Co. now pays a profit of over $100,000 per year. Most of the stock is held by Mr. John P. Hemmeter. He left August 9 on the Rotterdam for Europe, to be gone about six weeks.

Damage to the extent of $2500 was recently done to the cigar factory of the Lagora Fee Cigar Co., on East Jefferson Avenue.

Charles La Fond will be back in a few days from his trip to Manitou Island, Mich., where he has been spending several weeks.

William Lichtig, manager of the Porter Street branch of the Lillies Cigar Co., has returned from a boat trip to Duluth and Mackinaw Island.

Edward Lichtig, salesman for Philip Morris cigarettes, is back from a trip to Toledo and Indianapolis. In Toledo he was met by Ben Block, manager for this section of the country for Philip Morris cigarettes.

Mr. Bunting, of the Superior Cigar Co., left August 9 with the Detroit Knight Templars for Denver to participate in the triennial conclave. Before returning Mr. Bunting will probably make a trip to Yellowstone Park.

A movement is on foot among the city and county officials in Kalamazoo to have a tax imposed on dealers in the Celery City who sell cigarettes. "I believe that such a tax should be imposed not alone on cigarettes, but upon all tobacco," said one of the officials recently." Cigar and tobacco dealers should be bonded in the same manner that the saloonists are obliged to pay an annual tax. A tax, not too heavy, yet stringent enough to insure the enforcement of the law should be imposed." Dealers in Kalamazoo are not expressing any opinion on the matter as they do not believe that such a law will become effective.

Homer R. Bradfield, formerly salesman for the Woodhouse Co. of Grand Rapids, has resigned and engaged in the produce business in a small way in Traverse City.

P. C. Payette, manager of the Grand Rapids branch of the Woodhouse Co., has been spending the week in Saginaw playing golf in connection with the annual State Tournament. While Mr. Payette did not break any records, he was well up the list for leading percentages.

Fire recently attacked the wholesale tobacco establishment of the Lagora-Fee Co., located near Randolph Street and Jefferson Avenue, Detroit, Mich. Before the flames could be controlled the entire stock of goods on the first floor were damaged. While no accurate estimate of the loss was given by the owner, firemen placed the loss at upwards of $2000.

A. J. McPherson, representative of the Bagley Tobacco Co. of Detroit, has been working the outside cities on a new brand of smoking tobacco called the "Red Belt." Samples have been placed in the leading stores to give to pipe smokers.

A house to house canvasser of cigars was recently arrested in Saginaw for failing to have a license. Saginaw has an "itinerant vendor" law which requires that any one selling goods at retail who is not located in the city must take out a license. This is a good protection to the merchants who are established in business and have rents to pay.

H. Burmeister, a former cigar manufacturer of Oxford, has taken up his residence in Fenton, and may re-engage in the cigar manufacturing business.

Jules Marquzee was in town on the 7th on a flying trip.

The Oppenheimer Cigar store in Battle Creek is headquarters for the Southern League baseball games.

Albert Tatum, formerly with the Spaulding cigar store, on South Jefferson Street, Battle Creek, has resigned and accepted a position with the Cleenewerck Co., and will be assistant to Mr. Longwell.

E. M. Harris Co., of Detroit, is again featuring "Flor de Jeitles" cigars with big success.

E. R. Donavas has engaged in the cigar manufacturing business in Merrill, Mich.

I. Hammer was in town practically all week in connection with "Julia Marlowe" cigars. He says that brother Mort, who sells the "Lucius" cigar, is fishing in Wisconsin.

Ed Heineman, manager of the cigar stand at O'Brien & Co., returned August 8 from a ten days' vacation which he spent at Burr Oak, Mich., his former home. Ed said he had the best time of his life breathing the fresh air and fishing, boating and swimming.

Best & Russell are pushing the "Robert Burns" cigar very strong in this territory, with the result that the public is taking to it very liberally. The company's store at the corner of Woodward and Jefferson Avenues, reports a big sale on this brand.

The Robinson cigar store on West Grand River had a most attractive display the first week in August on the "New Bachelor" cigar. This is getting to be one of the best sellers in Detroit among the popular-priced cigars.

The "San Felice" cigar in Detroit and surrounding territory, handled by the cigar department of Lee & Cady, is more than holding its own. There is hardly a barber shop, to say nothing of the legitimate cigar stores, where the "San Felice" is not carried.

Nate Hart, on West Grand River Avenue, recently gave an entire window to advertising matter regarding "Piedmont" cigarettes. In the past six months this brand of cigarettes has taken a big jump.

The "La Rente" cigar is being featured this week by Cottington's on Griswold Street.

AL U. THORNBURG.

Brudno Company Locates in Ashtabula

WITH a lease on two buildings in Bridge Street, Ashtabula, O., the Brudno Cigar Co., formerly of Cleveland, opened for business on August 4. While they will only employ from 50 to 100 hands at the outset, it is expected that before the year has run its course this number will be increased to between 200 and 300.

The Brudno Company are well-known manufacturers of cigars and stogies. They are an established wholesale house, shipping to practically all the big cities of the country. Their production is said to be sold months ahead, and it was due to the scarcity of help, necessary for the fulfilment of large orders, that caused the firm to leave Cleveland.

Horner Company Want Fair Rates

IT is stated that Attorney R. O. Bauman, of Dayton, O., is pressing a complaint against the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. before the Public Service Commission, on behalf of the Horner Tobacco Co.

It is alleged by the plaintiff that no through rates are offered the Horner Company on tobacco between the company's warehouses at Gettysburg, Barnesville and Belmont; that the rates are discriminatory, and that as a result the company is placed at a disadvantage in trying to compete with Cincinnati houses.

Tampa

Some Factories Very Busy, Others Quite Slack—Several Manufacturers Off to Havana—A. M. Goehring's Coup

TAMPA, FLA., August 11.

BUSINESS with our manufacturers continues variable. While some of them are rushed to the limit, others report very few orders on hand, but there is a general feeling that within a few weeks from now the entire summer dullness should have taken wings, and all factories should have the regular complements of cigar makers seated.

Mortimer Regensburg, whose presence here was noted in our last letter, only stayed four days and then sailed for Havana. He expects to return in about three weeks.

R. Marsicano, who makes the "O-K" brand here, returned a few days ago from a month's trip through Southern Georgia and Northern Florida, where his brands are quite popular. He says that he did well.

Edward Wodiska, of Corral Y. Wodiska, has completed his work at the factory, and once again is headed for the Western territory. He left here the first of the month en route to New Orleans.

The Julia Marlowe factory is crowded to the limit with orders, sufficient to keep them running full handed until next February at least. It is quite possible that ere long they will have to get new quarters.

Fred James, who planned the Cuesta-Rey warehouse in Havana, tells me that work is progressing nicely over there and that the Cuban contractors are busy putting up the brick and concrete walls, having finished the entire steel work. The warehouse is located on Belascoain Street, and will be a model warehouse when completed. Cuesta-Rey are rushed to the limit at their factory in West Tampa, and have had to use another floor to accommodate a large number of additional cigar makers.

There will be an examination here on August 16 for positions under the Civil Service in the Internal Revenue Department.

Frank R. Diaz sailed last Thursday on the P. & O. for a ten days' stay in Havana. V. Guerra, Diaz & Co. have been having a splendid run on "La Mega" for sixty days past, and Mr. Diaz will have to make his leaf purchases in Havana, heavy.

Estanislao Lanza, one of the best known members of the Spanish colony here, died on Thursday, August 7, aged 43 years. Mr. Lanza originally came to Tampa as a cigarmaker, but in recent years has been interested in real estate and banking. He was a prominent Mason and a member of the Spanish Club.

He fought actively in the cause of the strikers in 1911, and was among the dozen men deported at that time. He returned to Tampa after the strike was over.

Jose Arango, of the Havana-American Co., sailed on last Thursday's steamer for Havana, where he will stay for possibly six weeks.

Ed Leonard, the buck-eye cigar maker on Taliafero Street, was arrested here last week with his wife for working a badger game, and they are now on trial.

J. W. McLaughlin, Pittsburgh, has been in this city during the past week.

The Lozano factory has its usual number of cigarmakers seated, and plenty of orders to keep them busy.

A. M. Goehring, of the Tampa-Cuba Cigar Co., has planned to pull over a concerted display of their goods in the show windows of 2000 cigar stores all over the country during the next two weeks. It will be the biggest boost along this line that any factory ever received.

PERFECTO.

Who Slipped This Over?

United Cigar Stores in Waterbury, Conn., have recently received communications from their general offices calling their attention to a law said to have become effective on August 1, requiring all stores in the state to be closed on Sundays and no goods of any kind sold. The managers, having received their orders from headquarters, are carrying them out.

Meanwhile, some one inquired of Prosecuting Attorney James M. Lynch, who incidentally was a representative in the last session of the legislature, as to the law and its requirements. The prosecutor says that according to an old "Blue Law" it is really illegal for any store to remain open on Sunday.

But former Representative Lynch adds, "So far as I know, no law was passed recently relating to the closing of stores on Sunday, although it is possible that a joker of some sort may have been introduced. If there was I know nothing of it."

Kind of hard on the former representative if the law really was passed.

Pittsburgh

Midsummer Trade Well Maintained—Many Salesmen in Town—Cigarette Crews at Work

PITTSBURGH, August 11.

BUSINESS in Pittsburgh for the last two weeks has been very good. Better than ever before for this time of the year.

F. B. Harrower, of the Penn Tobacco Co., Wilkes-Barre, Pa., is showing a great increase on "Penco" in this territory. Has quite a few window displays and distributing samples.

H. Doyster, of Siller-Narten-Barnes, reports big business in the eastern part of the state on "Charter" and "El Roi Tan" cigars.

A. R. Clark, formerly of Philadelphia, is now in charge of the "Zubelda" cigarettes. The "Zubelda" crew are showing good results. They are now featuring a large size rug.

L. B. McKittrick, of the Products Co., was in town this week in the interest of "Royal Nestor" cigarettes. They contain a Fourth Century rug, and 'tis silk.

M. J. Powers is now featuring "Plantista" cigars from 5 to 15 cents. These cigars are Union made and are among the best advertised cigars in Pittsburgh.

Victor R. Newman, of Larus Bros., Richmond, Va., was in town for three weeks selling "Edgeworth" and "Qboid" tobaccos. Having quite a success.

Mr. Lefevre, of the G. W. Faber Co., New York, importers of Havana cigars, was in town this week.

C. W. Staples, Park & Tilford, New York, was in the city this week in the interest of "Mi Favorita" cigars.

Jack Planco, of the El Planco Cigar Co., was in town this week.

Mrs. C. A. Gibbs and son are sojourning in Atlantic City.

A. J. McBlair, of M. Perez Co., New York, was in the city this week in the interest of "Tuval" cigars.

Mr. Hackett, of the Union Restaurant, is going away on his vacation. This restaurant caters to the best people in Pittsburgh, and carry a full line of clear Havana and imported cigars.

A. L. Kidner, Penn and Highland Avenues, is featuring the F. Garcia & Son's cigars. Has a nice window display on this brand. Mr. Kidner, at the present, is on his vacation.

R. J. Dalzell, Penn Avenue, has a very nice window display of City Club tobacco.

A. W. Thielman, of the Hotel Newell cigar stand, is on his vacation. Gene Puhl is now in charge of this stand.

W. W. Nesbit, of Stanton and Negley Avenues, is having a great sale on "Tuval" cigars.

W. J. Smith, who has the cigar stand at Sauer's Tavern, North Side, is enjoying good business. Mr. Smith handles the following well-known brands: "El Verso," "Roig," "Tuval" in several sizes "Webster," "El Roi Tan," "Preferencia," and a big line of imported cigars and stogies.

C. H. Heath, of the El Draco Cigar Mfg. Co., was here for a few days in the interest of the "Stratford" cigar, one of Philadelphia's prides.

F. J. Kuglan, of the Felsenfield Cigar Co., Baltimore, selling "El Perduso" cigars.

Ben L. Heine on his way east has been on the road since June 3. Trade very good. He represents Louis Ash & Co., New York City.

J. B. Annis, representing Solo Cigar Co., Porto Rico and New York, was a recent visitor.

Mr. Connors was here for a few days representing F. Garcia & Bros., of Tampa.

A. J. F.

A Klauber-Wangenheim Star

J. B. Bonhaus.

There are plenty of salesmen in the tobacco industry who have, and who are making good in a small way; the really valuable ones are those who do things big and keep their work up to a high mark.

J. B. Bonhaus, of the well-known distributing firm of Klauber-Wangenheim Co., Los Angeles, Cal., has made a reputation as a salesman who believes in going after big business and getting away with it. Eight years of indefatigable effort, to increase the sales of his house, have proven that he has not labored in vain.

He labors untiringly to get the best out of any line of goods that the house may see fit to place in his hands for results, and he always proves his ability by not disappointing them.

NEW YORK SMOKERS STRIKE BACK

Petitions to Show the Public Service Commission True Facts in the Case

IN all their places of business in New York City the United Cigar Stores Co. have placed petitions to give the smoker an opportunity to express his honest opinion regarding the right to smoke on street cars in New York City.

Owing to the protests emanating from one Doctor Pease, and others who needed his encouragement, the question of smoking on the cars has been discussed very much at length in New York. The Public Service Commission has taken a hand and felt called upon to at least enforce rigidly all present rules, and in addition, to abolish smoking on the rear seats of the convertible cars.

In the United Cigar Stores, a placard above the petition calls attention to the fact that the Public Service Commission has been informed that the majority of people do not want smoking on the cars. The petition offers an opportunity for an honest expression, but the clerks in the stores will not discuss the matter nor will they encourage any one to sign.

Despite this attitude, smokers to the number of more than six hundred signed, in one day, a petition in the United Cigar Store at 110th Street and Broadway.

The general petition reads:

The Right to Smoke

Do your part to protect your right to smoke on public conveyances by signing the petition in this store. More people want to smoke than want to stop it. Show the Public Service Commission how many more.

Do not sign this petition unless you are a voter in this city and are uninfluenced by any other consideration but your honest desire to be convenienced in the matter of smoking.

To Hon. William R. Wilcox, chairman, New York Public Service Commission, for the First District, 154 Nassau Street, New York City.

We, the undersigned citizens of the State of New York, are in favor of the operation of smoking cars, or cars having smoking departments on all surface and elevated lines of transportation in the City of New York, on the ground that thereby a great majority of the public will be afforded a privilege to which, by reason of their number, they have a right. We respectfully request your honorable body to take this petition under consideration, and to issue such order in compliance with our request as will satisfy what we believe to be a public demand.

Name. Address.

Doctor Pease has had considerable advertisement out of his campaign, but at that, it may result in the smokers getting more privileges than they have had before. Under the pseudonym of "Annette," the doctor is accused of writing letters to the daily papers, damning smokers and hanging halos on himself.

It is quite evident that Doctor Pease worships the memory of James the First, of England, much as did Swinburne when the latter exclaimed: "James the First was a knave, a tyrant, a fool, a liar, a coward; but I love him, I worship him, because he slit the throat of that filthy blackguard Raleigh, who invented this filthy smoking."

Prizes at Texas Fair for Best Tobacco

To encourage the tobacco industry in the State of Texas, the management of the Texas State Fair, to be held in Dallas this fall, is offering a prize for the best six stalks of Texas-grown tobacco, and also another prize for the best fifty cigars made from Texas tobacco.

To the individual or company making the best and largest display of manufactured tobacco—Texas raised—showing different stages from leaf to plug, twist, cigars, etc., the management will award a handsome diploma.

San Francisco

Wholesale Tobacconists Organize—"Edens" Being Exploited Here—New Stores Opening Up—General Conditions Promising

SAN FRANCISCO, August 8.

THE cool weather in the city and the opening of the schools in the Bay cities are serving to bring the vacation season to a close and to cause a resumption of fall activity in many lines. The retail trade of the city shows some improvement this week, and indications are for more life locally than for some time. In the country, however, trade is a little slack. Travelers in the warmer part of the Coast note a disposition on the part of dealers to delay orders and to keep stocks at a low point. The hot weather in some interior points dries out cigars rapidly, and dealers have learned to keep stocks low for that reason.

The money situation is still the all important one; and the immediate future of the trade is believed to be largely dependent on the eastern financial developments of the next month or so. The failures in the trade are so far small and unimportant, and as neither buyers nor sellers are disposed to speculate on the future, the outlook in this regard is excellent. Collections are slow, but are improving rather than otherwise.

The San Francisco and Bay counties tobacco jobbers got together last week and organized as The San Francisco and Oakland Wholesale Tobacconists' Association. At a meeting held at the Mint Restaurant, officers were elected as follows: President, B. H. Pendleton, of Horn & Co.; Secretary, M. Glaser, of Glaser Bros., 621 Montgomery Street; and Executive Committee, B. H. Pendleton, M. Glaser and Charles Besthorn. The organization is expected to serve a useful purpose in promoting the welfare of the wholesale end of the trade.

George P. Lauinger, Secretary of Tillmann & Bendel, wholesale grocers and tobacconists, and distributors of Sanchez & Haya cigars in this territory, has returned from an eastern trip of several months' duration. He put in considerable time with eastern manufacturers of the lines carried by the house.

The opening of new stores is a favorable symptom of the present time. A considerable number of small stands have recently been opened, and several of larger size are to be noted. On August 1, Samuel Newmark, who was formerly in business on Pine Street near Montgomery, took charge of a new store on Pine Street near Sansome, in a location which was formerly one of the best known down town stores in the city. Mr. Newmark will carry a full line of cigars and tobaccos, but will specialize on the "El Sidelo" line of the Samuel I. Davis Co. Max Propper, who was formerly at 451 Market Street, has now opened a store on Market Street down near the water front. A number of new hotels have recently opened on lower Market Street, and Mr. Propper thinks he will be in line for a good portion of this hotel trade.

M. A. Gunst & Co. are having a good run of business for this time of year. Their shipments of Manila goods continue to come in regularly, and are passed out into the retail trade as regularly. Julius Unger, the head of the M. A. Gunst & Co. business in Honolulu, is still in San Francisco. Herman Walter, who has been on a mission to Tampa and elsewhere in the east, is back after an absence of several weeks. He spent a large part of his time at the Van Dyke factory, where he learned a lot about good cigars.

A number of new things are being featured this week, and a lot of new work is being done on well established lines. The "Muriel," a new seed and Havana line of cigars, is now being introduced to the San Francisco trade by S. Bachman & Co., who are assisting their salesmen by means of a lively newspaper advertising campaign. Tillmann & Bendel report good results from their extensive advertising of the Sanchez & Haya. H. L. Judell & Co. are also introducing their new Standard size of the "Flor de Moss," the first shipment of which came in a few days since. Another new cigar line in this territory is the "Eden" brand, manufactured by Calixto Lopez & Co., of Havana. This line will be placed next month by Arthur Meyer of this city, whose name has long been connected with the distribution of the Bustillo Bros. & Diaz cigars in this territory. The distribution will be made through Michalitschke Bros. & Co., California Street, who are also the distributors of the "Henry the Fourth" line of Bustillo Bros. & Diaz. Joseph Michalitschke Bros. & Co., head of the distributing house, is now enjoying his annual vacation in Contra Costa County.

Edward Wolf, of the Edward Wolf Co., distributors in this territory of the "Royal Nestor" line of cigarettes, is now waiting for the new supply of "Royal Nestors." He is all sold out, and needs more goods badly. The "Royal Nestor" line of cigarettes will hereafter be carried by all the "Melachrino" salesmen in this territory. Mr. Wolf finds that business, while not rushing, is improving. He has had a good run on "Don Antonios," and is now sold out on nearly all sizes. He is expecting a new supply in a few days, and will then put his salesmen at work in real earnest on the fall campaign. There is also an improvement in the demand for Manilas in both the "Insular" and the "Prueba" lines. New supplies of both brands are due in a few days.

A. D. Meckelburg has leased a store at 1077 Market Street, at which location he will soon open a cigar store.

Charles Fisher has bought out the cigar store of F. Dalton, at 138 East Street, San Francisco.

H. H. Manley, San Francisco representative of the American Cigar Co., is now in Portland and other northern points doing active work for the company's goods.

Arnold Pollak, the veteran cigar broker of this city, with offices in the Merchants' Exchange Building, reports the receipt of a gold medal from the New York Eighth Regiment Veteran Association for good service during the years from 1867 to 1874.

E. B. Gaze, traveling representative of Chas. S. Morris & Co., is now visiting the trade in and about Seattle, where he is reported to be taking a lot of orders for the "La Integridad" line, of Chas. S. Morris & Co.

I. Danziger, the California Street broker, has about completed his work in this city, and will soon be thinking about doing a little fall work for his lines in the outlying towns. He is well pleased with the improved outlook for Manila business during the second half of the year. He finds that the demand for his Manila lines has improved materially during the last few weeks.

Underweighing Frauds in England

APPARENTLY, you can get away with more in England that you can in the United States. Reports from London allege that a bonded warehouse, the name of which has been withheld, has for years been defrauding the government by systematically underweighing tobacco. Arrearages which this warehouse offered to make up from April, 1904, are said to have amounted to $131,685, which the government recovered. However, now some one insinuates that the losses were much greater than the above sum. If one remembers correctly, the falsifiers of sugar weights, in this country, were severely punished. In England, it is said that they were transferred without loss of pay, while the importers escaped unscathed.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Pennsylvania Leaf Production Will Fall Below Average—Kentucky Acreage Shows Some Decrease—Connecticut Tobacco Looks to be Finest in Years

PENNSYLVANIA.

LANCASTER, PA.

Under any circumstances the tobacco crop of Lancaster County is bound to be an uneven one, due partly to lack of cultivation and also to the reduced acreage as well. Conditions in the local leaf market are far from satisfactory. The outlook for prices, from the growers' viewpoint, is not very hopeful and packers predict that the crop will be sold under 10 cents.

In many of the fields the plants appear backward and do not seem to have taken to the soil. Good weather this month may cause the crop to turn out to be all that has been hoped for it, but the probabilities are that there will be some disappointments. The crops in soft, sandy soil appear to have the edge on the plants that are attaining maturity in the heavier earth.

Recent storms did damage in the vicinity of Ephrata. At Reamstown, a large tobacco shed, 72 feet by 36 feet, was demolished. A tobacco shed on Elias Mohler's farm lost its roof. On the farm of Dr. J. F. Mentzer, a large tobacco shed was lifted from its foundations and badly twisted.

Hail stones said to be the size of hickory nuts, fell in large quantities during the storm, riddling the tobacco and corn. In some places the hail made almost valueless the tobacco crop.

It is noteworthy that the Havana this year appears quite superior to the seed leaf, and those growers who made Havana their choice will apparently profit by their judgment.

YORK, PA.

Due to the late planting and backward spring, present indications are that the tobacco production in this part of the country will fall below the average of the past ten years. As the farmers in this section have planted only about half the acreage of last year, at the best, the production will not be more than half of the 1912 amount. The low prices of last year discouraged many growers from putting in their usual acreage of tobacco.

Lee Stoner, Harry Hake and Harvey Deitz, at Hallam, have prospects for fair crops. In general, however, the tobacco crop will be small.

The planting of Havana leaf tobacco in this vicinity has for the past ten years been very small. This year, however, the planting exceeds that of any other. Green worms and cut worms have damaged the leaves to some extent.

The leaf trade is dull at this time, due probably to the fact that many of the packers are taking vacations and short excursions at this time of the year.

The cigar industry shows strength and activity. The factories are working to their capacities with a full quota of employes.

KENTUCKY DISTRICT

LOUISVILLE, KY.

During the past week there has been an increase in the amount of burley offered in the local market. For the old crops, and for the 1912 product the market was stronger and prices seemed inclined to be higher. For everything in the way of burley, and especially for fillery grades, a general demand seems to exist.

A majority of the burley counties show a decrease in acreage, and, as the planting for this year's crops is said to be not more than 80 per cent. of the 1912 acreage, it is easily seen that every pound of tobacco will be in demand. It is estimated by some that the shortage will exceed 40,000,000 pounds, while others place it as high as 60,000,000 pounds.

There is a marked falling off of the acreage in the Green River and stemming districts. The districts of Clarksville and Hopkinsville indicate only an 80 per cent. crop compared with last year. Warren County and the five counties grouped about it considered as the one-sucker district, is said to have an acreage this year of only 65 to 70 per cent. of last year's growth.

In Hopkinsville the market is quiet. Anticipating advances in price the growers with unsold tobacco seem inclined to await further developments before selling.

The sales of the independent warehouse men at Paducah and at Mayfield were weak and made up principally of small to medium leaf, selling at 8 to 10 cents. The sales of the Planters' Protective Association at Paducah were the largest of any previous week this season, and the prices were firm and unchanged on all grades.

CARLISLE, KY.

The heavy storms have caused the builders in this section to be besieged by tobacco growers who lost their barns. In Nicholas County alone thirty-one barns are said to have been destroyed, and in some cases the loss has worried the growers, as quite a number of them have crops that will soon be ready for the knife.

THE CAROLINAS

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

From all indications the crops in this section are to be record-breaking ones, and estimates are heard on all sides. At a meeting of the Board of Trade a slogan of "Thirty million pounds of leaf tobacco sold in Winston-Salem during the season 1912-13," was suggested.

Mr. Henry Wood, president of the Kingstree Tobacco Board of Trade, sees a very healthy and prosperous season ahead. The warehouses are filling with tobacco very rapidly.

Cannon, Pegram and Munn are three warehouses in Florence that are out each day after every possible pound of tobacco that they can get. A. J. Coleman, of the Forrestville section, led the prices; his tobacco brought 16, 26 and 45 cents a pound.

The crop in South Carolina is a good one in quality, and perhaps above the normal yield in acreage.

The prosperous condition of those communities planting tobacco, has been so noticeable that a strong appeal will be made to the farmers of Sumter County to cultivate the weed in 1914. In addition to its prizes for rotation and diversification of crops, the bank of Sumter, in 1914, will offer special prizes for tobacco.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, CONN.

Rains which came in time did an immense amount of good, and as a result the predictions regarding the quality of the crops have been verified. To the eyes of a representative of THE TOBACCO WORLD the tobacco looks to be the finest seen in a number of years. The color is good and the texture is excellent.

There is a brisk demand for Connecticut broadleaf, and it is thought that prices will generally range higher than was anticipated earlier in the year.

At the American Sumatra Tobacco Co.'s plantation one hundred men started more than a week ago on the first picking. Six pickings will be made on this crop, the first picking to be of five or six leaves.

Woodworth & Ude have started to pick their sun-grown crop of 1913 tobacco. Mr. Ude has about 55 acres under cultivation, while Mr. Woodworth is picking his crop on the 20 acres of the Douglas place.

The present tobacco crop in Poquonock and the vicinity is claimed to be the best in the last six years. Rain has helped the crops and many of the growers have already started their picking. Among those who have begun are Representative Charles O. Clark, Thomas J. Kearney and Clark Brothers.

WINDSOR, CONN.

Despite the drought, the weather has been favorable to the growers in this section and the record is way ahead of previous years. Most of the acreage is in "seed tobacco," but Havana is rapidly becoming its rival.

The rains have helped considerably with the late planted tobacco, and the prospects for a bumper crop are good. There is plenty of help to be had. Approximately twenty sheds have been built lately in this section to store the hand-picked tobacco.

The problem of moisture for the tobacco crop is the one uncertain element to the farmer, and it is not surprising to hear that several of the larger growers are experimenting with irrigation systems. However, it is too expensive to interest any but the larger growers at present. Maybe some one will come along with a patent sprinkling system, cheap and efficient, that will help the small grower solve this vexing problem.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, WIS.

Packers report that inquiries for cured tobacco are coming in very rapidly. However, but few are able to show samples of last season's crop. Out-of-town buyers are reported to have been looking through the local market and a number of sales are said to have been effected.

Weather, splendid for the tobacco crop, has sent the fields ahead most encouragingly. Already a few of the more forward crops have been topped and from now on this work will become general.

That heavy storms may follow in the wake of the hot wave, is the one bug-a-boo that the growers now fear.

Shipments from storage of past fortnight amount to about 2600 cases.

VERMONT.

BRATTLEBORO, VT.

Rain and hail which accompanied a heavy wind storm, which swept over the vicinity of Brattleboro, Vt., last week, did much damage to the tobacco fields. Many leaves were punctured and the gale, which blew furiously, mowed the corn and tobacco in many places to the ground.

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 102 South Twelfth Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

☞ Positively no responsibility assumed for errors, duplications or any controversies which might arise. We will not under any circumstances act in a legal capacity in cases concerning disputed titles. We maintain a bureau of records only.

Denver Will License Tobacco Sellers

The bill providing for a license of $10 a year for all persons selling tobacco in Denver has brought the question to the City Fathers regarding the length of time that will be allowed grocers to dispose of their stock, as many will give up this line. As the bill has not been passed yet, the commissioners decided that they could not answer the question.

While the failure of the corner grocer to handle tobacco may cause inconvenience for a while, to the man in the block, it, at the same time will do something for the retailer who handles tobacco and cigars on a large scale.

The failure of the grocer to handle your favorite brand will mean the purchase of it from a tobacco dealer, in larger quantities; it will concentrate sales and will bring the man who takes out a license more than enough to compensate in new business.

The fellow that put the stuff across about the cloud with a silver lining was certainly right on the job.

IRREGULAR PAGINATION

To the Cigar Jobbers and Distributors in the United States

If you want to make your business profitable and get the desirable light colors which the trade demands, and to enable your cigar manufacturers to give you a better quality cigar for the money insist that they give you a good cigar covered with an American Sumatra Wrapper.

The manufacturer is not able to pay $1.85 per pound duty on imported tobacco and build as good a cigar as those which are covered with American Sumatra Tobacco, on which no duty is paid.

Skilled labor is high, Binders are high, good Fillers are high, everything pertaining to cigar manufacture is high, but the difference in the cost of wrappers, will enable the manufacturer to give you a finer article for your customer and more profits for you.

The Florida-Georgia wrapper is not a substitute. It is the

STANDARD MONEY-MAKING WRAPPER OF THE HOUR

Over 20,000 bales used last year by the leading cigar manufacturers in this country proves it.

Increased use year after year shows that progressive manufacturers realize the quality of the Florida-Georgia wrapper.

They use it in preference to Sumatra, strictly on its merit, regardless of cost.

WHICH WOULD YOU RATHER BE—PREJUDICED OR PROSPEROUS? IT'S UP TO YOU.

Important Notice to Jobbers

Are you handling the goods that your retailer needs most?
Are the goods you are handling being sold promptly by the retailer?
Are your retailers duplicating their orders?

IF NOT

You are not carrying a line of goods which is most in demand with the consumer—

Our Fifty-Six

Turkish Cigarettes are in big demand with the consumer and all retailers are repeating their orders as a consequence.

We don't believe in bragging, but we cannot describe this rare cigarette without seeming to boast.

However, there must be a reason—and results are telling.

Fifty-Six retail both plain and cork tip at twenty-five cents a box of ten, and we do not permit any cutting in prices. We await your orders.

Quantity or Quality--Which?

WHEN you are considering the advisability of taking on a new cigar, Mr. Dealer, what do you take to be of most importance, quantity or quality?

If quality cuts a large part in the selection of your stock, get in touch with us. We have something in common with you, a medium-sized, hand-made, clear Havana filled, nickel cigar, which contains nothing but the best imported tobacco.

This cigar, the 20TH CENTURY, has been on the market for 28 years, sufficient proof that it has stood the test of time.

For full particulars and samples communicate with

STANDARD PURE TOBACCO BINDERS

PURE TOBACCO
Classified by the U. S. Internal Revenue Dep't as "tobacco in process of manufacture."

MADE FROM
Stems, Scraps and Cuttings.
Send for samples and try them out.

Saves You 100% Over Ordinary Grown Binders

ELIMINATE waste and you create profit. Grown cigar binders represent waste—the waste in casing, stripping and cutting- and waste has no place in the making of low-priced cigars.

STANDARD PURE TOBACCO BINDERS have all the virtues of grown binders, with none of their faults. Perfect uniformity of texture and the flavor of high-grade leaf are coupled with a saving of 100% over the cheapest grown binder.

The body of STANDARD PURE TOBACCO BINDERS is made from the stems of tobacco leaf cuttings and clippings.

By an intricate, patented process, the oils and juices of the high-grade leaf are all preserved.

The uniform texture obtained only in STANDARD BINDERS insures an even burn, reducing a cigar to a clear, white ash, even if the wrapper is not a free burner. The binder's soft, pliable, absorbent qualities mingle the flavor of filler and wrapper, effecting a unit blend.

STANDARD PURE TOBACCO BINDERS mean better cigars for less money. It takes but two pounds of these binders, where it took six or seven pounds of grown binders to cover 1,000 cigars. STANDARD binders are 40 cents a thousand, as against $1.00 a thousand for the cheapest grown binders. Here is at least a saving of over 100%, with an additional gain of at least 40% in sparing you the time, space and waste involved in casing, stripping and cutting the grown binder.

The STANDARD PURE TOBACCO BINDER comes in 6 standard sizes, to accommodate 30 sizes of cigars. Also 2 stogie sizes. It is ready to use after lying for about 24 hours in damp cuttings.

The STANDARD is the handiest way, the cheapest way, the best way. There is no argument against it but its youth, and every improvement has to be new a little while. After all, a better binder at 100% lower cost is a pretty lusty infant. Let us know your possible needs, and samples will be sent gladly

ATTACK ON THE BONDED FACTORY LAW

Circular Sent Broadcast Stating Objections—Clear Havana Makers Seem to Approve Bill—The Bond a Benefit Not a Handicap

THE trade at large have been thoroughly circularized during the past week by an organization styling themselves the United States Bonded Tobacco Storage Warehousemen, with their address given as P. O. Box 759, New York City, and no street address, attacking the provision of the Underwood tariff law now before Congress in reference to the manufacture of cigars in bond for domestic consumption.

The circular has been carefully prepared, but it would seem to us to lend more weight were it backed by names of individuals, rather than by a signature which few of the trade seem to know. A representative of "The Tobacco World" endeavored to reach Mr. Edward C. Berriman, of Berriman Bros., the Tampa manufacturers, who has been deeply interested in the passage of the Bonded Factory law, and who earnestly believes that it would prove a panacea for many of the ills to which the cigar industry is now liable, but both Mr. Berriman and his brother, Matthew W., are away from New York.

Other manufacturers who were interviewed on the subject stated that they did not know anything about the United States Bonded Tobacco Storage Warehousemen, but the concensus of opinion among the clear Havana manufacturers seemed to be that the proposed law is a good one, and that its defects are largely over-balanced by the merits of the bill.

The special contention in the circular of the warehousemen, that the factories who were not in position to furnish the requisite bonds provided for by the proposed law, would be at a great disadvantage in the manufacture of goods, owing to their inability to obtain the government stamp, is not pronounced a sound objection by careful students of the proposed measure. If the obtaining of a bond is a helpful proceeding, any factory embarking in clear Havana manufacture should consider the obtaining of the bond a part of the initial capital investment in its plant.

For the benefit of those who have not received the circular, we append it herewith in its entirety.

NEW YORK, August 22, 1913.

THE purpose to provide for the manufacture of cigars in bond in the proposed new tariff bill, is in our opinion a matter that should be given the serious thought and immediate attention of all persons who are in anywise interested in cigar leaf tobacco and its products.

The grower of domestic tobacco.
The buyer of domestic tobacco.
The seller of domestic tobacco.
The jobber of domestic tobacco.
The importer of foreign tobacco.
The Custom House broker.
The cartmen.
The weigher.
The insurance broker.
The warehouse men.
The manufacturer of seed and Havana cigars, and more especially the high-class clear Havana manufacturers.

Think of the source, the reason of origin, also the wording of the measure—the advantages to those favored and the disadvantages to those not favored.

DENVER MAY REFUND $4000

Repeal of Special Levy of $25 Planned—Many Dealers Have Already Paid Tax—Cigarettes to Come Under $10 License

WHEN the Denver City Councils passed an ordinance requiring dealers selling cigarettes to take out a license of $25 annually, the result was that many small dealers gave up the line. It is estimated that from 1200 to 1500 stores in Denver handle cigarettes, but of this number not more than 250 "came through" with the license tax. Many decided to give up that branch of the tobacco trade, while others, apparently, were willing to take a chance.

In spite of the fact that the city needs money, it is now probable that $400 collected for this special tax will be refunded and that councils will amend the cigar and cigarette ordinance.

The probability that the City Councils will at its next meeting amend the pending cigar and tobacco ordinance to include cigarettes under the flat rate of $10 per annum for each dealer, and further amend the proposed law to repeal the $25 license required for the sale of cigarettes, is what renders the disposal of the $4000 already collected, problematical.

The question involved is that of raising the most money with the least expense, and it is believed that the enforcing of the cigarette law will entail considerable expense.

"We believe, and it is probably a fact," said Commissioner Thum, "that if we try to make the dealers pay $25, very few will take out licenses. The rest will 'boot-leg.' Then we will have a lot of work and expense to hunt them down, employing special detectives, bringing them into court and enforcing the ordinance. We will lose by this method more than we gain.

"But if we say 'cigars, tobacco and cigarettes,' the druggists, grocers and everybody who has been dealing in these can have cigarettes as a feeder and they will come to the City Hall and pay the license. In the long run we will get a greater revenue. That's the theory of including the three in one, which may be done at our next meeting.

Pool Decisions in October.

The fate of tobacco pooling associations, as well as other farmers' organizations organized to get better prices, will come before the Supreme Court in October, when an attack will be made upon the constitutionality of the Kentucky statute legalizing tobacco pooling organizations. It is also claimed to be in conflict with the Sherman anti-trust law.

The joint tobacco commission of Congress, investigating the effect of foreign governmental purchases of American tobacco, is considering a proposal to recommend to Virginia and Carolina tobacco growers the formation of pool selling organizations similar to those in Kentucky as the only method of getting a living price out of their tobacco crops. Should the Supreme Court annul the Kentucky statute, the pooling idea might not be available to the Virginia and Carolina growers.

The exact status of tobacco pooling organizations has never been before the Supreme Court. It is said that the decision in the case will apply equally to all farmers' alliances formed to get better prices.

Henry Pearce, Sr., Takes Own Life.

HENRY PEARCE, Sr., of 900 West Ninth Street, Wilmington, one of the best-known tobacco salesmen in this section of the country, took his life by inhaling illuminating gas at his home on the afternoon of August 14.

Mr. Pearce is said to have been acting strangely for some days past. His body was found shortly after 4 P. M. by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Windsor, who detected the odor of gas. Although pronounced dead by Dr. Florence Seward, the Wilmington Gas Company sent its pulmotor to the house in an effort to revive him. W. J. McCorkindale, general manager of the company, went with the machine and for more than an hour efforts were expended to restore life.

At the time of his death Mr. Pearce was in the employ of A. B. Cunningham & Co., of 139 North Second Street, Philadelphia, Pa. He had been with this concern for more than eight years. Previous to his employment by them, Mr. Pearce had worked for S. H. Durstein, the well-known cigar manufacturer, of Wilmington, Del.

Not only was Mr. Pearce well liked by the trade in Wilmington, but he was popular throughout the state. He was forty-three years old and one of the leading spirits of the Commercial Travelers' Association.

The deceased is survived by his widow and one son, Henry Pearce, Jr.

James P. Spencer

Succumbing to the ravages of a cancer, James Pendleton Spencer, one of the leading tobacco growers of Suffield, Conn., died in the room in which he was born, on August 13th. Mr. Spencer was sixty-four years old, and was born September 6, 1848.

The deceased was a successful grower of tobacco on a large scale practically all his life. At the time of his death he was president of the Alfred Spencer Company.

Mr. Spencer is survived by his wife, one sister and three brothers. Interment was made on the 15th inst. in Woodlawn Cemetery.

John J. McGee

John J. McGee, the well-known cigar dealer of 160 Franklin Street, Greenpoint, Brooklyn, died on Wednesday, August 27th, at Saratoga Springs, where he had gone for his health.

Mr. McGee was a widely known Williamsburg politician and a life-long Democrat. The funeral took place yesterday, from his late residence, 984 Manhattan Avenue.

Adolph Schwarz.

Adolph Schwarz, sixty-eight years old, for fifty years in the wholesale tobacco business, died of heart disease on Tuesday at his home, 511 West 112th Street. He was a member of several German societies.

Moses Falk.

Moses Falk, the founder and president of the Falk Tobacco Company, whose factory is in Richmond, Va., and New York offices at 115 Broadway, died at his home, 148 West 120th Street, on Tuesday, August 19th, at an advanced age.

Mr. Falk was originally with the old firm of Cameron & Cameron in the tobacco business in Richmond, and after that house was absorbed by the American Tobacco Company, he organized his own business under the name of the Falk Tobacco Company, ably assisted by his two sons, Messrs. Albert and Arthur Falk.

The deceased's illness had extended over a period of several years past, during which time he had been unable to give much attention to his business, and the management of affairs practically devolved upon Albert Falk, who now succeeds his father as president of the company, while his brother continues as the treasurer.

The funeral services took place on the 22nd ult. from the late residence and was under Masonic auspices.

By the will of Moses Falk, which was admitted to probate in New York on August 28th, the deceased's interests in the Falk Tobacco Company of Richmond and New York is bequeathed in equal parts to his two sons, Albert and Arthur Falk. These shares are valued at $100,000.

Cash legacies of $20,000 each were devised to his two daughters, Mrs. Linda Ellis and Miss Olga Falk, and a trust fund of $25,000 was provided for the latter. The residuary estate was divided into four parts, of which each child inherited his share.

Henry Wasserman.

With the death of Herman Wasserman, a former president of the International Tobacco Company, there passed away one of New York's oldest tobacco men. Mr. Wasserman's death occurred on Tuesday at his home at 161 East Sixty-fifth Street, New York. He is survived by a widow and three sons.

Mr. Wasserman came to America in 1849 from Germany, and won rapid advancement in the tobacco industry. Six years after his arrival he had become a director in the International Tobacco Company and retained this position until his death.

For the purpose of doing a wholesale and retail cigar business in Chicago, Ill., the Arthur Burdahl Cigar Company was recently incorporated with capital of $1,500. Harry Sievers, John Stackley and Arthur Burdahl are named as incorporators.

The tobacco store in the Masonic Block, at Huntington, Mass., conducted by William Knightly, has been sold to William Herrick and Harry Dewey, who have taken possession.

Interim Dividend on British-American

Cable advices on the 28th ult. announce the declaration of a 6 per cent. interim dividend by the British-American Tobacco Company on the common stock, payable on September 30th, to stockholders of record on September 17th.

Quito Cigar Company New in Boston

ARTICLES of incorporation have just been taken out by the Quito Cigar Company, Inc., of Boston, Mass. The concern starts with an authorized capital of $25,000, and will feature the "Quito" brand. V. Garro is named as president and P. R. Zolla is the treasurer.

Cleveland

Manufacturers Complain of Scarcity of Labor—Dealers Report Record Sales for August—"Natusco" New Cleveland Cigar

CLEVELAND, O., August 26th.

THE past weeks have seen some very big conventions in Cleveland, which have brought thousands and thousands of strangers into the city. Our retailers all report the biggest August business in the history of the retail game.

The Randal Fair is one of the big events that are drawing strangers into Cleveland's bounds this past week. It is one of the largest fairs ever held in the United States, and every excursion train is bringing its quota of strangers from all over the country.

Business among the manufacturers is very good. All are complaining bitterly of the scarcity of labor. This labor question has been a thorn in the side of the manufacturers since the first of the year, as most of them have been oversold since that time and have not been able to secure the necessary labor to enable them to catch up.

The "White House" cigar store at 5337 Euclid Avenue, is now in the exclusive charge of Mr. Morris, he having bought out the interest of N. Feldman. He is arousing a lot of talk in that section by having a miniature cigar factory in the window. His entire effect is white, to carry out the name "White House Cigar Store."

Robert C. Heaney has resigned as manager of the Joseph T. Snyder Cigar Company. He will be connected with Tinkham Brothers, of Jamestown, N. Y., and will cover the western part of New York State for them. Mr. Heaney is well acquainted in this section of the country, having travelled there previous to taking up his position with the Snyder interests.

Mr. Heaney expects to make his home in Rochester, and will leave here about the first of the month. All his friends wish him the utmost success in his new venture and will say good-bye with much regret, as he was generally liked both by the people who came in to purchase and by the boys behind the counter.

Mr. Heaney opened up the Snyder stores here and has been connected with this institution for five years.

Mr. Snyder was here the past week, but as yet has not named Mr. Heaney's successor.

A new billiard hall has just been opened at the corner of Huron Road and Prospect, under the management of Mr. S. Lavine. This will be one of the most complete institutions of its kind in the country, and will carry a very high-grade line of smokers' articles.

D. Blum's stand in the Moreland Hotel is exceeding his fondest expectations. Business is on the steady increase there, and if the present outlook is any indication, this stand should be one of the best in the city within a very short time.

Morris Glucksman has given up the Superior Avenue store in the Leader-News Building, and will devote his entire time to the Bond Street store, in the same building.

Everett Lawston, manager of the Euclid Arcade cigar store, reports his summer business is exceedingly brisk. They have a special brand of cigars called the "Natusco," manufactured under their supervision, which is rapidly gaining a foothold and has proven itself to be one of the best 5-cent cigars on the market.

There is a crew in town sampling "Egyptian Straight" cigarettes, and also passing out booklets which offer quite a bit of humor to the passerby.

J. J. Mittleberger, who is representing Neuman & Mayer, was in town the past week and put in some good licks on "Bella Mundos," manufactured by this concern. Mr. Mittleberger left for the East Sunday night, where he will be for several weeks.

JERRY.

The remodelling of the interior of the Harmon Cigar Shop, Sterling, Ill., having been completed, the exterior is now to come in for its share of attention.

Among the recent incorporations at Detroit, Mich., was that of the Acme Cigar Company, with an authorized capital stock of $5,000, all of which has been subscribed, $1,000 having been paid in cash.

Will F. Rhoades, having acquired the cigar factory located in Leon, Ia., has moved the same to Cainsville, Ia., where he is now engaged in the manufacture of cigars, having ample facilities, inasmuch as the new acquisition comprises the best portions of three cigar factories. Mr. Rhoades, who has located the factory in the First National Bank Building, is thoroughly conversant with the business, having served time both at the bench and on the road. Mr. Rhoades has three men working for him, which staff will be increased in accordance with the demand for his goods, which are to include several popular brands.

NEW PORTO RICAN FIRM OPENS

The Levi-Kaften Co. Organize.—Will Feature "Averia" in 10c Goods—Factory in Caguas

AFTER some weeks of preparation, the Levi-Kaften Co. have opened offices at 141 Maiden Lane, New York, and are now ready to place on the market several brands of high-grade Porto Rico cigars made in their thoroughly modern factory at Caguas, Porto Rico.

The new company is composed of Morris J. Levi and Henry Kaften. Mr. Levi was for a number of years president of the American West Indies Sales Company of New York (at one time a very important factor in the Porto Rican cigar trade), and he is rated one of the cleverest men in the industry. Henry Kaften, of the firm, was for fifteen years also connected with the American West Indies Company, and is known from Coast to Coast as one of the real able distributors of Porto Rico cigars.

The firm have selected as the title for their leading 10-cent brand "Averia," and these goods are not only beautifully packed, but they are offered in a variety of shapes and sizes which will surely cover all needs. In 5-cent goods, the "Rio Porto" will be the featured brand, and for quality in a popular price smoke the company thinks they have the most exclusive and desirable article which has been shown in a long time.

Henry Kaften will leave on September 5th for his first trip with the new offering, headed for the South.

It is the intention of the Levi-Kaften Co., in addition to the manufacture and sale of their own cigars, to go largely into the handling of Porto Rican tobacco in bulk, paying special attention to strip fillers.

Their factory and warehouse in Caguas is particularly adapted for both the manufacture of cigars and the handling of leaf tobacco as well.

Steber Opens in Reading.

WARREN, PA., August 23.

A. STEBER, of Warren, Pa., has removed his cigar factory to Reading, Pa. The removal is due to the fact that Mr. Steber has been unable to secure a sufficient number of cigarmakers to fill the large number of orders that have been piling into his factory of late.

It required six cars to remove the equipment from Warren, the greater part of the stock being in warehouses in the eastern part of the State, as the removal has been contemplated for sometime.

Mr. Steber expects about half this force to accompany him, but the cigarmakers say that not more than half a dozen will remove to Reading.

More than a score of cigarmakers have already left Warren, moving to all points of the compass; some to Hartford, Conn.; Erie, Pa.; Fort Wayne, Ind., and to Syracuse, N. Y.

Talk is that some of the unions in Warren will take official notice of the removal by passing resolutions in sympathy with the cigarmakers.

Edward S. Deitch, who has been employed by the Steber factory for twenty-six years, has leased quarters on the East Side and expects to conduct a cigar factory here for himself.

Mr. Deitch is considered one of the best judges of tobacco and well-made cigars in this section of the State.

Twelve of the employes of the Steber factory have gone to work for Buerkle & Blair.

WHILE lunching in a New York cafe a few weeks ago a waiter, other than my own, did me a service, and having no change, I handed him a fine Porto Rican cigar.

Imagine my surprise half an hour later as I was standing at the cashier's desk, to see a bell boy come up to the counter with my cigar and inquire what it was worth, saying "T——, the waiter, wants to know what you will give him for it." The clerk replied that it was an excellent cigar, but they did not handle that brand, so he could give nothing for it.

Right there I swore off giving cigars to waiters.

But it reminded me of an old fellow back in the country town where I went to school, and I had to smile as I thought of him.

We used to call him "Begging Bill," for he never missed an opportunity to ask for something.

His favorite trick was to work the "idle rich," who did a Marathon with the sun around the hotel porch every day, for a chew of plug tobacco.

Bill would come along and casually inquire if anyone had some "chewin." If a plug was produced, Bill would take it, calmly pull his knife from his pocket and cut off a most liberal chew. Then he would hand the emaciated remnant back to the owner, with the remark, "Thank'ee, I'll chew that when I git in bed tonight," and amble slowly down the street.

WITH the continual commotion anent women smoking, a cigar salesman who has recently returned from the Coast tells this story to prove that there are some, at least, who will have their little smoke.

The story unwinds on the crack 36-hour train between Seattle and 'Frisco; the place is the Club car, for a generation the rendezvous of "gentlemen who wish to smoke." The time is evening; twilight has spread her glowing mantle about the towering heights of Mt. Shasta. At the tables in the forward end of the car some gentlemen who have already finished their dinner are enjoying a quiet game of pinochle with their cigars. Across the aisle a four-handed of American "draw" may be discerned through the clouds of smoke arising from four big, black Manilas.

Further down the car some men have their chairs drawn together and one of the number in modulated tones is relating a story. One or two other individuals are sitting alone. As the hour grows later, one by one the men come in from dinner and the car gradually fills up. Above the roar of the train, the hum of conversation pervades the car. Suddenly it stops!

A well-dressed young woman, in the early twenties, appears in the passageway at the rear end of the car. She advances slowly and takes a comfortable seat, apparently oblivious to the other occupants of the car. A rather excited-looking young man hastily arises and goes over to her, saying "Pardon me, Miss, but this is the smoking car."

"I am quite well aware of it," she replies with a smile, and as the somewhat disconcerted young man takes his seat, she draws a handsome gold cigarette case from her bag, extracts a cigarette and proceeds to light it with the grace and nonchalance of an habitue.

A few moments later the Pullman conductor enters. He appears somewhat surprised, but before he can speak a man rises and approaches him, protesting against the woman's presence in the car.

"But our rules do not cover this point," says the conductor, "and I cannot formulate laws of my own; I might lose my job."

"Well, she's got no business here," the man answers, "and if this keeps up we men won't have any privacy at all. This puts the 'can' on story-telling parties in the smoker! And, conductor, I protest against this woman being allowed to remain here."

Before the conductor can reply the young woman arises and speaks. "Why can't I come in here? I can't smoke in the chair car or the sleeper, and I like to smoke, especially after dinner. I think it aids digestion. So I just came up to the Club car and lighted my cigarette. Why not let the gentlemen vote on it, conductor? If they decide against me I will retire."

The conductor takes a vote and twenty-three out of the twenty-four men signal to let the young woman stay and smoke.

Smiling sweetly upon the interested occupants of the car the Y. W. says: "Thank you so much. Now just think of it, I have opened the door for all the girls who wish to smoke while traveling."

"Maybe you have," replies the grouch, "and I reckon the next thing you'll be doing will be to climb on the rear seats of the summer cars and bum matches off of the men for your 'pills.' Personally, I would rather see you wear trousers and vote."

The young woman smiles, takes out another cigarette and lights it. Then she replies softly with a smile, "We may do all these things, who can tell?"

And the grouch in an undertone to his neighbor says: "Well, I'll be damned; the nerve and conceit of some people. The only place we'll have left pretty soon will be the barber shop."

* * *

I am sorry to see the old cigar store at the corner of Ninth and Walnut Streets, in the old Walnut Street Theatre Building, giving way to the improvements which the new lessees of this historic old structure are now making. I recall this store when a lad, and many of the most prominent actors of days gone by have leaned against its well-worn counters and procured their favorite smokes.

A smoke shop seems peculiarly appropriate in a theatre, and there is always something particularly intimate in a little place which was sheltered like the one which is now passing out of existence.

Any one who has smoked French tobacco and cigarettes knows that of all things abominable these take first rank. The price affixed to them by the French Government is equivalent to robbery, but we cry "extortion" when the proprietors and clerks in the big hotels and restaurants in Paris carefully erase the government price and affix one of their own, usually from 50 per cent. to 100 per cent. higher. But we pay without protest.

The Hold-Up Game Abroad and in America

The other day the French Government stepped into the game and nabbed the head waiter of a big hotel on the left bank of the Seine and fined him $100 for this little trick. Let us pray that official France will continue to sit in the game until they have put an end to stacking of the cards.

And speaking by and large of this practice of overcharge, it abounds in America to an outrageous degree; and Americans, with mutton-like meekness, stand for it.

Cheap and expensive hotels, alike, in New York slap the price of Philadelphia 1c. newspapers to 5c. and 10c. In Philadelphia you pay 2c., 3c. and 5c. at hotel newsstands for papers that you can buy just outside the door for 1c.

But these are only petty examples of a system of extortion that is growing daily in our big restaurants and hotels all over the country.

Cigars that retail for 10 cents, jump to 15 cents when they go into the humidors of big hotels and restaurants. Cigarettes of a certain brand sell for 5 cents more than the established price because they have a label on them which reads "Put up especially for the * Hotel." Another more expensive brand jumps to 50 cents a pack when it ought to sell for 35 cents.

There should be some way of putting a stop to this polite method of larceny. It may be a poor rule that does not work both ways, and since a recent decision has been handed down permitting the retailer to establish a lower price for a patented article if he cares to, it looks as if he should be allowed to charge more if he can get it.

Americans all over the world seem to pride themselves on being "good spenders," but you can paste it in your hat that foreigners, while they admit the fact of Americans being "good spenders," make no bones in saying that we do it with rotten judgment. And they base this opinion on the ease with which we are filched of our shekels without a murmur.

It is a fact, as a Frenchman once remarked, "Ze American like to be robbed if it be did politely and with ze grace."

Philadelphia as High-grade Cigar Center

Philadelphia, known for so many years as the home of popular brands of 5-cent cigars, has developed the highest reputation as a producer of 10 cent and 15 cent hand-made goods. Many of the factories here are so overcrowded with business on these high grades that they will have to call a halt until the orders now on their books are made and shipped.

Careful investigation shows a steady growth for the Philadelphia hand-made cigar, and the difficulties experienced in the filling of these orders has caused many jobbers and distributors to increase the size of their orders to keep the line of stock unbroken. Many houses are now busy with Christmas orders, some of which call for delivery before October 1. Others as late as November 1.

Careful investigation shows a steady growth for the Philadelphia hand-made cigar, and the difficulties experienced in the filling of these orders has caused many jobbers and distributors to increase the size of their orders to keep the line of stock unbroken. Many houses are now busy with Christmas orders, some of which call for delivery before October 1. Others as late as November 1.

The cause for the delay is attributed to the shortage of skilled cigarmakers. Factories up-state notify the head offices that they are unable to get hands enough to keep the orders anywhere near up-to-date. The constantly growing demand for Philadelphia hand-made cigars and the continual shortage of skilled workmen is setting many of the houses back a long way.

One manufacturer stated that if orders continued in the next six months as they had in the past, he would have to open at least one new factory and perhaps more.

The shortage of skilled cigarmakers is attributed to the fact that many factories have ceased to turn out strictly hand-made cigars, and as a result there are not so many apprentices and therefore less skilled workmen.

It is a source of much satisfaction to learn that the Philadelphia cigar houses are coming into their own, and the fact that the demand for Philadelphia smokes is steadily increasing proves that consistent advertising backed up by quality will win every time.

As another of the local manufacturers succinctly stated, "It is not any longer a question of selling these high-grade goods—it is a question of making them."

Riker-Hegeman Knife Deeper.

DURING the past two weeks the Riker-Hegeman Drug Company have plunged more deeply than ever into a cut price warfare on leading cigarette brands, and the smokers of New York and Philadelphia especially have been able to buy their favorite brands at really ridiculous figures.

The company have been selling "Murads" and "Moguls" at 8 cents per package, two packages to a customer; while the American Tobacco Company's "Lord Salisbury," which are made to sell at 10 cents, with three cash rebate coupons packed in them worth a half cent each, have been sold at 6 cents per package.

Melachrino's "Naturals," "Rameses," "Condax," "Pall Malls" and other 20-cent brands, have gone over the counter at 14 cents per package.

Cuba-Connecticut Stockholders to Meet.

A special meeting of the stockholders of the Cuba-Connecticut Tobacco Company will be held on September 8th at their New York offices, 125 Maiden Lane, to make some adjustments in the classification of the capital stock of the concern.

Last fall the company increased its capital to $500,000, and it is now proposed that of this amount $200,000 shall be made seven per cent. cumulative preferred stock and $300,000 common stock.

Another United Store Robbed.

The United Cigar Stores, New York City, are again the victims of hold-ups similar to those which occurred last spring. At their store, 322 Columbus Avenue, recently, when the clerk in charge, John P. Reynolds, turned from his showcase at about 8.30 in the evening to obtain a package of cigarettes at the request of a customer, he was very much annoyed on returning to find that he was facing a revolver, which was followed by the command to "put up your hands," which he did. Just at that moment a real customer entered, but the man with the revolver was clever enough to conceal the weapon and ordered Reynolds to serve the customer or it wouldn't be good for him. When the real customer had been duly attended to, and left the store, the leader with his two assistants jumped the counter and obtained about $75 in cash, in the meantime ordering the clerk to keep quiet under penalty of death. They then made their escape.

150,000 for Smoking Cars in New York.

ACCORDING to an estimate made by an official of the United Cigar Stores, smokers to the number of more than 150,000 have signed the petitions for special smoking cars to be operated on the surface and elevated lines in New York City.

Some of the downtown stores are still turning in from ten to twenty sheets a day, each sheet containing fifteen signatures.

This crusade for smoking cars is to offset the action of Dr. Pease's publicity campaign to abolish smoking on surface cars and at park band concerts.

President Alonso in New York.

AS stated in our last issue, Eustaquio Alonso, who recently purchased the controlling interest in the "Por Larranaga" factory in Havana, arrived in New York City for his first visit since making the new connection. Mr. Alonso is quartered at the Waldorf-Astoria and has been in daily consultation since his arrival with the most prominent distributors in New York, as well as their American representative, J. V. Flanigan.

He stated that it was his one ambition in life to make the "Por Larranaga" factory the leading producing factory of the City of Havana, and that the one aim of the factory would be to do this by the quality and merit of their goods alone.

Mr. Alonso is booked to sail for Europe in a few days, where "Por Larranagas" for years have probably as fine a reputation as any factory could desire.

B. F. Alexander's Fine Holiday Exhibit

THE capable American representative for Fernandez Y. Garcia, and the Sucesores de Juan Lopez, B. F. Alexander, is particularly elated over the superb showing of holiday samples, which he has withdrawn in the past few days from the Customs House in New York. Mr. Alexander says that in his opinion he can now exhibit a line of imported cigars for the holidays, which is one of the largest, most complete and interesting ever shown in this country.

Buyers who will have an opportunity of inspecting these goods for a day or two, previous to Mr. Alexander's departure for Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City, where these samples will also be shown.

Richard Davis, who is associated with Mr. Alexander in marketing these fine brands, left last Saturday with a duplicate line for the Pacific Coast. He will make all the principle points west of Chicago in this country, and cover Canada from Vancouver to Montreal.

George J. Whelan Returns

THE "Imperator" brought home George J. Whelan, president of the United Cigar Stores Company, when she arrived last Thursday night.

Mr. Whelan has been in Europe all summer, and was in a most cheerful mood when interviewed. He stated that the business of their company had shown increased sales of more than $250,000 for the month of July, 1913, as compared with same month of a year ago, and that the net gains for the first seven months of this fiscal year, up to July 31st, amounted to $2,100,000.

The stock of the United Cigar Stores Company has been quite active during the past two weeks, and is selling higher today than for some time past.

Judge Mayer has confirmed a composition with creditors of Carl Hirsch, manufacturer of smokers' pipes, at No. 50 East Seventieth Street, New York City, at 40 cents on the dollar cash. Liabilities were $118,403.

Park & Tilford Take on New Brand.

Announcement is made that Park & Tilford have assumed its old distributing agency for the long established "Flor de Tomas Gutierrez" smoking tobacco, which is manufactured in Havana.

This brand of tobacco has been for years one of the most popular grades used in South America and is also well-known in England and on the continent, but its merits have been practically unknown to the American consumer. The package is a very ornate one and the goods are made in four sizes, from two to sixteen ounces.

It is an assured fact that under the skillful merchandizing of Park & Tilford, the new brand will become a popular one ere long.

Fernando Rodriguez, general sales agent of the "Charles the Great" factory, is expected to reach New York about the middle of next week, after an extended stay of seven weeks in Tampa. His father, Salvador Rodriguez, founder of the "Charles the Great" factory, left yesterday for his home in Tampa, after a six weeks' visit North.

Gregorio Lopez's Change.

Gregorio Lopez Falco, who formerly conducted the Gregorio Lopez factory in Porto Rico, manufacturing a brand under that name, which was sold by the Antilles Tobacco Company of New York, has just assumed the management of the factory of the American West Indies Sales Company in Porto Rico.

Mr. Falco is rated one of the best posted growers and manufacturers of tobacco on the island, and in his new connection will have a broad scope for his ability, it being freely conceded that no prettier cigars ever came out of the islands than those formerly shipped up here under the Gregorio Lopez brand.

The vacancy in the sales force of the American West Indies Sales Company caused by the recent withdrawal of Henry Kaften has been filled by J. B. Annis, who has already started over the Southern territory with his company's new samples.

D. A. Shaw on a Vacation.

D. A. Shaw, who is the district superintendent of the great shade-grown plantations of the American Sumatra Tobacco Company at Amsterdam, Ga., arrived in New York last week for a vacation after the harvesting of their superb crop had been fully accomplished. Mr. Shaw is a large stockholder in his company and has the distinction of being the first man in America to set out a crop of tobacco to be raised under shade.

Although he has made his home in Amsterdam for some years, he keeps thoroughly posted on all the conditions of the trade and is a careful reader of the live trade journals.

The Norfolk Cigarmakers' Union No. 240 has elected the following officers: L. V. Curtis, president; M. T. LeDoyne, vice-president; C. T. Camoles, recording secretary; G. W. Keefe, financial secretary, and George Bear, treasurer.

P. J. Hanlon Resigns.

P. J. Hanlon, vice-president of the American Tobacco Company, upon his return to Louisville from New York, has announced his resignation from that position. Mr. Hanlon has had charge of the company's interests in Louisville for several years and his resignation has come as a great surprise to his many friends. It is said that Mr. Hanlon will take up his residence in Louisville.

Condax Have Not Sold Out.

For months past rumors have been circulated throughout the trade that the cigarette factory of E. A. Condax & Co., 305 Pearl Street, New York, had been sold to various interests, and these rumors have become so persistent that the firm have just issued a circular letter to the trade denying the statement in toto, and that on the contrary every detail of the management and selling of the well-known Condax brands is exclusively in the hands of the Condax Bros., and will so remain.

The firm state that their business is constantly enlarging in its scope and that their original straw tip cigarettes, as well as their very mild brands, have shown a very enormous increase in sales.

Is it necessary?
Is it fair and just?
Is it class legislation?
Why was it suggested?

"Cigars so manufactured may be withdrawn for home consumption upon payment of the duties under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe."

What will the Secretary of the Treasury prescribe?

Moist dock weights for the seed and Havana manufacturer and moisture evaporated weights, also minus waste for the manufacturer in bond?

Did the originators enjoy benefits of which they are now deprived, and if so, is it possible to persuade the Secretary of the Treasury to prescribe substitute advantages.

If the bill passes as it is, will it with slight change lead to the manufacture of other products in bond?

How about Turkish cigarettes?

The provision that cigars manufactured in bond shall be composed of tobacco, all the product of one country means Havana cigars. It is proposed that the Government shall supply stamps to be affixed to each box, specifying the cigars are made entirely of Havana tobacco. It is claimed that this stamp is for the protection of the public who wish only clear Havana cigars.

In our opinion this is simply a subterfuge to secure the United States Government as a special advertising agent for the benefit of the manufacturer of cigars in bond, because the consumer can be amply protected by proper branding of all cigars under enforced laws.

Why should the Government specifically and preferencially advertise one class of its citizens' product and not another, especially when each is manufacturing articles of the same shapes, sizes and name "Cigars"?

Will not 99 per cent. of the cigar smokers select a cigar from a box bearing such special stamp simply to boast that he is smoking a clear Havana cigar?

Will that lessen the sale of all other cigars to the detriment of all others interested?

Will not such methods and such a stamp lead to the manufacturing in bond of low-grade, inferior Havana tobacco in further competition with the cheap domestic seed cigars?

Will the stamp help to sell any quality of Havana tobacco made into cigars?

Cannot the American clear Havana cigar manufacturers, who have, after long years of hard work and at great expense, established brands and built up a reputation for producing a high class, good quality cigar, understand they are allowing a law to pass which will place any quality of Havana cigar in competition with their product and make it harder for them to persuade the public there is a great difference between the quality of Havana cigars.

This is demonstrated by the fact that at one time that certain manufacturers of clear Havana cigars in a certain section, suggested that an association of clear Havana cigar manufacturers be formed, that one dollar per thousand be paid into the treasury to be used for advertising purposes. One gentleman, who knew existing coditions, said it may be a good thing to do, but first produce a clear Havana cigar of proper quality, which will be acceptable after you advertise it. Is this significant?

Think of the present high cost of desirable material, also expenses and small margin of profit. Then think of the additional cost of a government officer constantly in your factory, of providing facilities to store tobacco, of extra clerical force., etc.

Will all the clear Havana manufacturers be forced to manufacture in bond to secure an equal advantage of the special stamp and meet the competition of the few largest manufacturers who can afford the additional expense?

The bill is before the Senate.
Are these things worthy of your consideration?
Should this act be eliminated from the proposed tariff bill?
Are you ready to fight it?
Shall a public meeting of all interested be called at once?
When? Where? How? Who by?

An immediate reply and expression is earnestly requested, addressed to United States Bonded Tobacco Storage Warehousemen, P. O. Box 759, New York City.

Golf Cracks Are Inveterate Smokers

Walter Travis, Alec. Smith, Gill Nicholls, Harold Hilton, and Many Others Use Up Much Tobacco While On Links

TOM SHERMAN, son of Vice-President Sherman, one of the crack golfers of New York, recently stated that while he was an inveterate smoker and smoked continually on the links, he believed that smoking while playing was in a way prejudicial to good golf.

Here is what he has to say about it: "I regard smoking during play as decidedly harmful to a man's form and a bad practice. It is much the same as it is in pool or billiards—you know a good pool or billiard player will never smoke during play. Putting is a pretty exact operation, fully as hard as pool shot, and a little smoke in a man's eye will cost him a stroke and the hole in a very short time.

"Why do I smoke myself? Simply because I am in the habit of doing so, and would feel at a loss without a cigar while I am playing. You notice I never smoke a cigarette on the course—that would allow the smoke to get into my eyes. I always smoke a cigar and keep it in the corner of my mouth—never have any trouble with it and would not know what to do without it.

"A pipe? Too big and unwieldly—you couldn't see the ball. Besides, a pipe is too hard to keep lighted while playing. For myself, I guess I am too addicted to my cigar to stop. If you are asking for advice, I will repeat that I consider smoking decidedly harmful during play, and believe that no one should try to do gold and tobacco at the same time."

It may seem a rather curious thing, but if you were to run down the list of the great professional golfers you would find that the great majority of them were addicted to the weed. And of those who smoke, ninety per cent. of them, smoke cigarettes by preference. Possibly two of the greatest devotees of the cigarette are Alec Smith, several times open professional of this country, and Gill Nicholls, who, while he has never won a national title, is ranked among the three or four best professional players in this country.

If you were to follow an 18-hole round in which these two were engaged you would be surprised to find the number of cigarettes each man would consume. Alec will start out with more packs of cigarettes than golf balls.

And when he sinks the last putt in the eighteenth hole you will find that he hasn't a cigarette left and has not lost a single ball. He once remarked in a rather jocular sort of way while he was walking up a hill: "Cigarettes are certainly hard on us golf players." With Smith and other professionals who prefer the cigarette to the cigar, there is no smoking done when the shot is being made. It is either dropped on the grass or thrown away.

Scores of well-known amateurs might be named who smoke while they are on the course. The most prominent are Harold Hilton, the English crack, and Albert Seckel, the former Western amateur champion, representing the cigarette smokers, and Walter J. Travis, the cigar smoking golfer. Here are three men, two of whom have an international reputation and who have been both the American and British amateur champions, and all three of them are incessant smokers.

Of the three, Travis is the only one who plays every shot while he is smoking. From the time he leaves the first tee until the friendly nineteenth is reached the cigar or its companion is always between his lips. Smoking certainly has not interfered with his playing, particularly with his putting, for there is not a better exponent on the putting green than Travis.

While there are thousands of golfers who smoke better than they play, the number of really first-class players in both the amateur and professional ranks is so large as largely to refute Sherman's statement. The majority probably smoke more on the links than in the office because it is so much easier to smoke in the open and because smoking acts as a sedative and a nerve-soother.

The strain of a hard-fought match does not seem so great to the smoking golfer if he has a cigar between his teeth. Excessive smoking, like other things of a like nature, is bad, but, after all, smoking is a matter for the individual. Jones may smoke cigar after cigar, Smith may get rid of two score of cigarettes, while Brown may not smoke at all, and all may play the finest kind of golf, and all may defend his particular theory about the good or hurt done by the weed.

W. H. Barnhardt is the owner of the cigar store recently opened in the space occupied by the Shultz department store, Sebring, O.

Having recently purchased the store and half dwelling located 15 Fairview Street, Glen Falls, N. Y., John H. Daley, a local cigar manufacturer, will manufacture cigars in the building in the rear of the property on Third Street.

The H. H. Sheip Manufacturing Co. advise us that their big plant at Sixth Street and Columbia Avenue, Philadelphia, has been running full tilt for some time, getting out an unprecedented volume of orders on cigar boxes and specialties for which the house is famous.

The company have recently finished material alterations to the interior of their factory, which will give them increased facilities.

The Duys Record.

SOME idea of the immensity of the business of H. Duys & Co., Sumatra tobacco importers, can be gleaned from a study of their page advertisement in this issue, wherein they show purchases at the spring inscription of over 7,100 bales of Java and Sumatra tobacco of the finest quality.

These lots were purchased under the careful eyes of Messrs. John H. and Henry M. Duys, during their visits to the inscriptions, and we are informed by the firm that a large majority of the lots have already gone into American cigar factories.

The house of Duys are absolute leaders in the Sumatra importation industry and their handling of orders and the quality of the goods which they furnish their customers is the one reason why their importations are growing to such an extent each year. Philadelphia and its contiguous territory is one of the most desirable sections, which embraces many customers for this firm.

The trade will watch with much interest the movements of this energetic house when the fall inscription is opened.

CLUBDOM SMOKING No. 1

THE LAMBS' CLUB
130-132-134 West 44th Street
New York City

(This article inaugurates a series of sketches of the leading social clubs of the United States, paying particular attention to the cigar departments, purchasing agents and the favorite brands of each club.)

TUCKED away on West Forty-fourth Street, between Sixth Avenue and Broadway, is the home of what is probably the most widely known club in the United States, if not in the world—The Fold of the Lambs.

This organization, the membership of which comprises the leading authors, dramatists, artists, sculptors and journalists of America, is the direct outgrowth of Sunday night gatherings which were held many years ago at the house of the English essayists, Charles and Mary Lamb, at their home in London. From these meetings an organization was formed in London, and eventually perpetuated in America, beginning in 1874.

The first home of the club in New York was in Old Delmonico's; in 1880 the Lambs, located at 34 West Twenty-sixth Street; from there the club removed in 1892 after twelve years stay, and in 1897 they moved to their own house, No. 70 West Thirty-sixth Street, and eight years ago today they occupied the present beautiful house on West Forty-fourth Street, which was designed by the late Stanford White, one of America's most talented and famous architects and himself a Lamb.

The club house is eight stories high, and one of its most unique features is a perfectly equipped little theatre on the third and fourth floors capable of seating an audience of 600 people. In this theatre are given at intervals during the winter the Gambols, or private dramatic performances, for which the club is famous. The leading actors of the country appear at the Gambols for the amusement of their fellow-members in any part assigned them, wholly ignoring the fact of whether their names appear along Broadway in electric lights or otherwise.

The present presiding officer of the Lambs, known as the Shepherd, is Joseph R. Grismer, known for years as a leading theatrical manager, actor and producer, and famed for generations as the owner of the perennial play "Way Down East." Other famous shepherds of the club include Augustus Thomas, the playwright and brilliant wit; Clay M. Greene, author and playwright; DeWolf Hopper, the elongated and beloved comic opera star; Wilton Lackaye, actor, philosopher and rapier tongued reformer; E. M. Holland and others.

The club roster contains the names of Booth Tarkington, George Ade, Henry Blossom, George Randolph Chester in the field of literature; George V. Hobart, Harry B. Smith, George Broadhurst, Edwin Milton Royle, Augustus Thomas, Charles Klein, Bayard Veiller, playwrights; Victor Herbert, Goritz, Reiss, Henry Muyer, R. F. Outcalt, E. W. Kemble and scores of other celebrities.

As might be expected, the tastes of these various members as far as cigars are concerned, is very catholic, and the club maintains a finely equipped cigar department. The selection and the purchase of the brands is directly in the hands of John E. Chatfield, a veteran hotel and club manager, and the department itself is presided over by Louis Edelman.

Very few cheap smokes are sold in the club, the preference running to the more costly brands of clear Havana make, and the finer grades of domestic manufacture. In the imported goods, "Romeo y Julieta" (H. Upmann & Co.), "Partagas" and "Hoyos" have the call. In clear Havana goods of Tampa make, "Lozanos" are sold in a number of sizes up to the most expensive, and these goods are particular favorites.

"Flor del Mundo" (Bustillo Bros. & Diaz), "Charles the Great" (Salvador Rodriguez), are also well liked, and the other brands which have a call include "El Sidelo," "Optimos," "First Consuls," "Rosa del Rancho," in 15-cent goods, and "Marshalka," a popular 10-cent brand.

Many Lambs have for years been smokers of Cayey Caguas Co.'s "Savaronas," and the sale of these in the club is strongly maintained.

The showing in cigarettes is wonderfully varied, and sales on all grades are very heavy. The club has its own brands manufactured by Poulides Bros., and these move rapidly, Philip Morris & Co., "Pall Mall," "Tabard," "Fifty Six" and "Rameses" are especially favored in the 20-cent and upwards class, while Melachrino "No. 9" and "Murads" have the call in 15-cent grades.

Very few of the members use the cheaper blended cigarettes of Virginia and Turkish tobacco.

Singular to state, the smoking tobacco end of the club's business amounts to nil. Possibly a jar or two of some pet brand of a member is all that is on display.

The members of the club are particularly loyal to their chosen brands, and the theatrical members especially have in many instances done yeomen service in advertising brands throughout the United States, of which work the manufacturers were wholly ignorant. The shepherd of the club, Mr. Grismer, is particularly partial to "Flor del Mundos" (Bustillo Bros. & Diaz), and always has a kind word for the brand; Digby Bell believes that the equal of the "Van Dyck" cigar, as far as his taste is concerned, is not made in Cuba or America. Louis Massen is a "Savarona" smoker through and through, and can give you direct and authentic information about the goods from the plantation to finished product.

PHILADELPHIA.

Charles J. Castillo in Town

AMONG the prominent visitors in the city during the past week, was Charles J. Castillo, the vice-president and sales manager of the San Martin & Leon Company, of Tampa.

Mr. Castillo says that he has had a remarkably encouraging trip thus far, finding a largely increased demand for their "El Briche," "Flor de San Martin & Leon" and "Hoyo de Cuba" brands, at Richmond, Washington and Baltimore, where he has just been.

The recently occupied factory of the company in West Tampa is running to its fullest capacity today. Mr. Castillo's business has grown to such an extent east of the Rocky Mountains, that the company has recently engaged W. W. Cowan, as Pacific Coast representative, and he will in future cover the territory from Denver to the Pacific Coast.

The "El Rocco" brand, made by H. F. Fiddler & Co., of Womelsdorf, is being exploited in Philadelphia markets with quite some success. Mr. Fiddler is calling on the trade personally.

B. Labe & Sons Will Continue

It is the belief of Sidney Labe, of the firm of Benjamin Labe & Sons, a Philadelphia leaf house which has suspended payment, that with time the house will be able to pay its obligations dollar for dollar. Mr. Labe said to a representative of the WORLD that statements of their liabilities had been in many cases overestimated. Julius C. Levi, counsel for the firm, placed their indebtedness at upwards of $200,000. It is possible that they may approximate $400,000.

The outlook, however, for the firm is apparently good. It is said that their assets are substantial, and that the firm's past reputation is an aid to the negotiations with creditors.

The obligations are said to be confined to banks, and that their indebtedness to mercantile houses is comparatively small. It is stated that there are none among the trade.

George E. Shaw, ex-president of the Western National Bank, and president of the Assets Realization Company, has been appointed temporary trustee.

Henry Weinmann, representing Weinmann Brothers, bankers and brokers handling some of the firm's paper, stated to a representative of the WORLD that he believed that if the house was given a little time it would pull through without loss. It is understood that several of the city banks have agreed to give them an opportunity.

At the firm's office, at 228 North Third Street, it was stated that the business will be continued.

"El Basco" Has New Home

The El Basco Cigar Company, formerly located at 137 Market Street, are now occupying new and more commodious quarters at 122 Market Street, where a retail stand has been opened on the first floor, the workmen occupying the second floor.

Special attention will be given the "El Basco" clear Havana cigars, which will sell to the consumer for 10 cents, though the opera size, which sells for 5 cents straight, will not be neglected.

A good force of cigarmakers are already employed, and will be increased as conditions warrant. Every effort has been made for the comfort and convenience of this branch of the business, and as heretofore will be under the direct supervision of Harry K. Straus, the proprietor.

Selling "44" Cigars

With the aid of the Baltimore distributor, W. M. Charles, under the direction of the Southern representative of the "Forty-four" Cigar Company, is having exceptional success during his invasion of Maryland territory.

Tillman Funk, who is swinging around the Tennessee circuit again, has opened a number of accounts for the "44" cigar with distributors.

M. Zander, Southwestern representative, has been paying his respects at the factory, after an extensive trip over his "camping grounds." He will return in a few days, and with his son, G. W. Zander, will continue his missionary work.

F. B. Stanton, assistant advertising manager, is continuing his work with the advertising car in Northern New Jersey.

Mr. Campbell, representing the Dahl Milligan Grocery Company, of Washington Courthouse, O., has been among the recent visitors at the factory at Eleventh and Wharton Streets.

George Becker left Philadelphia recently on a Western trip, in the interest of Arguelles, Lopez & Co.

Henry Kraus, of Kraus & Co., Baltimore, Md., was in Philadelphia recently. His order book showed that the trip had been a successful one.

Phil Verplanck, of P. Verplanck & Co., of Tampa and New York, called on the local trade and closed some attractive business on the firm's "El Genio" brand.

"Reynaldo" Distributors, Attention!

APPRECIATIVE smokers will be delighted with the "Library Edition" of "Reynaldo" cigars put out by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb. They are issued in handsome hand-painted humidors containing fifty cigars, and cannot fail to appeal to the taste of those who seek the best in every particular.

These humidors are made in four colors: green, blue, brown and red, and will tastefully fit in with the interior decorations of the home library or office.

The Cover for the "Library Edition"

The humidor is claimed to be the most thoroughly practical cigar jar that scientific principles can evolve. The gasket around the neck of the jar will insure proper conditions being maintained within the jar, as long as the top is in place. The sponge within the top is for usage only in case the top be left off and the cigars become dry. Every smoker knows that quality grades of hand-made cigars will retain their sponginess for a long period if they are carefully confined in a container. The sponge should not be moistened as long as the cigars are in good condition, and when used moistened only slightly.

The "Library Edition" of "Reynaldos" is sure to be a big winner, and should prove a wonderful seller for the holiday trade. It goes on the market September 1.

Andreas Diaz & Co., Tampa and New York, was represented in the local market last week by Jose M. Cuyar.

John W. King, of Cuesta, Rey & Co., was a Philadelphia visitor recently, following his usual custom of securing business for the clear Havana cigars manufactured by this firm.

Philadelphia Notes

W. E. Gumpert, the Southern representative of the Juan F. Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Co., has started for a trip over his entire territory. His business will keep him away until early in December.

C. C. Patrick, representative of Jacob Langsdorf's Sons, of 551 North Fifth Street, for Virginia and North Carolina, visited the factory the other day.

The new plant of Bobrow Brothers at 125 South Second Street will be in operation September 2nd. With the opening of this factory Bobrow Brothers will gradually increase their corps of employees with 500 additional hands.

W. L. Klauser, Eastern representative for Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, paid a visit to the home office the other day.

George M. Pruitt, South Jersey representative of Bayuk Bros. Co., and E. C. McAllister, who covers the North Jersey trade, are both establishing enviable records with their sales of "Havana Ribbons."

E. A. Geipel, who looks after the Wilmington and Chester trade for Bayuk Bros. Co., is the dark horse of the local force. "E" he has a habit of turning in a pile of orders at the end of the month that usually lands him at the head of the list.

Frank J. Guiffra, a jobber of Millville, N. J., visited Bobrow Brothers headquarters, and reported that the "Bold" was going big through South Jersey territory.

I. J. Mittelberger, of Cleveland, O., representative of Neuman & Mayer Co. in Ohio and Indiana, is in town visiting the factory for a few days.

Nathan Baum, of the Baum-Jaffe Co., has recently returned from a vacation spent in the New England States. A portion of the trip was made by automobile.

L. M. Walters and Henry Reisenberg, of Bobrow Brothers, will start on September 1st on a trip through their respective territories. Mr. Walters covers the Eastern States, while Mr. Reisenberg makes the territory west of Ohio to the Coast.

O. M. Bosworth, of Cleveland, O., with the H. Fendrick Company, of Evansville, Ind., has been spending a few days in this city visiting friends in the trade.

Chas. W. Saunders, of the Cortez Company, received a welcome and good business on his recent visit to the Quaker City.

Ostrow's city cigar store, at 702 Chestnut Street, has been making a big drive during the past week on Regensburg's "American" cigars. The window contains an attractive display of "Americans" in all sizes, and two alluring "Get the Expression" posters add to the general effectiveness of this example of tempting window arrangements.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, August 25, 1913.

DURING the past sixteen days the trade in leaf tobacco has certainly broadened out, not alone in quantity, but also in the variety of styles. If we should classify tobacco into three principal groups, or so-called factory vegas as the first one; we should then have as the second one heavy quality goods for mixing purposes of the seed and Havana industry, and finally the low grades and tail ends, which are used by the cigarette manufacturers. As a rule at this season of the year only the first and the last group deserve to be talked about, as the principal demand for the second group takes place in the late fall or winter months, when the buyers from the United States are in the habit of flocking down here. The obvious reason for this consists in two facts, the first being that the escogidas commence later in the country and do not complete their labors until the end or October or November, and the second being that this class of leaf requires more time in the bales to cure thoroughly, as well as dry off. As long as the United States exact duty on the import weight, and not when re-weighed, at the time of leaving the bonded warehouse, it is of great monetary interest not to ship leaf with too much moisture in it.

Besides the great activity displayed by the clear Havana cigar manufacturers in stocking up to their full capacity, owing to the exceptionally fine Vuelta Abajo leaf, we have also seen an urgent demand of the cigarette factories of Cuba; and now, to crown the climax, some of our American houses established here commenced to buy the heavy styles of Remedios and Vuelta Abajo leaf in our local market, as their own escogidas would not yield the required quantity for their customers. Some of the large Northern dealers have also not hesitated, after they had seen the types of goods at our warehouses, and having convinced themselves that our crop is far shorter than it was estimated to be at the beginning, to step into our market and purchase what was ready and contracting for future delivery the balance of their commitments.

From all the above it can be seen that ourt market has been very active, and naturally, prices not alone stiffened perceptibly, but they have also advanced sharply for some grades, and the general tendency is upwards for all classes. No buyer that has come here has returned empty hnded; on the contrary, some that came in July have come back here already to increase their holdings. Prices are high to be sure, but the vegueros this year got the benefit of them, and to which they ought to be entitled after so many bad years.

Remedios tobacco is now considered to be fully 100,000 bales below last year's crop. On August 15, 1912, we had received already from the country 128,242 bales, while this year, on August 14th, we had only received 56,491 bales, or considerably less than half the quantity. Such figures ought to convince even the unbeliever.

Recent Leaf Sales.

Sales during the past fortnight summed up to 24,994 bales, or separately consisting of: Vuelta Abajo, 14,009; Partido, 5,004, and Remedios, 5,981 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 13,725; exporters to Europe, 3,179; shippers to South America, 516, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 7,574 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana for the two weeks ending August 16th, were: To all ports of the United States, 6,216; to all ports of Europe, 1,629; to Oran, 50; to South America, 556 bales; thus making the total exports 8,451 bales.

With the Cigar actories.

Business in all of our cigar factories can be termed as good, and even the smaller factories appear to be getting their share and are filling up their cigarmakers' galleries to their capacity. While there are holiday orders from the United States, the calls for immediate shipment might be better however, and which we must ascribe to the awfully long-winded debate in the United States Senate about the tariff changes, as well as to the possibility of eventual trouble with Mexico, which for the time being must influence business in general. England, Germany, Australia, the South American Republics and Canada are on the other hand increasing their orders right straight along, and barring any unforeseen events we ought to have an extra good fall and winter trade for our cigar industry.

"Romeo y Julieta" is already making use of the new building, as far as seating more cigarmakers is concerned, even if the structure is not entirely completed in all its interior details. The above fact, however, proves conclusively the wisdom of Don Pepin Rodriguez and Don Ramon Argüelles in having bought the contiguous building.

"Partagas" is doing well, executing orders as quickly as possible, which are arriving in good shape from all the principal countries of the world.

H. Upmann & Co. are working under full steam now in their celebrated H. Upmann factory, as they have no lack of orders on hand, and new ones are coming in by cable, or letter, almost daily.

The Henry Clay and Bock & Co., Ltd., is likewise crowded with orders for their principal factories, and ahead of last year.

Castañeda has no reason to complain, as its business is expanding in all directions, and in comparison with last year the owners have done 20 per cent. more business.

Don Eustaquio Alonso, the president of the Por Larrañaga factory, left here on the sixteenth inst. for New York, as he had intended to do, and he had a goood sendoff on the pier, by the number of friends that he left behind. In the short space of time since the change in the management took place this factory has increased its output fully 50 per cent., which surely is not friendship alone, but rather due to merit of the new cigars.

Sol is working with full forces at present on a large order list for prompt shipment, as well as for holiday goods for later delivery. Its brand, "La Devesa de Murias," has doubled its output, since Behrens & Co. have taken hold of it.

"Flor del Fumar," of Felipe Rodriguez & Co., maintains its supremacy, as regards the volume of orders for high-priced regalia sizes, in proportion to the size of the factory.

B. F. Alexander, the missionary agent of Fernadez & Garcia, makers of "La Flor de A. Fernandez Garcia," seems to be giving a good account of himself, according to Don Ramon Fernandez (Chocolate).

Other factories that are working well are Hoyo de Monterey, La Flor de José Otero, Punch, Belinda, C. E. Beck & Co. and Allones, Ltd.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Maximilian Stern was the biggest buyer in our market during the past fortnight, with 4,050 bales of leaf.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez were the biggest sellers during the same period, with 3,300 bales of all kinds of leaf.

Mortimer Regensburg invested in 3,500 bales of leaf for his two factories in New York and Tampa, principally Vuelta Abajo, from the finest districts.

Selgas & Co. disposed of 1,115 bales of tobacco during the last two weeks.

Sol Hamburger, according to a good authority, purchased 3,500 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios, part of which are however to come in from the country still.

Cardenas & Co. sold 1,000 bales of Vuelta Abajo, and from their fine Artemisa packing, to their customers during the past fortnight.

H. Upmann & Co. added 2,000 bales of leaf to their previous purchases, part for their factory and part for export.

José Menendez turned over 916 bales of leaf from his holdings.

Fred Davis added 1,400 bales to his previous purchases, before leaving our town.

F. Rocha & Co. were sellers of 710 bales of all kinds of leaf to their customers.

J. Bernheim & Son are reported to have purchased 1,500 bales of Remedios.

M. A. Suarez & Co. sold 664 bales of Vuelta Abajo, from their fine escogidas and vegas.

Cifuentes Fernandez & Co. secured 800 bales of leaf for their cigarette factory.

José C. Puente & Co. delivered 582 bales of Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios from their choice holdings to their customers.

J. F. Berndes & Co. bought 786 bales of leaf during the past fortnight.

Herrera, Calmet & Co. closed transactions of 500 bales of Remedios.

August Kuttnauer had purchased 500 bales of very fine vegas from the Vuelta Abajo for his firm, Rothschild Sons & Co., of Chicago.

Gutierrez & Diehl were sellers of 323 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios during the last two weeks.

The new firm of Schwab Bros. & Baer secured through their representatives, August Baer and José Fernandez, and with the assistance of Don Leslie Pantin, 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo, from selected vegas of the lowlands. They are thus enabled to start out well, and in presenting the cigars from such fine raw material, they ought to be successful.

H. H. Strater disposed of 300 bales of his fine Manicaragua escogida.

Adolfo Moeller purchased 393 bales of leaf for export to Germany.

I. Kaffenburgh & Sons sold 175 bales of Vuelta Abajo to his previous purchases, before leaving for his home.

Nuñez & Co. were sellers of 112 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios to local buyers.

H. G. Chisholm, of the Capitalistic Company, of Chicago, was a buyer of 225 bales of Vuelta Abajo, all fine vegas from the best districts, and secured through the assistance of Walter Sutter & Co.

Shippers above 200 bales of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana, during the last two weeks were: J. F. Berndes & Co., 786; Leslie Pantin, 602; H. Upmann & Co., 527; Maximilian Stern, 483; Diego Montero, 405; Ernst Ellinger & Co., 383; Adolfo Moeller, 362; Bridat & Co., 341; Garcia & Co., 284; M. Abella & Co., 273; Mark A. Pollack, 240, and Manuel Suarez, 201 bales.

Don Pablo L. Perez has joined the ranks of our commission merchants since the fifteenth of August, having opened his office and warehouse at 102 Dragones Street. He is soliciting a share of the patronage of American leaf buyers, and is known by a good many of them, but for the benefit of those that might contemplate coming here, and do not know him, we beg to state the following facts:

Starting in 1883, as a boy, with his late uncle, Don Gregorio Palacios, he later worked for Don Luis Marx, and in order to become conversant with cigar factories he went to the El Rey del Mundo here, and La Matilda in Tampa. He was also employed by the Havana Commercial Company upon their farms in the Vuelta Abajo, for two years. In 1905 he was the senior partner of the firm of Perez & Obeso, and from which he retired this year. He is an educated gentleman, speaking English fluently, a thorough judge of our leaf, well posted in our market as well as in the country, and can furnish any first-class reference required.

Don José Lovera has made some excellent purchases of prime vegas from the Vuelta Abajo, but is still here looking for more similar goods.

ORETANIV.

Among those who are enjoying the cool breezes of the Adirondack Mountains, is Benjamin Lipschutz, of the "Forty-four" Cigar Company. Mr. Lipschutz's vacation will continue into September.

Thomas W. Smith, Jr., foreign representative of the American Tobacco Company, with Mrs. Smith, has sailed from Sweden for a visit of several weeks to his parents in Concord, N. C., and Mrs. Smith's relatives in Kentucky.

REYNOLDS CO. NAME CIGARETTES

"Reyno" and "Osman," the New Ones in the Field, 5 and 15-Cent Packages

IN March of this year "The Tobacco World" exclusively announced that the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, of Winston-Salem, would embark in the manufacture of cigarettes.

At that time the firm was busily fitting up the old Lipfert Scales Factory on Church Street with modern machinery and preparing for a campaign which would be perfect in every detail when they commenced operations.

The first snag which the company encountered was due to the delay in receiving their shipments of Turkish tobacco owing to the Balkan troubles. Then came delay in obtaining the big lots of imported rice paper. Now, however, every detail is complete and they have announced that within a few days they will offer to the trade their two brands, "Reyno" and "Osman." The "Osmans" will be splendidly blended Turkish and domestic cigarettes, sold in packages of twenty for 15 cents, and from the outset these goods will undoubtedly prove a formidable competitor for this class of trade. The Virginia cigarettes, ten for 5 cents, have been appropriately named "Reyno," taking their appellation from the five letters of the company's name. It is needless to say that the blending of Virginia and North Carolina tobacco in these goods has been done with infinite skill, and that they will stand up under the severest test.

New Factory for San Antonio, Fla.

Work is shortly to be started in San Antonio, Fla., on a modern cigar factory, which is being erected for Thomas Forster. Mr. Forster comes from Glencoe, Minn., and bought a plot on North Curley Street last year, with a view to manufacturing cigars in this place.

Results of Tobacco Breeding in Conneticut

a. Sumatra, New Haven, 1912.

b. Havana type plant

c. F2 Cross between Sumatra and Havana New Haven, 1912

THE above photographs represent results showing the effects of tobacco inbreeding, as obtained by the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station at New Haven, Conn. Cut a shows Sumatra which averaged 26.2 leaves per plant; cut b is the Havana type, which is averaging about 20 leaves per plant; cut c shows the results obtained from inbreeding, and in this case the type is a cross between Sumatra and Havana. It cannot be distinguished from the pure Sumatra. This averaged 24.4 leaves per plant. Other types of this family, F_2, had Sumatra leaf characters and Havana leaf numbers; others resembled Havana in all features; still others had the leaf size and growth habit of Havana, combined with the leaf numbers of the Sumatra. The cuts are the courtesy of the gentlemen of the Agricultural Experiment Station at New Haven.

Montana Cigar Industry Grows

ACCORDING to the recent report of the Commissioner of Labor and Industry, of Montana, the annual output of the cigar factories of the State totalled 6,593,150 smokes, or sixteen and a fraction cigars for every man, woman and child within the boundaries.

There are sixty-seven factories in the State, the largest of which employs twelve men, exclusive of the proprietors. This factory is located at Livingston, and is owned by Charles Garnier & Son. Their daily output is 2,000 cigars. The Commissioner estimates that there are as many employers working on the bench as there are employes.

Nunn-Buse Company Incorporate

ON the fifteenth of last month the Secretary of the State of Missouri issued a charter to the "Nunn-Buse Leaf Tobacco Company" at St. Louis, who embarked in the tobacco jobbing business in that city on February 1st, last. The new corporation has an authorized capital of $100,000, and in a press interview F. H. Buse, of the firm, stated that the incorporation had been effected, so that A. C. Lauter, W. A. Krefft and J. L. Dulauf, should become direct partners and stockholders in the enterprise. They now occupy a big warehouse at 114-20 Chestnut Street, and plan to largely expand their business in every direction forthwith.

Antonio Martinez Expanding

ANTONIO MARTINEZ, whose main factory is on Bay Street, Jacksonville, Fla., has just leased the store floor in the Board of Trade Building, at Main and Adams Streets, in that city, and will give the public an opportunity of seeing high-grade cigars made in the open. He starts off with nine cigarmakers, whose tables are located in full view of the passing throng, and who will turn out "Flor de Antonio Martinez."

In connection with this venture, Mr. Martinez has planned to operate a locker system, whereby customers can purchase their box of cigars and leave them at the store to be drawn upon as desired. Mr. Martinez will erect a fine humidor in the new location.

Hong Kong Tobacco Importers

Through the courtesy of the American Consul-General, George E. Anderson, of Hong Kong, China, we are able to furnish our readers with a list of tobacco importers of Hong Kong.

They are: Ruttonjee & Co., The Nam Yang Tobacco Co., Mowfung & Co., Sincere & Co., and the Holland-China Trading Co.

Those who have read the article, "China as a Market for American Tobacco," which appeared in the August 15th issue of "The Tobacco World," will no doubt be interested in this list of Hong Kong houses. The packers of the American trade will no doubt find this list a very useful one.

JOBBERS & DISTRIBUTORS DEPARTMENT

Hemenway & Moser in Six States

STARTING in the tobacco and cigar business twelve years ago in Salt Lake City, Oscar Hemenway and U. G. Moser, now incorporated as Hemenway & Moser, have stores in six States in the Union and rank among the five largest jobbing houses in the United States. They cover Utah, Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and Nevada.

Attracted by the development of the Northwest, they have continually expanded, and now besides their wholesale business have opened a number of chain retail stores in many of the large cities of the territory in which they are now operating.

The location of their wholesale house in Butte, will be that formerly occupied by the J. E. Oppenheimer Company at the corner of Galena and Dakota Streets.

New Boston Jobber Handles "Coiner"

H. L. Rogers has just opened in Boston at No. 12 West Street, where he will conduct a general cigar jobbing business. Mr. Rogers was formerly New England representative for "Havana Ribbons." In his new capacity he will specialize on the Baum-Jaffe Company's "Coiner" brand in Boston, and has already placed some substantial orders on these goods.

"Class" Going Big in Western Territory

The Stone-Ordean-Wells Company, of Duluth, advise that they are having a wonderful run on the "Class" brand, made by Seidenberg & Co., of New York. The above house is distributing from the Upper Peninsula of Michigan to Idaho, and now have a standing order for 180,000 "Class" cigars a week.

They have been handling the goods only four months and consider their success with it little short of phenomenal. They say that it is an exceptional piece of nickel goods. It is made in three sizes, the perfecto, londres and panetella.

The Stone-Ordean-Wells Company have eight branch houses, and are confident that by the end of the year their sales on "Class" will average between 1,500,000 and 2,000,000 cigars a month.

Chain Stores in Atlanta

The Tumlin Bros. Co., recently incorporated, of Atlanta, Ga., now has stores at the corner of Broad and Walton Streets, and in Elkin's Drug Store at the corner of Marietta and Peachtree Streets. It has secured leases for stores in the new Hurt Building and in the Healey Building. With this chain of stores they will have one of the largest businesses of its kind in the South.

Tobacco Demonstration at Picnic

RED LION, PA.

At the Farmers' Day celebration here on August 30th, a feature will be the tobacco demonstration at the federal government station. The demonstration will be in charge of Dr. W. W. Garner of the United States Department of Agriculture, of Washington, D. C., and Dr. Frear.

Notes of the Trade

The Old Dominion Tobacco Co., of Norfolk, has taken hold of the line of cigars of Jacob Langsdorf's Sons, of 551 North Fifth Street, this city, and are placing heavy orders for the well-known "Sir Henry Irving" brand.

F. H. Davis & Sons, and Lilly, Dungan & Co., Baltimore distributors for Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, report big demands for the popular "Reynaldos."

Bayuk Bros. Co.'s recent connection with Franklin MacVeagh & Co., on "Havana Ribbons" for Chicago, has proven a most excellent one, as is evidenced by the large semi-weekly shipments of the brand to the Windy City.

Frank D. Patton, Illinois representative, spent a short time at the factory last week and stated that while the brand was only introduced in Chicago late in July, the number of repeat orders received by Franklin MacVeagh & Co. were a source of pleasant surprise.

W. B. & W. G. Jordan, of Minneapolis, Minn., distributors for Bayuk Brothers, of Philadelphia, report a tremendous run on "Havana Ribbons." The factory has been oversold for a considerable period and shipments, for this reason, have been delayed. The Minneapolis house will no doubt jump its sales considerably as soon as it can get prompt deliveries.

Cuesta, Rey & Co., of Tampa, are getting a tremendous distribution throughout some of the Western States. The Charles Donovan Cigar Company, of Chicago, who are distributors for this house, report a strong sentiment in the city for the "Ponce de Leon" brand.

Down in Richmond the Straus Cigar Company is having a good run on the "El Wadora" brand, made by Sig Mayer & Co., of Philadelphia. "Webster" is another cigar that the distributors have been very busy with of late.

J. D. Acker, manager of the cigar department of the Twelfth and Chestnut Streets store of the Finley Acker Company, reports good business on the "56" cigarettes, manufactured by the Cado Company, Inc., 26 Park Place, New York City.

The north store room in the Princess Theatre Building, at Joliet, Ill., is to be occupied by one of the chain stores of the Oppenheimer Cigar Company.

Ben Straus, of Rey-Straus & Co., Tampa, has been in Philadelphia during the last few days and gathered in some good orders on their "Mi Rey" brand.

Factories All Busy—Demand for Better Freight Rates—Tampa Man Heads Pharmacy Association— Tampa Manufacturers Decorated by King Alfonso

TAMPA, August 23rd.

NOT a word of complaint is heard from any of the manufacturers here in town concerning the outlook for fall, and the only worriment that they seem to fear is a possible scarcity of cigarmakers. Such factories as the Regensburg, Esburg-Gunst, Cuesta-Rey, "Julia Marlowe," V. Guerra, Diaz & Co., have practically their seating capacity for cigarmakers filled at this time, and are looking forward to the need of additional hands shortly.

Manufacturers of the city are very much interested in the efforts being made by the Board of Trade to get some needed reforms in the freight rates from Tampa to other points. Mr. Bowyer, president of the Board of Trade, has been in touch with all the railroad and steamship lines out of Tampa, and he threatens that unless adjustments are made quickly, the board will take it up with the Interstate Commerce Commission. Cigar manufacturers, especially, would like to know why Mobile (to cite a specific instance) should enjoy a rate twenty cents lower per hundred pounds on goods shipped from New York to Mobile, via Tampa.

Ernest H. Berger, of the Tampa-Cuba Cigar Factory, was elected president of the National Association of Boards of Pharmacy, at the convention held in Nashville, Tenn., on the 21st ult.

Mr. Berger and Amelio Pons, of the same company, are now in Cincinnati in the interests of the Tampa-Cuba Company's goods.

The interest in the city's cigar baseball league continues unabated, and from all indication the Cuesta-Rey nine will easily win the pennant when the season closes on the twelfth of this month. Up to date they have won nine games and lost only one. Their nearest competitor is several games behind them.

The question of the enforcement of the anti-coupon law will be threshed out in the courts in a day or two, Judge R. M. Call, of Jacksonville, having issued a temporary injunction restraining the collectors from gathering this tax, pending a final decision. Eli Witt, of this city, and J. S. Pinkusohn Company, of Jacksonville, were two of the firms which joined in the petition for a temporary injunction. R. L. Tatum, of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, was also active in this work.

Factory manager Philips, of Corral Wodiska y Ca., reports that they have received within the last few days several hundred bales of splendid tobacco from Havana, and that the factory is jammed to capacity with orders.

The city of Tampa will entertain the Moving Picture Exhibitors Convention for the next two days. This party comprises nearly a hundred owners of moving picture houses throughout the state, and is a powerful organization in its line.

Frank R. Diaz, of V. Guerra, Diaz & Co., has returned from Cuba, where he bought some heavy lots of tobacco for "La Mega" use. Harry Cullbreath leaves today for his fall trip over his territory.

Harry Roberts, of J. W. Roberts & Son, is making a business trip to Chicago.

E. J. Stachelberg, vice-president of the Sanchez & Haya Factory, and one of the trade's most notable optimists, reports a splendidly increased business in all their sizes with a particularly interesting call on the "Reina Victorias."

Tampa will shortly have a body of Spanish Grandees, of which any city in America might be justly proud, if our manufacturers continue to receive decorations from the Spanish Government. In this connection word has just reached here that Angelo L. Cuesta, the brilliant head of the Cuesta-Rey Company, has been further signally honored by the Spanish Government on his present trip to Spain, in receiving the decoration of "Comendador." This is the second time that the Spanish King has honored Mr. Cuesta with an order of royalty for his notable work on behalf of his more humble fellow-countrymen in the United States, and especially in Tampa, and his friends were delighted at the action. In the same royal decree naming Mr. Cuesta, his partner, Peregrino Rey, Celestino Vega, of Celestino Vega & Co., and Mr. Joaquin Lopez, of Arguelles, Lopez & Bro., received the "Cross of Isabella Catholica," these being granted to them for the marked interest displayed in the Spanish residents of Tampa.

PERFECTO.

An early morning fire damaged the cigar store of George Graham at 316 South Fifteenth Street, Omaha, Neb., to the extent of $300 on August 14th.

Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, CAL., August 25th.

RETAIL trade in this city is commencing to shed the lethargy of summer, and the past few days have shown an interest and activity on the part of our dealers, which speaks well for fall business.

Many of our best stores are making special window displays on favorite brands, and this has led to some cracking big orders from the factories for immediate delivery.

The Hockstratton Company, Inc., who operate five of the best retail stores in this city, have decided to practically change their name by naming their stores "The House of Quality."

In December of 1912, W. A. Richards, who is the manager of these stores, consummated a deal which took over the entire interest of Ed G. Hookstrattton, and since that time the latter name has had no connection whatever with the firm. "The House of Quality" shops have been doing a splendid business on strictly standard lines.

The friends of Ed Sachs, who looks after Balbin Brothers' interests on the Western Coast, have received recently postcards from him from Paris and elsewhere. Mr. Sachs is expected to visit Los Angeles before October 1st.

Oscar Banghart, of T. J. Dunn Company, has just reached this city and landed some excellent orders on their "New Bachelor," which is one of the most popular 5-cent brands in this section.

There has been a good rush on the "Tamparette" cigar recently, owing to the special campaigning done by the Max Roth Cigar Company, who are the local and Southern California distributors for these goods.

Meyer Abraham, who represents the Ehrlich Manufacturing Company, of New York, in this territory, was in town a few days ago, and coralled some fine orders on their clear Havana goods.

The Klingenstein Company are at present making some handsome window displays of "Y-B" cigars in the immense windows of the various Owl Drug Company stores in Los Angeles. They are also featuring their entire line, which includes the "Webster," the "American-Admiration-Preferencia," and "Cinco" cigars. Surbrug's "Milo-Arcadia" and "Floss Cut" are being worked splendidly by the sales force of the company, and results are wonderful. This firm is the sole agent for Surbrug's line. They are also having a 10 per cent. deal on "Zig-Zag" cigarette paper, which will greatly increase their sales in time. They report a great demand for this brand of cigarette paper. Their "Cinco" cigar is proving their one best seller. This cigar, which by the way is a 5-cent beauty, has shown the way for all other 5-cent cigars in this section, and bids fair to establish a record within the next few weeks. All the success which the Klingenstein Company have enjoyed has been due in most part to the never-failing efforts of their sales force of capable, energetic salesmen, who know cigars and cigarettes, etc., and further, have unfailing confidence in the goods which they are asked to distribute. This company has spared no expense in placing its cigars before the public and they are on the high road to success.

J. H. Huston, the tobacconist of this city, has retired from business, owing to ill-health and sold his store to popular Jack Brown.

The local call for Eisenlohr's "Cincos" seems to increase rather than otherwise, and the distributors, Klingenstein & Co., tell me that it is a question of how much they can get from the factory, rather than question of distribution.

O. J. Lansing, who handles the "Sanchez Haya," is expected to reach here this week.

Ed G. Hookstratton, formerly connected with the Hookstratton Cigar Company, Inc., went into bankruptcy at Ocean Park, Cal., with liabilities of $55,000 and no assets.

Casey & Holbert are new retailers in San Diego, having recently purchased the shop of J. M. Warner.

Cincinnati Strike Settled

Cincinnati, Ohio.

A final settlement of the cigarmakers' strike here has finally been effected with the manufacturers, and the strikers have gained eighty-five per cent. of their demands.

The ultimatum of the cigarmakers to the manufacturers asked for an increase of $1 per thousand on all kinds of cigars.

The manufacturers submitted to the strikers a proposition to allow 50 cents a thousand more on domestic goods, $1 a thousand more on seed and Havana work and $1 more on clear Havana goods.

In addition to the above, the old rules are to stand and be abided by as heretofore, except where shops are putting on more men there shall be no limit.

The cigarmakers have been on a strike for about six weeks and the settlement of it sends about 700 men back to work.

Interesting Items Collected In The State

Addresses Feature Tobacco Growers' Picnic

INTERESTING addresses were the feature of the session of the Lancaster Tobacco Growers' Association, which was held at Williamson's Park on August 13th.

President J. Aldus Herr presided over the meeting, and in his remarks stated that the work of the association had not been as successful as was expected, principally due to the lack of co-operation on the part of the growers.

Doctor William Frear, State chemist, complimented the farmers of Lancaster County, but said that they had not exhausted the possibilities of selecting a strain. He said that in addition to potash, tobacco needs phosphoric acid, which is not supplied in sufficient quantities to produce rapid-growing crops. He called attention to the fact that in some cases too much muriate is in use, which prevents the leaf from burning, and that proper precautions have not been taken to eliminate chlorine.

Charles Dunn, of Lock Haven, president of the Clinton County Tobacco Growers' Association, in speaking said that in Clinton County 400 to 500 acres of tobacco are grown and that the growers depend upon the county for its sale. He said that as a result of the growers' organization three cents to four cents a pound more has been realized.

Edward K. Hibshman, State leader of the farm management work, urged the farmers to make an exhibit at the Tobacco Show, so that they could compare crops. He also urged an exhibit at the Lancaster County Fair on September 30th, October 1st, 2d and 3d. Cured or half-cured tobacco may be shown.

Minor Arrested for Smoking

YORK, PA., August 23.

The first victim in this city of the law recently passed by the State Legislature limiting the sale of cigarettes and prohibiting minors from smoking them, was John Strickler, of the East End.

Constable Harmon, on an evening stroll, chanced upon the young man, smoking a cigarette, he alleges, in front of the Jackson Theatre.

When questioned as to his age and the source of the cigarette, Strickler is said to have advised the constable that it was none of his business.

The constable, being quite on the job, promptly "pinched" the young man and took him before Alderman Weigle, who committed him to jail for a hearing.

Strickler is said to have maintained that he was of age, but finally admitted to the alderman that he was only eighteen. The boy claimed that the cigarette was given him by his brother.

The offense is punishable in the case of a minor over sixteen years convicted of smoking by a fine of five dollars, or in default of the payment, a jail sentence of five days or both, and costs. The person furnishing cigarettes to minors may be punished by a fine of not less than $100 or more than $300.

Good Leaf at Lock Haven

LOCK HAVEN, PA.

Those who planted early tobacco here are now engaged in cutting and hanging it in the sheds. The early tobacco is said to be all that could be desiresd, and the late crop, with a few more showers, should mature nicely.

Factory for Bair's Station

YORK, PA., August 23.

AT Bair's Station, H. F. Kohler, County Register of Wills and a prominent cigar manufacturer, is busily engaged in erecting a new factory. The building will be of brick, three stories, and measures 60 x 32 feet.

The factory is expected to be completed by November 1st. Mr. Kohler will employ sixty cigarmakers in this building. He is undecided whether he will discontinue his present factory on North Penn Street.

The John C. Herman Company, of Harrisburg, will open a cigar factory on the first floor of Fraternity Hall, in Manchester, Pa. Harry Parthemore, of New Cumberland, will be foreman. He says the new factory will manufacture hand-made as well as mold cigars. Fullmore Bear, manager of the company, said that the equipment and stock would be shipped at once, so that the factory could be opened at Manchester by the last week in August.

A new cigar factory with a force of twelve hands, has started in Red Lion. The factory is operated by Moses S. Heindel and occupies the W. A. Lahr Building.

William Sechrist, of York, Pa., has opened a cigar factory in the building formerly occupied by the James Snyder Cigar Company.

Judge Decides Mooted Question

The question, "When is a cigarette not a cigarette," was answered by Judge W. N. Seibert, of the Perry County courts, when he directed the constables to arrest all boys caught smoking. This order is to apply even if the roll is surrounded by a tobacco wrapper.

The judge issued this order after it had been reported to him that merchants contended that little cigars were not cigarettes.

"Little cigars are nothing more than cigarettes," said the judge. "It matters not what the wrapper may be, even if it is cornhusk, it comes under the ban of the law."

William H. Sloate

After a lingering illness, William H. Sloate, a cigar manufacturer of Terre Hill, Pa., succumbed to tuberculosis on August 15. The deceased was twenty-eight years old. He is survived by his father.

New "United" Factory Up State

SEVEN VALLEYS, PA.

Work of constructing the new factory for the United Cigar Company of New York is being pushed. The foundation is completed and the first floor is laid. It is said that the new factory, when completed, will employ upwards of 300 hands.

Many dwellings are in the course of erection and more are contemplated, as houses will be in great demand here upon the completion of the factory.

Detroit

Many Conventions to Come—Business Conditions Show Improvement—Cigarette Campaigns On.

DETROIT, MICH., August 25.

With many large conventions to come yet and the return of thousands of people from their vacations, retailers are looking for business to improve considerably during the ensuing four weeks. The weather continues to be ideal, and as a consequence everybody wants to be on the street.

Harley Davidson, at the Cadillac, says his department is showing a big increase over a year ago at this time. The Blue Ribbon and running races of last week helped to make a splendid showing. The "Cuesta-Rey" brand of cigars has recently been added to the line.

Detroit was surprised at the change made in its local representative of the Surbrug products. Gordon Bailey, who has been in this territory for some time and was exceedingly well liked by the trade, has been changed to eastern territory, comprising New York State and Northern Pennsylvania, and in his place, F. A. Swan has been appointed. Mr. Swan comes to Detroit from the state of Connecticut. Gordon left Detroit for Rochester on August 21st, and on the 23rd met his crew of six men who will be under him. A campaign was immediately started on "Milo" cigarettes.

Jesse Hurley has succeeded M. Gazella in the cigar business in Lowell, Mich.

Charles Morris, of La Integridad, was a visitor last week, and took some nice holiday orders.

There is nothing definite to the announcement that E. M. Harris will soon open a branch store in the downtown district. While it was reported that he was negotiating for another store, Mr. Harris says there is no truth to the rumor.

Guy Caverly is doing splendid work in Detroit for the G. J. Johnson Cigar Company, manufacturers of the "Dutch Master" and "El Portana" cigars. Bert Johnson, of the G. & R. McMillan store, recently had a very attractive showing of the former brand.

Mr. Wolf, of the Wolf Pipe Company, has returned from a trip to Cleveland, Buffalo and New York, where he landed a number of large orders for his new sanitary pipe package, which will be sold only to the drug trade.

L. H. Payette, representative of the "Champion" cigar, made by the John P. Hemmeter Company, is on a two weeks' trip to Mackinac Island. On his return, he will make a business trip through the state.

The "White Knight" cigar and the "Belle Mundo" are now represented in Detroit territory by Tom Powell, formerly associated as salesman for Payette-Walsh & Company. Tom is very popular among the local trade, and it won't be long before these two brands will be well popularized by the dealers.

Frank Roemer, city salesman for the cigar department of Lee & Cady, recently entertained L. H. Payette and Al Thornburg by taking them for a sail in his boat and then for dinner at one of the boat clubs on Belle Isle. His guests were given a good scare when Frank ran his boat into a sand barge. It looked as if they would be marooned for several hours, but Frank soon had the boat sailing again.

Walker Monroe, Detroit salesman for Berdan & Company, of Toledo, has returned from his two weeks' vacation which was spent at his former home in Pennsylvania. Mr. Monroe is pushing the "La Azora" cigar, now being jobbed by his firm, and made in Detroit by the Lillies Cigar Company.

The crew in charge of Mr. Ruffen which is working Detroit on "Royal Nestor" cigarettes so far has produced very good results, as this cigarette is now handled by all live dealers, who report that the sale is increasing every day. Of course, the new rug is helping a great deal, but the cigarette itself is well liked by those who try it. A prominent sales manager who had just purchased another brand of cigarettes at the Pontchartrain was approached by one of the Nestor crew and asked to have a package of "Royal Nestors" with his compliments. The sales manager returned the next day and bought several packages, saying, "You know that was quite a clever stunt of that chap giving me a package of 'Nestors' free the other day. I never had that happen to me before. Let me have several packages; the cigarette is all right." This shows that the proper distribution of samples does produce results

The first salesman to appear in this territory on the new "Tabard" cigarette was D. C. Schuler. After spending several days in Detroit, Mr. Schuler left very much impressed with the results of his brief campaign, and promised to come back here regularly, as he felt there was a good field here.

Charles Holton says his new location, at the corner of Adams and Wilcox Streets, is improving every day and that he can notice it by his increase in sales. Many new stores and buildings have recently been erected there. When the new half-million dollar athletic club is erected, just in the rear of his establishment, he believes it is going to help him considerable, as it will have a membership of close to 1500 and will bring the best people in the city to that portion of town. Mr. Holton has just started an active campaign of street-car advertising.

L. J. Montgomery has fully recovered from a sick spell which lasted nearly two weeks.

Jay Hobart, of the Tosego Hotel cigar stand at Jackson, and Charles P. Downey, of the Downey House at Lansing, were in Detroit last week to attend the Blue Ribbon races.

Mr. Heath, general manager of the Woodhouse Company, has returned from a two weeks' vacation.

John Zeigler, of the Otto Zeigler Company, wholesale and retail tobacconists in Lansing, has returned from Denver, where he attended the big Knights Templar Conclave. John says he had "some" time and never saw such royal entertainment accorded such a large gathering. On his return trip, he spent a few days at Yellowstone Park.

Richard Bloomerage, a pioneer in the cigar business, having for the last forty years been connected with the H. Schneider Company, of Grand Rapids, was a recent visitor to Detroit for a few days.

Claud Howell, wholesale tobacconist, on Grand River Avenue, has returned from two weeks spent at his cottage at Silver Lake, where his family will remain the balance of the summer.

Ed Dunlap, of Lopez Hermanos Company, was a recent visitor, this being his first in eight years.

M. D. Elgin, for many years manager of the Musselman Grocery Company, Grand Rapids, has resigned and is succeeded by Edward Kruisenga, who has been with the company for sixteen years as manager of the "Cadillac" branch.

Joe Wertheim, of E. M. Schwartz & Co. was one of the prominent visitors last week. His visits here are always very welcome among the dealers. After having under advisement for two months the motion of the attorneys for the fifty cigarette dealers of Grand Rapids, arrested on a charge of illegal sales of tobacco to a minor, the judge has set a date in September to try them. In the event of the dealers losing, the case will be taken to the Supreme Court. It is not the penalty involved that the Grand Rapids dealers are afraid of, but they believe that this is a good opportunity to test the constitutionality of the law, it being their contention that a dealer has no way of knowing whether a boy, who looks to be at least 23 or 24 years of age, is under 18 The dealers are very confident of victory and have engaged several of the leading attorneys in the Furniture City.

All of the cigar dealers in Battle Creek have decorated their stores and have given their windows over to the display of local products in connection with Home-Coming Week, from August 18th to 23rd. Charles A. Broceus, manager of the Oppenheimer cigar store, says he did an enormous business during the six days in question, and that he never saw so many strangers in the city at any previous celebration. More than 20,000 visitors came to Battle Creek each day from surrounding villages. Hundreds of former residents came from all parts of the world, and cigars were passed around as free as "the air we breathe."

Kalamazoo will be decorated in flags and bunting for the Knights of Pythias Convention, which will hold a convention in that city the first week in September. All of the retail stores on the main streets will be decorated in one way or another and bear the "Welcome" sign. The cigar dealers are anticipating a big business during this week, as more than 2000 knights are expected to attend. Prizes of $5000 will be given to the winners of the competitive drills.

Louis Freer is closing out his cigar stock in Adrian, and will retire from the business.

Reynolds Smith, Detroit representative for the Reynolds Tobacco Company, makers of the "Prince Albert" tobacco, is back from a brief visit to Buffalo. His wife accompanied him.

In connection with the grocers and butchers' picnic, given in Lansing on August 14th, cigars were distributed free through the courtesy of the Lesher Cigar Company.

Robbed for the sixth time in ten years, the billard parlors of Joseph Reiner, 312 State Street, Ann Arbor, was entered on August 14th and a large stock of cigars and cigarettes stolen. On one former occasion Mr. Reiner was robbed of 1000 cigars. A number of students are under suspicion in connection with the last robbery.

The "Mi Lola" cigar made in Milwaukee will hereafter be jobbed in Detroit through the Solomon News Company. This concern, which started a few years ago, has only handled newspapers, magazines, souvenirs, etc., but when Mr. Baer, of the "Mi Lola" factory was through here recently, he made connections with them. He was acquainted with Harry Solomon, as he was formerly located in Milwaukee as circulation manager of the Milwaukee Sentinel. The Solomon News Company have made splendid progress for the short while they have been established, and as they have an organization which keeps them in touch with practically every news stand in Detroit, they should have no difficulty in placing the "Mi Lola" cigar all over the city.

The State Cigar Company, on State Street, suffered a slight damage recently from fire in an adjoining store.

The Northwest Cigar Company was damaged to the extent of $500 on August 17th, from fire on the floor below. Most of the damage resulted from water.

John McLarty, of Kalamazoo, has returned from a trip to Jackson, where he went to look after the interests of the J. B. Cummins Cigar Manufacturing Company, of Rochester, N. Y., which he represents.

Luke C. Leonard, city salesman for the Dierdorf Cigar Company, of Grand Rapids, has returned from a two weeks' vacation spent at the Lakeside Inn, on Black Lake.

Jesse Darling has taken a position as clerk in the Period cigar store, in Battle Creek. He fills the place made vacant by the resignation of Al Tatum, who is now with the new Cleenewerck cigar store, on North Jefferson Avenue.

Meyer Berris, of Adrian, who has been in St. Louis for the past two months working for the United Cigar Company is back home for a visit.

"Business in the copper country is at a standstill since the miners' strike," said a recent cigar salesman, who returned from there. "Many of the stores are not even opened during the day. Many people are on the streets, but they do not frequent the stores. The demand has increased for smoking tobacco and decreased for cigars. The people are not spending a cent more than is necessary to live, while many people are leaving the mining cities in search of work in other towns."

In the big industrial parade, given in connection with Home-Coming Week in Battle Creek, the San Sara Cigar Company had a very attractive float. It was driven by a small donkey clown; the display consisted of a hugh "San Sara" cigar and a pile of cigar boxes.

Detroit detectives have located 8,500 of the 10,000 cigars recently stolen from the freight yards of the Wabash railroad. These cigars were shipped by the San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Company, to a concern in Milwaukee.

Leon Gierman, clerk for John B. Stander, at the Morton House cigar stand in Grand Rapids, has returned from a two weeks' vacation spent at Long Lake, Ionia County, with his family.

W. W. Tucker, associated with the Harry W. Watson Company for a number of years, is now manager of the Cafe Grand cigar stand at 150 Woodward Avenue, and since he has taken hold the department has shown an increase of fully 80 per cent. Mr. Tucker says that July and August have been splendid months, and he looks for September to be the best of all. He says that "Tungsten" cigars are moving fine, and that "Reynaldos" are getting to be one of his best sellers; in fact, he is selling now more "Reynaldos" than any other 10-cent cigar. "Havana Ribbons" are also holding up well.

Mr. Tucker recently worked out a very successful scheme for increasing the sales. He announced that for one week only with every purchase of a box of cigars, the customer had a chance to get a dollar free. He put a dollar bill in ten boxes of cigars which he sold at one dollar, there being a hundred boxes altogether. The lucky fellow not only got his dollar back, but the cigars free as well.

Roy Hardy, of the Roycroft segar shop at Lansing, is back from an extensive trip, which he spent at the Thousand Islands.

The Detroit Candy Company have entered into the cigar jobbing business and are now handling the "El Wadora" cigar, made by the Sig C. Mayer Cigar Company, of Philadelphia.

Tommy Burns, of the Burns & Johnson Cigar Company, 20 Monroe Avenue, has returned from a ten days' trip, which he spent in the East. Tom spent most of the time on Broadway, and came back with a sore neck after looking up at the tall buildings there.

"Rameses" cigarettes are being pushed actively in Detroit by Mr. Campbell, who will be here for a week or so.

The "Robert Burns" cigar continues to be a big seller at the Best & Russell store.

Willis Andruss, of the Cado Company, is in town in the interests of "56" cigarettes.

AL. U. THORNBURG.

To Test New Florida Act

In an effort to evade the new Florida law, requiring a license tax of $100 on all dealers who sell cigarettes containing coupons, local dealers are removing the coupons from the boxes before delivering them to their customers. In some parts of the State dealers are preparing to test the act.

Many dealers contend that the customers are willing for them to break open the boxes and remove the coupons; this is not a violation of the internal revenue laws, it is said, so long as the dealers keep a record of the number of boxes broken open in this way and report at regular intervals to the collector of internal revenue.

Richmond Man for Reynolds Company.

John E. Stone, for many years connected with the cigarette department of the Richmond branch of the American Tobacco Company, has recently become employed by the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, and will take charge of the cigarette machines of their newly-added department.

Mr. Stone has had wide experience in the different factories of the American Tobacco Company, and goes to Winston-Salem with a high endorsement of his ability in this line of work.

The Alton Cigar Company, composed of Frank, John and Dick Corrigan, have opened a wholesale and retail cigar factory on Second Street, near Langdon, at Alton, Ill. The brothers are experienced cigarmakers, and are starting business with a number of orders on file.

Changes in the Trade

Robert C. Latherow, formerly connected with the F. O. Moll store, of Eureka, Cal., has purchased the stock of the store at 329 F Street, and has opened a cigar and newsstand there. The interior has been remodeled and a good line of new stock is now on sale.

The cigar store of William Keiser, 325 North Seventh Street, Allentown, Pa., has been purchased by Leibensperger & Mabus. Both are practical cigarmakers and worked together for sixteen years in the employ of Charles L. Moyer.

Alonzo McGlasson, who has been employed as a cigarmaker in Havana for a number of years, has decided to enter business for himself in Peoria, Ill. His factory will be located on East Main Street, at his home, for the present.

The B. Cleenewerck & Son Cigar Co., of Kalamazoo, Mich., has opened a thoroughly up-to-date store at 7 North Jefferson Avenue, Battle Creek, Mich. This store will be conducted by Al Tatum and George W. Longwell. They will keep a report of all games by innings and plan to make the stand the most popular in the city.

T. P. Koehler, of Warsaw, Ill., has opened a cigar factory at the old Floto stand. Mr. Koehler is accounted a valuable addition to the ranks of Warsaw's hustling business men.

Fred Thomas is planning to open a cigar store in Church Street, Attleboro, Mass.

A permit has been granted Joseph Schieffer, of Danbury, Conn., for the erection of a three-story brick building at the corner of Banks and Main Streets. Mr. Schieffer is the manufacturer of the well known "After Dinner" brand of cigars.

Sparks and Johnson, of Columbus, Kan., have opened a cigar stand and billiard room that is sure to meet the approval of all who want a clean amusement place and lounging room.

Beyond the handsome mahogany showcase that stands in front is a smoking room, splendidly furnished with comfortable chairs and settees; near at hand are tables covered with the latest papers and magazines.

A low railing separates the lounging room from the pool and billiard section, where dustless cork linoleum deadens the tread about the green tables.

Joseph H. Tuttle of 213 South Water Street, Wichita, Kan., who for twenty years has been a familiar figure about the City Hall where he kept a cigar stand, has closed his business and will go to the State Soldiers' Home at Fort Dodge, Kan.

Mr. Tuttle is eighty-seven years old. He came to Wichita from Huntingdon, Ind., twenty-one years ago. Soon after coming here he started a cigar stand in the lobby of the City Hall. He has conducted it since with the exception of two years, during which he was at the Soldiers' Home, where he is now preparing to go.

Kleinschnittger & Utt, who opened a wholesale cigar factory, on Second Street, near Henry, in Alton, Ill., report that they are meeting with success and have prospects for a fine fall and winter business.

Pittsburgh

Stogie Strike Goes Into Seventh Week—Cigar Business Improves—Many Salesmen in Town.

PITTSBURGH, PA., August 25.

BUSINESS in Pittsburgh for the last few weeks has been very good for this time of the year.

In regard to the Pittsburgh stogie strike, the strike of the tobacco workers of the I. W. W. in the Hill district, has entered its seventh week with a greater determination for victory than existed a few weeks since on the part of the strikers and greater dissension among the members of the bosses association.

Strike meetings are held each afternoon, and they are largely attended by strikers at the union headquarters. These meetings are addressed by the members of the union, who speak in English and Yiddish. A large and well attended open-air meeting was held last Saturday evening at the corner of Roberts Street and Center Avenue. The meeting was addressed by Tom Kart, David Gilchrist, David Sigal and B. Rupkin.

M. Pott, a striker, was arrested on a warrant taken out by "Boss" Ostrophy for assault and battery, and issued from the office of Alderman Jas. V. McMasters. He was held under $300 bail for a hearing on Saturday, August 23rd.

The strikers are out on the picket line from early morn till late in the afternoon, picketing around their respective shops. Thus far "bosses" have not been able to get "scabs" into their shops to break the strike.

J. Miller and Levine Brothers, members of the "bosses" association, broke away and settled with the union, granting all demands. It is reported that the rest of the "bosses" of the association will follow shortly in granting the employes their demands.

N. F. Sharples, of the Stallings Company, McKeesport, Pa., is featuring "La Saramita" and "Saramita" fives in Pittsburgh. The brand is being featured in such first-class places as The Antler, Matt Weiss, James Kearns, Lake Erie Depot, Colonial Hotel and Seventh Avenue Hotel.

The Stallings Company are comparatively new in the cigar game, having just added a cigar department to their confectionery line on March 1st, under Mr. Sharples' management. They carry the following brands: "Chas. Denley," "La Saramita," "El Wadora," "El Trendo," "Little Minister," "Ology" and "Baron de Kalb," and a full line of stogies.

Starting the first of September, they will introduce a window-trimming campaign on the famous "Denley" brand, throughout their entire territory, including Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, under the direction of O. M. Bosworth, representing H. Fendrich & Co. This brand was formerly handled by Haworth & Dewhurst.

J. H. Bott has purchased the stand of G. Nelson, one of the finest in McKeesport, Pa., and is featuring "La Saramitas" in all sizes.

Louis Engelman, the big retailer in McKeesport, has an elegant display of "Chas. Denley" in both sizes.

Wells' cigar store, who have taken over Wells & Wengerter, at Wheeling, W. Va., just placed an order with Mr. Sharples, of the Stallings Co., McKeesport, for "Saramitas" and "Baron de Kalbs," and will feature the brands for him in Wheeling.

P. Verplanck, of P. Verplanck & Co., Tampa, Fla., is in town this week in the interests of their factory.

H. R. Locke, of Haworth & Dewhurst, is out with M. J. Powers in the interests of "Plantista" cigars. Mr. Powers represents the Compere cigar factory.

Allen G. Lutt, of Y. Pendas & Alvarez, was in Pittsburgh the last two weeks selling lots of "Websters," "Farragut" and "La Mia."

E. J. Webb, representing Stephano Brothers, manufacturers of the famous "Rameses" cigarettes, is having quite a run in Pittsburgh at the present time.

Mr. McClements of Reymer Brothers, who has charge of the downtown store and also the wholesale department, reports business very good at their Fifth Avenue and Wood Street store. They have several fine window displays. One of them in particular was a fine display of "Charles the Great," made by Salvator Rodrigues, of Tampa, Fla.

Howard Pale, of Reymer Brothers, is some window trimmer. Mr. Walter Lenhart, of Reymer Brothers, is on his vacation.

Shipley-Massingham Company, who are the distributors for "Cuesta-Rey" clear Havana cigars, had quite a run on that brand. They are also distributors for "Corner" and the "A. J. Cassatt," of the Baum-Jaffe Company, of Philadelphia.

The Seventh Avenue Hotel stand are still busy. At the present time they have three very nice displays in their Liberty Avenue stand, displaying the following brands: "Webster," "Tuval" and "Admiration."

Robert Thompson, of W. J. Gilmore Drug Company, says business is very good. Gilmore Drug Company are distributors for the following well-known brands: "El Verso," made by Deisel-Wemmer, of Lima, O.; "Gato," by E. H. Gato, of Key West, Fla.; "Girard" and "Roigs," the "Stieber" and "El Palencia" clear Havana cigars.

C. J. Moye Company, of Sixth Street, are doing a very nice business. They are also distributors and retailers of the following well-known brands: F. Garcia & Bros., Tampa, Fla.; the "Bold" cigar, of Bobrow Brothers, of Philadelphia, and a full line of stogies and cigarettes.

B. W. Berman, of Liggett-Myers Tobacco Company, arrived in Pittsburgh last week, working on "Piedmonts," showing a large increase on that brand. They had several of the best windows in the downtown section. Mr. Berman is assisted by Mr. Michalson and crew. The following were in town in the interest of different lines: E. G. Dunlap, of Lopez Hermanos, Tampa, Fla.; Sig C. Mayer, of Sig C. Mayer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Warren F. McKinley, of P. San Martin & Co., Tampa, Fla.; Parven Alvarez, of Jose D. Riera & Co., New York City; C. H. Guerin, Bubeck & Guerin, humidors, New York City; Jos. Carlisle, of A. Santella & Co., "Optimo" cigars, Florida.

Buys Tobacco Coupon for $18.

As may be judged from the heading this was some sale, and the buyer was an exceptional one. Others pursuing the same method of getting high prices for coupons, however, had better make previous arrangements to keep out of the clutches of the law.

Joseph Lebaer, an unsophisticated Hungarian who recently landed in the "Big Town," wanted to get to Perth Amboy, N. J. He had an idea that somewhere in the neighborhood of the Pennsylvania station he could get information as to the ticket and price.

Discovering a negro lounging in the vicinity, he confided to him the secret of his destination. The negro promptly agreed to fix the matter of the ticket up for $18. (Lebaer could have purchased a ticket at the window for about 60 cents, but if he had known that it would have spoiled the story.)

The negro went away, and upon returning and collecting the $18, handed Lebaer a green slip of paper. At the gate, when Lebaer presented his "ticket," the gateman softly broke the news to him that the Pennsylvania Railroad was not yet accepting "United" coupons for carfare.

The police are still looking for the negro. A kind-hearted police sergeant gave up six bits to send Lebaer to Perth Amboy.

Want Smokers to Build Highways.

To construct a system of national highways out of a tax imposed upon the consumers of tobacco is the suggestion of Representative Warburton, of Washington. He has embodied this in the form of a bill recently introduced in the house.

The plan contemplates a system of national highways connecting the capitals of different states with the national capital.

Representative Warburton proposes a tax so light that it will not be felt by tobacco users, but that at the same time it should raise about $80,000,000 annually.

Some scheme!

Good Crop in Washington State.

Tobacco is being successfully cultivated about six miles from Olympia, Wash., by Nathan Evans, of South Bay, who for thirty-eight seasons in this state, has raised successfully such a crop. Formerly Mr. Evans resided near Dayton, but has been in Thurston County for the past two years. He now has 363 thriving tobacco plants on his farm. He says they are doing so well that he expects to get a second crop and as a result expects about a pound and a half of pure tobacco from each plant.

Mr. Evans says that his experience has convinced him that he can raise at least 800 pounds of tobacco to the acre, with no more work than is required in raising a corn crop. In the past he has always been able to dispose of his crop from 25 cents to 40 cents a pound.

Carl Johnson, who has been in Chicago, Ill., for some years, has returned to Rockford, Ill., and opened a cigar store at 403 Seventh Street. His fast-selling brand is the "Johnson Leader."

San Francisco

Business Picking Up—Campaign on "Loveras"—Gunst & Co. Make Changes in Sales Department.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 20, 1913.

The cigar business on the Pacific Coast has taken a decided turn for the better since the first of the month, and taking the territory as a whole there is more optimistic sentiment, backed by substantial gains in business, than for a long time past. Of course, here and there some unfavorable conditions are encountered, as for example in San Francisco, where an anti-gambling crusade has cut off the patronage of a good many down-town stands which depended on the sporting element; but for all that there are apparently more cigars being smoked, and dealers show a greater disposition to buy than for several months. This revival came quite suddenly, and was rather unexpected, as July was a rather quiet season all around, and the usual fall buying movement usually does not appear before September at the earliest. As it is, the money situation seems to be easing up a little, crop returns are far above expectations, building activities are increasing, and dealers are getting ready for an unusually active fall season.

One of the best indications of better conditions is the renewed effort to boost the sale of well established lines, which have simply been holding their own for the last year. Major F. S. Burrows, Coast representative of the Jose Lovera Company, is now undertaking the first specialty campaign in some time. He says that, for the last year, he has felt that conditions were not favorable for such effort, but that now the time is ripe, and he is going right ahead, being convinced that business will improve rapidly for the next few years. Already, he says, there has been a visible improvement in trade all over the city, and a perceptible livening up throughout his territory. He has engaged the services of Lewis Cohen, formerly connected with the Sanchez forces in the local field, who is now energetically boosting the "Lovera." The first work has been to put up a lot of canopy lamps in many prominent locations, which have already become the talk of the town, with the result that sales show a marked increase, and there has been a steady run of large repeat orders. The line has now been placed with all the large cafes. The distribution of the "Lovera" goods here is of course handled, as for many years past, by Wellman, Peck & Company.

H. H. Manley, Coast representative of the American Cigar Company, recently returned from a trip south, where he has a number of important accounts and is getting a large business. He says business is getting into better shape all over his territory. He found improvement very apparent on his recent trip north, where large crops and a revival in the lumber industry had given new life to all lines of business, while the local trade, for the last few weeks, has been rapidly getting into better shape. Altogether, he believes that business is headed in the right direction, and that unless some unforseen disaster should occur, the fall will be a period of great activity. Mr. Manley will leave at the end of the week for a short trip north.

Mason, Ehrman & Company, of Portland, Ore., who have for some time had the distribution of the "El Belmont" cigar for Oregon, had their territory extended about the first of the month to include Washington and Idaho.

Henry Meinecke, manager of the cigar department of Wellman, Peck & Company, is absent this week on vacation.

A number of notable changes have recently been made in the sales organization of M. A. Gunst & Company. Julius Unger, lately manager for Hawaii, has been appointed Seattle manager, succeeding C. B. Poar, resigned; and Harry Jonas, formerly of the San Francisco wholesale department, will be manager at Honolulu. Mr. Jonas has just left for his new station, accompanied by Mr. Unger, who will remain until everything is running smoothly before proceeding to Seattle. Mr. Jonas' work in San Francisco is being carried on by J. H. Carlson and D. H. Byrnes, who have been, respectively, connected with the local office and sales force for some time. The Portland, Ore., office will be under the supervision of Ed. Duffy, one of the old hands in the local wholesale department. A. I. Esberg has just returned from a fishing trip up Feather River canyon, and expects to leave for New York about the end of the month. Morgan Gunst is taking a vacation at Santa Barbara.

Wm. Bercovich, the cigar jobber of Sacramento, is visiting San Francisco this week.

G. W. Whitaker, head of the John Bollman Company, has gone for a trip to Honolulu.

Arthur Bachman, of S. Bachman & Company, is back from a visit to Los Angeles.

D. Frankel, of Frankel, Gerdts & Company, the local cigar manufacturers, is now on his way to Havana.

Considerable interest is taken in the inquiry for cigars for the Quartermaster's Department for the coming month, all the cigars specified being of Manila make, the sizes being "Londres," "Panatelas," "Perfectos," "Media Regalias," and "Excellentes." Bids were taken August 20, and with many local jobbers carrying Manilas in stock bidding was quite lively.

Mr. Deutsch, formerly of the cigar department of Haas Bros., this city, left last week for New York, where he will engage in the cloak and suit business with his uncle.

Emil Judell, of H. L. Judell & Company, has just returned from the Sacramento Valley, where he found business in good shape. H. L. Judell is back from a short motor trip in Lake county. He believes business will be much better from now on.

M. C. Eisenschimel, of the cigar department of Henry W. Peabody & Company, is busy showing a new brand of Manila goods, "Mi Consuelo," which is very attractively packed and is getting considerable business. A lot of orders are coming in for special packs for the holidays, and the trade is especially interested in the handsome cabinets of 25 and 50 in assorted sizes of the better grades, put out by the Intal factory. This company recently received large shipments for the Middle West ex S. S. Nippon Maru and Korea, also for the Pacific Northwest ex S. S. Seattle Maru.

E. C. Hull, associated with Chas. H. Knubel, as representative of Theobald & Oppenheimer, Salvador Rodriguez, etc., has returned from an extended visit to southern California, and is now on his way to the northwest, where he will be on the road for several months.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Frost May Nip Late Pennsylvania Leaf—Root Rot Bothers Wisconsin Growers—Steady Prices Prevail in Leaf Markets of The Carolinas

PENNSYLVANIA.

LANCASTER, PA.

During the past fortnight, despite the recent rains, the crops have shown but slow growth, and it is predicted that the frost will come before the plants mature. The frequent storms have been accompanied on many occasions by hail, and these, in some cases, have so punctured the leaves of the crops that they are almost valueless.

There has been a remarkable movement in the local leaf market for 1911 goods. Prices ranged from 13½ to 15 cents a pound, and even at the latter figure the margin of profit was small. However, the local growers have been so loaded up with old goods that they are glad to sell at any figure.

Owing to a backward spring, crops were planted late, and the dry spell coming just when the plants needed water, makes it seem certain that there will be a poor season. However, if fine growing weather should remain for a while the crops might pull through before frost. The current opinion, however, is that the crops will be a failure. It is very probable that much backward tobacco will be harvested before it ripens, and this will result in a harvest of poor quality.

Packers have begun sampling their 1912 packing, and are finding more black rot than was expected. Otherwise the tobacco is considered to be all that could be desired, and it is believed that it will be much in demand for filler goods.

YORK, PA.

Discouraged with the poor results of the past few years, tobacco growers in York County are turning their attention to the cultivation of more profitable crops. The farmers claim that there is not the money in tobacco raising that there was years ago.

In many sections hereabouts the crops have been continued on a decreased scale, and in the vicinity of Hallam the harvest will be the smallest in ten years.

Here and there are found good fields, but the majority of crops are backward and will be nipped by the frost, unless they come along more rapidly. In many instances the plants have become so blighted that they will not mature.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, WIS.

Due to root rot, the crop this year, at the best, is bound to be uneven. The rot is more in evidence this year than for many past.

The condition of the crops in general is improving slowly. The medium set fields are showing a likely quality of leaf. However there is plenty of late growth that will need the best of weather and immunity from the frost for another month at least, if it is to reach the sheds. Some of the early fields are now reaching the harvest, but the size of leaf is not up to the average.

While buyers are looking over the growing districts, no contracts have been made as yet. Sampling of last season's packing is under way. More, however, to determine the condition of the sweated leaf than to offer to the trade.

KENTUCKY.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

Because of the lack of rain and the probable inferior quality of the crops, prices for Burley are mounting high. The Burley prospects are for the shortest crop in years. Central Kentucky counties are on the average far below standard, and there is every expectation that prices on the weed will go soaring.

In central Kentucky and the white Burley district, growers have already begun to cut and house their crops in an effort to save as much tobacco as possible. It is the first time in years that there has been so much cutting at this time in the season, and unless there is a general rain within the next week, half the Burley district will have its crops cut and housed.

In some of the more favored sections, especially the Buckeye district, the tobacco looks fairly well, and some of it is near the topping stage. However, along the south boundary some of the plants are beginning to turn yellow, and in these places the outlook is most discouraging.

Tobacco growers in general are holding off, despite flattering offers. They say that every day of the drouth is cutting the crop shorter and making the early tobacco more valuable.

THE CAROLINAS.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

In all parts of the county the tobacco growers are now busy with their crops. Many new barns have been built, and the crop is heavier, larger and of better quality than for a long time.

Throughout the State the markets are opening and all indications point to a heavy season.

The tobacco market at Durham opened on August 20th, with the best prospects in many years. Many of the farmers have already cured some of the tobacco, and there is a unanimous opinion that the growers have never averaged better crops.

The warehouses at Apex, Holly Springs, Fuquay Springs and Zebulon will open for business on September 1st. The great success of the crops this year will have the healthy influence of inducing larger acreage among the tobacco growers.

The Stoneville market opened on August 20th. The following companies will have buyers at that place until the close of the season: The American Tobacco Co., the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., the Export Tobacco Co., the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Hancock Bros. & Co., and the Brown & Williams Tobacco Co.

E. J. Ragsdale, president of the Tobacco Board of Trade of Fuquay Springs, says that he has never seen the leaf with a finer color, and that curing is going on at a rapid rate. Fuquay Springs expects at least 3,000,000 pounds on its warehouse floors during the season. Arrangements are being made for the erection of a forty room brick hotel.

FLORENCE, S. C.

Despite the prediction of lower prices they have remained steady, and the sales have been phenomenal. A sale has been reported at Canon's, where a pile of 436 pounds was sold at 42 cents. Sales are heavy, and anywhere from $8,000 to $20,000 a day is being paid out.

Over at Darlington a whole barn of tobacco was sold at an average price of 42½ cents. It is doubtful if such a price was ever paid for a whole barn of tobacco of this class. Darlington reports prices higher than they have ever been known to be before.

T. K. Pitts, one of the best farmers in the Pee Dee section, established a record on the Timmonsville market when he sold 10,172 pounds at an average of $25.50 per hundred, receiving a check of $2,593.60. These were all second curings and the average is the highest made in the State so far. The check is the biggest ever written to one farmer on this market.

At the Mullins market, the crop is being sold rapidly, and it is estimated that fully one-third of the crop has been disposed of already. Never before in the history of the market has tobacco commanded such fancy prices.

J. P. Oesthinger, a representative of the Transvaal Government, has been in this city several days, studying the cultivation of cotton and tobacco. He has expressed himself as believing that the Transvaal will do well with both products.

LAKE CITY, S. C.

Holding firm place as the leading market for leaf tobacco in the State, Lake City continues to outdistance her rivals. The four large warehouses are filled most of the time to their capacity, and some of the trade comes from a distance of fifteen and twenty miles. During the month of July there was sold 1,755,166 pounds of leaf, for which the planters received $216,949.67.

If prices continue, before the end of the season this section should be better off financially than for several years. Many piles of fine wrappers have sold at 30 to 40 cents, and a sale has been recorded at 49 cents a pound.

At Kingstree the sales have been very heavy, and they are showing an increase. Prices were never higher than those which have prevailed of late. This is due in part to the output per acre and to the splendid quality of the crops.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, CONN.

The harvesting of the tobacco crop has begun here in earnest, and so far about 500 acres have been housed. There is more help looking for work than can be used, and this for the past five years has been an annual occurrence.

In spite of the dry weather, the crops look remarkably well. Offers of 18 cents a pound in the field have been made, while others of 20 cents in the bundle have been reported.

Fred Wilcox, a well-known tobacco grower, while working on the roof of one of his tobacco sheds, fell about 20 feet to the ground. He suffered severe sprains and contusions, ut the soft earth prevented any bones from being broken.

W. S. Pinney has started his last picking and his stalks look bare. Herman Ude, E. Weave, Edmund Halladay, and Edward Perkins are at work picking their crops, being aided by from 15 to 50 boys.

L. P. Bissell, who owns the Syndicate farm, is employing about 300 boys and girls to pick part of his crop. In the other part of the field the tobacco is being cut on the stalk, and about six acres a day are being placed under cover. Mr. Bissell raises about 150 acres, and is the largest grower in these parts.

On the 18th, tobacco cutting began in nearly all the fields, giving employment to about 1,000 men.

Owing to the long continued dry spell, the crop is not up to standard either in size or quality.

Several of the smaller crops have been sold, and it is figured that up to the 25th, one-half of the entire crop, which consists of 3500 acres, will be sold.

WINDSOR LOCKS, CONN.

The school board has decided to postpone the opening of public schools from September 2nd, to the 8th, to assist the tobacco growers in getting their crops under cover. At the present time almost every child in town is working in the fields, stringing leaves on laths. It is certain that the 1913 crop will not be housed by the first week in September.

Tobacco buyers have been visiting the growers in this vicinity during the past week and a number of sales were made, amongst them being practically all of the fields at the west end of Elm Street. Harvesting is now in full swing and the growers report a fair crop on the average, the heavier pieces of land under cultivation with the weed having a fine growth and making up for a scantiness on some of the places where the soil is lighter and which did not stand the drought so well.

VIRGINIA.

DANVILLE, VA.

The tobacco season has opened here with eight warehouses doing business. Later there will probably be two new warehouses added. These are the Farmers, on Union Street, and the Banner, on Craghead Street.

While the tobacco that has already been cured is all right for marketing, much depends on weather conditions. If a long spell of rainy weather sets in, the tobacco would be liable to second growth, producing leaves of coarser texture, and bringing a lower price.

The quality of tobacco to be marketed this year is said to be the finest crop that has been sold in upwards of ten years. In texture, it is fine, silky and smooth.

Judging from the prices obtained on the Southern markets, the prices here should be fully as high as last year, and it is possible that they may be much higher. There is every indication of banner prices for the growers this year.

Heard Among Leaf Men

Reports from Lancaster indicate that the tobacco yield this year will not be more than half the amount of last year. This will mean a money loss to some, as the crop usually yields upwards of $3,000,000 annually to the farmers.

Reports from Nacogdoches, Tex., indicate that there is a considerable increase in tobacco acreage in that section this year. Last year the production was taken from 200 acres, but it is much heavier in 1913. It is pointed out that the annual tobacco bill of Texas is $2,500,000 and that $2,000,000 of this amount is spent outside the state.

Sixty members of the Wisconsin Tobacco Growers and Dealers' Association, at their annual dinner at Lake Koshkonong, discussed the recent law passed by the last Legislature relative to the purchase of tobacco. The law was most seriously condemned as unjust to both grower and buyer.

Turkish tobacco, raised in California, is expected to net from 300,000 to 400,000 pounds this season. Last year about 100,000 pounds were shipped from the San Joaquin Valley, and its success has encouraged much heavier planting.

The Growers' Sales Agency, representing the National Cigar Leaf Growers' Association, has resumed its offices in the Beckel Hotel building with Philip R. Spence in charge and Messrs. Pierce and Morris in the field.

Tobacco Insurance Rates

The Kentucky State Insurance Board has promulgated a general basis schedule and tables of rates for fire insurance on tobacco warehouses, sales houses, rehandling houses and stemmeries, located in the various classified towns and cities. The insurance companies are permitted to file objections within thirty days under the law, and in default of this the new rates are to become effective September 15th. The schedule defines a standard building, with a basis rate of 50 cents on a storage warehouse, 75 cents on a sales warehouse and loose-leaf warehouse, $1.50 each on prizing and rehandling houses, stemmeries and separate sweat rooms, and $1.75 for drying rooms. Twenty-five deficiency charges are provided, with the usual credits for protection and structural features. These credits will give material reductions for superior risks.

The new schedule on tobacco rates will reduce the rate on loose leaf tobacco warehouses 30 per cent. and 10 per cent. on all other classes of tobacco and tobacco warehouses.

James N. Banks Resigns

On account of the state of his health, James N. Banks, editor of the Stemming District Tobacco Association news columns of the Henderson (Kentucky) Gleaner, has tendered his resignation to take effect September 1st. This will be unwelcome news to the thousands of members of this association, who feel that during Mr. Banks' seven years of service he has done much to build up and hold together one of the largest organizations of this kind in the State.

Little American Tobacco in Korea

According to a consular report from Chosen (Korea), the importation of tobacco in 1912 was valued at $478,028. Of this amount the United States sent $38,525 in tobacco leaf, and $8,288 in cigarettes. From these figures it would appear that there is plenty of room to increase the importation of American tobacco.

Tobacco importation from the United States into Tunis increased considerably in 1912, according to a trade report from Consul-General A. Gaulin, at Marseilles, France. In 1911 tobacco importations from the United States were valued at $98,208; in 1912 they were listed at $157,306.

Miamisburg Growers Organize.

Tobacco growers in the vicinity of Miamisburg, favoring the sale of their products direct to the manufacturer, have organized a new association and elected a board of directors. Twenty thousand dollars in stock has already been subscribed.

The directors are: Franklin Youngerman, of Centerville; Edward C. Lies, of Miamisburg; Homer Brown, of Arcanum; William E. Lies, of Miamisburg. These four are president, vice-president, treasurer and secretary, respectively. Aaron Hunt, of Baltimore, and Dora Howell, of Lewisburg, are also directors.

Frederick Zuckerman has been named as general manager for the company.

C. Glenn Nichols, of Elmen & Co., of Houston, Tex., returned from Stowell, Chambers County, with two stalks of tobacco taken from an experimental patch at that place. One stalk is six feet high, with large leaves and of fine quality. The experiment gives promise of Stowell becoming a fine tobacco growing section.

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 102 South Twelfth Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

☞ Positively no responsibility assumed for errors, duplications or any controversies which might arise. We will not under any circumstances act in a legal capacity in cases concerning disputed titles. We maintain a bureau of records only.

Tobacco Abundant in Smyrna

CONSUL-GENERAL George Horton, of Smyrna, Turkey, reports in the "Consular and Trade Bulletin," that an abundant harvest is expected in the tobacco fields. He says:

"The favorable climatic conditions under which tobacco was put out this year inspired expectations of an abundant 12,000,000 okes (30,320,000 pounds) harvest. When the alternating cold, hot, and wet weather supervened, views were modified as to the prospects of the crop in some districts. On the whole, however, the tobacco yield is expected to be satisfactory in respect of quantity. The prospects are estimated to run at 9,000,000 okes (22,740,000 pounds) against 5,000,000 okes (12,634,000 pounds) of last year, but from this 500,000 okes (1,262,000 pounds) will have to be deducted for damage done by locusts in the Odemish, Thera and Giaourkeuy districts. The peasants are expecting high prices, which they think have come to stay, on account of the scarcity of labor, etc."

Tobacco Kills Microbes

According to Messrs. Langlais & Sartory, of Paris, who have been conducting experiments with tobacco, the weed is a most excellent "sure death" for microbes. They claim that their experiments have shown that in five minutes tobacco smoke will kill all the microbes in saliva, thus, in a way, sterilizing the mouth.

Another test claimed to have been carried out, was the placing of five cigars in water containing many millions of cholera microbes. It is said that the tobacco sterilized and destroyed the germs in twenty-four hours.

IRREGULAR PAGINATION

Paying $1.85 per pound duty does not improve quality

But It Does Increase Wrapper Cost and Diminish Profits

The Florida-Georgia wrapper is not a substitute. It is the

STANDARD MONEY-MAKING WRAPPER OF THE HOUR

Over 20,000 bales used last year by the leading cigar manufacturers in this country proves it.

Increased use year after year shows that progressive manufacturers realize the quality of the Florida-Georgia wrapper.

They use it in preference to Sumatra, strictly on its merit, regardless of cost.

Paying $1.85 per pound duty does not improve quality

But It Does Increase Wrapper Cost and Diminish Profits

The Florida-Georgia wrapper is not a substitute. It is the

STANDARD MONEY-MAKING WRAPPER OF THE HOUR

Over 20,000 bales used last year by the leading cigar manufacturers in this country proves it.

Increased use year after year shows that progressive manufacturers realize the quality of the Florida-Georgia wrapper.

They use it in preference to Sumatra, strictly on its merit, regardless of cost.

WHICH WOULD YOU RATHER BE—PREJUDICED OR PROSPEROUS? IT'S UP TO YOU.

Important Notice to Jobbers

Are you handling the goods that your retailer needs most?
Are the goods you are handling being sold promptly by the retailer?
Are your retailers duplicating their orders?

IF NOT

You are not carrying a line of goods which is most in demand with the consumer—

Our Fifty-Six

Turkish Cigarettes are in big demand with the consumer and all retailers are repeating their orders as a consequence.

We don't believe in bragging, but we cannot describe this rare cigarette without seeming to boast.

However, there must be a reason—and results are telling.

Fifty-Six retail both plain and cork tip at twenty-five cents a box of ten, and we do not permit any cutting in prices. We await your orders.

Quantity or Quality--Which?

WHEN you are considering the advisability of taking on a new cigar, Mr. Dealer, what do you take to be of most importance, quantity or quality?

If quality cuts a large part in the selection of your stock, get in touch with us. We have something in common with you, a medium-sized, hand-made, clear Havana filled, nickel cigar, which contains nothing but the best imported tobacco.

This cigar, the 20TH CENTURY, has been on the market for 28 years, sufficient proof that it has stood the test of time.

For full particulars and samples communicate with

Better Selling Cigars Are Made With The

STANDARD PURE TOBACCO BINDERS

At a Saving of More Than 100% Over Ordinary Grown Binders

SAVING money on making a better cigar is pretty sound economy. A saving of 100% on binders is something of an argument for using a better binder.

The Standard Pure Tobacco Binder is a manufactured tobacco product retaining all the advantages of the grown binder, with its disadvantages—THE DISADVANTAGES YOU PAY FOR—LEFT OUT.

There is NO CASING AND NO STRIPPING in handling this pure tobacco binder, consequently NO waste. There is absolute UNIFORMITY OF TEXTURE, accompanied by the flavor of higher grade tobacco than you can afford to use as binder for low-priced cigars.

STANDARD PURE TOBACCO BINDERS are made from the stems of tobacco leaf, clippings and cuttings. The pure stem-fiber is drained of all juices, shredded and pressed into leaf.

In STANDARD BINDERS, you get one feature that makes this cheapest binder really the BEST binder. That feature is Perfect Uniformity of Texture. The irregularities in the grown leaf cause low-priced cigars to burn fitfully, and smokers of low-priced cigars are apt to judge competing brands by the way they burn.

STANDARD BINDERS cause a cigar to burn Evenly to a Clear, White Ash, even if the wrapper is Not a free burner.

"Tobacco in Process of Manufacture" is what the United States Internal Revenue Department calls STANDARD PURE TOBACCO BINDERS. They contain no adulteration whatever; no ingredients other than those sapped from the Pure, High-Grade Leaf.

The flavor of filler and wrapper are neutralized by the soft, succulent, absorbent tissue of STANDARD BINDERS, producing a MELLOW, UNIT blend.

As for working without waste, it takes but 2 pounds of these binders to cover 1,000 Cigars, where 6 or 7 pounds of ordinary grown binders are consumed. STANDARD BINDERS cost 40 cents a thousand, as against $1.00 a thousand for cheapest grown binders. Right here is a saving of at least 60% over the OLD WAY. And the elimination of time, space and waste involved in casing, stripping and cutting the grown binder means a further saving of at least 40%.

THE STANDARD PURE TOBACCO BINDER comes in 6 standard sizes, accommodating 30 sizes of cigars. Also in 2 Stogie sizes. JUST JOT DOWN YOUR POSSIBLE NEEDS, AND WE WILL SEND ALONG SOME FREE SAMPLES TO DO THE REST OF THE TALKING.

Savarona Perfecto Sublime—LEADERS!

Every branch of business has "leaders" that have come to the front through merit. Of the independent Porto Rican concerns, our company has come to the front as leaders. Among our brands, SAVARONA has come to the front as the leader. In the SAVARONA brand, the "Perfecto Sublime" size has come to the front as the leader of the forty-six (46) sizes made under the brand. This cigar is not the same shape as the general run of Perfecto Sublimes, as it is a full but beautifully shaped Perfecto. We band SAVARONA "Perfecto Sublimes" to avoid substitution. We believe in our own goods and want people to know them by their right name. We put our best tobacco and best work into this cigar, and no expense has been spared to make it absolutely first-class. The way the sales lead the other sizes; the way SAVARONA leads other brands; the way Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Company leads other houses, prove that our plans for quality have been well laid.

Short talks to Dealers

It is just as essential to use good cigarettes in order to build up a substantial cigarette business as to use good building material for a home. With you have a good, dependable foundation. Good, because the mild, mellow Turkish flavor of Fatimas is the flavor most desired by cigarette smokers. Dependable, because our process of manufacture insures the same uniform quality in each cigarette in every package.

FATIMA
TURKISH BLEND
CIGARETTES

And to increase the already enormous sale of Fatimas and to make it easy for you to build up a big, substantial trade with them, we are advertising them very heavily during 1913. More Fatima cigarettes are sold than any other brand in this country.

In fact, the 1913 Fatima advertising campaign will be one of the very biggest ever known for cigarettes.

And back of every ad—every cigarette and every dealer—stands the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

A SCHINASI TANGLE

Action Brought to Restrain Firm Using Same Name—Naturals vs. Natural Aromatics—Temporary Injunction Secured.

(From Our Special Correspondent to "The Tobacco World.")

HORWITZ & ROSENSTEIN, attorneys at 345 Broadway, secured a writ of injunction on Monday, September 8, in the United States Circuit Court, Second District of New York, on behalf of their clients, Schinasi Bros., cigar manufacturers of 34 West 100th Street, New York, against the recently organized corporation of A. Schinasi & Bros., Inc., who have offices in the Fitzgerald Building, 1482 Broadway, and have recently opened a factory at 275 Canal Street, New York.

In their petition the complainants state that the new concern are manufacturing a brand of cigarettes known as "Schinasi's Natural Aromatic" cigarettes, and that this brand of goods is being offered to the trade and is thereby causing them confusion and loss of business.

Supporting affidavits to the complaint are furnished by an officer of the United Cigar Stores Company, also by the Metropolitan Tobacco Company and several other concerns. One affidavit states that purchases had been made in the retail store of the Darius Cigarette Co., 1488 Broadway, of "Schinasi's Natural" cigarettes, and that "Natural Aromatic" cigarettes was sold.

The defendant concern state that they are merely using the name of one of the principal stockholders of their company, and that the term "Natural Aromatic" is a descriptive one of the type of the cigarettes produced, and is in no sense an infringement on the brand of "Naturals" made by the complainant. Contention is also made that the word "Natural" could not be trade-marked under Federal laws.

In the meantime a temporary injunction has been issued and argument on the matter is taking place today in the United States Circuit Court.

Once More—"Hands Up."

Again a United Cigar Store employee turned his head to find his eyes looking down the barrels of two revolvers, while a bandit gently murmured those oft repeated words "hands up." Being unable to help himself, despite the fact that fifty men were separated from him by only a thin partition, the clerk put up his hands while one of the robbers helped himself to about $350 from the open safe.

Louis Goldman, in the United store at Lexington Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, New York, had locked up his cash for the night on Laor Day evening, and decided that it was "time all good people were in bed and thieves and robbers on their way," when two men entered the store and asked for some cigars. Payment was offered in the shape of a $10 bill. There being no money in the cash till, Goldman had to open the safe in order to make the change. After he got the safe open he turned to hand the customer the change. Despite the extreme heat, Goldman had quite a chill when he found himself staring a couple of revolvers in the face.

The rest was easy—exit $350. Pursuit to no avail.

The gunmen of New York apparently have to rob at least one United Cigar Store a week or they don't feel right.

SENATE PASSES TARIFF BILL

Tobacco Rates Untouched—Penrose Amendment Fails—Meerschaum Under Twenty Per Cent. Duty

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 13.

SHORTLY before 6 P. M. Tuesday, September 9, the Senate voted 44 to 37 for the passage on the Democratic tariff bill, Senators LaFollette and Poindexter, Republicans, voting for the bill, and the two Louisiana Democratic Senators, Ransdell and Thornton, voting against it. To the tobacco trade this means that the duties as proposed in the bill as originally introduced on the House side will be enacted into law. The Senate altered the tobacco duties as proposed by the House, none at all, and this means that they will be enacted into law unchanged.

Your correspondent predicted last March that the Democrats would make no alterations in the tobacco duties or the internal revenue tax, and true to this prediction the House bill proposed no changes in existing law other than in two minor particulars. One was the reduction in the duty on scrap tobacco to thirty-five per cent. and the other was the lifting of the limit to free importation of cigars from the Philippine cigars. For the immediate present Congressional leaders say the lifting of this free limitation will have no effect, as the importation of cigars from the Philippines has never reached the free maximum allowed under existing law.

The tariff bill was sent to conference between the two Houses and it will be several days yet before it is approved for its final passage and sent to the President for his signature. The only thing of interest remaining for the tobacco trade is the date the law will go into effect, and this will be on the day following its signing by the President. The conference committee between the two Houses can alter only those sections which were changed in the Senate, therefore the tobacco schedule cannot be changed now.

During the closing hours of the debate Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, made a valiant fight for the reimposition of the limit to free importation of Philippine cigars, but failed. He offered an amendment to this effect just before the final vote was taken on the bill, proposing to add the following wording to the present provision:

Free Cigars in Wilmington, Del.

In order to advertise their special brand, "Escanaba, Common-Sense Blunt," Selak & Hoffman, the well-known manufacturers of Wilmington, Del., have invited discriminating smokers to drop into their shop on certain days and "have a cigar with them."

The firm reports an increasing demand for their special blunt, which avoids the error of most blunts by having an end that is neither too bulky nor too awkward to hold in the mouth. One of the Wilmington papers has been carrying an advertisement containing a coupon, which if presented at the Selak & Hoffman store, entitles the holder to one of their special smokes.

FREE SMOKER REGULATIONS

Rules and Forms Just Issued by Treasury Department.

(From Our Special Correspondent to "The Tobacco World.")
WASHINGTON, D. C., September 12.

FREE smokers regulations under the law enacted last February have been issued by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue under the approval of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo. As finally approved no provision was made to grant free cigarettes to employees in cigarette factories. The regulations follow strictly the law, which provides only for free cigars. The regulations and the special blank required to be kept by the manufacturers are as follows:

(T. D. 1875.)

Use by Cigar-Factory Employees of Tax-free Cigars for Personal Consumption.

Regulations governing the use of employees of manufacturers of cigars of not to exceed 21 cigars per week, exempt from being packed and stamped, under act of February 10, 1913, amending section 3392 of the Revised Statutes.

Treasury Department, August 28, 1913.

The act approved February 10, 1913, amending section 3392 of the Revised Statutes, provides:

* * * That each employee of a manufacturer of cigars shall be permitted to use, for personal consumption and for experimental purposes not to exceed 21 cigars per week without the same being packed in boxes and stamped. Such use of cigars will not be restricted to the bonded factory premises. If the number of tax-free cigars to which an employee is entitled is not taken by him each week, the number of cigars not so taken will not be allowed to accumulate in the hands of the manufacturer, nor will they be allowed to be taken later, nor will credit therefor be allowed in the manufacturer's account for a subsequent period. Tax-free cigars furnished to or taken by employees for personal consumption and for experimental purposes will not, after they have been so taken or furnished, be permitted to be commingled with the manufacturer's stock of cigars on hand. An employee will not be permitted to accumulate such cigars within the bonded factory premises. The law restricts the use of tax-free cigars to the employee individually; therefore an employee will not be permitted to take tax-free cigars and give them away. Cigars found in the hands of a person other than an employee of a manufacturer of cigars not packed in boxes, properly labeled, branded and stamped are subject to forfeiture under section 3398 of the Revised Statutes.

The manufacturer of cigars at the close of each day, in addition to the other requirements of the laws and regulations, shall enter in separate columns in his book 73, first, the total number of tax-free cigars furnished to or taken by his employees, including cigarmakers, that day, for personal consumption and for experimental purposes; second, the total number of employees, including cigarmakers, who were furnished or who have taken tax-free cigars; third, the number of cigarmakers only who were furnished or who have taken such cigars, and, fourth, the total number of cigarmakers employed.

Until Form 73 of cigar manufacturers' book is revised, manufacturers will make the above report in columns not otherwise used or in columns ruled in the margin or by subdividing others, each being appropriately headed. If the column "Removed in bond for export" is not used for the purpose originally intended, it should be used with proper change in heading for reporting the number of cigars furnished to or taken by employees under authority of the act above mentioned. Every cigar made, including those used tax free for personal consumption and for experimental purposes, shall be reported as manufactured.

Cigar manufacturers' monthly return Form 72, until revised, shall be amended and the number of tax-free cigars furnished to or taken by employees, including cigarmakers, shall be entered in the cigar account on line "Removed in bond for export," with appropriate change of said title, or, if that line is regularly used, by interlineation above. The cigar account shall be properly balanced each month. The back of Form 72 shall be ruled, providing columns, each appropriately headed, in which there shall be reported, in the first, the day of the month; in the second, the total number of cigars manufactured; in the third, the total number of cigars removed tax paid; in the fourth, the total number of tax-free cigars furnished employees, including cigarmakers; in the fifth and sixth, the total number of employees, including cigarmakers, and the total number of cigarmakers only, respectively, to whom tax-free cigars were furnished; and in the seventh, the total number of cigarmakers employed each day, each of said columns excepting the first being totaled.

Strict compliance with the above law and regulations by manufacturers of cigars and their employees will be insisted upon.

The foregoing regulations are hereby prescribed under authority of the act of February 10, 1913.

W. G. McADOO, Secretary.

The Tubarette Cigarette

In line with the present craze for smoking cigarettes in holders, Mathues Brothers, Inc., 619 Madison Avenue, New York, have just placed on the market a decided novelty in their "Tubarette Cigarette," which combines a cigarette and a quill tube in the one article. The goods are strictly high grade and should prove a success with high-class trade.

"Except, in any fiscal year, wrapper tobacco and filler tobacco when mixed or packed with more than fifteen per cent. of wrapper tobacco in excess of 300,000 pounds, filler tobacco in excess of 1,000,000 pounds, and cigars in excess of 150,000,000 cigars, which quantities shall be ascertained by the Secretary of the Treasury under such rules and regulations as he shall prescribe."

This amendment was rejected by a vote of 36 to 43.

Practically but one paragraph in the whole tariff bill relating to tobacco was altered in the Senate, thereby making it a point of compromise between the two houses. This is paragraph 391, reading as follows:

"391. Pipes and smokers' articles: Common tobacco pipes and pipe bowls made wholly of clay, 25 percentum ad valorem; other pipes and pipe bowls of whatever material composed, and all smokers' articles whatsoever, not specially provided for in this section, including cigarette books, cigarette-book covers, pouches for smoking or chewing tobacco, and cigarette paper in all forms, except cork paper, 50 percentum ad valorem; meerschaum, crude or unmanufactured, 20 percentum ad valorem."

The concluding words of the paragraph, "meerschaum, crude or manufactured, twenty percentum ad valorem," were added by the Senate.

At the present writing the party leaders are expecting the conference committee to complete its work within about ten days. They say that the tariff bill should become a law by September 20.

MEN WHO MADE GOOD

SIDELIGHTS ON INTERESTING TRADE PERSONALITIES

MEN who think along broad lines and plan always for big things, are usually found to be vulnerable on the mall points of detail, but when the world encounters the rare combination of a man who can plan a tremendous business campaign, involving the work of scores of men, and yet keep his finger tips successfully on the smallest details, we have a combination that is well nigh irresistible.

No person who meets Robert S. Appleton, of the Cado Company, Inc., can fail to be impressed with the many evident facets of his character. A peculiarly winning smile indicates social graces of the highest quality; the snap and precision with which he gives orders, indicates the thoroughly trained business man, and the masterly way in which he handles and disposes of multitudinous details, indicates a grasp on the essentials of his business which is almost abnormal.

ROBERT S. APPLETON
Cado Co. Inc. "56" Cigarettes

When the Cado Company was formed last spring, Mr. Appleton stated in an interview that he was convinced that there was a wide market for a high grade Turkish cigarette which should be sold exclusively on its merits and not made a football for price cutters. He further added that the "56" brand of cigarettes measured up to this standard and that he expected to obtain a distribution for them immediately.

Within four months we are safe in saying that no other brand of cigarettes on the market has ever obtained a wider distribution of a permanent character, and been more talked about than this same beautiful package of white, with its gold dress and the simple monogram "56" on the lid.

In the best clubs throughout the country, in the leading hotels, and in all the fine shops, "56" cigarettes are not only on display, but are being sold daily, despite the multitudinous number of other brands and the extraordinary inducements offered by other makers, and all of this work must be credited to Mr. Appleton and the staff which he has gathered about him.

He says that he just naturally grew up a cigarette man and that he has just naturally been associated with successful brands. His work in former years with the "Rameses" brand and later with the "Dabs," peculiarly fitted him for putting "56" where they are today.

Mr. Appleton is a member of four leading clubs in New York and Brooklyn, a most enthusiastic yachtsman, the owner of the trim sloop "Sigfried" and, when not on the water, spends his spare moments on horseback and playing with his dog, of which he is especially fond.

A. L. Peterson, of Moline, Ill., is now engaged in the manufacture of cigars. He has established himself in the place formerly occupied by Charles Bennel, and has five hands turning out his new 5-cent cigar, "Five Label."

C. H. Hayward, of Des Moines, has taken possession of the cigar store and news agency in the Stewart House, at Perry, Ia. The stand was recently operated by Wade H. Modlin.

J. B. Kennedy and William Hennessey have opened their new cigar store at Aberdeen, S. D. The stand is located in the old White Front saloon building, which has been remodelled and now presents an attractive front.

A lease has recently been executed for the store room at 716 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo., where Louis J. Duffy will shortly open a cigar store and pool room. This lease leaves the Stratford Hotel Building without a single vacancy.

IRREGULAR PAGINATION

I CAN hardly think of any man on the American stage who can make me laugh more heartily than Frank Tinney, the blackface comedian who has been drawing down fat salaries of several hundred dollars a week for a long time in vaudeville and on Broadway.

Tinney is an old acquaintance of I. Steiner, Jr., of William Steiner, Sons & Co., New York, and sometime ago approached Mr. Steiner in a modest way, suggesting that his name would make a good one for a cigar brand and expressing his perfect willingness to give the firm its exclusive use, if they so desired. Mr. Steiner accepted the suggestion and had a neat portrait and label of the comedian made at once.

When this label was shown the blackface comic, he expressed a keen delight and promised that he would go far toward advertising the brand of any manufacturer who would adopt his name as a cigar title.

A few days later, in keeping with this promise, Mr. Tinney was working at the Brighton Beach Music Hall when he spied his friend, Mr. Steiner, sitting in the audience and puffing a perfecto while enjoying the show. Instantly grasping an opening, Tinney walked down to the footlights and in his style which no comedian has yet been able to copy bellowed out, "Ah! I see my friend, Mr. Steiner, in the audience smoking a 'Frank Tinney' cigar."

Tinney is a Philadelphia boy, and if the brand name has not been yet snapped up by some Pennsylvania manufacturers, it looks to me like someone is overlooking an opportunity.

* * *

Every one that visits Wilmington, Del., knows the "Johnny Jones" cigar stores. John F. Jones, the proprietor, picked out an excellent location when he established a smoke shop at Sixth and Market Streets. A decided advantage over all other desirable locations is the fact that it is opposite the police station.

Now it happens that George Black, the day clerk, is a cousin of Chief of Police George Black. One would naturally feel quite safe with a police station opposite, and the clerk related to the chief of the Order of the Night Stick and Helmet.

But these facts simply go to show that "no matter how thin glass is you can always break it with an axe." for on Monday night (or early Tuesday morning) while George, the clerk, was sleeping, and his cousin's henchmen in the police station were having a game of pinochle (or a nap), a bold, bad robber with intent to steal did enter, via the transom route, and did safely make way with some odd five hundred dollars in cash, many cigars, much tobacco and some pipes; capital and stock enough to open up a small smoke shop.

Across the street, directly opposite, is an all night restaurant, but so quietly was the job done that it was not discovered until the clerk opened the store in the morning.

The police say that it must have been a very small man or boy who got through the transom, as the space is not sufficiently large to admit the body of a "regular" person.

Following the advice of Omar, the robber took "the Cash and let the Credit go." The police, however, may get some of the Credit if they catch the guy that got the Cash.

* * *

Several years ago when my friend, Lieutenant Sid. Ashe, of the Philippine Constabulary, took his band of Igorrotis from their native isle in the Philippines around the world, exhibiting them in England and in many parts of the United States, the natives attracted more attention than any other similar exhibit had ever done.

These odd little people were shown at Coney Island and in Philadelphia as well as at many other points, and I recall that one of the most interesting habits they had was the use of the family cigar. These cigars were made from the native tobacco and looked more like a policeman's "Billy" than a smoke. The head of the family usually rolls his own cigar with quite some degree of skill and puffs along for an hour or two before laying it down. As soon as the opportunity offers the women and children of the family get their chance at the communal weed. The Igorrotis who came to the United States took a great fancy to American paper cigarettes and smoked them vigorously all the time.

I remember one young chap of this visiting tribe, whose teeth proving bad, was sent by Lieutenant Ashe to a dentist, who put a gold cap on it. This proved a frightful blunder, for in less than a month, to keep order in his family, Ashe had to have gold teeth put in the mouths of every man in the band, irrespective of whether they needed them or not.

* * *

La Touche Hancock, who occasionally bursts forth into more or less meritorious verse through the columns of the New York "Sun," is at it again. He recently perpetrated the following doggerel anent, a published statement "that tobacco smoke will eradicate the most virulent bacilli." Read and ponder for yourself:

You ask me not to smoke, my dear,
And say I really shouldn't;
If microbes were a joke, my dear,
You may be sure I wouldn't.
I hate the very smell, my dear,
I loathe the nasty taste,
And I know very well, my dear,
It is an awful waste,
But I must spend some wealth, my dear,
These deadly germs to bar,
So just to save your health, my dear,
Pass the tobacco jar.

It seems to us a pity that the Senate in passing the tariff bill on last Tuesday failed to consider more favorably the amendment offered by Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, to restrict the importation of Philippine cigars to the 150,000,000 annual limit, which was provided under the tariff act of 1909.

Penrose on Philippine Cigar Restriction

The most successful importers of Philippine cigars in the United States readily admit that the development of their business here has been gravely affected for several years past by the unlimited importation of the worst products of the island. This was so apparent during the year 1911 that the importations fell off some fifty per cent. in volume, and the result was that a Philippine cigar, no matter what its quality, could hardly find place on a dealer's shelf.

During the past two years the importers have sought the aid of the authorities in the Philippines, as well as the influential manufacturers there, and by careful supervision, have sent to the states such quality of cigars as have led to a largely augmented increase in the consumption of the product, despite the unfavorable feeling towards the goods which had been created.

Senator Penrose justly contended that a limit should be put upon the free importation of Philippine cigars, owing to the fact that several of the large American corporations have interested themselves in the Far East and with an absolutely open gate the competition to our splendid home industry might prove a serious menace. He dwelt strongly on this phase of the situation, but despite his best efforts the amendment was lost by a party vote.

There is no question that the United States can assimilate 150,000,000 good Philippine cigars, and, as a matter of fact, the importations last year amounted to about 125,000,000, but it certainly seems unwise for Congress to have laid upon the shoulders of the American cigar manufacturers the additional unlimited competition of a product of Asiatic labor, especially in view of the enormous revenue derived from the industry in the United States.

The question of Philippine cigars has not yet been settled, and it is to be hoped that the intelligent importers here will do everything possible to see that the unlimited license granted by the new law is not abused.

Some Signs of Light

The news received from Boston to the effect that the ridiculous cut-price battle which has been waging there for a number of weeks has been terminated by mutual agreement, through the friendly efforts of Mayor Fitzgerald and public opinion as well, is most welcome information.

Trade history has never revealed any instances of ultimate business prosperity resulting from selling goods below the cost of manufacture. The old adage of "honest men getting their dues when thieves fall out" does not apply to a cut-price situation. Mayor Fitzgerald has been closely allied with the tobacco trade for some years, having a brother who is a cigar manufacturer, and the situation grew so tense that on the 4th inst. he called together representatives from the Riker-Jaynes Co., the United Cigar Stores Company, McGreenery & Manning and Louis K. Liggett, and talked to them straight from the shoulder concerning the damage being done in Boston.

That this action has been beneficial all around is evidenced by the increase all along the line in New York City of the prices of cigarettes in the Riker-Hegeman stores, though they are yet below normal figures in these establishments. "Murads" and "Moguls" were quoted at 10 cents as against 8 cents per package three days ago, and "Salisbury," which sold at 6 cents, Riker-Hegeman were charging 8 cents, or two packages for 15 cents.

From personal observation of fifty-four customers who entered the Riker-Hegeman store at Forty-second Street and Broadway last week, not one man bought a single penny's worth of merchandise outside of cigarettes which were sold at from forty to fifty per cent. below their regular retail price. The counter was so crowded that a gentleman, desiring to purchase a cigar, immediately gave up the attempt in disgust.

A Contradictory Situation

There are so many who are used to crying "Wolf" when there is no wolf, that it causes us to take their cries "cum granum salus."

It is reported in some sections that retailers have complained of having had an exceptionally dull season. They say that trade has been scarcer during the summer months than ever before in their history.

On the other hand, the factories were never busier; manufacturers say that the retailers' orders are running heavier this year than ever before. Some factories are so far behind in their work that they are not making a great effort to get new business, because they cannot take care of it.

OBITVARY

Robert M. Yahn, Wreck Victim

IN the frightful railroad tragedy that wiped out more than a score of lives on the morning of September 2, when the White Mountain Express of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad ploughed its way through the rear wooden sleepers of the Bar Harbor Limited, Robert M. Yahn, of the well-known retail and jobbing tobacco firm of Yahn & McDonnell, was swept into eternity.

Mr. Yahn had been spending his vacation in a camp at West Outlet, Moosehead Lake, Me., and was returning to town a few days ahead of his family when he met his death.

For years Mr. Yahn has been a prominent figure in the Philadelphia trade and the news of his tragic end came as a great shock to his many friends.

ROBERT M. YAHN

Robert M. Yahn was born in Philadelphia August 28, 1872. It was in this city that he received his education, and his entire business career had been spent in the tobacco trade.

For many years Mr. Yahn had charge of the Fifth and Chestnut Streets store of M. J. Dalton Co. His future partner at that time was employed in the Thirteenth and Arch Streets store of M. J. Dalton Co.

Mr. Yahn had just passed his forty-second birthday when the end came.

With a wide acquaintance among men of public affairs, Mr. Yahn himself became widely known in Philadelphia outside of trade circles. He was a member of the Union League and of the Fortnightly Club, the latter a musical organization. Mr. Yahn was a lover of music and was an ardent supporter of such clubs.

At the time of the death of Mr. Yahn, Mr. McDonnell had just departed on his vacation for an island in Georgian Bay, two hundred and fifty miles north of Toronto. Effort was made to reach Mr. McDonnell as soon as the news was received, but he did not reach Philadelphia until Thursday morning about eleven o'clock.

Mr. Yahn was buried on Saturday from his Roxborough home. The funeral was largely attended by the Philadelphia trade in general and by many Philadelphians well known in public life. Among those from New York who attended the funeral were Victor Lopez and Frank Rowland, of Hermanos, Lopez & Co.

The deceased is survived by a widow, one daughter and one son.

In 1904 the firm of Yahn & McDonnell was established at Fifteenth and Chestnut Streets. Later they opened a store at Fourth and Library Streets, and only a few months ago took the stand in the new Stock Exchange Building on Walnut Street, above Broad.

Mr. McDonnell has announced that the firm will continue as before. Mrs. Yahn will retain her interest and there will be no changes.

John G. Hummel.

John G. Hummel, one of the most prominent leaf dealers in the Middle West, succumbed suddenly on Labor Day to a stroke of apoplexy.

Mr. Hummel, who lived in St. Louis, Mo., was sixty years of age, and had been identified with the leaf tobacco business for more than thirty years.

The deceased is survived by a widow, three sons and two daughters.

Henry T. Knott.

Henry T. Knott, a well known tobacconist and warehouseman of Kinston, N. C., died on August 29. He was a victim of Bright's disease.

Mr. Knott was fifty years of age, a native of Granville County and prominently connected.

Edmund J. Reed.

Acute indigestion caused the death of Edmund J. Reed, of West Suffield, Conn., on August 25. He was born in Ulverton, Quebec, Can.

Mr. Reed, who was thirty-two years old, had been a tobacco grower of this vicinity for five years.

He is survived by a widow.

Julius Frumkin.

Julius Frumkin, a well known tobacconist of Salt Lake City, Utah, died of hemorrhages on August 23.

Mr. Frumkin had been in the tobacco business in Salt Lake City ten years and was considered an expert in his line.

The deceased is survived by a widow, two sons and one daughter.

August D. Kauffman.

August D. Kauffman, for more than thirty years a cigar manufacturer of Rockford, Ill., succumbed to the results of an apoplectic stroke on August 29. He was stricken in the spring and never recovered from the shock.

The deceased was fifty-nine years old and for many years conducted a factory at 316 East State Street.

He is survived by a widow, four sons and one daughter.

Ira B. Cutter

After an illness of several months, Ira B. Cutter, a well-known cigar dealer of Cedar Rapids, Ia., succumbed to heart disease on September 3rd, at his residence 117 A. Avenue, West.

Mr. Cutter had been a resident of Cedar Rapids since 1890, and five years ago opened his popular smoke shop at the east end of the Third Avenue bridge.

COMBINATION OFFERS MAY HELP INDEPENDENT RETAILERS' CAUSE

Price-Cutters Barred From Participation in Premium Schemes of A. T. Company—Riker and Liggett Stores Face New Move in Tobacco War

THE price-cutting war which has extended for some time throughout the New England States, with Boston as a center, has at last aroused the American Tobacco Company to a determined stand against this form of business, which has done inestimable damage to the exclusive tobacco dealers who did not join in the strife to retain trade by cutting prices.

In order to wipe out this situation the American Tobacco Company has announced that it will co-operate with such dealers by aiding them with a campaign. The plan is to aid the dealer by furnishing him premiums free, and advertising the bargains in the local papers. All stores that will post in their windows placards furnished by the American Tobacco Company announcing the offers may become beneficiaries.

The first combination offer that was made was the choice of a briar pipe, selling at 25 cents or perhaps 50 cents, with every 50-cent tin of a certain brand of smoking tobacco. It is said that an enormous business was done by the legitimate trade on the first day of this offer. It is only fair that they should, for upon their shoulders has fallen the brunt of the terrific struggle that has been taking place among the Liggett stores, Riker & Hegeman and the United Cigar Stores.

Another combination which will follow will be a safety razor or an ash receiver with a certain brand of cigarettes. These premiums will be given only to those stores who guarantee to maintain prices.

The price-cutting war has been disastrous to small dealers, and many of them have been driven out of business. Should the battle of cut-rates continue, the end can plainly be seen. The companies supplying those stores which have been forced to withdraw from business lose the sale of their products, and while it may not amount to much taken here and here, in the aggregate the manufacturer must be affected to no small degree. With the spread of such a situation as exists in Boston to other large cities, it would mean that the chain stores would eventually gain the whip hand over the manufacturers, cutting down their profits as well as their business.

Another effect that manufacturers may find will be that upon the restoration of prices the demands for their goods may fall off. A man who has been buying 20-cent cigarettes for 14 cents may be unwilling to go back to paying 20 cents again, but will swing to some 15-cent brand. The same is true of cigars and tobacco.

As a means of preventing such a condition, and at the same time gaining the good will of the independent dealers as against other manufacturers, the American Tobacco Company's move was regarded as extremely sagacious. Its effect will be to withdraw its "advertising schemes" from the United Cigar Stores, as well as drug stores, in New England as long as they cut prices, but it will not affect the United Stores in New York so long as they continue to maintain prices.

One of the things that the Supreme Court has definitely decided since it became the fashion to enforce the Sherman law is that a manufacturer can exercise no control over the price at which his product shall be sold to jobbers or retailers, but the company lawyers have found a weapon which they are satisfied can legally be used against the price-cutters. This is in the method of operating its "advertising schemes," which involve the giving of premiums with certain tobacco brands at certain times.

Price-cutting on tobacco products in New York seems to have been the result of the invasion of this field by the Liggett drug stores in competition with the Riker & Hegeman stores. There are about sixty of the latter and two Liggett stores have been opened in the last few months, with more to follow. Both of the Liggett stores and fifteen of the Riker stores have tobacco departments. The rivalry between these has been marked by cuts similar to those in New England. This has again involved the United Cigar Stores, although they have made no price cuts so far. They have retaliated on the drug store combinations, however, by putting soda fountains in some of their stores and there has even been talk of their putting in drug departments.

Vice-President Posey, of United Cigar Stores Company, commenting on the letter of Percival S. Hill which follows, in connection with the war on tobacco goods in New England, says: "The action of officials of American Tobacco Company is undoubtedly aimed particularly at some large drug concerns that have been making big cuts in prices lately in an effort to compete with United Cigar Stores Company and other retailers. These drug concerns were satisfied to take even a loss on their tobacco sales in order to attract customers for their regular lines on which they reap a big profit.

"Shortly after the radical cut instituted by the drug companies, United Cigar Stores Company advanced its prices, which caused these drug companies to come out with the statement that they had us 'on the run.' We immediately retaliated with two cuts in our prices.

"I feel sure in saying that the retailers generally, large and small alike, are with us in this fight against companies whose profits are entirely in other lines. In fact, they really look to us to take the lead. As to just what the end will be I am making no forecasts. However, the United is not losing any business, and earnings are better than last year."

The letter of President Hill, of the American Tobacco Company, follows:

NEW YORK, September 3.

To the Tobacco Dealers of New England:

Gentlemen: We desire to make clear beyond possible misunderstanding our attitude towards the present deplorable situation in the retail cigarette and tobacco business in New England, and the other affected portions of the country.

We do not own directly or indirectly a dollar's worth of stock in any corporation operating a chain of retail stores. At one time we did own an interest in a chain of stores, but the court insisted upon our disposing of that interest, and since then we have had no interest, and, therefore, can control in no manner their actions.

We distinctly and emphatically disapprove of the price war method now being employed by various chains of stores in which leading tobacco products are being sold even below wholesale cost, and, therefore, at a tremendous loss to the retailer. The ridiculous habit of selling goods at or below cost is only for the purpose of drawing trade to sell other lines of goods which can be sold at a profit.

It is manifestly unfair to the manufacturer whose products are thus sacrificed, and it seems to us is likewise cruel and destructive to the smaller merchant, who is trying to secure a fair profit on all of his merchandise. The temporary advantage that the consumer gets by saving a few pennies for a short time on the products that he desires is more than offset by the inconvenience that later will arise should this result in the elimination from business of a number of smaller merchants.

The matter of convenience in buying has been one of the greatest factors in the development of the tobacco business. There are now over 600,000 retail merchants handling our products throughout the country, and our own selfish interests demand that we do all in our power to assist and support this great army of small merchants. We, of course, desire to sell not only these merchants, but also the larger retailers, the operators of the chains of stores, because we realize that chains of stores are important factors in serving the public.

As every one knows, we sell our products to a generally recognized list of jobbers. Our prices are absolutely identical to all of our customers. Our price list is known to every jobber, and there is absolutely no deviation from that price list. This is as far as we can go in the matter of prices. The law will not permit us to fix the price at which our goods will be sold. After our products reach the jobber, we are not permitted by law to exercise any measure of control over them, or over the price at which they are sold; and after the retailer purchases the goods he can do with them as he will. We do not hesitate to say that if there were any way in which we could correct this present condition we would bend every energy toward that end.

San Francisco

Protola Festivities Mean Big Business—"Rosadora" Featured by Tillman & Bendel—Campaign on Krinsky Cigarettes

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., September 8.

San Francisco retailers are doing better business right along. The holidays of the early part of September that have more or less retarded business for the wholesalers have rather increased the sales of the retailers, several of the down-town houses having had a particularly good business on Labor Day. At the tail-end of the vacation season San Francisco gets more than it loses in the way of population. Not only are the natives returning from their vacations, but the country people are now making their regular late summer outings in this city, mixing their pleasure with a little business in preparation for the fall and winter activities in their home towns. These visitors have left a good many dimes and nickels with the local retailers; and, where the visitors are of the trade, they have left some orders with the jobbers.

The retail trade is now beginning to look forward to the Portola festivities of the middle of October. The Portola celebration two or three years ago was one of the most successful things in the carnival order that San Francisco has ever held, and the dealers are anticipating a big crowd and a lot of business this year. The celebration covers about a week. The dealers who are to occupy the stands in the new buildings now under way are urging on the contractors, in the hope of getting their new stores open in time to take advantage of what will probably be the best week of the fall trade.

New things continue to be brought out from week to week. About the latest is the "Rosadora," a 5-cent clear Havana line of cigars made by the Dunn factory. This line will be placed in this territory by Tillmann & Bendel, wholesale grocers and tobacconists, who have long had a large wholesale trade in good lines of cigars. Their leading line has long been the Sanchez & Haya.

Sello Blumenthal, one of the best known traveling cigar men on the Coast, who has long been connected with M. A. Gunst & Co. of this city, has at last been induced to forsake that house to accept the position as special salesman for the "Owl" cigar. He will cover the important cities of the entire country. He will make his first stop at Salt Lake City, where the "Owl" is in charge of Hemenway & Moser.

While the country trade for the fall is expected to be fully up to the average, taking the state and Coast as a whole, San Francisco jobbers find that the "dry" wave of the last year which has closed up a good many saloons has done a good deal of temporary harm to the wholesale trade. Wholesalers who had well established connections with saloons have suddenly found these connections broken; and in a good many cases they have not been able to secure new accounts that were equally satisfactory, this being made more difficult by the uncertainty of credits in this era of money tightness. Moreover a line that has been mainly sold at a saloon is not always suitable to the druggist of variety store trade; and many of the towns affected either have all the exclusive cigar stores they can support, or are not able to support any. Naturally, this condition will largely right itself; but it is a notable fact that some of the wholesalers have altogether or partially abandoned "dry" territory where they formerly had a profitable trade.

William Bercovich, formerly of San Francisco but now of Sacramento, appears to be prospering exceedingly in his new wholesale venture—the Capital Tobacco Company. He has now added an automobile to his equipment and is covering a wider territory more thoroughly than he has heretofore been able to do.

A number of minor changes in the retail business of the city are reported this week. Glaser Bros. have bought out the store of James Kapianis at 1128 Folsom Street; Edwin Goldstone, a Powell Street dealer, has opened another store at the Third and Townsend Street terminus of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company; J. N. Schwarts has bought out the stock of Louis Sanders at Turk and Taylor Streets, and S. D. Stein, owner of a store on the forty-three hundred block on California Street, died a few days ago.

Anthony V. Jockel, of the Ruy Lopez factory, who is sizing up the Coast situation, arrived in San Francisco early in the week and will spend a week or so with the Bier-Saalburg Co., distributors of the line.

Frank Ewan, who has made a success of the retail management of the M. A. Gunst & Co. store at 800 Market Street, has attracted the attention of the management and has been made outside city salesman for the house.

S. Bachman & Co. have made a good start on the fall trade and are expecting a more than average season. They have not yet quite finished up the vacation season, M. Falkenstein being now away on his vacation in the Lake Tahoe country. Henry Loverich, of their traveling force, is now visiting his trade in the Sacramento Valley. His early fall trip through the San Joaquin Valley resulted in a goodly number of orders.

The Edward Wolf Co. is gratified at the increased life shown in the Manila trade. Their shipments, both to the East and to Coast points, are picking up materially as the season advances.

I. Danziger, the California Street cigar broker, is still in San Francisco, and may not cover his outside territory for a month or more. He finds the Manila improvement the most encouraging feature of the late summer trade.

H. H. Manley, San Francisco representative of the American Cigar Company, is now in the Puget Sound section visiting the trade and arranging for the fall work. The American Cigar Company is doing some effective work this summer, and Mr. Manley is confident of a good showing for fall.

W. I. Pixley, known to fame as the Coast representative of Krinsky cigarettes and of Dill's tobacco, finished up his summer's work with a week's stay at Santa Cruz, where he took a rest as well as did a little business. He reached San Francisco a week ago, and is now looking after some of the more urgent calls in this city and Oakland. Mr. Pixley's trip, which was made in his automobile, occupied over two months and covered a large part of the central and southern parts of the state. He visited all the more important towns from San Francisco South, taking orders and distributing advertising.

J. J. Gans, head of J. J. Gans & Bro., of Los Angeles, returned this week from an enjoyable trip to the East. He came home by way of San Francisco and stopped off for a day or two to visit friends in the local trade. He anticipates a good business in Los Angeles and throughout Southern California.

Howard Banning of Los Angeles, has sold out his business to R. C. Robson, of that city.

Special "Las Perlas" Package.

The illustration herewith is that of a special souvenir package of "Las Perlas" Havana-made "Coronas," which were recently a souvenir gift at one of the select functions of a leading Philadelphia club.

These goods are made by Fernandez y Garcia and they are solely controlled in the United States by S. S. Pearce & Co., of Boston. Charles M. Gudeknecht has for years handled these goods in Philadelphia as the exclusive Pearce distributor.

It may not be out of place to sound a word of warning to the chains of stores who persist in a practice that is oppressive and destructive. Public opinion is enlightened and insistent upon an open opportunity to the small as well as the large, and this policy of destruction, if persisted in, will in our opinion bring about legislation and taxation that will do more injury to the chains of stores' system than they can possibly derive benefit from their present methods.

We have from time to time endeavored by persuasion and discussion to change this very bad situation in New England and elsewhere, but up to the present time without success. It is entirely legal, however, for us to assist with our advertising campaigns those retail merchants who co-operate with us. We have decided, therefore, to confine our advertising schemes to the stores of those retailers who work with us.

It is our desire that the salesmen of our various departments should visit you in person to invite you to participate in our advertising campaigns. It is hardly possible for us to have the name and address of every retailer in New England. If, therefore, our salesmen should fail to call on you to invite your co-operation in our advertising work, we would thank you to send us your name and address.

Very truly yours,
PERCIVAL S. HILL,
President.

S. Loewenthal & Sons Remove.

S. LOEWENTHAL, of S. Loewenthal & Sons, has been extremely busy during the past week superintending the removal of their business from 131 Maiden Lane to the big warehouse which they recently leased at 123 Maiden Lane. Mr. Loewenthal says that the completion of their removal is a little earlier than they expected, but that the contractors made good headway, and they deemed it wise to take advantage of their increased facilities as soon as possible.

B. Loewenthal, of the firm, is reported in Tampa this week and the other salesmen of the house are all on the road with the new samples of "Clover Leaf" tobacco grown on the firm's own plantations in Florida.

Harry S. Loewenthal has been receiving congratulations that the accident received by his four-months'-old bride during a tennis game on Labor Day had not resulted in the loss of her eyesight from a blow which she received by a swiftly driven tennis ball.

President Alonso in Europe.

After a two weeks' visit in New York, President E. Alonso, of the Por Larranaga factory, Havana, sailed for London on the "Lusitania" on September 2, and is at present in the British metropolis conferring with their distributors. Mr. Alonso's stay in London will be limited to twelve days and he is booked to sail from there on next Saturday, the 20th inst.

Upon his arrival in New York he plans to stay only a few days to complete plans now under consideration for a general broadening of the Por Larranaga business in the United States.

W. H. Jones Joins Preferred Havana Company

ANNOUNCEMENT comes from the Preferred Havana Company, that Walter H. Jones has been engaged by them to act as general office manager of their New York offices in the Eagle Building, Fourth Avenue and Twenty-first Street, and to take charge of the Metropolitan distribution of several brands of clear Havana cigars made by the company.

Mr. Jones was for many years an officer of the old Surbrug Company, which was eventually absorbed by the Tobacco Products Company, and he resigned his position with the latter concern August 1st.

Max Schatz Out West

Max Schatz is off on a month's trip to more distant Western cities with a line of F. Rodriguez & Co.'s "Elites" for holiday trade. The Havana factory has turned out some wonderful goods for this purpose and Mr. Schatz is cleaning up orders in fine shape.

His recently acquired stand in the Hotel Savarin, in Indianapolis, is proving a big winner, featuring fine goods and sales increasing daily.

Felipe Rodriguez, of the Elite factory, is now in New York.

Walter James Joins Merriam Force.

AFTER an eighteen months' connection with Cuesta, Rey & Co. in the Middle West, Walter James has resigned his position and on the first of this month joined the selling staff of J. W. Merriam & Co., of New York.

Mr. James will travel the states of Michigan, Ohio and Missouri in the interests of the "Baron de Kolb," "De Luxe" and "Bull Dog" brands, and from his past record should prove a strong addition to the house of Merriam.

Mr. James is most pleasantly remembered as the former buyer and manager of the cigar department of Burdan & Co. in Toledo, O., and no one will gainsay his knowledge of the cigar business.

John W. Merriam, head of the house, is at present making a three weeks' trip out through the Middle West, having been reported in Chicago and Cleveland during the past week.

He is expected back in New York by September 25.

Another "United" Store Robbed

Samuel Moskowitz turned around in the United cigar store at 882 Sixth Avenue last Tuesday night and pulled a box of cigarettes out for a customer, who was waiting with a friend. He turned around and handed the cigarettes over. The customer handed him a bill to be changed. The "friend" who had lounged near the door, moved nearer as the cash register rung.

When Moskovitz looked up from the cash register, he was attracted by the brilliancy of the barrel of a revolver, held in the "customer's" hand. The "customer" suggested that the clerk hand over the money in the cash register to his "friend." About $70 stood between Samuel and eternity. After figuring relative values, he handed over the $70 without delay.

Nothing has been seen of the bandits since. Moskowitz does not care if they never come back, as far as he is concerned.

P. A. Becker on a Vacation.

P. A. Becker, the genius of the display case business, has been off taking a much-needed vacation during the past three weeks and working hard all the time to educate the public to the imperative need of the proper handling of cigars and offering them for sale.

Mr. Becker visited Washington and Baltimore, and when in Philadelphia, together with his estimable wife, paid his respects at the office of the "Tobacco World." He stated that after years of the hardest and most discouraging effort the trade and public at large are just commencing to appreciate the value of having cigars properly protected, and that this has largely augmented the sales of his all-glass, self-hinging lid. The Becker Company are also extensive manufacturers of display and fancy cases and humidors.
